Walsweight leaned forward, his throat working convulsively as he struggled to regain composure.

"I hope you do not consider me unsympathetic," said Donald, a note of anxiety in his tone.

Walsweight's hand reached forth to clasp Donald's firmly. "No, I do not doubt your sincerity. An inordinate sense of pride has kept me in my present circumstances. The circumstances you have related has brought me to a realization that it is a selfish pride, as it has denied Connie the privileges to which she is entitled. There is nothing I can say," he went on in bitter self-condemnation, "that can even partially condone or palliate my stupidity. I should have known that she would require proper clothing now that she is grown up. As a matter of fact"—he paused, his distress acute—"my finances are a bit low, just now."

"How old is Connie?" asked Donald, hoping to relieve Walsweight's embarrassment.

"Nineteen."

Donald's hand came up with a jerk. "What!" he almost shouted.

"She is nineteen," Walsweight reiterated, a peculiar expression in his eyes as he noticed Donald's bewilderment.

"Nineteen!" Donald re-echoed, a bemused look on his face. "Great Scot! This is a surprise. I thought of Connie as being not more than fourteen or fifteen."

Connie was unknown to the greater part of the crowd. To them this child-like equestrienne, with her mass of flaming hair, appeared as an apparition. Her firm little hands soon checked her turbulent mount, who stood prancing with nervousness. The crowd gave her a rousing welcome as soon as they had recovered from their astonishment.

"Who is she?" Where does she come from?" they shouted.

Connie's face eyes fixed on the ground. She was outwardly calm and serene; inwardly she was an nervous as her fretting raging, and did not dare raise her flushed face to meet the battery of eyes around her

Automobile Is Real Benefit To Humanity

Curse In Man Who Does Not Use It Wisely

The automobile, in itself, cannot be a curse to anyone. The curse of the automobile is that of the human element, of the man who does not know how to use wisely an instrument of real benefit to humanity.

Unfortunately the human element always is to be considered. There always will be those who use automobiles for law-breaking purposes and who drive them so recklessly as to endanger the lives of other people.

If all automobile owners and drivers were imbued with a real sense of their responsibility to their fellowmen, there would be very few accidents and there would be no need of judges or agents else having to make remarks derogatory to a machine that has become an essential part of this country's life.

Resident Of Vancouver, Through Death Of Cousin, Becomes a Baronet

A second Canadian romance of the British peerage within recent weeks has come to light in Vancouver, in the succession of Eric Wyndham Francis Carmichael-Anstruther, to the baronetcies of Carmichael and Anstruther.

The Vancouver man, now Sir Eric Windham Francis Carmichael-Anstruther, bart., has left the family seat, Carmichael House, Thankerton, Lanarkshire, Scotland, to settle matters in connection with the estate following the death of his cousin, Sir William Frederick Carmichael-Anstruther, bart.

Sir Eric expects to be in the old country about three months, after which it is his intention to return to Vancouver, where he has been employed as a draftsman for the past three years.

Sir Eric comes of a very old Scottish family which traces its ancestry for 700 years. He will be the 11th baronet of Anstruther, created in Scotland in 1700, and eighth of Carmichael, created in England, in 1706. According to a statement made by persons he will also assume the honors of hereditary carver of the royal household in Scotland and one of the masters of the household.

Investor's Claim Unusual

Wisconsin Chemist Says His Mechanical Device Can Be Taught

Claim that he has invented a mechanical device which is capable of being "taught" is made by Dr. H. D. Baernstein of the University of Wisconsin physiological chemistry department, following a challenge issued six months ago by C. L. Hull, professor of psychology at the state school.

Dr. Baernstein's "thinking" apparatus consists of numerous switches, wires and an incandescent light. The mechanism, he said, is so arranged that the bulb may be lighted by one of the switches and may by any of the other switches may be "taught" to light the bulb. The apparatus he claims, is analogous to the presentation of stimuli

"The machine," Dr. Baernstein declared, "is merely a symbol of mechanism of the human body

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acidity. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour

Almost all ills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your whole sour, acid condition will promptly end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

WINDOLITE

MADE IN ENGLAND

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's greatest preservative and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays are those which penetrate with the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of the Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding those vital health-giving rays. Further, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the demand. Extensive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens, and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionised gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light but strong windows for cattle sheds, dairy stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings. It is economical, unbreakable, durable and easy to fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, hothouses, conservatories, hospitals, bed pans, cold frames and greenhouses. It keeps out cold and wet, and can be cut with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls and can be bought by the yard in widths of 36 inches only A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs. while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness weighs about 125 to 130 ozs The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.

The piece was one of seven struck by the government in the first days of the time of the gold rush. It being thought that a mint could best be operated on the spot. This proved uneconomical, however, and after seven pieces had been issued, the project was abandoned. The coin in question was shipped by the S.S. Montclare to a numismatist in England.

YOUR GARDEN PLOT AND HOME

A department devoted to constructive criticism of the homes and garden plots of the members of the Vermilion Horticultural Society and others.

The Editor, The Standard,
Vermilion, Alta.
Dear Sir,—

Having been requested to make an inspection of the premises of the Town of Vermilion, those of His Worship the Mayor, and those of the President of the Horticultural Society, Mr. Kaiser, we beg to report as follows: The premises of the Corporation of the Town of Vermilion could hardly be classed as an inspiration to the citizens generally. The mine and objects of the Horticultural Society are to present to the eyes of visitors a beautiful town, well planned, well planted and well kept. The property of the town itself, is, in a word, unsightly. The streets are littered with paper, tomato cans, and rubbish. The vacant lots that are interspersed between various buildings are in a very bad condition and should be immediately cleaned up. The town park, provided by the council some time ago is a bright spot on the landscape and it is this park is given the attention it deserves it will do much to enhance the beauty of the town.

Vermilion has as good a chance as any town in Alberta to improve the visitor, but impression cannot be made unless a general clean-up is undertaken, vacant lots cleaned and levelled, gutters freed from their unsightly coating of paper, scraps and sticks, stones, etc

His Worship the Mayor is as good a booster as Vermilion has ever had the privilege to count as a citizen; we hope that when the steam heating plant and the new power generating machinery are working to his complete satisfaction that he will turn his attention to beautifying the Town. His own little park, near the C.N.R. station, is a blaze of beauty in the summer but we must confess is not at this time a herald of prosperity and general cleanliness. No doubt by the time Next week's Standard makes its appearance this park will have been cleaned up and will immediately say to the stranger "Behold, soon I will bloom and beauty, in the meantime see my polished appearance." What would be the matter with making a smaller garden south of the station restaurant, east to the freight sheds?

Mr Kaiserp the President of the Horticultural Society, is ever a booster for the beautification of Vermilion, it would almost be a shame to suggest that beautification, like charity, begins at home, but the odd tin can and even (ah-hah!) a bottle on which the letters "beer" were plainly visible. We know of course, that this bottle could not have contained anything but vinegar, but we strongly recommend that Mr. Kaiser set a good example to the rank and file members of the Horticultural Society by making sure that a covered receptacle is provided for such articles as cans, beer or vinegar bottles and old horseshoes so that they will not clutter up the flower beds that have been so carefully arranged.

We trust that we will not have to speak about these matters again; it would be embarrassing to the owners of property that is not kept in good shape, but we are out for a clean town, a beautiful town, an ummaculate town and if we all work together we shall no doubt have the finest little town in the Province of Alberta.

Yours truly,
CLEAN UP COMMITTEE

An interesting feature of the display exercises at the School of Agriculture was a presentation by Hon. Mr. Reid to Rosetta Annetts of the bronze medal of the Royal Canadian Humane Association for heroic conduct in saving the lives of seven children from the burning house at Vermilion last [illegible] Hon. Mr. Reid was commissioned by the association to make the presentation.

The little girl was received with great applause and the audience stood up during the presentation ceremony. The association stated in covering letter that Rosetta Annetts equalled in age, nine years, the youngest child ever to receive the bronze medal and it felt that it had been well and truly merited for her very remarkable courage and prompt action under great stress. The association congratulated Rosetta upon having been awarded the bronze medal for gallantry in saving the lives of seven children.

VERMILION ALBERTA
ESTABLISHED 1909
Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.
G. E. P. PLUMMER Editor

Vermilion, Alta., April 4, 1929.

In the death of A. W. Ebbett, Vermilion suffers the loss of one of its most respected and leading citizens and a man of sterling character, warm heart and outstanding ability. Active in all public matters tending to the betterment of existing conditions and taking a prominent part in local organizations in spite of indifferent health, he never spared himself, the cause representing personal reasons. His views and insight will be sadly missed in the various offices he so ably and efficiently filled. His life was a life well lived and had its compensations in the knowledge of an indomitable desire to faithfully discharge the duties entrusted to him which we know he did so well. In devoting the veil over the earthly life of him who has gone before, it can most fittingly be said, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." To the mourning widow, son and daughter, the Standard extends heartfelt sympathy in their severe loss.

At the funeral of the late A. W. Ebbett, held this afternoon, the Alberta Government was represented by Mr. Robt. Rashish of the municipal department. The flag over the parliament buildings was flown at half-mast from Tuesday morning until after the funeral today.

CO-OPERATION IS ASKED

Parents and all others interested in young peoples' organizations, should require no urging to be present at the Girl Guides' display in Community hall tomorrow (Friday) evening. In face of the desire recently evinced to have the efficiency of work among our boys and girls, this affords an opportunity to show real earnest co-operation with those who have assumed the duties of leadership, by filling the hall to its full capacity this Friday evening. A most interesting programme has been prepared for the occasion, copies of which will be supplied all present with the compliments of The Standard.

Canada's Future

In a very fine address by Mr. Graham Spry, secretary of the Association of Canadian Clubs, and printed in "The Canadian Nation," the subject of Canadian unity is dealt with under the title "One Nation, Two Cultures," which was likewise the heading over the article appearing in this column last week. In fact, last week's article was inspired by Mr. Spry's address.

In his speech, Mr. Spry urged that, above all, the two Canadian races should be frank with each other, speak out their feelings freely and courteously, and attack that underlying menace, the fear, the suspicion which ignorance breeds: and "working for common national ends, working the same national institutions and developing the same national estate, they will learn to know each other, to recognize much of a Canadian, to feel a sense, not of fear, but of partnership." Then he said:

"One nation, two cultures, one nationality, two races, one loyalty, two tongues, on the like Dominion of Canada is founded, on this like partnership rests by solemn contract, by mutual trust. And thus it must abide or perish. Let it abide, and the nation will grow greater, and the world richer that two races, full of spirit, rich in the heritage that time endows, a tongue, a culture, each their own and shared at times in common, may live in amity as one, secure, serene, partners in the development of the noble estate to which we do fortunate successors. Let it fail, let race seek to dominate race, let prejudice tear its vein and ride rough shod through the fine bonds that unite us and Confederation shall perish, and the peoples of Canada be thrust into a future, dark and unpredictable.

Looking back over the sixty-odd years of Confederation, can any one imagine what the position of the present Dominion of Canada would be had the Canadian people of both races in 1867 not agreed to sink their differences and agree upon compromise policies and enter into a solemn compact with each other, both for the present and the future. Had such agreement not been reached there would have been no Confederation Had there been no Confederation what would in all likelihood be the position and status of British North America today?

Would it be British? It is extremely doubtful Long ere this it is highly probable that large sections of what is now Canada would have become merged in the United States Certain it is that failing Confederation, the isolated Crown colonies would have remained weak, undeveloped. Instead, we have a great and prosperous Dominion, rapidly forging to the front as one of the great nations of the world a tower of strength to the Empire, and already exerting no mean influence in the councils of the nations. The unity effected by the solemn guarantees of the act of Confederation was not alone the creation of the Dominion: it was the salvation of the country at large

Not only must the letter of that contract be lived up to, but the spirit must be observed Failure on the part of the Canadian people, whether of British or French extraction, to recognize both the letter and the spirit of the union effected by Confederation will be fatal to its existence And if Confederation fails, what are we to put in its place? Confederation is warranteed by uniting faction on the part of one race against the other, and is Confederation is weakened in any period On the other hand, cordial acceptance of the spirit of the Confederation pact, which we all least annually on Dominion Day, will add strength to the structure, and enable the united Canadian people to resist all attacks upon their sovereignty and develop in peace their great heritage.

As Mr Graham Spry truly states, any other future for Canada but that based up to full acceptance of terms and spirit of the Confederation pact is indeed dark and impenetrable.

Utilizing Waste Product

Hot Water From Pumice Factories Cleans Ice From Streets

Hot water as a waste product from ice plants and other factories of Pueblo, is being used by the city highway department to remove snow and ice from the highways. Street sprinklers and flushers are filled with the hot water and driven to the downtown streets With one sprinkler following another, both directing streams of hot water onto the pavement, snow and ice melt immediately and are drained away. The hot water, obtained free saves the city large amounts usually spent shoveling and hauling snow off the streets.

The trouble about cold is whether which saves Post bits lies in the fact that too often the saving has to be paid to the doctor

Canada's Railways

The list of railways that have disappeared as separate entities include those that were powerful influences in their day. At the head are, of course the Grand Trunk, Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern. They are still well remembered. But how many know that there was once a Great Western Railway that stood on a par with the Grand Trunk before Confederation and for some years afterwards?

Prisoner For Eight Years

Russian Boy Punished By Father For Joining Red Army

A story of an eight-year imprisonment of a boy by his father in a pit near their hut in the village of Savchukovo, Kursk province, has been brought to Moscow. In 1919 young Tarasoff joined the Red Army and three years later returned to his native village filled with enthusiasm for the new order His reactionary father told him "the red army marches against the Czars and you must not serve its ranks."

According to the report, that night old Tarasoff dug a deep cave in his garden and binding his son hand and foot, lowered him into the pit, expressly to keep him there until the return of the old order. Recently the father died and the villagers, clamoring upon the living grave, extricated the worn and wrinkled man who although only 29 years of age had snow white hair. He was said to have been placed in a hospital.

PAINS IN THE BACK

These Are Usually Due To a Weakened Condition Of the Blood

The muscles of the back are constantly under heavy strain and must have but little rest throughout the day. They are dependent for all of the nourishment and strength that plenty of pure red blood can give them. Unless they have this help, you will have backache and confess to have it.

Backache seldom or never means kidney trouble. It is nothing more than the tired, overwrought muscles of the back crying their exhaustion because of the lack of good, pure blood. The one generally recognized efficient blood builder is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When the blood has been improved through the use of this medicine backache disappears. Mrs F. Fairbairn, Essex, Ont., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her in a case of this kind. She says:—"I suffered for nearly three years with a weak back. At times the pains were so bad that I had to walk bent double. I could not sleep or stand up straight without suffering intense pain. After using two boxes there was no more backache or helping me. I used eight boxes in all and have not since had a sign of the trouble I can do all my housework and not feel tired and nervous as formerly. For all this I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Cold Killed B.C. Beaver

Many Imprisoned in Lakes Which Were Frozen To Bottom

Thousands of beaver are believed to have perished in their homes in the lakes and streams of interior British Columbia as a result of the recent protracted cold spell.

Harry Smith, who had trap-lines in the Aberdeen Lake and Grizzly Swamp country, reports that many of the little animals are dead in the higher altitudes and he bases his belief on the observations of a woodsman of many years experience. When all is well in the beaver huts said Smith, snow soon melts on the tops. Now there are heavy blankets of snow on all the houses along the trapline.

Smith believes that as the water was low in the lakes the entrance to the beaver huts was in shallow water. Heavy frosts came before the snow. The result is that many lakes are frozen to the bottom and the beaver imprisoned therein.

Humanity Divides Germany

Many Incidents Show People Still Cling To Old System Of Rule

Many incidents are constantly happening in Germany to show that the people are still sharply and inclurably divided over the question of the monarchy. At Breslau a motion before the city council to remove the statues of three former emperors, including the ex-kaiser, and to rename streets in honor of revolutionary heroes occasioned a bitter fight but was passed by a vote of 40 to 38. At Plungstadt, Hesse, when guests entered a hall on the occasion of a state dinner the portraits on the walls of three former kaisers were seen to be covered. This precipitated a sharp quarrel and conflict which broke up the party.

On account of an outer and inner bar across the channel connecting Lake Maracaibo with the Gulf of Venezuela, only vessels drawing less than 12 feet of water can enter the port, with the result that but two shipping companies, one American and one Dutch, maintain a weekly passenger and freight service between New York and Maracaibo.

New Invention To Be Used On Anti-Aircraft Guns

For the first time in history wild animals are to be captured painlessly by the Durban Zoo.

Authorities of a privately-run zoo have commissioned Captain Burnett Harris, the inventor of the so-called "anesthetic bullet," to carry out this task.

This bullet is practically equivalent to a hypodermic needle. The animal who receives it will feel no more than if it had been brushed by a thorn. The bullet itself contains drugs.

Annual Meeting Agricultural Society

The Board of Directors of the Vermilion Agricultural Society are already meeting in the direction of "getting over" the annual exhibition next August. Arrangements were completed on Saturday whereby the first day will be a "kiddies' day" when at least some 12 or 150 children from the town and district from Kitscoty to Innisfree will be given free admission to the grounds. Some 500 tickets will be issued and distributed through the schools before closing in June. Upon the grounds the children will be guests of the local Elks' Lodge who will provide free ice cream, candy and peanuts, also rides on the merry-go-rounds of the Conklin and Garrett shows. The directors appointed the committees for the year.

The plowing match will be held in June as usual and special attractions will be offered for the day. On June 3rd the Vermilion amateur athletic association will go the grounds for their big sports day, while on the 12th of July several thousand tiny tots are expected to participate in the celebration of that day on these grounds. The gathering will include Orangemen from Northern Alberta and Northern Saskatchewan, and will be one of the biggest days for that association ever held in this province.

BETTER SEED, LARGER CROPS, HIGHER PROFITS

— By —

H. G. L. Strange, Pres. Alberta, Pres. Canadian Seed Growers' Assoc.

The farming world of Canada this last year has been filled with discussions in regard to practically every thing that enters into production, transportation, processing, and delivery of Canada's grain on the world's Markets.

One important factor has come out of it all, and is not disputed, which is that Canada is in serious danger of the loss of her hardly won reputation for hard red spring wheat.

There is no disputing that if this reputation were to be lost it would be a catastrophe for the farmers of Canada, because it would mean at the outset that Canadian wheat would have to come into competition, on an equal basis, which it seldom has had to do up to the present, with the enormous quantities of hitherto reared and as inferior wheats from other wheat exporting countries. That certain y this would mean not only low er prices but a higher marketing cost as well because it would be more difficult to sell due to less eager demand

Apparently the wheat raisers of Canada have been somewhat blind to grain as occupying a prominent position and have really come seriously to think that the common sense way their wheat should be satisfied with exactly what the Canadian farmer wishes to get from his wheat and should, in fact, regard himself as more or less of a lucky person to get this wheat at all.

This mental attitude on the part of the farmer is, of course, all wrong, and is continued will certainly lead to disaster. The undoubted fact remains that the real master of the wheat situation is the buyer and not the producer and that if the latter is going to remain as the supplier to the world markets of the highest quality of wheat that will yield the largest amount of flour from all other countries, who are producers of Canada, though then it is their business to look for their marketing commissions and agents and sales, to take considerable pains to find out exactly the kind of wheat their customer demands and exactly the grade and shape in which the customer desires this wheat to be delivered.

The world's buyers require only a maximum of some ten grades of Canadian wheat The unpleasant fact remains that last year some 450 grades of Canadian wheat were offered by farmers in the market and even [illegible] actual country and private bids.

Without [illegible] necessary [illegible] state that [illegible] Canadian [illegible] varieties [illegible] [illegible] will always [illegible] [illegible] pure [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Parent Education

Teaching Grown-Ups How To Become Successful Parents

One is so accustomed to hearing about the education of children that it now comes almost as a shock to learn that Adult Winnipeg has taken a new branch of study, known as "Parent Education."

Pompous lecture form the "classes" to which daddies and mothers come as pupils. And they have "homework" too, the most interesting kind of homework, for it consists of trying out on their own offspring, the lessons they learned at "school." And the sole and only purpose of the school is to teach them how to become successful parents.

"And why not?" demanded an official of the Winnipeg Health League when asked about it. "In this age of specialization, when a professional man has to study six or seven years before beginning to practise, why shouldn't there be some specific training available for those who take on one of the most important duties in society—that of parenthood."

"We want to teach people simple, sound, common-sense things about children—nothing faddish you understand, or complicated. Just the good bread-and-butter facts that parents should know if Canadians of the next generation are to be as healthy mentally, mentally and physically as it is possible to make them."

Prominent Canadians from time to time have expressed themselves very strongly upon this theme. A perusal of their writings shows that the trend of opinion amongst thinking people is emphatically in favor of the idea.

Judge H. B. Mott, of the Juvenile Court, Toronto, says: "Parents are very much in need of assistance in parent education. I think it should start before marriage."

Judge Emily Murphy, Edmonton, parents if you can. It should be attempted in the home."

The Most Reverend Archbishop Neil McNeil, Toronto: "A knowledge of the duties of parents and the way of treating children should begin at the time of marriage."

Dr. Margaret Patterson, Judge of Women's Court, Toronto: "There is no question regarding parent education. It should start with the grandparents when possible, but certainly with the parents as children."

Dr. James L. Hughes, former chief inspector of schools, Toronto, believes that parent education should start in high school. "The best thing I can suggest," he says, "is the preparation of a book on true child development and the postage of a law that the groom in each marriage should produce the book at his wedding with his name on the title page."

Hon. L. A. David, Quebec: "I believe that parent education should start before marriage."

Hon. William F. Roberts, M.D., former Minister of Health for New Brunswick: "Yes, at twelve years of age."

Judge J. F. McKinley, of the Ottawa Juvenile Court, agrees that parent education should start at twelve.

Professor Peter Sandiford says, that every parent should be a child psychologist. "Seventy years ago Spencer pointed out that we trained people as if they were error to be the parents of children," he says.

World Abolish Revolver

American Prison Association Reviews It World Lesson Crime

The American Prison Association, which has many Canadian members, has been holding a convention recently in Kansas City and has received among other things that "the A.P.A. strongly recommends the abolition of the revolver, except in time of war," and called upon the state legislature to pass laws making it illegal to manufacture, sell, distribute, or have in one's possess any any firearm with a barrel measuring less than 36 inches.

The resolution is supported by the customary whereases, one of which states that many crimes would not have been committed if the perpetrators had not had a revolver handy, and further that "it has been demonstrated in England and elsewhere that the possession of a revolver by law enforcement officers is not indispensable to maintenance of law and order."

The association apparently takes no notice of the needs of the writers of detective yarns, or still more poignant, those of scenario projectors One would gather from the undoubted evidence of the screen that in the drawer of the drawing-room table in every well-regulated home repose a brace of revolver. It is going to be awkward if "they make a law."

As it is in Canada, persons must have a permit to number revolvers among their possessions. The police may carry them at night, but it is only charged when they are carried in the use of them.

Certainly the first whereas of the association is the strongest, but it is an open question whether such prohibition as that suggested would commend those intent upon crime of the weapon. It might - very likely it would - work with those just starting, but that could be accomplished with a strong administration of the permit system. Unless the manufacturers could be induced over the whole continent or several continents the criminal intent upon preying upon society could easily would secure his weapon. The association is holding its meeting this year in the autumn in Toronto General W. S. Hughes, superintendent of Penitentiaries, Ottawa, was one of the speakers at the Kansas City meeting and, judging from the report of the proceedings, made an excellent impression, both personally and by his presentation of the Canadian system.

Many Words Borrowed

Language Spoken in Garage Composed of Several Tongues

British has borrowed many foreign words to make up its oddly composite language. Each year a collection of new words are cubbed and incorporated in the up-to-date dictionarian, says an article in Pearson's Weekly.

There are a good many languages spoken in the garage, though the former have generally passed into the English dictionary.

"Garage" itself is French and means a place to garer, to make safe. It is related to garret, which meant, in old days, a turret or watch-tower, and to garden. Garage, in France, is used in connection with shunting on railways.

The word "motor" is, of course from the Latin movere, to move. His brother used motion.

"Chauffeur" implies ingenuity — both words are from the Latin ingenium meaning wit, and skill and natural ability.

"Chassis" is French from chasse — which also gave birth to windscreen — and, as it used to be spelled, and the meaning is a frame.

"Tire," suggests at once, and properly attire. This word for the outer covering of the wheel comes from the French tirer, to put on or off, to tighten: there are many kindred meanings.

"Jack" is literally a Jack-of-all-trades word. It is a diminutive of John, and is often applied to contrivances replacing a servant, as in beetjack, or the mechanical device which motorists use for hoisting.

"Brake" remains rather mystorious. It is probably a survival of an old word for curb or bridle and so something to check, or bring to a stop. Coac in its original use, covered any equipment—a man's clothes, harness for a horse and so on; applied, as it is now, to a series of toothed wheels there is the suggestion of an equipment ready to use.

"Starting" takes us back to the Anglo-Saxon steor, more particularly to the rudder of a ship. "Wheel" is taken from the language of our forefathers.

Fair Cue "And so you joined from Vancouver to Mission in three months?"

Bored One "Yes, I should have made it in two months, but I had to wait ten miles."

Needs Many Assistants

Cleaning Boots In Large British Hotels Is Big Job

The superintendent of the boots in a British hotel has a big job on his hands, and has a quite a corps of assistants. In the busy season he may be responsible for the cleaning of five or three thousand pairs a week.

It is no uncommon thing for a wealthy couple to arrive at a fashionable hotel from the Continent with their boot-trunks crammed with various types of footwear.

All kinds and colors! Grey boots, green boots, brown boots and boots in delicate shades of mauve and heliotrope that must be handled with extreme care! Boots and shoes of shark skin, of alligator skin, of crocodile skin, of lizard skin, and most expensive of all—boots made from the beautifully mottled hide of the sea leopard.

For the proper treatment of all these triumphs of the shoemaker's art the Master of the Boots is responsible. His is the task of selecting the tinted chalks, creams and dressings that are used, seeing that they are used correctly.

Long experience has made him an authority on the best methods of cleaning all of exactly the same shade as the original, his hues and greens of the finished article.

Broke Record

Frank Dupuis established a world record but lost the race. His established his record when at the first lap he covered the initial 41 mile lap of the Eastern International Day Sled Derby, at Quebec, in 3 hours, 22 minutes, 43 seconds. On the two succeeding days, however, Seppala, veteran Alaska musher, succeeded in overhauling the lead and carried off the honors, but Dupuis' time for the first day has never been excelled.

New Settlers Open Big Area

Tremendous Development Taking Place In Western Canada

Indicative of the tremendous development which has taken place in Western Canada, and the large part being played by incoming settlers in that development, the land settlement side of the Canadian Pacific Railways in the west estimate that the total amount of new land taken up during the year 1927 and 1928, in the territory tributary to the National lines, was 750,000 acres, compared with about 500,000 acres in 1927. In addition to this, some 200,000 acres was cleared of brush and prepared for breaking during the coming season. The significant feature of this increased farm development is that most of the new land was broken by incoming settlers, recruited and directed to locations by the Colonization Department of the Railway Company.

Millions For Newspaper Space

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, gives some interesting figures in regard to advertising. Last year while $35,809,000 was spent for radio, $73,260,000 for outdoor publicity, and $117,000,000 in magazine publications, $300,000,000 for direct mail advertising, no less than $900,000,000 was paid for newspaper space. These are striking figures, and show the trend of the times.

Chatham Citizen Parking Law

Kingston claims to have the oldest "vehicle-parking" bylaw in Ontario. In the latter part of 1816 the magistrates who governed the place decreed "that carts and carriages left in the street shall be arranged along the curb in regular manner to a penalty of five shillings."

No. 2

was allowed to race or run horses on the street, on penalty of five shillings.

Sea Floor Is Treasure House

No Bonds Many Valuable Things Dropped From Liners

Few landsmen realize that there are roads and lanes on the sea, as clearly defined and consistently used as those on land. These "sea-lanes" are steamed over by thousands of ships each year and would disclose some interesting stories.

After the coming of steam and the inauguration of definitely planned routes east and west, the cinders and ashes, broken crockery, old iron, unneeded ballast and all the rubbish that is thrown overboard, must have begun to pile up along the three thousand miles of ocean floor.

On all coal-burning ships ashes are dumped overboard each "watch." This is the very least of the loading. An increasing use of oil fuel is lessening the amount of cinders that go overboard each day.

Clinkers and ashes are not the only things that are dumped. This is true to the tune in millions, broken fire-bars by the ton, cleats, bolts, marlinspikes and tools in thousands. The waste of coal is considerable, and glasses - hundreds unbroken and accidentally dumped—and millions of broken ones. The result of ordinary breakage, carelessness and the wholesale smashing during a sudden storm.

Perhaps, too, among the glistening chips or the twinkling glass that are lying on the floor of the ocean, we might be lucky enough to find a ring, bracelet or necklace dropped overboard by some luckless passenger. What a treasure house—if only we could explore it!

Cod Liver Oil For Ailing Hens

Mixed In Wet Mash Each Day, It Proved Its Efficacy

Compared with yellow corn, turkey proved a poor substitute in the Canadian diet, according to Dr. Hare bridge, Alberta, Experimental Station. These foods were given as part of the ration to two pens of turkeys alike in other particulars. After a few weeks feeding the barley-fed birds showed symptoms of rickets, and a number of birds died. The illness much resembled roup. No infectious germs could be found, and in the corn-fed pens although no precautions were taken to prevent them from being exposed to the others from the other pens. The director of the station, Mr. W. H. Fairfield, in his report for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, believes the trouble was due to a deficiency of vitamine "A" in the barley ration. By the beginning of March, most of the birds in the barley-fed pens were sick and high mortality was feared. It was then decided to try feeding cod liver oil, and accordingly a mash of one quarter of a teaspoonful of the crude oil per bird in the wet mash each day. With two weeks' time the feeding of the cod liver oil was commenced, all the pullets had become thrifty, productive hens and the mortality was stayed with the exception of some bond swelling, no indication of the former trouble was observed.

Trade Can Pay Coffee

The proprietor of a cafe at Revelstoke, Lady, informed a motorist customer that he admired his little car, and was told it could be bought there and then if taken down. He had not the money on him, however, and the banks were closed. "Very well," said the customer "instead of cash I'll take, payable on demand, cups of coffee. Ten thousand of them!" The bargain was struck.

Some General Information

During the past three years the Cereal Division of the Dominion, Department of Agriculture has introduced for trial in field areas by farmers two early-maturing varieties of spring wheat, bearing the names Garnet and Re-ward, a heavy-yielding variety of field peas known as Mackay, and a strong-strawed rough rowed variety of barley known as Duckbill Ottawa, No. 57.

Place Of Wheat In The Diet

Per Capita Consumption Appears To Be Increasing the World Over

Wheat now contributes one-fourth of the calories of the American diet. According to the Food Research Institute, of Stanford University, California it is still the outstanding single staple foodstuff. In most southern European countries, wheat contributes a larger proportion of the total calories of the diet than in the United States; but in countries where rye or rice is the staple cereal, its contribution is smaller. Its nutritional importance in the United States has primarily in the starch content, not in the content of protein, mineral elements, vitamins, or roughage.

To consume wheat as whole wheat bread instead of white bread would make no essential contribution to the national health, and would not be in the interest of national economy at least so long as the present American diet continues to provide protein, minerals, vitamins, and roughage are adequately available in other foodstuffs and not be sought in whole wheat bread. Nutritional security in the diet is rather to be found in the small amount of everyday breakages, carelessness and the wholesale smashing during a sudden storm.

Perhaps, too, among the glistening chips or the twinkling glass that are lying on the floor of the ocean, we might be lucky enough to find a ring, bracelet or necklace dropped overboard by some luckless passenger. What a treasure house—if only we could explore it!

Bee-Keeping in the Peace River District

Fair Success Attends Recent Experimental Undertaking

Bee-keeping is being given a trial at the Dunvegan Experimental Sub-station, in the Peace River District. With proper care the bees will winter in safety under conditions, a provision has to be made against spring dwindling, owing to protracted cold and treacherous days in March, when most of the birds in the hive perish from over work and high mortality was feared. It was then decided to try feeding cod liver oil, and accordingly a mash of one quarter of a teaspoonful of the crude oil per bird in the wet mash each day. With two weeks' time the feeding of the cod liver oil was commenced, all the pullets had become thrifty, productive hens and the mortality was stayed with the exception of some bond swelling, no indication of the former trouble was observed.

How Sweet

The chief confectioner of the Canadian Pacific Liner "Empress of Scotland," decorated the buffet of that ship's dining saloon, by making a scale model of the 28,000 ton ship entirely of sugar. Lights shine through the portholes, at the mastheads and the green and red port and starboard lights indicate that she is under steam. Harry Astley, designer and builder constructed the ship in his spare time spread over five days—and is planning to enter a scale model of the New Canadian Pacific Hotel, in Toronto, the Royal York, at next exhibition in London. He already holds two cups as the prize decorator in sugar at the annual competitions held by the American Hotelmen's Association, in New York. These cobbs him to the title American Champion which is shared, incidentally, Harry, like Canadian Hotels makes leftover fat on the bridge or in the galley, in Liverpool.

SAYS WORLD IS APPROACHING A FINANCIAL CRISIS

London, Eng.—Sir George Paish, British financier and economist, who recently predicted the world was approaching a financial crisis, considers the 30 per cent. call money rate reached on the New York Stock Exchange a possible forerunner of the crisis, he told the United Press.

The white-haired authority on world economic conditions pointed to present bank rates in various countries as indications that the world was suffering from what he termed "financial sickness."

"I am no prophet, however," he said. "I am simply an interested observer attempting to diagnose the world's financial condition. In my recent speech at Manchester, I simply called attention to a situation which I have been watching develop for some time past."

The world in general was overborrowing, and with the possible exception of South America, Sir George said. He emphasized "the utter folly" of various nations erecting tariff barriers which would prevent reimbursement of their mutual debts.

"It is of very great moment," he said, "that the position should be surveyed not only by bankers and business men but by statesmen as well, in order that sufficient effort may be made to avert a still more dangerous situation than now exists."

"High money rates in America since the middle of last year have been a restriction to the world in general but America more than any other country is dangerous because much smaller and it is obvious that still higher rates of interest are current in America and the effort of American bankers to restrict credit already granted in the states is having a very serious effect. Total cessation of American credit is outside countries," Sir George said.

"Moreover, a high rate of interest cannot fail to affect American business adversely. If it is borne in mind that the great mass of the people of the United States can only borrow at present by the issuance of bonds, it is obvious that restriction of American credit at the present time in the manner that recent events have taken fail to come a great world wide monetary stringency which in turn, cannot fail to have most serious consequences to both credit and business."

Disastrous Prairie Fire

Large Strip Of Country Swept Bare By Flames

Regina.—A prairie fire started northwest of Neidorville, Sask., destroyed thousands of acres of pasture, fences, hay and grain stacks and was responsible for a man being sent to the hospital at Medicine Hat, where his condition, though serious, are not thought to be fatal.

A strip of country about ten miles wide and twenty-five miles long was swept bare. At its closest to the main line of the C.P.R., it was ten miles from buildings on three farms.

George Campbell lost his barn and outbuildings but managed to save his stock, some of this being burned while running through the fire. His loss is estimated at $1,000.

John Fisher and family were driven from their home, which was destroyed by the flames, and are staying with neighbors. Mr. Fisher also lost all his buildings and feed for spring work on the farm. His loss is placed at $1,500.

Other residents, by plowing a fireguard around his buildings saved them, but lost all his feed, valued at $900.

Wonda Records Corrected

American Soldier Reported "Killed in Action" Asks To Be Declared Alive

Santa Rosa, Cal.—Thomas R. Smith, 34, of this city, reported "killed in action" during the World War, is very much alive and has appealed to the American Legion in an effort to have himself declared so.

For 10 years the government has been sending that fact to Smith's sister, Mrs. Nellie Johnson of this city, except $10,000 in war risk insurance for her brother's "death."

Mrs. Johnson and her brother both steadfastly refuse to admit he is "dead," and now Smith has asked the American Legion to aid in straightening out the records at Washington.

Train Crew Arrested

Responsible For Wreck At Drumont According To Coroner's Finding

Parry Sound, Ont.—Responsibility for the wreck of two Canadian National trains at Drocourt with a death toll of at least fourteen was placed on the crew of the northbound train No. 8 in the written verdict of Special Coroner J. B. Broughton.

Criminal charges were also instituted against the three surviving members of the crew and charges of manslaughter were laid against Engineer J. V. Alexander, Fireman E. Riley and Rear End Brakeman Charles Gorrie.

The arrest of the three trainmen followed the verdict of the coroner's inquest on the death of Horace Smith, one of the victims of the wreck. According to the verdict the collision of the two fast trains was "due to the neglect of the crew of Train No. 8 in running past the meeting point at which they had orders to stop."

It is expected the three accused trainmen will appear for trial at the spring assizes, which open here May 14.

MARSHAL FOCH IS BURIED WITH IMPRESSIVE RITES

Paris—Marshal Foch was laid to rest near the tomb of Napoleon. More than a million heads bowed as the great soldier was borne on a gun carriage from the stately gray cathedral of Notre Dame Cathedral to the simple and severe chapel of the Invalides.

Church and State, separated in France for more than twenty years, were for the day to provide the Marshal Christian soldier with a national funeral unparalleled in pomp and splendor. The world has also for some seen its like before and it is not probable that such a show of solemn splendor will be repeated in this age.

The Republic of France and the Church of Rome were joined by ten nations whose armies Foch commanded in the greatest of wars in keeping honors upon the bier of the modest master of ten million yearsold.

Most of the civilized world was represented at the church funeral ceremony, and in the cortege that moved with military pomp and precision through the streets and squares of the Latin Quarter down to the golden dome of the Invalides.

The great outpouring of people who watched the funeral procession provided the crowning stone of the great edifice of honor and love which a grateful nation had reared for pieces of other lands have erected shrines to the memory of the great soldier.

Lightning Strikes Peace Tower

Electric Storm At Ottawa Turned Day Into Night

Ottawa.—Batteries of a recent severe electric storm centred their bombardment upon Parliament Hill and lightning playing directly over the buildings, struck the Peace Tower and caused the mighty pile of granite to shudder with the shock.

Lightning conductors prevented any serious damage. Only the tower elevator was put out of order. A second blinding flash struck at the southeast corner of the centre block but above the rooms of the Press correspondent, causing some consternation. There was no damage here, however.

The storm made the day as dark as night.

GIANT GERMAN OCEAN LINER IS PREY OF FLAMES

Hamburg, Germany.—The mysterious fire which virtually destroyed the new North German Lloyd liner Europa, was expected to have an important effect on the North Atlantic trade war.

The Europa, a 46,000-ton vessel, was being built for five-day service with the Bremen between New York and the English Channel, and was considered a challenge to the Cunard White Star and Hamburg American lines.

The ship caught fire while only a few workmen were aboard her. She was scheduled to make her maiden voyage in July and construction is nearing completion when the fire broke out suddenly.

Cause of the fire probably never will be known. It was said since it started in four places simultaneously. Deep in the hold. Experts did not believe it was arson, however.

The vessel was insured for $10,000,000 marks (about $2,500,000) but the loss was estimated at about 50,000,000 marks (about $11,850,000). Shipyard engineers claimed later, however, that the damage was not that large.

Although the ship was not a total loss several experts said it would be useless to rebuild it. The North German Lloyd Company was expected to refuse to accept it from the builders Blohm and Voss

The fire was spectacular. Blazing before dawn it was not brought under control until 3 p.m. The boilers machinery, hull and lower decks escaped the fire

None of the few workmen aboard when the fire started were injured, but a fireman was overcome. Eight hundred men were thrown out of work by the fire

Chinese Law Courts Busy With Divorces

Number Of Cases Greatly Increased Under Nationalist Rule

Shanghai.—Divorce has come to China to stay. With the National Government more firmly entrenched and the women of the country quickly seising their newly found freedom, the Chinese law courts daily are handling an increasing number of divorce actions.

Last year a record was set in Shanghai courts with a total of more than 600 divorces, a gain of more than 800 over 1927. In 1926, before the establishment of Nationalist rule in Shanghai, divorces failed to reach five hundred mark.

Survey of the 1928 divorces based on statistics compiled by the United Press, reveals that spring and summer are the "big" seasons, with fall and winter trailing quite a distance behind.

More than 60 per cent. of 1928's divorces were filed between May 1 and September 30, the remaining six months of the year a total of less than 40 per cent. In the other seven months of last year. December wound up the year with 75 cases, just a little more than 5 per cent. of the year's total

TEST SHIPMENT OF GARNET WHEAT TO GREAT BRITAIN

Ottawa, Ont.—Between 4,000 and 5,000 bushels of Garnet wheat is being put into sacks at Fort William to be shipped overseas. Excellent progress has been made in preparing the shipment which is done with a great deal of care in view of the importance to the grain growers. The future of this type of wheat will largely depend upon whether this consignment meets with favor among the millers of Great Britain and Ireland.

It was first planned to ship 10,000 bushels in an open cargo but after consideration by the Wheat Pool which is looking after the arrangements and the Dominion department of agriculture. It was decided to bag about half the amount and ship that instead. The wheat will go to London and from there be distributed to British millers and overseas representatives in the country. The department of agriculture officials expect that complete reports will be available before the 1929 crop is ripe

It was explained at the department that although all the reports so far from both Britain and the United States have been satisfactory to Garnet wheat. The Canadian millers have not as yet been so favorable to this early ripening variety with the result that it has never been grades higher than No. 3 in parts of the prairies the Garnet, because of its big yield and early ripening qualities is favored wherever grown, and it can take its place alongside of Marquis No. 1 it will mean much to the prairies.

The department officials are confident that the report will be favorable, and that Garnet will carry hard wheat and it is believed will prove just the blend the British millers require to give the "strength" to the softer grades they import from other parts of the world. The present shipment is made a thorough test by Canada's wheat customers.

Board of Trade Luncheon Was Largely Attended

Several Important Matters Were Brought Up

The second of the series of the newly organized Board of Trade luncheons was held at the Vermilion Hotel Monday evening at 7 o'clock, the chairman for the occasion being F. Harrington, manager of the local plant of Burns' Creamery. The turnout was very encouraging, no less than 40 members attending. It might be mentioned here that the Burns' membership to the present totals 71 and is expected to pass the hundred mark in the course of the next few weeks.

After justice had been done to the repast served by mine host, the chairman called upon President Harper who dealt with matters brought up at the last luncheon and action taken thereon by the executive. Other speakers were Wm. Steele, W. J. Masterson, S. D. Lynch, Major Watson and Dr. Bell. Mr. Harper also took up matters bearing upon the projected paving of test arm plots of hemp. The town had purchased a limited quantity of seed which cost $12 a bushel and arrangements had been made to test out the adaptibility of this country to its successful growing. A bushel placed on acre of land and several representative farmers located north and south of the town had consented to sow plots. He asked that the board pay the freight on the shipment, which was unanimously consented to. The crowding of the government highway between Vermilion and Mannville was strongly advocated by Wm. Steele, who said that this could be carried out by the department of public works at a much lower cost than similar work they were undertaking in other parts. He claimed that along the entire stretch of 12 miles there were three points of gravel supply, the limit of haulage being three miles, and urged that the board endeavor to induce the powers that be to do this work. W. J. Masterson, speaking along the same line, pointed out that cheap gravel was a big factor in the graveling of our highways and a resolution was carried that the board of trade notify the department of public works of the availability of gravel along this high way towards the end that this work be done at an early date.

Major Watson devoted his remarks to the effectiveness of advertising. The town paper was evidence of the belief of the progressive business men in this connection, but he claimed we were doing little to advertise to the outside. He suggested the printing of a couple of dozen quarter inserts with the board of trade heading and containing information where to enquire for particulars regarding our town and territory, each business house to have one in the window, an other to be framed and hung up in the auto camp, and yet another in the

British Families Arrive Here

New-Comers Under Joint Settlement Scheme Splendid Type

The vanguard of the British families who are being brought to Alberta under the joint settlement schemes conducted by the C.P.R and Hudson's Bay Company are now arriving in the province and several of the families are already on their new farms.

Last Thursday several of these families arrived here and on Friday the first of them were started for their new homes. These happened to be located in the Dymond district, some five to six miles south of town. One family also destined at Clandonald left the north under the same settlement scheme The newcomers found everything in readiness at their new homes when they arrived. Generally they are billeted in the large waiting rooms of the seven risk.

Another carload of horses purchased for these new settlers arrived in Vermilion on Tuesday. These were supplied by the Hart Parr Co. and were obtained chiefly from the E. [illegible]

More New Settlers Arrive

Several more new families under the joint settlement scheme arrived in town yesterday and were comfortably housed in the rink at the time of writing The new families are leaving as soon as possible for the farms allotted them.

Mid Winter Thaws Igloos

Enhances Are Made Somewhat By Action Of the Sun

It might be expected that winter would be whiter at Ukvana Bay, Fort Terence Bay is 200 miles north of Fort Churchill, where the Hudson Bay Railway, through Manitoba's rich northern mineral fields, will end. But the North has been much misunderstood, and Ukvana Bay proves that. As usual, this post writer, the factors of Terence Bay built their igloos, their little round houses of snow and ice. As usual they were buried now and again by blizzards. But quite out of the usual was the thaw which struck them just after Christmas. The temperature soared to 21 degrees above zero. The walls of the igloos collapsed, and dozens of families were made homeless. Yet the Eskimos were cheerful. Their attitude was: "Who said our country was frozen up?" And building materials were cheap. As soon as the thaw was over, they went again, they set to work and rebuilt.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

APRIL 14

HEZEKIAH LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

Golden Text: "Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful." 2 Chronicles 30:9

Lesson: 2 Chronicles 30.1-27.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 103. 8-17.

Explanations and Comments

Ritual Was Made For Man and Not Man For Ritual, verses 1-4. Hezekiah, the fourth month of the Jewish year, corresponding to our month of April, was the right time for keeping the Passover. In the reign of Hezekiah, however, the Passover could not be kept at that time, because a sufficient number of the priests had not sanctified themselves and had not undergone certain cleansings, abstinence and forms; nor had the people assembled at Jerusalem for the feast. The month of the temple was not cleansed until the sixteenth day of Nisan, and the Passover feast was the time for beginning the Passover. Accordingly, the King and the princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, decided to keep the Passover and agreed to keep the Passover in the second month. The law (Numbers 9:10, 11) allowed those who for good reasons were prevented from observing the Passover at the regular time to celebrate it in the second month, and this decision seemed right to the king and the whole assembly.

Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown contrasts Hezekiah's broad-minded action with the narrow scruples of those chief priests and Pharisees who were intent upon putting Christ to death upon the cross at another Passover, and who would not venture into Pilate's judgment hall lest they defile and suffer defilement and make them unfit to share in the sacred feast. "No one is entitled to speak with greater authority on the limitations of ritual than a strong advocate of the sanctity of ritual like the Chronicler; and we may note, as one of the most conspicuous marks of his inspiration, the unstinted common sense with which his frank and sympathetic record of irregularities is handled. Passover. It says much for the healthy tone of the temple community in his day that he does not attempt to reconcile the book of Hezekiah with the law of Moses by any harmonistic quibbles."—W. E. Bennett.

"Everything regarding form is static in the interests of the soul."—W. L. Watkinson.

Predicts Next War Will Be Sudden

English Professor Says Britain Could Not Wait To Commit Dominions

Great Britain will either lose the next war or lose the Dominions, Brigadier-General J. H. Morgan, K.C., professor of constitutional law at the University of London, said in a lecture at the university.

The next war, he said, might come like a thief in the night and might be fought and lost before the sound of three trees. There probably would be no ultimatum to wars of the conflict. No British government, he continued, would be likely to dare to define what was a flagrant violation of right necessitating immediate action without consulting the Dominions.

While the jurists were trying to decide whether there had been a violation of rights and while the parliaments of the Dominions were being summoned, the war would be fought and won, the lecturer declared. The result, he said, would be that the British Empire would cease to exist.

Brigadier-General Morgan has had a distinguished military as well as a brilliant academic career.

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No soother taken than the bitter one is at once. If restless a few drops soon bring reminiscence. No harm does, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant, you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you can't use it every day. But it is an accessory that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children too; read the book that comes with it.

The Cellulose Era

Substitutes In Clean and Light Can Reasonable Anything

Visitors of a chemical nature, both probable and alluring, are spoken of by Dr. Charles H. Hartley's report to the American Engineering Foundation on the new age of cellulose and sunlight, in which he sees the world emerging from darker, heavier days justly named for bronze or iron. Cellulose is many obvious symbol, perhaps, of the frivolities of our times than of their strength. It is clean and light and fluffy and every bronze blows it away; for cellulose wool is one kind of it and sellophane is its paper that is New York's most plentiful contribution to visiting heroes. But cellulose has toughness, too, in its sane, for hitching and oak are of its substance and even the hangman's hempen rope. It is what makes trees stand up straight and lets them spread out their green palms to the sun. And every bit of it is manufactured. Dr. Hurly reminds us, out of things that are as free as air. One of them, indeed, is air. The others are sunlight and

The great merit of trees is that they grow themselves. Plowmen need not fertilize for them, seasons waste no time over their seeds, farm lands at thousands of dollars an acre are not needed for their growth. Hoes and harrows and watering pots have no duties in their plantations. All that the wise man has to do is to be protected from their greatest enemy, which is fire. Over millions of acres of the United States, Dr. Hurly reports, reasonable fire protection is followed by the springing up of forests; crops of trees fiber cellulose, manufactured grade by rain and air and sunlight for future generations to use as paper or for all the other forms of cellulose products into which this universal skeleton of living plants is showing itself convertible. One difference between an age of cellulose and one of iron or steel is that we never would exhaust our natural resources so long as the sun still shone.

It is one of the abilities of cellulose, as of Lee Tincher, that it can resemble anything. Linen and cotton cloth and paper and rayon are the simplest of its disguises. Leather and even ice-cure films are made of it. The multicolored lacquers that brighten America's automobiles are another face that it can wear. It has been compressed into car wheels and upon cut into thinner sheets than a fairy's spider web. It has been converted successfully into cattle food and dissolved into a liquid that can be made from it if ever there is need.

Men Less Interchangeable

Specialists In Many Lines Have Replaced General Purpose Man

Men are less interchangeable than they were once. The general purpose man is rare. Specialists cannot be moved around.

Great industrial organization means high production and high wages for its specialists. But failure of that organization for any reason leaves many workers helpless and untrained for other jobs. In England unemployment has become a normal condition of climate, and the nation highly specialized in shipping and industrial production meets great hardship in the post-war readjustment.

The Starting Point

The Farmer's Advocate says: "When the Government erects a new building the ground beneath is thoroughly investigated, but the Department of Agriculture attempts to build a system of farming without a knowledge of the soils and their requirements. A soil survey is the starting point in all work for the promotion of agriculture."

He: "There is something dovelike about you."

She: "You flatterer."

He: "Yes, you're pigeon-toed."

Ornamental Vines For the House

Number Which Can Be Used To Advantage In West

There are a number of climbing plants that may be used with advantage about the houses in the prairie provinces. No plant that can be got will more quickly improve the appearance of a bare wall or verandah. A very good native plant which is found in the river valleys of Alberta, is the Virginia's Bower (Clematis Ligusticifolia). This hardy vine thrives in dry districts and has been used at the Scott, Saskatchewan, Experimental Station, to screen one of the balconies of the Superintendent's residence. It is stated in Circular No. 88, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, "Flowers for the Prairie Home," that the vines of this plant make dense screens, and where poultry wire netting is used for support, the vines will grow from ten to fifteen feet to a season. The flower of the Western Virgin's Bower is white and continues during the midsummer months. Trees are followed by the seed pods which continue to add beauty to this perennial climber.

The Virginia Creeper, also an excellent vine for the art, and these will be the topics of his addresses at the conferences and also at various cities en route. By his ancestry he is closely attached to the history and literature of France.

Many Radical Expressions

Large Number Of English Words Derived From the Sea

Britishers are essentially a seafaring people, and many common expressions are derived from their maritime lore.

The man who told a policeman that he "had lost his bearings," did not mean that anything necessary was missing, but that he had lost his way An an argument, you get at "loggerheads" with the other man. Many people are "stranded" when they lose their tickets. If you have been extravagant, you are "on your beam ends." You are on "your beam ends" if you cannot "raise the wind." Funds are "at a low ebb." "Being above board" "on the rocks," "half seas over," or "on a wrong tack." We talk of "sailing under false colors," of "getting under way," "knowing the ropes," "towering the fog," or "sailing too near the wind," of "looking out for squalls," "going with the tide," and "clearing the decks." Then there are many words of nautical origin that are used in a poetical or metaphorical sense, such as "bulwarks," "berth," "harbor," "pilot," "lee-way," "A.1," "derelict," and "sheet-anchor."

The Modern Way

Miss Wilcox kept a private school and one morning was interviewing a new pupil. "What does your father do to earn his living?"

"Please, ma'am," was the prompt reply, "he doesn't live with us. Mother takes care of us."

"Well, then, what does your mother do to earn her living?" she asked.

"Why," replied the little girl in an artless manner, "she gets paid for staying away from father."

Increasing Canada's Aircraft

The numerical strength of Canada's fighting air craft will be increased to nine planes and six army co-operation machines through donations recently received. Work is now under construction in Great Britain, will be the last word in fighting machines.

Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, Attache of the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs, author and lecturer, representing France at the fourth triennial conference of the Training Council of Education to be held at Victoria and Vancouver, early in April. Count Fleury is deeply interested in the soil and in art, and these will be the topics of his addresses at the conferences and also at various cities en route. By his ancestry he is closely attached to the history and literature of France.

The Spacing Of Potatoes

Close Planting Improves Quality and Increases Yield

For the growing of certified seed potatoes there is an advantage in planting the seed fairly closely in the field. An investigation conducted at the Fredericton and Charlottetown laboratories of the Division of Botany, of the Experimental Farms, demonstrated that the close planting not only tends to improve the quality of the seed but increases the total yield. The Dominion Botanist, Mr. M. T. Cashow, in his report for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, reports that the information obtained from the investigation gives evidence of several possibilities towards producing a greater amount of tubers ranging from 3 to 12 ounces, and so rendering the largest possible amount of tubers from the average crop intended for seed purposes eligible for certification. Mr. Cussow hesitates to make a definite pronouncement on the matter until at least another season's work is carried out. His results, which were conducted along the actual results of different spacing, does recommend spacing the sets fairly close in the row. Close planting thus makes it convenient for rogueing the crop, which could not be successfully done when the plants are closer.

Makes Good Living As Applause Leader

Man Has Worked Up Unique Business In German Theatres

Professional clapper is a theatre in Berlin for the claque, or "claquer" of Herr Eckstein, says an article in Tit Bits.

He entered the "profession" when a theatre manager offered to pay him thirty-three pfennigs (about 8c.) a day for leading the applause during the stalls. In addition he was given ten to twelve tickets for each performance for distribution among his friends.

So great was the demand for these tickets that Herr Eckstein laid the foundations of a novel form of business, which has so grown that today he, his wife and two others lead the applause in each of the theatres in the German capital.

Berlin theatre managers who wish to make certain of a "good night" now communicate with Herr Eckstein, and success follows.

Herr Eckstein has an estate in Mecklenburgh, bought out of his

Associated Press Of America Founded By Melville Stone

To establish a news agency which supplies half the American press? papers with their news of the world dole — and thus reaches some 60,000,000 readers per day is no inconsiderable achievement This feat was performed by Mr. Melville Stone, founder of the Associated Press of America, who has died at the age of 81. Famous as an interviewer, he counted popes, emperors, kings presidents, prime ministers and famous criminals among his "victims" in the "Ask me if it rains" series. Thousand Miles Of Coral

Reef Lies Off Coast Of Queensland, Australia

The Great Barrier Reef of Australia, of which little is known, is to be explored and studied by a scientific expedition which has set out from England. The Reef, says Answers, is a series of more or less parallel coral-rock reefs that lie from twenty to sixty miles away from the coast of Queensland for a length of 1,250 miles. There must be at least 1,000 cubic miles of coral in them. Its great area is largely uncovered at low tide.

As you approach by boat to its reefs, you pass over the live coral that surrounds it, looking into a box with a glass bottom thrust under the rippled surface of the sea, see what have been described as the forms and colors of a tropical forest. There are blocks of the most solid corals and the tree-like forms of the branching varieties, all colored and covered by the living organisms, purple, green and blue, pink and brown.

Here and there as you get closer to the solid mass, you can see brilliant fishes—orange with black and white bands, bright-scaled green and blue, scarlet and black, blue and yellow, and of many other color schemes—passing between the branches of the coral growth. Then on the bottom are the live-valved shells known as clams, the smaller species nearly buried in the coral and larger ones—the enormous ones two feet across—lying on the surface.

The general brown appearance of the reef, and the faint odor of decaying of the sea give it a very special character of its own. Its rough but generally level surface is broken by the reentry lagoons that more or less comply with the falling sea.

Outside the edges of the coral jet-sam swiftly moving eels and other small fish seek hiding places, and when the tide comes in sharks and rays send to new shelter their daring, scurrying forms.

Altogether the impression is one of teeming life, altering in the course of centuries, by an infinite amount of tiny effort, one of the strangest features on the face of the earth.

Poor Return For Kindness

Attorney Who Tried To "Slip Hat" Beneficiary Was Properly Rebuked

Running into Albert Lasker, former Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, who is one of the show places of Miami Beach, reminded me of what he said to an attorney who tried to "slip hat" him. Through his influence this attorney had been given an office in one of the big law firms in New York, and because he brought in a small business he was made a member of the firm. The day after his name had been placed on the letter Mr. Lasker had occasion to call him on the "phone about some minor matter. "Drop around at my office and we'll get out to lunch," he said, adding "We can discuss the business at luncheon."

"Sorry," replied the attorney, "but now that I am a member of the firm you will have to come to my office to discuss the matter."

"You're joking," protested Lasker "you could not believe his ears.

"No it's an office precedent," explained the attorney, adding: "You must remember I am now a member of the firm."

"Well, it will not be necessary for me to call at your office," came back Lasker adding, "for you are no longer my attorney."—New York Evening World.

Birds of Passage

Migratory Instinct Of Certain Species Will Soon Be Studied Of Mystery

A snow-white Arctic tern, banded as a fledgling in Labrador on July 23, 1928, was found dead at Margate, in Natal, on the southeast coast of Africa, 8,500 miles away, on November 14. Possibly that tern may help to answer the old mystery of the migration routes of the world's greatest travellers.

In mid-June the Arctic terns appear in Labrador, in Baffin Land, in Greenland, far up within the Arctic Circle. They nest as far north as there is anything stable on which to lay eggs; one nest found 74½ degrees from the North Pole contained a downy chick surrounded by a wall of fresh-fallen snow that had been scooped out of the nest by the mother tern. When the midnight sun begins to sink low in August the terns are gone. Two weeks later they are darting about the shores of the Antarctic continent, 11,000 miles away in a direct line, again in a land of midnight daylight. They are darting over Byrd's frozen camp today, but by what route they made the closest from one pole to another no man knows. Agents of the United States Government have banded hundreds of fledgling terns on the nesting grounds at Turnavik Bay, Labrador, but no recoveries of the marked birds was picked up near La Rochelle, France, on October 1, 1927; now another bird has been found on the far side of Africa.

There are other bird mysteries; why birds that nest in the Far North on the level surface in broad daylight, while birds that breed in the Far South are content to drift a few hundred feet down the ball line of the earth; where the chimney swifts go when they disappear on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico in autumn; why the Connecticut warbler, which nests north of Lake Superior, always travels southeast to the Atlantic coast in the autumn, and in the spring moves north through the Mississippi Valley, so that it may cross Australasia on the same latitudes of the earth. No living creature sees the sun for more hours in the year; for eight months the Arctic terns never miss night. They skim the entire length, and perhaps the entire breadth, of the Atlantic twice each year, traveling at both poles, in perpetual sun.—New York Herald-Tribune.

No Incentive To Think

Rush Of Modern Life Calls For Newsdays, perhaps the incentive to think is less than it has ever been. We have our opinions ready-made and there is little temptation to think things out for ourselves; we are perfectly willing to take them on trust. What we want our opinions are usually second-hand—they are the opinions of others. The hurry and bustle of modern existence is not conducive to thinking to fact, a kind of contempt is growing up for the contemplative individual. It is knowledge—the kind that is easily procurable in the magazines and literature—that counts. Slowly useful indeed, certainly, but not as valuable, after all, as original contributions to the store of human wisdom, which may only come from the development of special qualities of mind and soul.

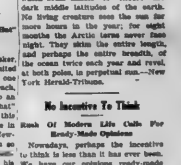
Speech Was Wanted

A political canvasser, after spending twenty minutes on a doorstep dilating on the glories of his party, asked the woman of the house if she thought it would be any use his calling again, when her husband was home

No," was the unexpected reply. "You see, we are already insured with one company."

"Pa, what is dignity?"

"Dignity, my boy is what you think you possess until the Boss says 'What is the meaning of this?'"



What do you think of the twins?"

"Their charms intoxicate me I can already see double."—Montague, Chartuse.

FUNERAL OF LATE A. W. EBBETT

The funeral of the late A. W. Ebbett was held from the undertaking parlors of J. HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The High School players wish to thank all those who assisted so generously in the putting on of "Miss Nonsense." The "articles of clothing" and "house furnishings" were very much appreciated and we are pleased to announce that by reason of the splendid support of all our friends the High School treasurer has a neat balance of $100.00. Now for Cadet uniforms and sport equipment!

By the way, Grade IX, under Miss Fenlington's direction will give very soon in our own hall a dramatized version of "The Christmas Carol." Watch for the exact date.

We are proud of our candidate in the Journal Oratorical contest. The judges placed her fifth and we learn that she made a deep impression. Speaking of Caroline's speech, Dr Wallace, president of the University, said to the audience: "You have listened tonight in one instance, to the most carefully thought out, the most concise and well impressed discussion of Canada's economic situation that has ever been given on the public platform." Then he went on to say that he was glad to see that all the young people of to-day were not depending on superlative and bombastic terms, to cover up the real situation, and that if their minds were being directed along lines like that is, trying to get at the root of the matter, we needn't worry about the future of the country. If Dr. Wallace feels that way we may be very proud of our little fifteen-year-old booster.

Just before the holidays a representative of the Canadian National Railways showed us moving pictures of one of our most summer resorts, Jasper Park. After hearty applause from the students he showed an interesting film on Niagara Falls. The High School wish to thank the C N R company for its kindness.

The attendance since the holidays has shrunk considerably on account of measles and other illness. We hope the students who are ill will soon recover and be back again in the same routine. You see, examinations are not far off!

Frank Gerolish pleaded guilty at the sittings of the district court held here Tuesday to seven charges, practically all of which involved offences committed in the discharge of his duties as postmaster at Derwent. On three of the counts, His Honor Judge Dubue sentenced accused to 3 years each in the penitentiary and 1 year each on remaining counts, all to run concurrently. The charges were preferred against him by officials of the post office department.

DEW BERRY

A gloom was cast over the whole district last week owing to the sudden death of Jessie, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick McInnis. The news was a surprise to many and much sympathy is felt for the stricken parents and the rest of the family. The funeral service was held in the Catholic church and was largely attended by friends and neighbors of all creeds. The remains were interred in Inwberry cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs McDonald desire to express thanks to all the friends and neighbors who offered help and sympathy during their sad bereavement.

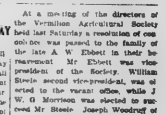
MORE NORSEMEN FOR THE WEST

This photograph was taken at Winnipeg after the arrival of the first immigrant special train this season, over the Canadian National Railways, March 20. There were 205 hand-selected Scandinavians in a total of 360 arrivals, which included 22 British settlers. Two trains, which followed the first special a day later, brought the total of newcomers up to nearly one thousand. At least half were Scandinavians. All the immigrants have been placed by the Canadian National Railways' colonization department.

CURLING CLUB HELD ANNUAL MEETING FRIDAY

The annual meeting of the Vermilion Curling Club was held on Monday evening. The old officers were all re-elected. The financial statement showed receipts for the year at nearly $1600.00, with over $300.00 to the credit of the Club. The matter of renewing the rink in a location near the skating rink was discussed at some length but it was finally decided not to take any action for the present.

At a meeting of the directors of the Vermilion Agricultural Society held last Saturday a resolution of condolence was passed to the family of the late A. W. Ebbett in their bereavement. Mr Ebbett was vice-president of the Society. William Steele second vice-president, was elected to the vacant office, while J. W. G Morrison was elected to succeed Mr Steele. Joseph Woodruff of Cummings was elected to fill the vacancy on the board of directors.



GIRL GUIDE NOTES

Our display last Friday evening was conducted before an audience that made up for lack of numbers in being the stricken parents and the rest of the most attentive most encouraging and most generous. The sum of $20.25 was realized. Mr. Cooper gave us such a nice surprise, by supplying each one present with a neat little purse.

The next Girl Guide meeting will be held at the gymnasium, Thursday April 25th at 4.15 p.m.

Expansion Of Manufacturing In Prairie Provinces Expected To Proceed At a Rapid Rate

No sooner does an originally agricultural community tend to become stabilized and develop permanently centres than an effort begins to build up local industries. This tendency grows as the years pass on even without the additional impetus received when, besides a productive soil, the country is also found to contain valuable minerals. This has been the history of the Prairie provinces, especially in the post-war period, when it has been found that the rich mineral belt of Quebec and Ontario extends westward along the same parallels. Industrialization, therefore, is likely to proceed even more rapidly than heretofore, more especially should the natural resources of these provinces be restored unrestricted.

These provinces, long dependent upon external sources for manufactured products are more than ever set on achieving complete economic independence and are gradually accomplishing it. The period indeed is rapidly approaching when the cities of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will pride themselves on their industrialization just as do the much older Eastern centres and conduct an ardent campaign for the stimulation of their local enterprises. Already in Manitoba the output of manufactured goods in 1927 exceeding the value of its farm products. Last year its industries in turned out goods valued at $139,262,000.

Dominion Government statistics indeed, indicate that Saskatchewan is ready to second place to industries in that Province now. Revenue from farming in Manitoba in 1927 amounted to $115,674,000, whereas the value of manufacturing production in the Province in 1926 was $132,712,000. Manitoba, being the longest established of the three provinces and the tendency of industries being to move westward, the trend in much more pronounced here than in the sister provinces. According to the Manitoba industrial development board, a 21 per cent. increase was recorded last year in the Province's manufacturing output, the greatest growth being in steel, iron and paper products produced in the period some sixty-two new industries were established with several other important locations foreshadowed.

The future of use as an expansion of manufacturing in the Prairie Provinces at an increasing rate in the consumer mill is immense in the volume of imported necessities. It is not, however, to be anticipated that over the territory as a whole agriculture will ever take second place to manufacturing but that rather the two will extend along parallel lines, each providing ever larger markets for the other. Industrialization should only increase western Canadian agricultural opportunity by building up a larger domestic consuming population, thus increasing the need for new farm-

Revised Rules For Hog Grading Adopted

Definite Classification Is Provided For in New Regulations

New hog grading regulations, which have been under consideration by the department of agriculture for a considerable time, have been passed by order-in-council and will become law upon official promulgation it was announced by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture.

The new regulations provide for definite classification of bacon and non-bacon hogs, involving revision of grades so that hogs henceforth will be graded as nearly as possible in accordance with their actual commercial value.

Packers have undertaken to try to maintain the spread of 50 cents per 100 pounds between "select" and "bacon" and all other grades have been left to find their own market in accordance with the price principle agreed to at the 1920 swine conference in 1927.

The new regulations also provide for the compulsory grading of all hogs at local shipping points in accordance with the official grades.

"During the past year the federal department has had an opportunity to test out the practicability of country grading and are satisfied that it is feasible. Under this new regulation it will now be possible to get the information regarding the grade back to the farmer, as was requested by the producers' representatives at the 1927 swine conference held in Ottawa." Mr. Motherwell's statement says.

Other changes include a strengthening of the wording of the regulations from a legal standpoint, with a view to eliminating as far as possible the need for litigation in their enforcement.

Expansion Of Motor Trade In Britain

Ownership Of Cars In Growing By About 100,000 Annually

The notion that the United States has a monopoly on motor traffic expansion is discredited by a report to the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce from Paris on the growth of motor car ownership in Great Britain.

This, it is said, is amounting by about 100,000 cars annually, rising from 394,000 in 1922, to 737,000 in 1927. This year's figure," the report continues, "will probably be near to the 'potential' 787,000 suggested by the Society of Motor Manufacturers on the basis of national income statistics. The latter body believes, however, that the inclusion of private cars owned by business firms, and the growing popularity of the 'baby' car of seven or eight horsepower, may raise the potential figure of 750,000 or 1,000,000, cars.

"Within the home market the British manufacturer has secured 82 per cent. of last year's new car sales in United Kingdom, and as long as he enjoys the double protection of 33⅓ per cent. import duty and a taxation system based on horsepower his supremacy does not appear likely to be seriously threatened."

DAYTONA BEACH TRAGEDY

In one of the most spectacular and tragic demonstrants of Daytona Beach racing track history, Lee Bible, driver of J. M. White's speed-demon car, "Triplex," sapking to surpass the 231 mile world's record, set two days before by Major H. O. D. Segrave, crashed to the death of Mrs. Duncan and death at 203 miles an hour, smashing out, at the same time, the life of Charles Trunk, a news reel cameraman. The accident occurred before 30,000 spectators who lined the safe course and saw Bible dash by the starting point. The layout here shows: (1) Lee Bible, 42-year-old Daytona Beach garage mechanic, driver of "Triplex," J. M. White's racing car, who was killed; (2) and (3) Mrs. Segrave congratulating her famous husband, Major H. O. D. Segrave and (4) the huge crowd at Daytona Beach, Florida, who witnessed Segrave's victory and similar to the one that witnessed Bible's tragic end.

Three Prairie Provinces Are Anxious To Extend Boundaries Northward To Arctic Circle

Seeks Separate Religion

New Law Forbids Any Gathering Of a Religious Nature

Reports come from Russia about new attempts to suppress religion. A new law has been published, by which it is intended to limit by force even private worship. It forbids every gathering or meeting of a religious nature of women, children or young men. Religious libraries or reading rooms are no longer to be maintained. All objects to be used in religious worship are declared national property, and may only remain in the hands of religious communities in the form of a loan. All public worship in public squares, likewise all festivals in hospitals and prisons—are forbidden. In the latter they may only be practiced for those who are seriously ill and who expressly ask for them. Even the ringing of bells is to the great increase in religious interest of late amongst the Russian peasants.

Provincial Trade Marks

Indian Symbols Are Suggested Via Distinguish Certain Products

The North American Indian was a master of pictorial combination. Every totem had a story and told it well, and in Western Canada the provincial has been mooted that by a reversion to these totemic types much could be done in the way of devising trade marks for provincial products. The matching of goods with some distinctive label has become an important factor in economics and there is much room for research that meets the casual eye. The symbols employed by the red man are unique, and have the merit of simplicity, and in time we may yet see on commodities a Kootenaian, or the head of a Haida, or a totem pole standing at a glance of the country of origin.

Of British Origin

Investigation has disclosed that there is British blood in 57 out of the 90 members of the United States senate, a fact which may have some influence on the voting when the next question for immigration is raised again. Among the United States people as a whole the British strain is only 42 per cent., so it would appear to have a particular affinity for politics.

Health Brings Happiness

It has been said that "a hale cobler is better than a sick king," Health is better than wealth, because wealth cannot be enjoyed without health. One's desires and needs cannot be satisfied if the health is poor. Health brings happiness.

30,000 people are killed yearly by snakes in India.

Is Specially Populated

Although Brazil is nearly as large as Europe and larger than the United States, Alaska is excepted, its estimated population is only about 30,650,000, or a little more than the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Colorado. Its four largest states have an average population of only one person to two square miles.

Lumber Building Permits Higher

January's building permits for all Canada have doubled since 1926, having risen from $4,017,034 in that year to $8,564,870 in 1929. This is due, in part, to a natural expansion, and also to the fact that building operations are not now halted in mid-winter as they once were.

Hertz, a German, discovered radio waves in 1887, 30 years after Maxwell, an Englishman, calculated that they must exist.

Client: "Then I am glad I never knew him."—Dorfbarbier, Berlin.

If the Dominion government grants the requests of Alberta and Saskatchewan that the northern boundaries of these two provinces be extended to the Arctic Alberta will add opportunity seven-fold to its present area, while Saskatchewan will increase its present area by one and two-fifths of the existing territory.

Alberta covers at present 250,285 square miles of land and water. Premier Brownlee's proposal to extend Alberta's boundaries clear through to the Arctic, would add some 179,000 square miles of new territory to the province.

Saskatchewan's present acreage — land and water—is 251,700 square miles. The northern territory which Premier Gardiner and in that province, is approximately 260,000 square miles in extent.

The respective areas recorded in would make Saskatchewan's area in square miles, 611,700, and Alberta's, 430,285 square miles.

The area of the provinces at present as follows: Quebec, 703,655 square miles; Ontario, 407,262 square miles; Manitobe, 251,832 square miles; Saskatchewan, 251,700 square miles; Alberta, 255,285 square miles; British Columbia, 353,855 square miles.

Extension of the boundaries of Saskatchewan to include the vast sub-Arctic region lying west of the Hudson Bay and south of the Arctic Ocean, would be a big step forward in the process of developing a territory covering between 350 000 and 400,000 square miles, populated by a hardy race of Esquimaux, Indians, and half-breeds, and a handful of R.C.M.P. officers.

The recommendation of boundaries as indicated by Premier Gardiner's request on behalf of the Saskatchewan government would probably not have an area of about 650,000 square miles, or about 53,000 square miles more than the area of Quebec.

Saskatchewan's bid for an outlet to the sea and extended territory in the north has drawn a counter demand from Ontario, the Premier minister of Manitoba, for more land for Manitoba.

Manitoba has had its boundaries extended three times since the province was formed in 1870 when Manitoba was known as the Assiniboia stamp province," bounded by a line running north and south east of the site of Brandon, and east and west on a line running a little north of Winnipeg.

In 1884 a bill was introduced into the Dominion parliament, and passed without debate, adding 100,000 square miles to the Province of Quebec. In 1912, Acts were passed adding 251,780 square miles to Quebec, 146,000 square miles to Ontario, and 150,000 square miles to Manitoba. A short time before this an Order-in-Council was passed by the Borden government granting Ontario a strip of land 250 miles long and five miles wide through the Province of Manitoba to the Nelson River to give Ontario access to Port Nelson.

Donald turned to Wainwright. "Are you going to let that run? Is it made for me to enter a race with all those men?"

"I couldn't stop her now, and he added with a touch of pride, "she can hold her own with any of them."

The old trapper made his way to Donald's side. His leathery old face, with its multitudinous wrinkles, wore a perturbed expression. "That fellow Lafonte is cutun. He's full of dirty tricks; 'taint safe for Connie to ride."

Donald turned anxiously to Wainwright.

Connie's father shook his head. "I am afraid it is too late now." Then in a lower voice he added: "You must honor the reason for her entering this race."

Donald looked puzzled for a moment. Suddenly it dawned on him. "The purse?"

Wainwright nodded. "It would break her heart if I forbade her to ride, now that she has gone this far. She must have decided suddenly, as we never mentioned it to me."

The Rennie Company had put up a purse of two hundred and fifty dollars. There was to be a collection from the race to add to this purse.

The horses trotted down the course. Connie's was rearing and prancing, and it was with difficulty that she managed to get him to join the others. She leaned forward to whisper words of quieting in the twitching ears. Down the course they came. They were in nice alignment as they passed the judges' stand.

"Go!"

Connie on her spotted cayuse showed a bright splash of colour in the midst of her darker competitors. Lafonte's dark face lighted with a savage grin as he swung his horse to the inside or "pole."

Running neck and neck with him was his hated rival, Paul John, lanky low on his horse's neck and his shouting unintelligibly in Chinook. Connie was with the stragglers five lengths in the rear. They were to pass Pegasus, and be bewildered by the crowding horses about him. As they turned the corner of the course, Lafonte's horse stumbled, and before he righted Paul John had slipped into the lead. Cursing wildly, Lafonte settled himself in the saddle, his horse's head at the flank of his rival.

Hundreds of times Pegasus had travelled this field with Connie clinging to his back, showing up for shrubs and trees and making sudden bursts of speed in the open. That had been vastly different to being surprised by running horse and rider galloping to the wild cries of their riders and the roaring of the excited crowd.

At the moment Lafonte lost the point of vantage to his rival. Connie leaned forward and emitted a peculiar chucking sound of the same time striking her moccasined feet into the horse's sides. Pegasus's ears twitched back at the sound of the voice he loved. "Now I know what you want," he seemed to say, as his beautiful neck stretched out and his hoofs spurned the ground. His graceful body lowered until it appeared to the spectators as though he were just skimming the earth. His mouth with a springy stride, the muscles of his sinewy frame working with a pliding movement beneath the glossy skin. Gradually he drew away from the horses travelling with him. Pool by pool he gained on the leaders.

The party in the judges' stand came to their feet to shout approval. The girls were cheering wildly for Connie as she crept nearer the front.

Donald was leaning forward with flushed face, his eyes glued to the spotted cayuse, a deep admiration in his heart for the intrepid little rider.

Little Andy jumped on the rail. "Strike me pink!" he yelled. "look at that 'ere run!" His eyes were bright with excitement. "A 'undred dollars on the spotted 'oss!" he shouted hysterically.

"I'll take you," said a voice.

"Ere you are, mate; let's make it a 'undred. I'm for me own girl. She saved me blinkin' life. God bless 'er!"

As they neared one of the corduroy bridges Connie was neck and neck with Lafonte. The latter glanced up at Pegasus came sweeping down the rear of the crowd came dimly to Connie's ears above the swish of air and the rumble of hoofs as he struck the culvert. An evil look crossed the half-breed's face. He swung his horse sharply to the right to crowd Connie's horse floundered. Struggling to right himself, he fell off the bridge and landed with a dull thud on the path ground below. The force of the action of the cayuse had stopped so suddenly that Connie was thrown like a projectile to a clump of bushes fifteen feet distant.

For an instant the big crowd was paralyzed. Then there went up a great groan of horror. The cold temper came to his feet. his eyes flashing, his muscular frame on his clinched fists. Connie's father was already scrambling to his feet. Andy had dropped on all fours and was crawling like a dog to the edge of the bridge. Paul John, lanky low on his horse's neck and his shouting unintelligibly in Chinook. Connie was with the stragglers five lengths in the rear. They were to pass Pegasus, and be bewildered by the crowding horses about him. As they turned the corner of the course, Lafonte's horse stumbled, and before he righted Paul John had slipped into the lead. Cursing wildly, Lafonte settled himself in the saddle, his horse's head at the flank of his rival.

Hundreds of times Pegasus had travelled this field with Connie clinging to his back, showing up for shrubs and trees and making sudden

FLU Germs Breed in the Throat.

Five Appear As A Common Cold, But Gain Tremendous Headway In Six Hours

SOME SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INFLUENZA

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Norvoline. Half a teaspoonful of Norvoline in water makes a most excellent gargle. The germ killing properties of Norvoline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the throat is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough be sure to rub the neck and chest with Norvoline. Every drop of it will rub in, and not will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding germs. This combination treatment of Norvoline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results

Connie saw Pegasus burl himself past the winning post—a winner by half a length!

The exulting roar that went up from the race-mad crowd must have amazed the marsoots on the other side near the distant glaciers to seek their holes in terror. A flock of mallard ducks, which had feasted peacefully near the centre of the placid lake throughout the day's commotion, rose with frightened cries to seek a more secluded spot in which to finish their afternoon's meals.

The crowd had seemingly gone mad. The atmosphere pulsated with a wild tumult of sound. Hats were thrown in air and throats were strained with shouting.

Donald found himself with his arms about Andy, dancing and cheering in a frenzy of joy.

Airplane Perfection

Almost Complete Extinction Of Mechanical Error In Modern Machines

The human factor is now of paramount importance in aviation in all its branches in Canada, according to air officials of the government who point to the almost complete extinction of mechanical error in the construction of aircraft in the Dominion during the past year.

In the earlier days of aviation in Canada, frequent accidents were attributable to engine failure, faulty construction and defective parts. Last year one Trans-Canada accident could be blamed in anyway on a defect in either machine or engine. "It is now time for the operators to devote themselves most earnestly to perfecting their flying," an official said. "If the personnel operating aircraft do their part as the air engineers have already done there will certainly be no fear of aircraft accidents."

Tribe Of American Indians Is Shown Soviet Officials Hope To Save Them From Extinction

Efforts are being made by the authorities to save from extinction a nomadic tribe of "American Indians" in Siberia which has already dwindled to 632 persons.

The tribe, known as Karagas, was discovered some years ago in the Turun district of Siberia. In appearance, language, and customs they resemble so closely the Red Indians of North America that leading Russian anthropologists were convinced of their American origin.

A recent investigator reports that the tribe has such a high death rate that it has only a few more generations of life. The government has therefore set aside a large tract where no other tribes will be permitted to hunt. It is hoped here that these exclusive "happy hunting grounds" will increase the material prosperity and in consequence the longevity of the Karagas. A hospital has also been established for their use.

Perhaps the most extraordinary single fact reported about these "strayed" Indians is that crime is entirely unknown among them. It is said that they have never heard of murder or theft.

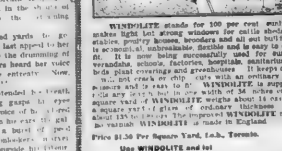
WINDOLITE

MADE IN ENGLAND

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH



THE sun is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene the most effective among the sun's rays are the Ultra-Violet rays which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and ill-health.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that in using it we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, rendered for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent sunlight. It admits light but strong windows for cattle sheds dairy stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings it is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, schools, factories, hospitals, sanitariums, hot beds, plant coverings and greenhouses. It keeps out cold but not crack or chip. Cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and can be fit WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 54 inches only. Ordinary weight of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs. while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness weighs about 13½ lbs. Hence the improved WINDOLITE requires no special framework. A Birthday Message From Jack Miner

"Today I am sixty-four years of age and as long as I live to be one hundred I shall be in the attempt.

"If it was not for birds, music, flowers and children I would have no desire to carry on the greatest of these, of course, being the children. The hope of the world for the betterment of humanity is more love and practical education and less bayonet and compulsion among the rising generation.

"I am the deadly enemy of intemperance liquors and always will be, but I know I am just as warm a friend to the poor fellow whose unreasonable appetite for it distresses him and his family, or, in other words, you cannot judge the size and quality of any man's heart by the smell of his breath.

"I have noticed through my life that if a man has a backbone instead of a wishbone between his shoulders, there is nothing that will do him more good than the criticism of some real, live failure. You may do all you can for the other fellow but it will be a failure unless he is willing to get up in the morning himself.

"I am far more interested in any man's Christianity than I am in his religion, because the day is past in North America when we judge a man's Christianity by his religion.

"If my Christianity isn't stronger than my politics then I have no Christianity. I say the overcoat of your life is the best advantage to the living and unborn generations. If you are going to get anything out of your religion you have got to put some thing into it.

"Don't work all your life to make a living, but work to LIVE all your life.

"If it wasn't for the builders of America the pall downs would soon be out of employment.

"In closing my birthday statement let me say, Let sunshine and cheer banish sadness and fear and ever lasting life start right here."

JACK MINER.

Fain would I be as Thou art,
Give me Thy loving heart.

Motorists Cut "Listen" Out of Safety Trinity

It used to be Stop! Look! and Listen! Perhaps it still should be, but perhaps there would not be so many dead and sorry motorists if it were. But the claims agents of the Canadian National Railways, who handle claims arising out of crossing accidents say that motorists have discarded their ears altogether. The only method of signals effective today, they declare, is that of visual warnings, so accordingly have the motorists of both Canada and the United States become to driving under the control of signals to the eye.

The use of sirens on locomotives instead of whistles was suggested the other day as a means of preventing crossing accidents. The Canadian National Railways have made consistent experiments in an attempt to give the drivers on the highways the maximum of warning of approaching engines. The whistle has been moved from place to place — once it was mounted in front of the smokestack — to see if the sound could be made to carry further, and sirens have been tried. On the new oil electric locomotives of the system a compressed air hooter has been installed.

The difficulty remains that no sound is loud enough to warn a careless driver in a closed car, and now the suggestion has come that a strong beam light pillar be erected in the middle of the highway preceding a railway crossing, a lamp post with a curb around it that will give the fool cab driver a jolt if he insists on crashing into it.

More than 25 per cent of crossing accidents on the Canadian National Railways in 1928 were caused by drivers of automobiles and other vehicles running into the side of engines and trains. In some cases, with a perfectly clear vision of the track on both sides of the highway and with the locomotive whistle having been sounded and the bell ringing, automobiles have been driven into the side of the train as far back as 30 or 20 cars behind the locomotive.

NASH "400"

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

One of the most important motor car engineering achievements of the year is the perfection by NASH of the Twin-Ignition, high-compression, valve-in-head motor for the motor car.

It gives to the new NASH "400" greater power, quicker acceleration, greater speed, with less gasoline—the same remarkable performance which already has made twin-ignition, high compression, valve-in-head motors supreme in aeronautics.

Twin-ignition, high-compression, valve-in-head motors carried Lindbergh to Paris, Goebel to Hawaii, Byrd over the Pole, and the U. S. Army airplane Question Mark on its history making, record breaking flight.

Driving the new Twin Ignition motored NASH "400" one day will never again be satisfied with the performance of older types of motors.

Queen City's Crown

A year ago there was a great hole, nearly a city block in area, facing the Union Station at Toronto. Down in the bottom, half a dozen cranes were busy scooping huge pieces of steel which were being gently riveted as they were set, machine like, into position.

On that site today stands the tallest building in the British Empire, the magnificent Royal York Hotel which, in two months more, will open the doors to its thousand rooms and welcome its first guests.

Remarkable as has been the speed with which this great Canadian Pacific Hotel has been erected, still more extraordinary is the man on the street mind, be the tremendous thought which underlies the planning of what will be the most up-to-date institution of its kind in the world and in the working out of those arrangements that will ensure its guests the utmost in facilities and service. There will be, for instance, radio outlets in every room, and in the concert hall, 8 negro hall and Ball room, which have seating capacity for nearly seven thousand people, the most modern means of amplification have been installed to provide, not only that speakers and artists and musicians be thoroughly heard wherever they are speaking but, by connection through the radio room, in any other portion of the building. There is provision also for television, should this be developed, for moving picture and movietone projection.

With its own power plant and water-works, its emergency hospital and internal and outside transportation and communication system, the Royal York Hotel is a complete city. It has its bank and brokers' offices, its stores and shops, its community hall and recreation centres. Nothing which a progressive town might have has not been thought of and incorporated to advantage. Down in the basement is a complete printing establishment, a linotype and three presses.

With a tunnel entrance from Union Station, at the junction of all roads into the city, in the heart of "down-town" the site of the Royal York is strategic. With Lake Ontario before it, it is beautiful. The travelling contingent will join with the citizens of Toronto in their eager anticipation of its opening day in June.

Caroline Green Makes Fine Showing In Semi-Finals Oratorical Contest

Is Placed Fifth Among Contestants

Caroline Green, Vermilion's entrant in the Dominion oratorical contest, was placed fifth by the judges in the provincial semi-finals held in McDougall Church, Edmonton, last Thursday night. The contest was won by 17 year-old Gwendolyn Oast of Grande Prairie. The final for the provincial title takes place in Edmonton this Friday evening.

The Journal has the following to say of Caroline Green:

"Canada's Economic Problems!", was the subject chose by Caroline Green of Vermilion. "We," said Caroline, "the war was not fought over a scrap of paper but over the world's markets'."

She declared that this civilization of 1929 was in an economic wilderness filled with wild beasts of greed, jealousy and pettiness, and asked how long Canadians would be content to remain in such a wilderness.

"Have we the courage to work out our own salvation?" she asked. "This is our opportunity, our challenge — perhaps the hope of the world."

Miss Caroline's speech there was something that made the audience sit up and take notice. She voiced her thoughts with confidence. There was something marvelous in her attitude. She pleased immensely."

BRITISH BOYS ARRIVE FOR FARM TRAINING

The first group of British boys, 16 in number, coming to Alberta during the present season under the arrangement between the Provincial Government and the Overseas Settlement Board arrived in the province during the past week. They have been rotated by divided between the schools of agriculture at Vermilion and Olds where they are being given a monthly practical training in Canadian agricultural methods which will fit them for work on farms in this province. At the conclusion of their month's course another similar group is expected to arrive and following this two groups of British young women will come forward at intervals of a month for courses of training in practical home economics before being placed as domestic farm help.

Young Orators Enter Finals

DAVIS — BRADIE

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. J. E. Barton on Saturday noon, April 6th when Alice Digby Bradie became the wife of Cyril Davis, both of Vermilion. After the wedding dinner the happy couple left for a motor trip to Edmonton. They will make their home on the groom's farm, north of town.

A CASE OF "TIN TO TIN"

A sad exhibition of brotherly animosity occurred in full view of the general public on First street and Alberta avenue Saturday night when two scions of Henry Ford's great model T family clashed with rather disastrous results to both parties, but more particularly to the older and more feeble of the couple. Which leads us to make the remark that it is high time that our silent policemen were once again directing traffic at the corners.

A Parliamentary Synopsis

The third session of the sixteenth Parliament will not be noted for any outstanding legislation.

The Speech from the Throne contained such routine matters to be enacted, but nothing of particular reform. However, under any circumstances there is always much routine business to be considered by the House.

The following might be cited as an annual digest of each parliamentary session whether something new is developed or not:

1. The discussion and passing of the Speech from the Throne, to which an amendment is rarely moved.
2. The budget presented by the Minister of Finance, which outlines the expenditures and revenues for the coming year. This is the largest debate of the session, before the termination of which, one or more amendments are usually moved.
3. The estimates, or how the sum of upwards of 900 million is to be spent, takes much time.
4. Resolutions, both private and governmental, ask for more time than any session permits to cover them all. This year, when private members' day was cancelled, there were still 78 resolutions on the Order Paper.
5. Private and public bills again are always to the fore. Much work on these, however, is done in the standing house committee.

A few outstanding items of the work of the session may be of interest.

For the second time since Canada decided not to accept titles, an effort was made by resolution to consider the restoration of them. This was vetoed by 114 to 96.

The House has at last agreed by unanimous vote that the natural resources should be returned to the Prairie Provinces.

Much money is being voted this year for improvements to our harbors and bills are before the House covering an aggregate amount of 29 millions for the following places: Halifax, Three Rivers, Chicoutimi, Montreal, and Vancouver.

The West's Ocean Port

Announcement that the rails of the Hudson Bay Railway had reached Churchill on Good Friday, is the most welcome news the people of Western Canada have received for some time, heralding, as it did, the realization of a long entertained hope for many years Western Canada agitated for the building of a railway to the Bay. It was vigorous, even violently, opposed by Eastern Canada interests, and politics speaking, the voice of the West was weak in comparison to that of the East. The West, however, kept up its campaign of education as to the merits and feasibility of the route, and ultimately all political parties in Canada became committed to the project.

Finally, plans for a Hudson Bay Railway assumed definite shape in 1910, when a branch line of the Canadian Northern was completed from the Hudson Bay Junction, Sask., to The Pas, Manitoba, and the building of a Government line from The Pas to Hudson Bay was authorized by Parliament. Work commenced the following year with Churchill as the objective.

Following a change of Administration at Ottawa, Churchill was abandoned as the proposed terminal, and Port Nelson chosen. The location of the railroad was accordingly altered. The right-of-way was cleared and graded to Port Nelson and steel laid, before the end of 1916, as far as Kettle Rapids, 332 miles from The Pas.

Owing to the war and consequent lack of men and steel, operations were suspended and for some years only part of the completed railway was kept in repair.

The work then commenced by the Liberals in 1910 was continued by the Conservatives until war, and the after-war period of financial depression, stopped the work. The work, however, had only been carried on in a more or less half-hearted manner with the result that progress was slow, and the country, as a whole, lacked confidence in the undertaking, the East regarding it as a waste of public money and in the nature of a political sop to the West.

With the acceptance by Hon. C. A. Dunning of the portfolio of railways in the Mackenzie King Government a marked change took place. It is an open secret that Mr. Dunning made the immediate and vigorous construction of the road a condition of his entry into the Government. He finally told the people of the West that he regarded it as "his Job" to complete the railway in the shortest possible space of time.

The task of reviving the spirit which had fallen into disrepair was begun and an end of divergent views which prevailed as to the relative merits of Churchill and Nelson as terminal harbors, Mr. Dunning secured the services of the most eminent British harbor engineer to decide the question. He reported strongly in favor of Churchill, and his report was immediately accepted, and the road again diverted in that direction.

Since then there has been no let-up in construction. It has been pushed forward day and night, in season and out of season, with the gratifying result announced on Good Friday.

In the meantime Mr. Dunning grappled with the problem of building an effective harbor at Churchill and establishing the feasibility of the ocean route through Hudson Straits. Airplane and other surveys, radio, and every modern invention was called into the service, and the opinion obtained that the West was not only justified, but the East was largely converted, especially as buoy and very valuable mineral discoveries in the northland made accessible by the railway quickly followed.

Although both steel and telegraph have reached Churchill it will require some months yet to fully ballast the road to make it capable of efficiently handling trains. There is an enormous amount of work to be done to build necessary harbor facilities at Churchill That work is in progress and being prosecuted with the same vigor as characterized the building of the railway in the last three years. Hundreds of carloads of supplies, material and equipment for the road and harbor are even now distributed along the the railway to be rushed in at once now that the rails have been laid.

It is confidently anticipated that before the end of 1929 freight will be moving steadily from the prairies to the West's own ocean port at Churchill, and Mr. Dunning has already announced that the Crow's Nest Pass schedule of rates on grain will apply to the Hudson Bay route.

The new route will, it is believed effect a veritable revolution in Western transportation. In preparation for it both of our great railway systems have been building north and west, lines within recent years, whereas formerly their policy was to so construct lines as to move everything east, west to east and west to east.

With the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway one of Canada's ambitions is being realized. It is in these Western Provinces that depth is to be given to the Dominion, something it has lacked since Confederation brought a Dominion into existence consisting of a long narrow strip extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific just north of the International boundary line

Big Amount For Research

Ontario Government Increasing the Contribution For This Purpose

In conformity with the Ontario Government's offer "dollar for dollar" plan of assistance for industrial research in the province of Ontario a bill has been introduced in the Legislature increasing the contribution of the provincial government to the Ontario Industrial Research Foundation from $1,000,000 as provided in the 1926 act to $2,500,000.

Last year legislation was provided for the subscribing by the Ontario government of $1,000,000 if the same amount were subscribed by private interests. So enthusiastic was the response that that amount has been over-subscribed and this amendment provides for its increase to $2,500,000 to be granted on the same terms.

Assumed Rules Broken

Great Britain Is Leading the World in This Connection

Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman's speech of the other day, to which we have already referred, was particularly among other things, for how it indicates how the cost of British naval maintenance is being lessened. Before the War, the First Lord of the Admiralty pointed out, Britain had 114 cruisers. Today she has only 52. Before the War the naval estimates amounted to 34.5 per cent. of the entire national budget. Today they are only 6.9 per cent.

Facts and figures like these speak for themselves. They cannot be given any meaning other than that which they undoubtedly bear. Anglo-phones in the United States will probably find them a bitter pill to swallow. But fair-minded Americans will see in them one of the real guarantees of world peace. A nation that is building ships at such a ruinous imminent footlifties, would not do as Britain has done. Britain leads the world today in the matter for naval disarmament, as she has always done—Regina Leader.

Pensions Act Modified

Amendments Will Make It Easier For Veterans

Amendments to the Old Age Pensions Act passed before the legislature prorogued, will bring some relief to the district, which with the fear that a great number of the old age pensioners will drift from the rural municipalities into the cities.

An amendment to section four provides that any person who has been granted a pension whilst resident in a municipality or an improvement district, shall be entitled to continue to be a resident of that district so long as he continues to receive his pension. This was in line with the suggestion of G. H. Wheler, Liberal, Calgary.

In connection with the maintenance clause, an amendment was passed providing that no person will be called upon monthly to contribute if his or her earnings are such that they do not come within the scope of the Income Tax Act.

The Up-Keep Of Roads

Well-constructed highways are necessary in Canada to meet the increased demands of traffic, but well-maintained roads are even of more importance in the interest of economy. Unsupervised, powerful road administrative organs and engineers are devoting a great deal of thought and attention to the up-keep and protection of roads. In 1927, the mileage of roads under maintenance in Canada under the patrol or gang system was 44,416 miles, at a cost of $16,-600,617.

Canada's Mineral Industry

Third In Importance Among the Primary Industries Of the Dominion

Addressing the 30th annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in Winnipeg, S. J. Cook, chief of the mining, metallurgical and chemical branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, said that, "Canada's mineral industry, third in importance among the primary industries of the Dominion, brings to the nation a prestige far beyond the monetary measure of its output. First in nickel, first in asbestos, third in gold, third in silver, fourth in lead and copper, and fifth in zinc, among the world's producers, Canada enjoys an enviable position in the mining world with every prospect favorable to continued expansion.

WHEAT POOL HISTORY GIVEN TO U. S. SENATORS

Washington.—Not only has the Canada Wheat Pool been of distinct advantage to the Province of Alberta in Canada and tended to increase the prices they have obtained for their products, but it has had a stabilizing effect on the whole wheat market, according to A. J. McPhail, president of the Central Selling Agency for the great three Western Canadian pools, who discussed the subject before the Senate committee on agriculture here.

Mr. McPhail came before the Senate committee by special request of the chairman, Senator McNary. Not only was he warmly thanked by Senator McNary and others of the committee for consenting to be present but senators expressed the view that the information which he set forth as to the history of the Canada Wheat Pool would be of great use in evolving plans in this country for farm relief.

Not the least interesting phase of the hearing was the suggestion that this country and Canada by co-operating with respect to the marketing of exportable wheat could control the world market. It is still premature to say that it has already been influenced by the Canadian Pool.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, asked a series of questions of Mr. McPhail on this point. While Mr. McPhail made no commitments as to the success of such co-operation, he indicated that the Canadian Pool, working with other similar organizations in this country, could have an increased influence on the world market.

Mr. McPhail gave a brief outline of the history of the formation of the pools of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the latter end of the formation of a central selling agency Mr. McPhail declared that while the farmers of Canada in 1923 were somewhat apprehensive of the pool, the feeling of the farmers that the pool has been of the utmost benefit in the creation of a spirit of independence and self-reliance among them as well as increased knowledge of their own business. He declared the success of the pool had been a great incentive to the general co-operative movement in Canada.

"The farmer," he said, "is taking more interest in his own organizations. There is a keen individual sense of responsibility for the success of the organization."

He said the pool marketed 52 to 54 per cent. of the wheat of the three provinces and carried on a continual campaign of education among the farmers in order to increase the membership.

Members of the committee were interested to hear that the Pool is financed wholly by the banks and not by the government, and that borrowings sometimes reach $60,000 000.

CANADIANS IN U.S. ARE SUBJECT TO DEPORTATION

Washington.—Thousands of Canadians are certain to be affected by the "absolute deportation" law, which passed near the close of congress. Walter W. Husband, assistant secretary of labor, one time commissioner-general of immigration, said the illegal residents are divided into three groups.

In the first group are those who entered this country without payment of the head tax of $8 between 1917 when the tax was first imposed, and June, 1921, when the first immigration exclusion act went into effect. This group is the least seriously affected. They cannot be deported as the statute of limitations has outlawed their offences. Steps are being taken in congress to validate this entrance.

In the second group are those who entered without paying a head tax between June 5, 1921, and July 1, 1924, when the policy of strict application went into effect. Members of this group also are in no danger of deportation, as the statute of limitations has operated to protect them from prosecution. But unless they take steps to legalize their stay in their residence, they can never safely leave the country, even for a short visit to relatives in Canada by way of across the international border they can never get back except by complying in all points with the present immigration laws.

Men and women who have slipped into the country since July 1, 1924, comprise the third group and are affected by "absolute deportation" law. They are not protected by any statute of limitations, as the 1924 law specially provided that the statute would not apply. The government reserved the right in that law to proceed against illegal residents any time, even many years hence.

Many in this group have obtained employment, have built homes, and in all things are prepared to make permanent residents, but if they are known to the immigration authorities they are in grave danger. If they are arrested, found to have evaded immigration laws, and sentenced to deportation, they can never hope to return to the United States.

Two Killed in Plane Accident

Pilot and Passenger Lose Lives In Crash At Rhodive, Sask.

Rhodive, Sask.—To the sudden panic of a passenger, unnerved by the swooping ascent and gyrations of the aeroplane in which he had sought the thrill of a first flight, is attributed the tragic crash here that cost the lives of Flying Instructor Roland Prod, of Regina, and John Sydorchuk, a C.P.R. section foreman.

Trapped in the enclosed cockpit of the dual-control Vickers Vedette with the right wing of the plane, in which the two were flying, fouled a telephone wire, they were plunged downward with terrific force, and death either came instantly from concussion, or else they perished in the flames that immediately enveloped the crumpled machine.

The coroner's jury which investigated the tragedy came to the merciful conclusion that the victims were either dead or stunned and were thus made oblivious to suffering. On the other hand, a Regina pilot who visited the scene and examined the wreckage declared that, in spite of all the circumstances, expresses the opinion that the crash was not suicidal, and that the cause was death of Fred and his passenger. He believes the two fought vainly to escape from the flames, which before succumbing to the flames.

If they are arrested, found to have evaded immigration laws, and sentenced to deportation, they can never hope to return to the United States.

Vernon Booher Hangs April 24

Gallows Are Now Being Constructed at Fort Saskatchewan Jail

For the second time, gallows are being constructed in the jail yard at Ft. Saskatchewan for Vernon Booher, 21-year-old slayer of his mother, brother, and their two hired men. The killings occured at the Booher farm, near Mannville, July 9, 1928. Vernon Booher will pay the supreme penalty at 8 a.m., April 24.

Following Booher's conviction in September, 1928, he was sentenced to be hung on December 18. His counsel, W. H. McLean, K.C., appealed and on December 4, with just 11 days of life left and his scaffold under way, Booher was granted a new trial. The second trial resulted in the same verdict as the first.

Since the youth has twice been found guilty of one of the most sensational crimes in Canada's history, it is not expected that there will be any intervention to save him from the gallows.

Neil D. McLean, K.C., counsel for Booher, has made a plea to Ottawa that the death penalty be commuted to life imprisonment in view of the strange, almost weird circumstances surrounding the case, particularly the part played by Dr. Langmuir. This is the last blow by McLean in his hard-fought battle to save Booher from the gallows.

Vermilion Distributing Base For Dodge Motor Company

The town of Vermilion is rapidly establishing itself as a distributing centre for the north-eastern portion of the province. On account of its geographical situation, together with the fact that it is able to offer practically all the modern conveniences of a city, Vermilion is destined to occupy that enviable position for all time. The most recent evidence of this is found in the fact that the Dodge Motor Company has established its head office for North-Eastern Alberta in Vermilion. The territory extends from Vegreville to Lloydminster east and west, and from the Battle River as far north as settlement extends. It includes all towns on the C. N. R. between the points named all the towns on the line C. P. R. line to the north of us, as well as St. Paul, Bonnyville and Cold Lake. All Dodge cars sold in this entire territory will be handled through the central office at Vermilion, under the supervision of Mr. P. T. McKone, one of Vermilion's enterprising citizens. The showrooms in which these cars will be on display in Vermilion are now undergoing a second re-tone in the Province.

BEAUTIFY CANADA

Clean Up, Paint Up, Keep It Up --- Increases the Value of Your Property

THE DRIVE TO FINISH OLD MAN DIRT IS ON

Greatest Effort in History of Canadian Cleanliness Includes Hundreds of Communities

The greatest effort in the history of Canadian cleanliness is on! Clean-Roses has a history. It's influence can be traced down the ages. Those races that were Clean were the races that were Masters.

The Athenians, with their baths and beautiful homes conquered the Persians, with their unkempt beards and dirty shins. The Romans, with their aqueducts, their barbers, their gardens beat back the barbarians with their cool skins and greasy flingers.

Louis the Fourteenth was the dandiest no-starch France ever had and one of her neighbors. Ruth kept the Panama Canal from being built years before it finally was. Bolshevism flourished when the dirty and the ignorant gained control in Russia — smarchy breeds in filth and squalor.

Cleanliness has always been po tent. Modern sanitation saved millions of lives in the great war.

Real people, the wise, the leaders in progress, always have fought for cleanliness. At times it has been a sporadic fight, a skirmish. A clean man was handicapped by a neighbor who let his premises run with. Inco-operation has been brought to play at last.

This year, in Canada alone, hundreds of villages, towns and cities are campaigning for cleanliness, health, and beauty. They are not doing so a day or a week but in a continuous campaign. There is a steady pressure.

Rags, flies, refuse, dirt, waste paper, unsightly buildings, unpainted surfaces are taboo. The drive is on. It can't be stopped

Join the forward movement. Clean Up, Paint Up and Keep It Up Make the unsightly, Dirt and Disease and Unsightliness abdicate forever.

The Use of Paint

Lessens Farmer's Cost Of Doing Business

The farmer like the manufacturer, must employ the most efficient and economical methods of doing business if he is to prosper When he keeps track of costs he finds that by building of better material, buying better implements, and then taking care of them, he increases the power of production and lessens the drain on his income.

Next to the purchase of good materials, the use of good paint is the farmer's best insurance; it protects his property and equipment against the rapid deterioration caused by wear and weather. The protection and appearance of barns, fences, windmills, wagons, tanks, etc., are just as important as the careful upkeep of factory tools and machinery, and depreciation here should be figured as carefully by the farmer as by the manufacturer.

A few cents invested in paint and a little work each season will soon show in the lengthened life of your equipment to say nothing of the satisfaction you will take in its improved appearance. Here is a list of points that it will pay you to keep on hand:

Two-quart can of buggy paint in red and black, for painting up wagons and buggies.

A small can of aluminum paint, for interior iron work, such as stalls, mangers, etc.

A small can of implement or spar varnish.

A half-gallon can of metal protective paint, for metal buildings. A good graphite paint is best for this purpose. Paint over regularly all such exposed metal parts as hoops, turnbuckles, outside hinges, doorhangers, iron hitching posts, etc.

A gallon can of barn color or house color for general repair work.

It is well also to periodically treat the inside of staved silos with the special compounds prepared for that purpose.

The life of fence posts can be prolonged three times if the lower part is treated with the compound used on silo staves This can be most easily done by taking a full barrel of the preservative, putting half in another empty barrel taking the heads out of both barrels, and letting the fence posts stand in them over night This treatment will make the portion most last longer than the best obstruct

It has been proved that the painting of good galvanized wire fence doubles its life In putting up a new

Rules For Fire Prevention

Do not permit rubbish, greasy rags, paper and useless waste to accumulate in or around buildings.

Do not allow matches kept in your house, office and stores in other than metal boxes. Use safety matches.

Do not allow children under ten years of age to use matches.

Do not use lamps and lamp burners that are not clean.

Do not tamper with or extend electric wire; employ an electrician.

Do not keep gasoline in other than daylight cans painted red.

Do not fill tank of gasoline stove when lighted and fill by daylight only.

Do not permit a rubber tube connection to a gas stove.

Do not empty ashes in other than metal cans.

Do not carelessly throw cigar and cigarette stubs where they could cause a fire.

Do not fail to warn your children of the dangerous bonfires.

Loss through preventable fires in the United States is $250,000,000 which, however, is exceeded by the amount lost through the lack of painting —according to Prof. H. H. King, who has conducted paint tests for several years for the people of Kansas, at the Kansas Agricultural College.

Clean-Up and Paint-Up campaigns reduce fire losses and insurance rates; increase property values; remove unsafe buildings; sweat the fly; make school and home gardens; beautify home alleys and yards; educate children in fire prevention and clean-up measures; plant trees; collect and utilize waste; make more attractive and safer homes and places of business, and develops a community spirit that permanently insures a cleaner, safer, healthier and more beautiful town.

Don't Neglect Painting Up

Make the Paint Brush the Partner Of the Scrub Brush In Your Campaign Against Dirt

Paint-Up goes hand in hand with Clean-Up. When you have dusted and swept and mopped the corners and the open spaces, put the paint brush to work. It will be easy to keep things clean then. A painted surface does not accumulate dirt like an unpainted one does. Besides, dirt is more obvious on a painted surface, and less apt to be ignored. Paintliness is the best incentive to cleanliness—which you know is "next to godliness."

Make the paint brush the partner of the scrubbing brush. They make a whole team. Enlist both of them for Clean-Up and Paint-Up.

It doesn't need much argument to convince a man that his house and his barn and his whole farm will be worth more money if the buildings are kept in the best order.

Don't Forget the Garden

You Can Make Enough Out Of the Back Yard To Paint Your House

Don't forget that garden this year. Gardens save thousands of dollars for householders, they conserve and add to the food supply and give many persons a healthy and temperance form of outdoor exercise.

Cultivating the 25 yard regularly will save enough money to save the house for years, by painting it regularly. The work is congenial and creates contentment—and "garden sass."

Clean-Up and Paint-Up On the Farm

The man who owns a farm or lives on one should be just as much interested in Clean-Up and Paint-Up as the city householder. And the incentive to start such campaigns has been just as marked in the rural districts as in the more thickly populated ones.

Farmers everywhere are being urged to remove remarkable build ings, repair and paint those that remain, trim hedges and trees, and clean and paint tools and machinery.

Hoisting of the Nationalist flag in Manchuria on December 31, placed the greater part of China under the Nationalist government.

Toothbrushes and handkerchiefs have figured among the tokens of valor presented by Chinese generals to the troops under their command.

Those All Count

Here are some pointers for citizens who would regenerate their community with a real Clean Up and Paint Up campaign:

1. Take away all the ashes and trash from your back yard immediately. Send your rubbish to the dumping ground.

2. Suggest to several men with teams, that they drive through the alleys with a sign, "Clean-Up Wagon" on their wagons; also a bell calling attention. People are only too glad to pay such a man for hauling their trash away.

3. Burn all rubbish that will burn. Clean your vacant lots and alley ways.

4. Make your street and parking look as trim and well kept as possible.

5. Refrain from throwing old paper, banana and orange skins into the streets.

6. Plant some grass and flower seeds to make your home beautiful.

7. If your store front is dingy, paint it. Nothing will do more to improve the appearance of a town than the liberal use of paint.

8. If there is unnecessary, unsightly sheds in your back yards, tear them down. They detract from the beauty of your home and the town. Open spaces and fresh air are better.

9. If your walk is an eyesore it those travelling over it, repair it or build a new one.

10. Trim hedges and trees and spray trees.

11. Paint and whitewash barns, poultry houses, outbuildings, etc.

12. Paint tools and machinery.

The local "Clean Up and Paint Up" campaign offers the most direct and practical and permanent avenue through which woman, organized or individual, can work for home and home towns beautiful and sanitary.

Keeps Floors Beautiful

Beautiful floors are largely a matter of prevention—the great secret is to put them in perfect condition —and then keep them that way. Doorways, passges and tracks become worn and unsightly first. You can keep these spots looking well by waxing them frequently. This requires but little time and effort if a good prepared wax and floor polishing brush are used.

The Clean Town Is the Healthy Town

Germs Last In Filth and Clean-Up and Paint Up Will Chase Them Away

It long has been a well known fact that dirt and disease walked hand in hand. Influenza, typhoid, pneumonia, tuberculosis, and other germ diseases exist because dirt exists. Get rid of dirt, and many diseases will be wiped out.

Cleanliness and the liberal use of the paint brush and mop and broom will make it hard for dirt to exist. If your town is spotless it will be a healthy town. And there is no better advertisement for a community than a low death rate.

Make your community clean and healthy. Wide-awake Canadian towns are conducting Clean-Up and Paint-Up campaigns, and those and Community Beautiful campaigns as much for the sake of health as for the sake of beauty.

In Alameda, Cal., campaign workers went to the length of placarding houses with the inscriptions, "Clean," "Dirty" or "Filthy," as the case might be. It was heroic treatment but it proved effective.

Make your town a clean town and you will also make it a healthy one

Clean - Up and Paint-Up—Guard Against Epidemics By Removing Their Cause

Tuberculosis and other germ diseases are generally brought about by dirt and filth. The germs of tuberculosis cannot live where there is sunlight, cleanliness, and fresh air. The scrubbing brush, soap and water, paint and whitewash are deadly enemies of tuberculosis. The easiest way to get rid of the germs that have nested in your house and around your premises is: Clean-Up and Paint-Up.

The cleaning out of filth will keep down influenza, infantile paralysis, typhoid, and diphtheria, as well as tuberculosis. And the painting brush should follow the scrubbing brush so that the cleansed places may be kept clean.

Do you want a clean town? Then do your part. Go through you house from cellar to roof and gather up all the old, useless, worn-out things stored away and get rid of them pronto. Clean out all rubbish, ashes, etc., in the cellars, yards, alleys, and areaways.

Screen your houses thoroughly. Remove any animal or vegetable matter. Manure breeds flies, which carry disease to human beings, especially the babies Clean out and fix up the manure bins. Repair your walks, fences, poultry houses, outhouses, etc. Then paint or whitewash them. Don't spare the paint.

FURTHER INVESTIGATIONS OF MILLING AND BAKING QUALITIES GARNET WHEAT

(Experimental Farms Note)

A new variety of hard red spring wheat produced by the Experimental Farms Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada, and bearing the name "Garnet" has been under test at various Experimental Stations throughout Canada for a number of years. It has also been grown by a large number of farmers since and including 1926. During this period it has become increasingly popular among growers who live in districts in which early maturing sorts have a distinct advantage.

Garnet is distinguished chiefly by its ability to mature from seven days to two weeks ahead of the standard variety Marquis, and to produce as full yields of hard red (semi-protein) grain, under widely varying conditions. It is a somewhat taller, more vigorous grain than does Marquis, and on account of this peculiarity Canadian millers have declared that flour of not mill well when mixed with Marquis or other less vigorous varieties.

The flour of Garnet in its baking condition is usually somewhat more creamy in color than is that of Marquis. The yellow skin in the grain. Apart from the above two points, Garnet additionally is entitled to rank with Marquis as a producer of high quality flour for use either alone or for blending with flours of lesser strength.

Whether or not Garnet when mixed with Marquis actually may offer any serious difficulties from a milling standpoint is a matter of some importance. It would seem necessary also to decide whether the color of the flour of Garnet is likely to be a factor in determining the value of the variety, especially for the Old Country trade.

While Canadian millers would seem to prefer the whiter flour of Marquis, there is some evidence that the somewhat creamy color of the flour of Garnet if not actually preferred by certain British millers, may at least be of no commercial disadvantage These are matters of considerable importance, but only solution of which is needed before Garnet can be properly rated. Arrangements are therefore being made by the Federal Department of Agriculture co-operation with the Canadian Wheat Pool and the Department of Trade and Commerce, to ship several thousand bushels of Garnet to certain mills in Finland, Germany and possibly to one or more other countries, for milling and baking tests on a commercial scale. A shipment of pure Garnet, as well as the mixture of a mixture of Garnet and Marquis, will also be sent to the State Testing Mill at Minneapolis for comparison with similar purposes.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Be sure not to miss seeing "The Christmas Carol," a charming dramatization of the famous story by Charles Dickens. In this, the most joyous, the most pathetic and the most pantheistic scenes from the story have been splendidly and skilfully rendered. Come and see them put into action by Lo High School players of Grade IX.

The costumes will be appropriate to the period in which the story was written. Never will be music, dancing and singing

The outstanding thrill in the play will undoubtly be in the story of Marley's ghost, on whose deep-toned words the weight of the words story is vested. Come and shudder. The performance will take place in the High School auditorium at 8 p.m. on Friday, April 19th.

Admission prices: 25c and 15c.

A notable evening was spent at the High School last Saturday, April 13th and was enjoyed by all the students who attended.

"Milestones" will be played in Islay on April 26th by the Vermilion High School players This is a good opportunity for those who have not seen it.

There have been 311 books from the High School Library taken out and read by the students since January 22nd, 1929.

Protect Your Reward Wheat

(Experimental Farms Note)

The Dominion Cerealist advises that the supply of Reward wheat available for distribution this spring is now completely exhausted. He states that at least five thousand farmers will be sowing this year, increasing variety this year throughout the three Prairie Provinces, the result of which you should go far to determine the future of the variety at least in many sections.

Since the amount of seed available to each farmer through the Federal Department this spring was only two bushels she now sown in each case will scarcely be small; the above official consequently urges that special care be taken to prevent contamination by other varieties. He suggests particularly, that the seed be sown only on breaking or summer fallow and that the seed plot be surrounded with a drill width sown to some other crop such as oats, the latter to be cut before reaching maturity. Care will also have to be taken in the harvesting and threshing, otherwise the seed will become mixed and rendered relatively valueless.

GRIZZLY BEAR M. D. MINUTES

The Council of the Municipal District of Grizzly Bear, No. 452 met at the Secretary's office, Wildmere, on April 8th, Reeve Shane taking the chair at 11 a.m. All the councillors were present. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved.

Reeve Shane took notice of the death a few days ago of A. W. Ebbett, K. C. of Vermilion, who for the past eight or nine years had acted as legal advisor to the Municipality and whose lively practical advice and services had been greatly appreciated by the Council.

An agreement between the Vermilion Municipal Hospital and this Municipality for the treatment of indigent and needy patients, was submitted and signed on behalf of the Reeve and the Secretary authorized.

Report made by the reeve regarding Mrs. J. Green to whom relief had been given by the town of Vermilion, and whose domicile was now in dispute.

Agreed on motion of the Reeve to take title to three parcels of land acquired by Carvel Carnet had been filed for past rates on months.

Connie made no attempt to check her crown's onward flight. She was in no mood to listen to the tender of his admiring crowd; she wanted only to get away from the scene, as quickly as possible. The movement lowered her left. Many hands were reached up to congratulate her, but she pushed her way through to the trail.

At the sound of hoof-beats behind her she turned to see Lafonte urging his tired mount toward the Pembroke trail and looking back apprehensively over his shoulder.

Several men were hunting after him, shaking their fists and uttering loud imprecations. A man leaped from behind a log-heap to land in the path of the half-breed, lunged for the reins, missed, then caught the stirrup. Lafonte struck the man a blow with his heavy whip that loosened his hold and felled him to the ground.

Connie saw Gillis break from the crowd, jump to the saddle of a cayuse and start after the fleeing man just as the latter disappeared in the woods. Gillis waved his hand to her and nodded in pursuit. She urged Pegasus to the shelter of the timber as she saw her father and Donald running toward her.

The strenuous race and the spectacular fall had left both horse and rider in a badly shaken condition. Connie's body was bruised and sore, and her head ached horribly. The cayuse's strained muscles were stiffening, he was limping badly, and his head drooped wearily as he dragged his feet through the stony trail.

At the barn door Connie dismounted stiffly, removed the horse's bridle, and while the animal was contented around his neck and stroked his symmetrical head with soft caresses. "I'm so sorry, Peggy darling," she said in a choking voice.

The horse nipped her shoulder in a weak attempt at playfulness, as if to signify that he quite understood. Connie's eyes brightened at a sudden thought. "Peggy, dear," she whispered softly as she nestled her cheek against his soft mane "do you know that I can have some nice clothes now? Lots and lots of nice clothes, and I'm going to buy you a blanket—a nice thick one for winter —and some ribbons for your mane. And you, Peggy"—with a fond tenderness in her voice—"you won all this for me."

The crooning sweet nothings in his ear that only Pegasus could understand when her father appeared, breathless from running, his face grey and anxious.

"Are you all right, Constance darling!"

Connie stopped forward. She was pale and weak, but her colourless lips tried to form a smile. "Yes, Daddy dear—I'm—all—right——" Her voice trailed to a whisper and the blue eyes closed as darkness fell upon her like a cloud. Swaying uncertainly for an instant, she fell like a broken flower into her father's outstretched arms. For the first time in her life Connie had fainted. She lay like a child in his trembling arms, her up turned face wearing the pallor of death.

With a prayer on his lips and an agony of fear in his heart, her father carried her to the cabin and tenderly stretched the bruised little body on the coarse blankets of her bunk.

CHAPTER XVIII.

At the race-course the crowd eddied excitedly about the judges' stand, or stood in groups talking of the wonderful performance of the spotted cayuse that had made the erstwhile champion appear a mere tyro.

Gillis came riding slowly from the woods and was hailed by questioning shouts from a score of throats.

"Did you get him?"

A bloody handkerchief was wrapped around the big man's head, and a livid welt showed on his forehead. He smiled grimly as he dismounted. "I got the d——d skunk," he answered savagely.

He turned to a group of Indians. "You fellers'd better look out for him when you go along; his eyesight's kinda bad."

Donald came to the front of the judges' stand and held up his hand for silence. Gradually the hum of voices died away and the crowd turned to face him.

"As you know we are to take up a collection to add to the Company's purse. The gentleman below," pointing down at Andy, "will hold the hat. We have witnessed an exhibition of matchless skill and pluck. Give as you feel."

The horse nipped her shoulder in a weak attempt at playfulness, as if to signify that he quite understood. Connie's eyes brightened at a sudden thought. "Peggy, dear," she whispered softly as she nestled her cheek against his soft mane "do you know that I can have some nice clothes now? Lots and lots of nice clothes, and I'm going to buy you a blanket—a nice thick one for winter —and some ribbons for your mane. And you, Peggy"—with a fond tenderness in her voice—"you won all this for me."

The crooning sweet nothings in his ear that only Pegasus could understand when her father appeared, breathless from running, his face grey and anxious.

"Are you all right, Constance darling!"

I would like to answer letters."—Mrs. J. Malin.

"I've brought your big trunk with the 'bulgy top,' Miss Wainwright," he called.

Connie sat up in her bunk so quickly that her head bumped the boards above. "Miss Wainwright" he had called her! Her eyes glowed in the dusky half-light. "Thank you so much," she replied.

The next day Wainwright informed Donald that Connie was up and would see him.

"Just a minute, Dad," she cried as she heard them approaching

Feverishly she rushed to the small mirror to glance at her reflection. With nervous hands she fluffed the hair about her ears and smoothed imaginary wrinkles from the collar of her dress. Then she sat down gravely and arranged her skirts about her.

KEEP YOUR BABY HAPPY AND WELL

Every mother wishes her child or children to be well and happy, to be bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked boys and girls. No mother wishes to see her dear children's eyes dull and lifeless, and do much to help the child fight the battle for health.

All parents sometimes unwittingly peep at hand the secret of aiding their little ones to ward off and successfully overcome the attacks of disease and ill health. Mrs. Wm. Ellis, Centre Burnt Hill, N.S., writes: "I am the mother of a baby less than a year old but without Baby's Own Tablets. They are a wonderful aid to me for Tablets. They are a wonderful aid to me for the little ones. Before using them baby was constipated, fretful and ailing. Now she is bright, happy and healthy. I heard you whisper, "There is nothing the body suffers that the soul may not profit by." With that I slid into the dark. it is my promise in the immortal teaches me to see immortality for us

IN LOVE WITH LIFE

Give me a battle to fight,
Worthy of me, or high,
There let me prove my right
Or let me striving die.
What of the weak who fall
What of the danger rife?
I am in love with it all—
I am in love with life!

Heroes are common clay,
Conquerors are but men:
Courage has blazed their way.
Courage will win again!
Will make the man a god
Then shall I shirk the strife?
Better beneath the sod—
I am in love with life!

Weaklings the combat are fleeing,
Cowardice loses on time;
Strength is the glory of being,
Love makes our strength sublime!
On with the battle of might!
Brave hearts for drum and fife!
Glorious is the fight —
I am in love with life!

ARE YOU FOR A CLEAN, BEAUTIFUL AND HEALTHY TOWN?

Readers will note that practically an entire page in this number of The Standard is devoted to the promotion of a Clean Up, Paint Up, Keep It Up campaign. Hundreds of communities are included in this greatest effort in history to put over a drive to finish "Old Man Dirt" and if backed by the progressive business men and citizens of Vermilion, the next month should result in the transformation of the appearance of our town. Read every article on the "Beautify Canada" page and decide to enthusiastically support the movement—actively. The propaganda will continue for another three issues.

A Clean Up campaign brings profit to everyone in a community through increased sales, greater property values and above all, good health and contentment. A Clean Up and Paint Up campaign has been sponsored this spring by the Retail Merchants Association and the Winnipeg Newspaper Union. The W. N. U. is cooperating by publishing a series of timely articles each week for four weeks in the promotion and furthering of the objects of the campaign. Each publisher of the 250 in the West receiving their weekly supply from the Union are giving their support to the movement.

The movement itself is national in scope, extending from ocean to ocean in both Canada and the United States and results in the reduction of fire risks and insurance costs; conserves and increases property values; makes gardens of back yards and vacant lots, improves unsightly buildings; pests the fly; makes cleaner alleys, yards and homes; educates children in fire prevention and clean-up measures; plants trees and willows roots; makes more attractive and safer homes and places of business and develops a CONTINUITY SPIRIT that PERMANENTLY conserves a cleaner, safer and more beautiful town. Apart from all these, the impression made upon the out-sider, visitor and tourist cannot be estimated—for first impressions are invariably lasting.

The Standard understands the Board of Trade are taking active steps towards organizing committees, zoning the town, etc. and that His Worship Mayor Pallow has consented to act as chairman. The matter will come up at the next board meeting on Monday evening, April 22nd at 7 o'clock at the Vermilion Hotel, when members will have the opportunity of hearing an address by H. Seymour on Town Planning.

ROY D. KERBY ELECTED PRESIDENT OF DURANT MOTORS OF CANADA, LTD.

In recognition of the progress that has been made by Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, during the past three years and the prestige which this company has gained during that time, under his leadership, Mr. Roy D. Kerby was elected President of the Canadian company at a meeting of the directors following the annual meeting of shareholders.

JEWEL HUE SETTING TESTS CAR'S BEAUTY

Nation-Wide Spring Showing for New Chevrolet Six, April 20-27; Demonstration Week Follows

On Saturday, April 20th, Chevrolet show rooms throughout Canada will blossom out as fashion salons for a one-week, nation-wide "Spring Showing" of the new Chevrolet Six.

So much has been spent in making this year's car a thing of style and beauty, as well as of mechanical excellence, that it was felt necessary to make some unusual effort to display the seven models in a manner both appropriate and convincing. The national "Spring Showing" is the result.

"In the past," Lou Mackinnon, general sales manager for the Chevrolet Motor Company, points out, "Chevrolet show room settings have usually been reserved for the large and expensive cars — merely because the smaller, less costly cars failed to look their best against such backgrounds. But this year we have developed in the new Chevrolet Six a car which [illegible] in the most exacting surroundings. This was proven at the big motor shows at various points in Canada, and we are out to demonstrate the fact to car-buyers everywhere."

In consequence of which decision Chevrolet dealers have been engaged for a week past in preparations for the big event. In a any case experts in decoration have been engaged. Flaming draperies, oriental rugs, palms, ferns and exotic flowers have been conscripted for the purpose of making the "loot" of the New Chevrolet's beauty as severe as possible in such cases the show will be attended by much of the same pomp and circumstance which is found at the big metropolitan horse shows, fashion shows and the like. Even were no such extremes as possible, enough is being done to lift the Spring Showing out of the usual level of car displays.

A TIMELY WARNING

Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Bank of Commerce recently, Sir John Aird, in his presidential address, predicted that, unless Canada failed to profit by the warnings of experience, he saw no reasons why the prosperity of 1929 should not equal or surpass that of 1928. He coupled this, however, with the warning that banks and financial houses should do all in their power to "restrain the speculative tendency with in reasonable grounds."

Sir John also regarded the threat of higher tariffs made during the United States election campaign as "unwelcherly."

Such speculation has run riot in Canada for some time, and it is encouraging to note that financial leaders have the courage to sound the warning note. In the end, it is the small investor who suffers, and any tendency toward price collapse would very quickly be reflected throughout the length and breadth of Canada. Banks should do everything in their power to discourage speculative investment leading to undue price inflation. The "big" men on the spot reap the fruits of boom conditions, the small man pays the cost.—Farm and Ranch Review.

Think Of the Future

A condition of prosperity prevails throughout Canada from coast to coast. It is not confined to any one section nor to any one industry or group of industries. There is in fact a generality to the existent favorable situation probably without a parallel in the past history of the Dominion. That is not to say that everybody or every industry is equally prosperous, or indeed, that there are not those who do not enjoy prosperity. The contrary is true But taking Canada as a whole, and in the major activities of its people prosperity reigns today

Such a condition is of course gratifying Nobody would have it otherwise, and no desire that it shall be long continued But there are dangers to be avoided in times of more or less universal prosperity which do not present themselves when times are hard and business depression rather than business activity is in evidence. It is an old and often proved statement that many people who can and have stood strong and true through the strain and stress of adversity, and won through to ultimate victory, have cracked and broken when favored with prosperity and success

Canada is prosperous today and it should take full advantage of its present favorable position The people are optimistic and should continue so. They should continue to show vision, courage and courage in constructive development. They would be unworthy of their heritage and the future possibilities of their Dominion if they acted otherwise But they should nevertheless have a care in the enthusiasm of the glowing present not to forget the years to come

Just as night follows day, winter follows summer, youth grows into old age and death is the ultimate ending of birth, so it is inevitable that, in course of time depression in business will follow buoyancy A pendulum swings just as far one way as it does the other. It is a wise man and a wise community therefore which when times are good and development is the order of the day takes thought and prepares for that future day when retrenchment may become a necessity.

If growth and expansion is artificially pushed too far if an individual or a community becomes involved to large future obligations in order to further speed up present development, they may find themselves in great future difficulty

All countries and communities most individuals have passed through such bitter experience. Western Canada has not been immune from them, and those who recall the boom days of the past know that the period of adjustment following the collapse of a "boom" was much longer than the "boom" itself and that in the final analysis the years far out weighed the gains.

At the present time all our Western cities, towns, villages and rural municipalities are planning their programmes for 1929. Times are prosperous the country is growing and the almost universal demand is for increased expenditures to provide this and that. Today it is possible and comparatively easy to borrow the money to carry such expenditures through and to meet the initial interest charges. But a debt is created which will remain for years to come. When the present buoyancy subsides, when money is less easy to obtain when the present degree of employment and payment replaces present favorable conditions in business, will the load be too heavy to carry?

It will be well for care is exercised by all civic and municipal authorities in seeing that the safety line in expansion is not passed, and that expenditures now made are for permanent constructive work which will be revenue producing in the years to come. Extravagance in ideas is no more justifiable in times of prosperity than they are at other times It is in those "other times" that the bills really have to be paid

Development and progress now are justified in times of prosperity when they would be unsafe in fact quite impossible, in times of depression. When depression is present it is frequently impossible to provide for even imperative and wholly justifiable expenditures These must be provided when times are prosperous It then becomes an equally imperative duty to provide them

Not per essentials, no matter how desirable they may be in other respects should be carefully considered less citizens, the taxpayers, are unwittingly swept into the authorization of expenditures which later on they may have cause to bitterly regret.

Such words of warning are unnecessary in times of depression; it is now, when prosperity is with us, that warnings are necessary and should be heeded

Prince Has Tuned Author

Written Foreword To Final Volume Of Merchant Navy

The Prince of Wales has turned author, or at least has written a foreword to the third and final volume of the Merchant Navy by Sir Archibald F. Hurd. The foreword was written in his capacity as Master of the Merchant Navy and Fisher fleet, conferred upon him by the King last year.

Paying warm tribute to the British mercantile marine, the Prince refers to the thrill that he has always experienced in his world-wide travels at the sight of the red ensign. He refers to the work of the merchant marine in the world war as having provided the final test of a heroism unparalleled in history.

The Newest Invention

Wrist Watch When Worn Three Days Needs Winding

A self-winding watch has been invented by a Lancashire artisan. Finding that seventy-five per cent. of watch stoppages were caused by dirt or moisture entering through the aperture of the winder, he set out to make a watch which would be completely enclosed. In two and a half years, working in his spare time, he succeeded. The new watch winds itself To keep it going all the owner has to do is to wear it for three hours a day. It can not be overwound.

Farmers Show Interest In Valuable New Book

"Field and Farmyard" Being Distributed Free To Farmers

The new book "Field and Farmyard," which is being offered free to farmers by Imperial Oil Limited, has aroused a great deal of interest among farmers, and is creating for itself a great deal of favorable comment.

The book deals with practical farming problems covering different phases of cropping and cultivating, as well as livestock breeding, and has been judged by all classes of farmers in all sections of the country as a most authoritative work. In furnishing the book, Imperial Oil Limited secured the services of a large number of outstanding authorities, and were fortunate enough to have these men, whose names are by-words in Canadian Agriculture, cover individually the subjects on which they are admittedly experts.

Dr. C. E. Saunders, professor of Marquis Wheat, is one of the noted authorities whose views on grain farming are incorporated in "Field and Farmyard." Other men whose reputations are familiar to many Canadian farmers, and who are contributors to the book, are W. W. Carlyle, manager of the E. P. Ranch, Alberta; Robt. M. Hedley, Ontario Fieldman for the Canadian Holstein Breeders' Association; Col. Harley Bull, Hon President of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club; W. A Dryden Ontario Fieldman for the Canadian Records Board; Col Robert McEwen, President of the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers' Association. Thomas McMillan, M.P., one of Manitoba's most famous farmers; Geo. H. Greening, Animal Husbandman of Experimental Farms; Dr. Robt. Fr. Jenkins, Manager of the Dominion Farms Ontario; Hon. J. D. McGregor, Lieut.-Governor for Manitoba and well-known Western farmer, and many others

The general information contained in the book has been compiled and written by the Hon. Duncan Marshall, formerly Minister of Agriculture for the Province of Alberta. A "Tramp" Of the Skyways

New British "Tramp" Built To Carry Aeroplanes

The hulkiest articles can be transported across the world at a speed of 100 miles an hour in a new British aeroplane which has recently passed the fullest flying tests.

Its spacious cabin looks like a railway baggage van, for the machine has been built as a "tramp" of the skyways. It is known as the Vickers Bellows, and can be used as a freight-carrier, for the transport of troops or as a long-distance bomber.

The two Napier Lion engines have 1,000 horse-power, and with extra tanks to carry additional petrol the machine could remain in the air for between seventy and eighty hours.

Electricity supplies the lighting of this aerial passenger-train. The sides and roof are reinforced with wooden stays, and the floor, built up of wood in the manner of the Underground railway carriage, is similarly strengthened.

The Oil Of Power. — It is not claimed for Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil that it will conquer every ill, but its uses are so various that it may be looked upon as a general pain killer. It has achieved that greatness for itself and its excellence is known to all who have tested its virtues and learned by experience.

Expenditures On Canadian Roads

In 1927 federal, provincial and municipal expenditures on the improvement and maintenance of Canadian roads amounted to $45,700,000.

Asthma Cannot Lead

when the greatest of all asthma specifics is used. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy assuredly deserves this exalted title. It has to its credit thousands of cases which other preparations had failed to benefit. It brings help to even the most severe cases and brings the patient to a condition of blessed relief. Surely suffering from asthma is needless when a remedy like this is so easily secured.

Simple Precautions Against FLU Sore Throat — — The Danger Signal

Health Authorities Point Out The Necessity Of Treating The Simple Cold At Its Beginning

Nearly every case of "Flu" starts with a simple cold. At first the throat is sore—often just a little hoarse—soon the infection goes lower—then the chest is affected. A safe plan is to gargle the throat three times daily and rub well with Nerviline—this will keep the throat free from germs If there is any sign of tightness in the chest, rub on Nerviline—every drop will penetrate deeply—congestion will be relieved—the cold will break up quickly. Many times a dangerous case of "Flu" can be avoided by this simple home treatment.

Of course it is always wise to take some relaxing medicine, and for this purpose Dr. Hamilton's Pills are recommended. Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they purge the system of impurities and carry off a lot of disease breeding wastes.

This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills is very effective for Grippe, Influenza, Bad Colds, etc., and can be relied upon to give very satisfactory results.

Golf To Be Played In Vermilion This Summer

Enthusiastic Meeting of Members Decide Upon New Course

Golf will be on the boards early this year in Vermilion. For the past year or two it sort of "went to seed" due to conditions over which the officials in charge had no control. Two years now the old course was used and the club found itself without a paying place. It was during a couple hours of darkness that new links were sought with the result after canvassing the situation and available courses it was decided to locate on the vacant piece of town which is very desirable owing to its nearness to the city. A large membership is being added this year and a start of fairways and greens as can be had immediately. The new course is in the neighborhood of the old one. Behind it and to the left of the latter the layout of the new course will be laid out. Hamilton's Hills, the hazards, etc., will be left as they are. The new course will be nine holes and will be known as the Vermilion Golf Club. The following officials were elected: Honorary president, Dr. Hamilton; president, J. Lucas; vice-president, J. Hamilton; secretary-treasurer, A. Hamilton; executive committee, Messrs. Lucas, Hamilton, Hamilton, Dr. Hamilton, Dr. Hamilton, Dr.

Vermilion Girl Guide Display Real Treat

Though the Girl Guides' display put on a week or so ago was mentioned in the notes of the Guider it was deserving of much more extended notice and we are pleased to add a few comments on the excellence of the evening's entertainment provided. In spite of the fact that quite a number of the Guides were absent owing to the prevalence of light epidemics, only one number had to be omitted. From the grand success of the entire company to a spirited sword tune, until the conclusion of the camp-fire songs rendered in a beautiful setting, there was nothing but unmitigated enjoyment for everyone. That the various numbers caught the audience was apparent by the demonstrations of appreciation which greeted them. The splendid appearance of the girls —and we are proud of them—in their real Guide uniforms, their athletic carriage and display in precision which the drills, club swinging and rope skipping were performed, was warmly commented upon and were also the demonstrations of signalling, dressing race, bandaging, making of a sick bed and many other ordinary but Useful accompaniments.

Mrs M G Brimacombe and Mr. Hewett, who assisted very materially in the success of the evening, by their acts and others present were most favorably impressed with the splendid training given by Miss Guiding to the Guides and are certainly indebted to the Guider, Mrs. Whitby, for the great interest evinced in this beneficial work for our girls.

It is trusted that it will not be long before the public will have the privilege of attending another of these delightful displays

Town To Be Zoned For Big Clean-Up Effort Arbor Day

COMMITTEE OF 15 APPOINTED TO TAKE CHARGE OF CAMPAIGN AND ORGANIZE WORKING GROUPS IN THE VARIOUS BLOCKS ASSIGNED TO THEM

Mayor Fallow Will Move at Least a Dozen Teams to Cart Away All Debris — Citizens Can Do Much Preliminary Work on Own Premises Before the 9th.

At the fortnightly board of trade luncheon Monday night, Mayor Fallow, whose turn it was to act as chairman, announced plans for the carrying out of Vermilion's big clean-up campaign — the war to exterminate "Old Man Dirt." The board of trade had unanimously endorsed the movement and the town council is backing it up. Following an executive meeting of the board, the town had been marked off into cleaning up areas and 15 citizens appointed, one to have charge of organizing working groups in each zone. Arbor Day, Monday, May 6th is also being proclaimed as a civic holiday and consequently it is expected every public-spirited citizen will join in the endeavor to make Vermilion not only a clean town but a healthy one as well. The Mayor says that co-operation with the committee-men and accord their support and assistance towards the successful carrying out of the day's programme Elsewhere in this issue is to be found a list of the committee, your committee-man will be seeing you to talk over details — promise him your active support. If all do this we are assured of the greatest clean-up day ever put over in this progressive town, and the results will give us reasons to be justly proud of the effort.

The fifty members present at the lunch-on had the pleasure of listening to an adress by Mr. H. Seymour on the Town Planning Act recently passed by the provincial legislature As outlined by the speaker, the Act is very wide in its scope, embracing rural planning in relation to farm buildings and grounds plans, areas of and laying out of country school grounds, sanitation for schools and farm houses, establishing of small reliable park areas where the people of a district may gather for a holiday and the general beautification of our province by the prohibiting of sign boards and other obstructions along or near the vicinity of our highways to the obliteration of the view and natural beauty. The building line on the highways for service station, etc was placed at 60 feet back, control was also exercised over the location of auto camps in rural areas. The act not asid- the sum of $35,000.00 for the acquiring of park lands, historic sites, etc. The brief outline would give some idea of what the government has in line for planning and beautifying the province, and all could help in this work of making a more beautiful Alberta. To start briefly in the right course, the importance of planning was emphasized by Mr. Seymour whose special work it is to advise and supply plans in connection with carry ing out the objects of the Act. There was a great change in the psychology of the country the last 15 to 20 years and people today had a very fine conception in relation to the preservation of our national beauty.

Town planning as applying to Vermilion could still accomplish results for he found here that things had been done in a better way than in a good many other towns. The advantages of a zone by-law when a town was born gave the advantage of regulating all building; providing wide streets in the business section to take care of heavy traffic, thereby avoiding congestion and the crowding of or dinary streets in other sections; this meant preconsidered arteries for general traffic; allotment for industries and other lines not desirable to have in the general business section; keeping public buildings grouped, making a town compact so that it may be conveniently administered In all this it was necessary to look forward — think ahead, perhaps twenty or thirty years hence, when problems will arise which the mistakes of the present would have unsolved

The address of Mr Seymour was given close attention

Clean Up, Paint Up, Keep It Up — Increases the Value of Your Property

Why Cement and Plaster Need Painting

It is seldom one sees a cement concrete stucco plaster or brick surface painted. It seems to be the general assumption that these substances are amply able to protect themselves from weather and other destructive conditions.

But that is a mistake. It is well known that cement is a moisture absorbent, and it is true that this moisture does not harm it in itself as much as important to prevent rain from penetrating the surface of these rough mineral substances as it is to protect wood and iron from rain.

But just any kind of paint will not do. It must be a special cement paint having a chemical composition not affected adversely by lime or alkalies.

It is important that owners of commercial and manufacturing buildings, grain elevators, residences, garages, silos, etc., with absorbent outside surfaces, should realize the advantages of painting them that they will last longer, look better and need fewer repairs after being so treated.

Many accidents happen from warming various and other mixtures that contain inflammable liquid. Almost every day it happens. "Jiggered" does not seem to be the best word to use, however, for it is discovered that such "accidents" cause wrong descriptive words, are usually the result of want of common house sense.

Anybody should know that to place highly inflammable substances like turpentine and benzine by a hot or even warm stove is more than likely to cause an explosion. "She was heating a pot of varnish on the stove and it exploded." Of course it did; did she think it would simply boil over, like a pot of soup?—Painters' Magazine.

Clean Up Every Yard

The pupils of the schools should be thoroughly sold on the idea that they can render a great deal of help in cleaning up and painting up. Many a father will reward his boy handsomely for having the cleanest and neatest backyard in the neighborhood.

The girls will find a new delight in putting new beds in order, washing the woodwork, and otherwise helping mother to make the entire house look bright and clean.

Every yard should have the weeds removed. The lawns should be mowed and raked, the shrubbery pruned, the ledges trimmed, and all rubbish carried away or burned.

If there are any little depressions in the yard which accumulate water, fill them up. A pool of stagnant water in a foul spot can easily give birth to a swarm of fever carrying mosquitoes.

1½ capfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted with 1½ capfuls of water.
½ teaspoonful salt.
2 capfuls sugar.
3 eggs.
2½ tablespoonfuls granulated gelatine.
1 tablespoonful vanilla

Let the gelatine stand in the milk for five minutes; then scald the mixture. Combine the egg-yolks, sugar and salt with the scalded milk, and cook until slightly thickened like a custard. Then stir the mixture into the egg whites beaten stiff; add the vanilla. Turn into individual moulds which have been dipped in cold water and when set unmould and serve with light cream, or any preserved fruit.

Demand For Farm Machinery

Implement houses at Moose Jaw and Swift Current are exceptionally busy at the present time filling orders for spring farm machinery. It is understood that the International Harvester Company will have at least another twenty carloads of machinery shipped into Swift Current this spring, while the Massey-Harris Company is also handling a heavy movement.

Acid Stomach

Sharon acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and heartburn about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best restorative is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions for dyspepsia.

Had Thought For Troops

Prince Of Wales Countermanded Order For Parade Owing To Weather

On the day the Prince of Wales presided over the first Royal levee of the year at St. James's Palace, Pall Mall, London, elaborate ceremonial had been arranged. He was to drive to a silver and gilt coach from Buckingham Palace, the King's London residence, to St. James's attended by a squadron of the Horse Guards in full parade equipment, including highly polished steel cuirasses and enormous busbies.

The weather turned inclement cold, and the discomfort this parade would have occasioned not to himself, for he would have been well sheltered in the coach, but to the troops that were to take part at once appealed to the Prince. Half an hour before the ceremony was to begin, therefore, he quietly countermanded it. He walked from the modest bachelor quarters he occupies in York House near by. Little was said about this at the time, but a few of the 47,000,000 inhabitants of some grey little islands in the Northern Seas took most of it and approved.

Home Decorations

A little money goes a long way in furnishing a home if it is wisely spent. Walls painted well in a light, pleasant color, and not too varied monotone or neatly patterned paper, does not cost very much, but goes a long way toward giving a room a fresh, smart appearance. Bright colored cretonnes and a note of gaiety and color in Venetian, Mandarin, stands and tables can be painted pleasant colors, giving accent to the furnishings of the room. Worn-out upholstery can be covered with slip covers of denim or cretonne, or reupholstered in inexpensive wool repp. New silk or parchment lamp shades and pillows of quilted silk or bright linen adorned with wool embroidery or applique add to the up-to-date appearance of the room. Well designed scatter rugs, rug mats, and the delightful new linoleums make charming and inexpensive floor coverings.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE SUFFERING SERVANT OF JEHOVAH

Golden Text: "With His stripes we are healed."—Isaiah 53.5.

Lesson: Isaiah 52.13 to 53.12.

Devotional Reading: Revelation 5. 9-14.

Explanations and Comments

The Servant Of Jehovah.—Who is meant by the term? In the words of the Ethiopian eunuch (Acts 8.34), "Of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself, or of some other?" Philip, to whom the eunich spoke, immediately took up the passage which we study today, and from it preached Christ.

Incidental allusions to the Servant of Jehovah are scattered throughout the second part of the Book of Isaiah, but the main passages are these: 42.1-9; 42.1-7, 18-25; 43.5-10; 48.1-6; 49.1-9; 52.13 to 53.12. What was the conception in the mind of the prophet? Was the "Servant" a personification, or a person? If a personification, was he the Israelitish nation as a whole, or the best portion of that nation—the righteous nucleus? The exiles in Babylon, or that part who remained loyal to Jehovah throughout all the trials of the exile and thus kept alive the true religion? If a person, was he ideal, or real? A prophet, or Jeremiah, or Jehoiachim? Or was he no one still to come, the promised Messiah? All of these interpretations are ably defended by scholars.

"The very name 'servant' sets up a standard of life for individuals and nations. Those who would be a spiritual power must become the servants of all. Jesus Christ is the only perfect illustration of altruism. Selfishness is the curse of the world. Christ brought help because he was the perfect 'servant' of Jehovah, consecrated to unselfish service. And servantship and service must characterize every life that ministers to the health and strength of humanity."—John T. McFarland.

The Later Exaltation Of the Servant of Jehovah, 52.13-15.—In these last three verses of the fifty-second chapter of Isaiah, God is represented as the Speaker. (In 53.1, He again speaks.) Behold, he exclaims, my "Servant," he who executes my will, shall deal so wisely as finally to be exalted. But just as many were astonished, because they could not understand His sufferings, His visage and form disfigured by disease; so when he is exalted he shall startle many nations, kings shall be silent with surprise when he is really known and understood. The word "sprinkle" is difficult and obscure and perhaps not original. The Greek version reads "many nations will marvel at him."

The Servant Of Jehovah a Man Of Sorrows, verses 1-3.—The prophet is now the speaker. "Whenever a 'new' is suddenly introduced into prophecy, it is always Isaiah that speaks, since the prophet takes the nation along with himself."—Delitzsch. Who hath believed our message, and to whom hath the arm of Jehovah been revealed? He refers seemingly to the revelation which he has made in the past, the substance of 42.1-4; 49.1-6; 50.4-9. The tenses in verses 1-3 are past (prophetic perfect), the future being viewed as already accomplished. The implied answer to the question is "No one!"—Dummelow. The "form of Jehovah"—a figure of speech for the work of Jehovah: the sending of the "servant" in his work.

He was despised, and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief. "What an illustration of what is condensed into these words!" And as one from whom men hide their faces he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Men turned their faces away from Him with loathing. Many see in these words a suggestion of leprosy, and refer to Job. 16.6.

The Cost Of Corrosion

In a paper read before the Institution of Civil Engineers, by Sir Robert Hadfield, on "The Corrosion of Ferrous Metals," the startling statement was made that, according to his estimates, 29,000,000 tons of steel went wrong by rusting in 1920. At 10 pounds a ton this would represent the year the huge bill of $80,000,000 pounds, to which might be added another 120,000,000 pounds spent on operations rendered necessary by the corrosion. These figures refer to the whole world, but, as this "Electrical Review" pointed out, the major part, say 600,000,000 pounds would probably have to be debited to the British Empire, a sum equal to nearly half our total war indebtedness to the United States.

The girl with a broken heart always manages to save the pieces.

Pictures and Mirrors Give Finishing Touch

Pictures serve an admirable purpose in the decoration and furnishing of the small home.

By the very nature of their location on the wall they occupy none of the floor space that is so valuable in the small dwelling. If a little room has been rather crowded with furniture, pictures on the wall carry the eye upward and bring the attention from the lower part of the room to the upper, where there is a greater appearance of space.

Then, too, the subjects of the pictures may be chosen with a view to increasing the apparent size of the room. Pictures with a ruler deep perspective give the eye a feeling of looking into the scene, down a corridor, into a valley, along a river, or otherwise counting an appearance of distance.

To do this removes much of the cramped feeling that invades a small room overcrowded with furniture.

The choice of color in pictures also will have much to do with the decorative scheme of the room and the same effect of spaciousness can be created with the judicious use of mirrors.

The Part Paint Plays

"Where poverty lives, there shall abound." Someone wrote or said that a long time ago and it is quite true today. The nobility and prosperity of a town, or its poverty and shiftlessness, are indicated by its physical appearance.

"Paint and Pride Are Partners," is one of the slogans of the "Clean-up and Paint-Up Campaign," and it is a good one. "The greatest luxury is cleanliness is paintliness," is another true one.

Any community cleaning that hate requires the paint brush even more than the scrub brush. Walls and other surfaces which are properly painted, enameled or varnished, are washable. They are easier to keep clean. Good paint and varnish reduce the labor of keeping clean, promote health, inspire pride of ownership, multiply the joys of living and increase property values. There is no better time to paint up than when you are cleaning up, and there's little fear of keeping your premises cleaned up unless they're painted up.

The Dandelion Digger

The dandelion is a pretty little flower for a few hours. Then the blossom becomes an unsightly tuft of seeds which are blind by the slightest breeze and blown over the yard or throughout the neighborhood. Then the dandelion soon becomes an unsightly weed which disfigures an otherwise beautiful lawn.

Dandelions attract mosquitoes and other undesirable insects. Get rid of the dandelion by enlisting the services of the children! Organize them into an army of dandelion diggers.

Any self-respecting home owner will pay the little tots ten to twenty-five cents per hundred for dandelion and other weeds that may be dug. You can appeal to the pride of the little folks by making them soldiers in this special army of fighters, and you will please them by a small cash reward for their work.

Grocer—"Then you don't want any cranberries?"

Customer—"No, I've changed my mind. I see your cat is asleep on these cranberries."

Grocer—"Oh, that'll be alright. I don't mind wakin' the cat up."

A biologist has declared that the ape is not man's ancestor, and that ought to be comforting to the ape.

Has Only Three Streets

English City Is Probably Smallest In the World

St. Davids, in Pembrokeshire claims to be the smallest city in England, perhaps in the world. It is a village of three streets, containing barely a hundred houses, but it is technically a "city."

Although St. David's is 16 miles from a railway it is a popular holiday resort, owing to its fine of a cathedral and its rugged cliff scenery.

A movement to induce people living in overcrowded cities to move to the country is being started by the Italian Government.

PROCLAMATION
FOR HOMES AND COMMUNITY BEAUTIFUL
Let Us Clean Up, Paint Up and Keep It Up.

In hundreds of cities and towns throughout America they are working together to make their homes and communities beautiful — to make them safe and clean, and pleasant to look upon. In increase the value of their property, to instil in their children a love of beauty and habits of thrift and cleanliness.

Let us join in this movement and make our town a pleasant place to live in and a town to which visitors will come with new industries and the kind of citizens we will be glad to welcome.

Most important of all, to the need for us to unite our efforts before-hand, to home-making. for here is the foundation of the nation, the nursery of the world's future manhood and womanhood. Here the hopes and inspiration of today's workers find their home, the home that radiates cleanliness and order, cheerfulness and happiness up to this ideal of family and public service, even the humblest home has and do attain this standard, the desirable ideal of the Home-Beautiful.

This cannot be done in any mere casual. The need is for immediate for any delay. The work cannot be made perfect by the co-operation of community effort for any single group or individual to assume a superior conduct

We need an immediate and continuous and thorough campaign that enlists every interest and organization, every man and child in the community in a practical, systematic way. Ideas, Thrift and Civic Pride.

All organizations and individuals endorsing the campaign are urged to act promptly and to use their influence and effort to get immediate, early, whole-hearted, enthusiastic support and co-operation. It is especially important that we give the campaign a good start by making the opening week a big success a big reformation week.

This Campaign opened Monday, April 22nd

Building Speedier Cars

Forty Miles On Highways No Longer Considered Good Going

Reading the automobile advertisements, it is not uncommon to see certain manufacturers proclaim as one of the merits of their high-priced cars that they will do seventy and eighty miles an hour. Now, an enthusiastic expert states that within the next ten years cars will be built for the public highways — not for the speed track—which will do one hundred and twenty miles an hour or more.

One may ask, "Why?"

Not so long ago speeds of thirty to forty miles on the roads were considered good going, and many persons were satisfied with that rate. But in the stress of competition, manufacturers began turning out cars of higher speed, giving one better than their competitors, although the laws of the land did not sanction anything like the speed named.

There is no law against building autos to sell for use on the highways which are capable of tremendous speeds, and the producers are careful to exploit the speed capacity as providing a substantial reserve of power for hills," or some such claim as that.

And so speeds are greater — and the death list grows higher every year.

It seems inconsistent for governing authorities to pass laws limiting the speed of autos, and to take no action whatever against the production and sale of autos which can travel twice as fast as the maximum limit.

But the time must come, if cars are to be built that will do one hundred and twenty miles an hour on the roads, when public bodies will have to take some action. High ways are not built for such speeds — and undoubtedly men who have cars equal to that speed will utilize their power on the open roads. And the alternative is to build super-highways for super-cars.

It is taking governments all their time now to cope with the present highway needs, and unless they are to be forced into a new program of costly highways within the next ten or twenty years, there will have to be some general legislation to limit the speed capacities of automobiles of the future.

A Valuable Hen

Sorrel Plymouth Rock At Saskatchewan University Sets New Record

The poultry department of the University of Saskatchewan established the poultry world, last year, with a barred Plymouth Rock hen named Sal 326 eggs in her pullet year. This was a record for a hen of the heavy breeds. A daughter of this hen seems likely to beat her mother's record. Hatched on February 23, last year, she laid Sal Sue 259 on September 5. Up to April 13, she had laid 215 eggs, which is 10 more than her mother had laid up to the same corresponding date. During November, December and January, she laid an egg on 71 consecutive days.

Growing Flax For Seed

Canada Is Supplying Requirements Of British Flax Growers

During the past two years seed has been purchased in Canada for the requirements of Irish flax growers and, according to the Minister of Agriculture, further progress in establishing this market was made in 1926, some 1,300 bushels of seed having been shipped. Because of certain factors, the Irish climate, while suited to fibre production, is unsuited for seed production, and Irish authorities became interested in the possibility of Canada producing their seed. Initial efforts have been attended with gratifying results. What this stimulated interest in the production might eventually mean to Canada may be gathered from the fact that requirements run to 2,000,000 pounds of seed annually.

With this trade in view, experimentation was commenced in 1927 with a new variety of seed known as F. 6, developed by the Linen Research Institute of Northern Ireland. The flax fibre division of the Experimental Farms became interested in growing this as a fibre crop in those parts of the Dominion where climatic conditions had been proved favorable to the production of fibre of good quality and length. This stimulated interest in the production of flax fibre in Canada, and its cultivation is making some progress at the present time.

The chief domestic use of Canadian fibre flax, says the Brandon Sun, is as a "green tow" in the up-to-date hosiery industry. Some exports in this form are chiefly to the United States, Canada consuming in the first six months of the present fiscal year to 1,086 cwt. worth $4,431. Canada's fibre is used in a linen yarn and spinning mill in Ontario, and the Canadian linen industry could absorb a greatly increased supply. But in 1927 flax in the form of "green tow" was exported to Scotland for use in the linen industry by a new process, and this market is stated to be promising.

Canadian Wheat Grades Higher

Worth From Five To Ten Cents More Per Bushel Than Those Of United States Wheat

Before the Senate committee on agriculture at Washington, in connection with the farm relief hearings, H. J. Beasley, in charge of the grain division of the United States Department of Agriculture, said that in the world market Canadian wheat was worth from five to ten cents more than United States wheat of the same comparative grade. He said this was due to the premium placed on world buyers as to the excellence of Canadian wheat.

Mr. Beasley was asked many questions by the committee as to comparative prices on wheat between Minneapolis and Winnipeg and he finally summed the situation up by saying that the buyers in the world market put value of Canadian wheat five to ten cents higher.

Blue Bevo Grazing With Cattle On An Alberta Ranch

The Flat Rita Ranch in Alberta has an unusual visitor. Floating boldly, a fine mouse has come down out of the rocky habitation in the mountains, and has been grazing with the cattle It is being watched with interest by the manager of the ranch and appears to be on quite friendly terms with the cattle and mixes with them freely.

The herd take the stranger's coming as natural and do not interfere with it in any way. They have little fear, for they are prairie sea-goers of a kind, which once was his home.

Sweden's Forestry System

Could Be Copied With Profit By Other Countries

The people of Sweden have been celebrating the two-hundredth anniversary of the establishment of their present governmental system of forestry.

But solicitude for the trees is no matter of a mere century with the Swedes. As early as the year 1647 Sweden, by royal edict, was beginning to put restrictions upon the indiscriminate cutting down of trees.

In the year 1147 a royal letter commanded that for each felled oak or beech tree two other trees of the same kind should be planted.

A great meeting was held last summer at the Swedish College of Forestry, and experts from many countries, including several from the United States, were present to hear the Swedish foresters tell how forest crops may be harvested while the nation's forest resources continually improve. A general forest survey in Sweden showed that the reserves of timber are greater even than had been supposed, and by the forestry statistics, the annual growth now exceeding he annual cuttings.

A Good Smuggling Scheme

Silk Brought Into Britain As Decoration On Handkerchiefs

English customs officials are determined to stop the smuggling of silk into Britain. Recently a customs firm received a consignment of children's handkerchiefs. The handkerchiefs were described as cotton, but was the embroidered kitten in the corner of each. They were. The firm received a stern letter from the authorities warning them that they would be fined if the offence occurred again. An enterprising official had discovered that each cotton kitten was provided with four tiny silk whiskers.

Ships Tools In Oranges

Single Tree Produces From Two To Three Thousand Yearly

When you are enjoying your oranges do you ever think of the tools and penetrities of the garden fruit. We have all been familiar with the pipless kind, the blood, navy orange, the thick and tender one from Seville for marmalade purposes, and the Nitts Tangerine. But what of the Tools and Penetrities of the trees? And whence come our supplies? Some of them come from Spain, large quantities of oranges are sent from Africa, Florida and California. The leaves of the trees are evergreen, and do not change color or fall off in the autumn, as do the leaves of most trees. They are dark and shiny, and if we were to hold one against the light you would see it was covered with small transparent dots, similar to the rind. These are small cells containing oil, which is pressed out and used. The fruit of a large tree will yield a bunch of threads with golden seeds in the centre, and has a delightful scent, due to the wonderful yields of the fruit, when it is expected that a single tree produces to many as two thousand oranges in a season, and very often as many as three or four thousand, one need no longer be surprised at the huge trade that is carried on in oranges.

Better Production Rules

Increase In Saskatchewan Output Over March Of Last Year

Maintaining the high level of creamery butter production which has been one of the outstanding agricultural developments of recent years, Saskatchewan in March last, owns for March was 105 per cent higher than for the corresponding month of 1927, the figures being 827,217 pounds to 670,943.

Conditions in the dairy industry are encouraging, says Professor Fleming and F. E. Reed, dairy commissioner for Saskatchewan, in hopeful mood that 1928 will establish new high records. It cannot be expected, he states, that because increases of more than 100 per cent. have been reported in each of the last few months, the production for 1929 will be double that of 1928, but present indications lead to the belief that at least a 25 per cent. increase for the year will result.

Mr. Reed attributed the gratifying progress dairying has made recently in part to the elimination of unprofitable producers from the dairy herds of the province. This culling of the "star boarders," has been made possible by regular testing for milk and butterfat production and the keeping of herd records.

Buttermilk For Laying Hens

Eggs Produced At the Lowest Food Cost

Buttermilk for laying pullets was proved at the Brandon Experimental Farm to be superior to beef scrap or alfalfa leaves as a protein supplement. The pens under test were fed fifteen per cent. beef scrap in the dry mash, or buttermilk or drink, or alfalfa leaves provided in a self feeder. The tests were continued from late fall until the 11th of the following April. All of the birds received standard scratch grain mixture and dry mash. The results of two tests indicated the superiority of the buttermilk, as the pullets give on his feed as a supplement to the usual ration laid an average of 11.3 eggs more per bird than those fed beef scrap; 16.6 eggs more than those that received the alfalfa leaves; 17.3 eggs more than those that received no protein supplement to the usual ration. According to tables that appears in the report of the superintendent of the Brandon Farm, for 1928, eggs were produced at the lowest food cost when buttermilk was fed, followed by beef scrap, alfalfa leaves, and the check lot where no special protein feed was given.

The Red Cross In Review

Important Work Accomplished In Connection With Conventions

Looking down on the world's highways through the eyes of the trained Red Cross worker, there are sights and sounds that are distressingly in their poignant appeal to the heart.

From the wide's vista, now the eyes of the motorist's vision come the voices of men whose memories are stirred at the sight of the familiar badge of Red Cross visitors, bringing back as it does the scenes there."

Today, peaceful indeed is the Red Cross field of action for these modern men. The presenting of gifts of a loving and friendly public, who through the "Not Forgotten Fund" of a daily newspaper offer their tribute of gratitude for the sacrifices that no money can ever repay.

In the Edmonton Red Cross Hut, there, with its fine new floor laid by the convalescent soldiers themselves, and its comfortable roomy rocking chairs, may be seen a handsome new radio receiving set of modern make, the gift of the University Broadcasting Station C.K.U.A.

"Still another soldier" is the slogan of Red Cross even after ten years of peace, and there is and always will be much to be done among the burdens of those who bore the brunt in the hectic days of war.

From reviewing a soldier's needs in hospitals, the Red Cross passes on to those soldiers of the soil, who under the R.S.S. are living in the hinterlands of the west. Large families of small children seem the rule with these soldier settlers, and the homes of these heroic pioneers the Red Cross finds much important work to do.

Special protective care centres round the mother, for she it is who is giving the greatest gift and most needful to her country by adoption — the gift of a new life.

The "Mothercraft" with the attendant anxieties of childbirth, then comes the Red Cross, extending a helping hand to the British settler, and comforting and reassuring the young prospective mother in her hour of need.

Outposts stand ready for her reception, and for the care of sick and injured sons who face the challenge of life far from civilized centres.

One such northern hospital at Prince Conge, is 65 miles from the end of steel. It draws its patients from an area of 200 miles. An Alberta doctor on a health survey in that district expressed his surprise and delight at finding in that remote place a fine up-to-date modern hospital, with electric light, running water and baths. Records show that the district uses it hospital to the limit, the eighteen beds being filled to capacity almost all the year round. Never has the Red Cross flag waved more proudly than it does over this community where its emblem of human compassion presides over the dread of life and death in the hospital wards.

The above were one or two high lights of the Alberta Annual Red Cross Convention in the city of Edmonton when the Commissioner told what is being done for soldiers and settlers under the peacetime program of today

Area Of Land Under Crop In Western Canada Will Be Greatly Enlarged This Season

From the Dominion Bureau of Statistics comes a forecast of the acreage of land that has been prepared in the prairie provinces for the growing of crops in 1928. That report shows that approximately 1,180,000 more acres of land are now ready for seeding than had been prepared at this time last year. The report thus suggests that the work of the farmers in western Canada is further advanced than it was at the same date in 1928. The statement of the bureau of statistics adds the information that there has been an increase in new breaking in Manitoba and Alberta and may indicate, by this announcement, that the area of land under crop in the prairie region will be enlarged in 1929. Possibly, then the expansion of the wheat growing area in western Canada is to be continued this year. To those who look back over the history of progress in agriculture in this country that expansion will seem to have been accustomed to be looked for again and announced by 9,301,200 acres. In 1921 wheat lands accounted for 23,181,239 acres out of a total of about 37,000,000 acres used for the raising of crops. In 1923 a total of 21,223,645 acres was in wheat and in 1928 approximately 23,000,000 acres.

The expansion of the wheat-growing area in the prairie provinces, of course, has encouraged the rise in increase in population in that part of the dominion. Such settlement and wheat growing, too, has been stimulated by the development of the Marquis variety of hard spring wheat and, subsequently, of special other strains of wheat suitable for cultivation in the prairie region. The experiments of Dr. William Saunders and his sons, which resulted in the production of the Marquis wheat, were undertaken with the object of making available for farmers on the prairies a good variety of the grain that would mature more rapidly than varieties then in use. The success of these experiments, it has been said, very greatly enlarged the territory in the western half of the dominion with which wheat-growing was practicable. Improvements in farm machinery, the use of tractors to draw plows and binders and, of late, the introduction of combined reapers and threshers have all had their influence in leading farmers to extend the area of the wheat lands of the prairie. Last year those lands produced in Canada's largest wheat crop. While the quantity of that crop was satisfactory, the quality of it was disappointing. The lowering of the grade of the crop was due largely to a factor beyond the control of the farmers, namely, the severe frost in August. While that is so, there have been complaints that in some districts a proportion of unsuitable and even poor varieties of wheat had been sown and it has been reported that in the prairie provinces, as well as in some other provinces, there is a disposition to check the spread of noxious weeds. At any rate, discussion of the grading of the great crop of 1928 will emphasize the importance of attention to the quality as well as to the quantity of the wheat grown in Canada.—Mail and Empire.

Prairie Tourists To Have Sea Cruise

Permanently Canadian Tour Arranged By the Canadian National

"Low land and high land and outlaying the sea." This line of verse applies perfectly to the summer tour which will leave the Canadian National Railways' Station at Winnipeg on July 1. Beginning here, the tour which will be personally conducted, will cross the prairies, Saskatoon and Edmonton, will tarry in Jasper National Park, will strike north through Prince George to Prince Rupert, and will then drop down the coast, touching on the Pacific Ocean to Vancouver.

Many reservations have already been made to say nothing of inquiries, and there is evidence enough that this year's tour will be as popular as that of last year.

On the second day out, the travelers will spend the afternoon at Wainwright, and will have an opportunity of bathing in Little Manitou Lake, a mineral lake unique in the prairies. They will see Saskatoon and Edmonton and will visit the historic Wood Buffalo Park. After a day at Jasper, seeing the Lodge in the mountains, the glaciers, and generally riding the mountain passes, they will see the supreme Mount Robson, highest peak in the Canadian Rockies — Canada's wonders—and they will walk through the fascinating Indian village at Kamloops, with totems with totem poles. The trip from the northern port of Prince Rupert to Vancouver will be one long shadow of sea, will be a pleasure in itself, climaxed by a tour of Vancouver, and then the journey home over the attractive field for exploration and development companies.

Canada's Mining Industry

Western Airdrome

Must Compete With Men On Equal Terms In Applying For Pilot's Licenses

Where aviation is concerned, women will have to compete with men on equal terms. This is the decision laid down by the civil aeronautics board of the Department of National Defence, on receiving the first application for a commercial air pilot's certificate.

Women applying for commercial pilot's licenses, the board ruled, will be required to come up to the same requirements of physical strength and general fitness demanded from men before they can fly commercial machines.

The ruling was adopted by the Civil Aviation branch, officials said, out of regard for the safety of the flying public. It was explained that no great confidence would be instilled in passengers who, on reaching an altitude, were escorted into a plane to be flown by a small woman.

In the issuing of private pilot's licenses, a distinction is made between men and women. Women will be required to possess only seven-tenths of the physical strength of a man. A female pilot's license, it is said, will be regarded as normal.

Big Plant To Be Established At Saskatoon

Arrangements have been completed here for the establishment in Saskatoon of a $750,000 chemical fertilizer factory. It will manufacture chemical fertilizers sulphuric acid, weed killer, sprays and other heavy chemicals. One of the products will be superphosphate fertilizer and it is stated that for its manufacture phosphate rock will be secured from the Sask district in Alberta, and from the Sask district of Montana. A growing market for superphosphate in the Prairie Provinces is anticipated, and that it offers a ready market because of the value of this fertilizer in wheat growing.

Flour and Grist-Milling, in Canada's Second Most Important Manufacturing Industry

The value of production in Canada's flour and grist milling industry has been climbing steadily since 1923, the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics shows in a recent report on the industry for 1927. The amount of invested capital is also again on the up-grade, an increase of over $3,- 700,000 being shown.

The gross value of production for the year under review was $181,741,- 470 which compares with $180,360,- 761 in 1926; and $164,695,991 in 1925.

Flour and grist-milling is Canada's second most important manufacturing industry in point of gross value of production exceeded only by pulp and paper.

More Room At Jasper Lodge

Increased Accommodation Provided For Vacationists Seeking Rest

So great has been the demand for accommodation at Jasper Park Lodge, the Canadian National Railways' summer hotel in the Rocky Mountains, that increased accommodation has been found necessary in order to save for the summer guests desiring to visit Jasper National Park, which is Canada's largest mountain park and game sanctuary, it was stated today by A. S. McLeay, general superintendent of Canadian National hotels. To provide for the demand for further accommodation, eight new bulldings are now in course of erection, the contract for these having been awarded to H. G. MacDonald and Co., of Edmonton, who now have a gang of men at work.

Last year a separate house-keeping cabin for the use of parties desiring to visit Jasper Park accompanied by their families, and taking with them their own staff of servants, was erected, and this was found so popular that another house-keeping cabin, similar to the one, is being erected. In addition, there will this year be four new four-room cabins, each room having private bath and with two sitting-rooms in each cabin. There are also being erected for the 1929 season, three 10-room cabins, each room having private bath and each cabin having a sitting-room. The new cabins are to log and native boulder construction, in harmony with the other buildings which comprise Jasper Park Lodge, and their erection will give accommodation for 500 persons, by the opening of the Lodge on May 21st, next year. In 1927 more than 600 persons were turned away owing to insufficient space to provide for their accommodation at the Lodge. Even last year, despite increased space provided, the Lodge was unable to care for more than 200 applicants for rooms.

Have Revised Grade Standards For Barley

Two-Rowed and Six-Rowed Types Must Be Separated

Approval to new grade standards for barley is given by the committee on agriculture and colonization, of the House of Commons The new standards provide for the separation of the two-rowed types. It was pointed out that the increasing demand for Canadian barley for malting purposes rendered the changes necessary

Dr. L. H. Newman, of the cereal division of the department of agriculture, said that in the last few years the Canadian barley crop had doubled. The last crop year 26,- 000,000 bushels were exported The estimated crop this year was 114,- 000,000 bushels Of the total exports, sixty per cent. went to the United Kingdom and there was an increasing demand in Germany

Under present grade standards six-rowed and six-rowed barley were mixed. It was desirable that the new standards be so set that would keep the two types separate The maltster would then know exactly what he was buying for his particular purpose

Most Empire Colonies Are Not Profitable

But Those Belonging To Britain Are An Exception

With the exception of England's far flung Empire, and of the Dutch islands in the East Indies, colonies have so far failed to be as profitable as had been hoped. In 1913 only about one-half of 1 per cent. of Germany's imports came from her colonies. Of her exports, only seventeenths of 1 per cent. was taken by its colonies. Even the Belgian Congo in that year furnished Belgium only 1 per cent. of that nation's imports. It is doubtful, therefore, whether Germany today would derive much economic advantage from regaining her old colonies that they would be of little value to her as reservoirs for surplus population may be judged from the unwillingness of the Germans before the war to emigrate to the colonies.- New York Times

Farmer Brown Tells Why

Why He Is Opposed To Compulsory Health Unit System

That Canada's present system for safe guarding the health of her rural and small-town citizens is inadequate, and should be replaced by the "County Health Unit" system, is the contention of five outstanding public health authorities representing four provinces, who write in the current issue of the "Canadian Public Health Journal."

From Regina, Dr. F. C. Middleton, D.P.H., Acting Deputy Minister, Department of Health writes to abstarter the illusion hat the country is a healthier place than the city. He quotes very complete American statistics to prove that the rural death rate is higher than the death rate in big cities. The most plausible explanation he suggests, is that "there is a more effective, continuous and organized protection of health in cities than in rural districts." He characterizes the County Health Unit system as "the most single medium for the advancement of public health today" and adds that Saskatchewan through its initiative, has four of these full-time health districts in operation this year, and our objective is to have reached until there are at least 25 established.

Dr. Alphonse Lessard, Director, and Miss Emile Vedeau, Assistant Director of the Quebec Department of Health, write as follows:

"What is the 'County Health Unit' system upon which we are pinning in our Province of Quebec? It consists in the establishment, in a county or two under the control of a doctor, of what might be designated as a "Bureau of Health in Miniature," consisting of a full-time medical officer, two or more public health nurses, a sanitary inspector and a secretary. The population of the area of the county is thus submitted to constant supervision on the part of this staff.

In the 19 counties where health units have been in operation for a period of two or three years, the general death rate has been reduced, and especially the infant mortality rate and the death rate from contagious and infectious diseases, with also a marked reduction in the number of cases.

How one community saved a $6,000 hospital fee is told by H. E. Young, M.D., LL.D, Provincial Health Officer, British Columbia.

"In the year previous to the opening of our first medical unit, the district in which it was situated had paid $6,300.00 to the Isolation Hospital for cases that had been sent into it," he writes.

"The following year, 1926, under exactly the same local conditions but with a full-time medical health officer in charge with a staff of four nurses and a sanitary inspector, we were able to reduce the Isolation Hospital charge to less than $100.000. This was an argument that appealed directly to the voting of an annual grant of money for this purpose."

The part-time medical officer of health has been to a large extent a product of the system, fully 90 per cent. of Canadian municipalities have their health in the hands of part-time officers, he contends.

The County Health Unit is bound to come," he adds the question is to how soon.

Visiting Day at Crippled Children's Hosp'l

Visitors are always welcome at the Junior Red Cross Hospital in Edmonton during the official visiting hours in the afternoon, that they may see for themselves what manner of nursing are being wrought on the soft baby bodies of little ones who are unfortunately handicapped from birth.

The writer had the pleasure of escorting a party of country friends round the wards lately, and it was surely, of note that at every step of the way the sympathies and admiration of the visitors increased as they saw and heard and spoke to the children for whom their had been making special financial appeals in their home towns.

A visiting nurse welcomed the party and in a few evenings was robbed of her occupation, for the special guests being used as a precaution for safety and health. Turning to the little flowers wards a-bloom, she explained the various special supports and splints under which the tiny fingers were at work, or carefully managed cuddles of wisely others of the patients. Some were here and everywhere—with were the nurses, hospital attendants and—and are the children.

Special interest was shown by the country folk as they saw at one end a little Chinese girl with her mother, and together under the banner of Red Cross. Whose benefactions in health and relief to the needy and needless of care are endless. Flattened eyes here and there told their own story, one small Tiny Tim ever expressing the sentiment of the nature Vital Bless Everyone."

The Old Age Pensions Act will probably come into operation in Alberta in about a month according to a statement made on Thursday by Premier Brownlee. The Act, it has been decided by the Executive Council, will be placed under the jurisdiction of the Workmen's Compensation Board, and arrangements are being made for this board to administer the provisions of the new Act. Under the proposed plan it is expected that each province sharing in the benefits of the Dominion legislation to submit for supplementary and emergency legislation to the Dominion Government through Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labour. Final ratification and to draw up a formal agreement of operation. As soon as this step has been taken it is expected the Alberta Act will come into effect. CHAPTER XVIII.—Continued.

"Come in," she called.

Donald followed Wainwright, his heart-beats peculiarly accelerated. For an instant he could not distinguish objects in the dim interior. Then his eyes rested on Connie, sitting demurely in the corner. She wore a gingham dress of blue, with white collar and cuffs. A dark belt was fastened snugly at her slender waist. Tiny high-heeled shoes peeped from under the hem of her skirt. Her beautiful hair hung down her back in a huge braid that fastened at the nape of her slim, round neck with a narrow black bow. She rose and crossed the room to meet him, her high heels making her Miss Middy body appear much taller. There was something fragile about her beauty, none of the colour gone from her cheeks, and just a hint of shadows under her eyes.

Donald held out his hand. "Good evening, I'm glad to see that you are better," he said awkwardly.

A slender, white hand crept timidly into his, and his fingers closed on it gently as on a flower. He stared down at her, thrilled by her loveliness. She raised her eyes with their bewilderingly long lashes slowly to his face, With a sudden leaping of his heart, Donald realized that he was in love.

They talked desultorily while Connie sat timidly on the edge of the uncomfortable chair. She could not feet at ease in the high, narrow abode and the enveloping silence. And so she essayed to cross the rough floor with an assumed air of ease, her ankle turned and she would have fallen had not Donald caught her in his arms.

As he raised her to her feet she blushed furiously, and he fancied he could feel the warm beating of her heart. With a stammered apology, she slipped from him, crossed to the table and lighted a candle And presently he took his leave. Wainwright walking with him down the darkening trail.

Wainwright was in one of his brooding moods. For a few minutes he was silent. As they neared the bluff he spoke.

"After witnessing my daughter's distress the morning of the race I am afraid that you feel hardly toward me for allowing her to be placed in such a humiliating position. You have been exceedingly kind to me; therefore, I feel that I should relate the circumstances which have placed me in my present position. As I told you that day, I have allowed my pride to withhold from my daughter her inherited rights. I will be as brief as possible.

"My father, who took great pride in the family name, planned a political career for me even from the day of my birth. By natural taste and temperament I was quite unfitted for public life. I must have been a great trial to him, as from early boyhood I evinced a great love for the study of botany and ornithology. He would go into a red rage when he found me in the garden studying flowers under a microscope or stalking birds in his shrubbery.

"At college I was not a success. Sober sociality or in any class, always of a retiring nature, I did not enter social life or college sports, and the course of study set for me by my father bored me extremely.

"During my third year at college I met Connie's mother. At that time no woman had entered my life, although my father had hinted his plans for my marriage as soon as I had finished my course.

"To me any flower shop, however small acted as a magnet. One day I stood gazing in the window of a tiny florist's shop on the Strand. A girl was kneeling among the flowers, and as she lifted her head our eyes met. She was like a golden lily. Her hair was like Connie's hair, and the blue of her eyes was the blue of the pansies she held in her hand. And her names was Constance."

He paused for an instant.

"Her father, who had been a rector in a small parish in the south of England, died just previous to our meeting, leaving his motherless child without kith or kin. Lest I weary you I may say briefly that we were married. My father would not even grant me an interview, but wrote to me saying that marrying as I had done I was no longer a son of his. My father's income was not large, but was sufficient for the English country life we planned to live. Connie was born, and for a few years we were happy. Then my father died, and I found myself the possessor of a large income and the owner of a fine old English country house. Connie's mother, who had been a recluse

F. J. Richardson Takes Over Law Business of Late A. W. Ebbett

F. J. Richardson, one of our local lawyers, has taken over the law business of the late A. W. Ebbett, K. C. He intends moving everything over to his own office in Dr. Bell's building where he will continue to practice.

Mr. Richardson was a close personal friend and associate of the late Mr. Ebbett and it seems desirable that he should carry on the business rather than a stranger. He has been practicing in Vermilion now for about six years and has built up a fine practice. He has also thoroughly identified himself as a booster for the town. The Standard feels that the progressive spirit exhibited by Mr. Richardson in taking this step shows confidence in the future of Vermilion and district and we wish him every success.

Power House Chimney Is Being Heightened

The hitherto short brick chimney of the Vermilion power house is being added to, this being made absolutely necessary on the installation of the new plant, but had to be held over from last fall for favorable weather The brickwork is being rapidly carried on by Harry Marfleet.

"Its big car Luxury attracted me"

NOT that its luxury is its chief Big-car attraction. Beauty and performance compete for that distinction. But such luxury as Pontiac Big Six provides is an unusual in any save the higher priced cars that Pontiac is becoming the favorite with lady drivers.

And "luxury" means more than the fervicing interior of Bodies by Fisher. It includes the effortless steering . . . the cure-dispelling mastery of highway and hill . . . the cushioning comfort of Lovejoy Shock Absorbers.

Experience in Big Six luxury, at the driver's seat . . . on the road.

PLANTING TREES

(Experimental Farms Note)

"Arbor Day" was born in the prairie part of Eastern Nebraska. Our great empty plains have great opportunity to profit from being the day for the purpose for which it is annually proclaimed a provincial holiday. In reality it is not a holiday, but a day set aside for specialized labor on the part of every citizen,—the planting and care of trees.

Experience at the Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, Manitoba, shows that each season some improvements may be introduced in Arbor Day activities. In digging trees, three persons with sharp spades or shovels may work together to advantage. After cutting the roots at a foot or more radius from the tree and removing a trench of soil, then the three spades driven deeply down and inwards, the young tree or shrub may usually be neatly and efficiently lifted by working in unison in three pryings "One, two, three." This pinches off the top root and raises the specimen with but small ripping of roots and bark.

Trees set in the open places, where the air movements have free play tend to be blown toward the east by the prevailing winds. "As the twig is bent the tree is inclined," and good practice is to set the specimen poplar from ten to twenty degrees into the west, or if it be an apple tree or Mountain Ash, it may be slanted to the southwest so that protection from sunscald of the trunk be increased.

Transient evergreens may well be given temporary shelter by shading him with an old sack or piece of burlap, supported by stakes on the south west side of the specimen for three or four weeks.

Evergreens are expensive, and carry their foliage during this major operation which, in their instance, is performed without the advantage of nature's winter sleep of full dormancy and this extra consideration of temporary shade is a wise and profitable expenditure of labour Each season many costly specimens are needlessly lost because no shade is given during the interim before their roots begin again to function freely and establish the plant in its new home.

All trees should be planted before new leaf growth commences. If our transplants a larch tree when green leaves are showing, the only results will be disappointment and personal exercise. This latter comes in two phases—the planting and later removing the corpse.

New side growth is induced by pruning: It is provident to clip back with cleansmooth cuts all long roots Strongest roots should be placed into the wind, the direction of prevailing winds, where they will serve as anchors

Distinguished Officer Visits Vermilion

A distinguished visitor to Vermilion during the past week was Lieut-Col. Ormond Mc. Price, General Ormond commanding Military District No. 13 with headquarters at Calgary. He had a brilliant record as an officer in the G — War having received the 20th Battalion in France as well as commanding three other battalions in the Canadian Corps. He was also in charge of the Canadian Corps Reinforcing Camp at Etaples in France.

The object of the General's visit to Vermilion was to see the possibilities of organizing a unit of the Canadian Officers Training Corps. Sergt-Major Bissett, Active Militia, also visited with Lieut-Col. Price. Lieut-Col. Price was accompanied by Sister C. Dawson and Mrs. Bissett.

The following officers were elected to guide the club through the season: President Fenton Sharp, Vice President Mrs H Clarke, Secretary-Treasurer Ashley H. Cooper, Executive—Messrs T Watts, H Winders, Victor Cunningham, Father O'Sullivan

The fees for the club were set at $5 a couple, single tickets for ladies and gentlemen $3.00, one of the latter to be given to each lady member. A special fee of $1.50 was set for students in order to encourage them to take up tennis, with a six o'clock and Wednesday afternoon reduction on their play provided there are other players waiting

Tickets may be obtained from the secretary or any member of the executive while several members of the club are also canvassing. Any prospective players should get into touch with the executive as soon as possible, in order to let them know how many players will have to be provided for

Settlers Arriving In Large Numbers

Eight families consisting of 41 individuals arrived at the Clandonald settlement on Friday morning, and have taken over some of the Semis erected farm houses in the district.

In connection with the Clandonald settlement the Canadian Pacific Railway has arranged for a special car to be placed on all trains from Wilkie to the settlement to take care of the immigrants arriving.

Canada's Opportunity and Responsibility

It has been said times without number that Canada occupies a paramount and responsible position as interpreter of Great Britain to the United States, and of the United States to Great Britain. Such views have been expressed, not so frequently by Canadians themselves as by leading men in Great Britain and the United States.

Within the past few years the opinion has been expressed by leading citizens of the Empire and of China, Japan, and other oriental lands, that Canada, because of its geographical position and its rapidly expanding trade across the Pacific, likewise occupies a strong position as interpreter of the Orient to the rest of the Empire. Canada is popular in China and Japan as compared with the United States and European countries.

In the comma of the League of Nations this Dominion also stands high, and deservedly so. It is recognized by other countries, and more particularly the smaller nations, that Canada has no selfish purpose to serve through its membership in the League; that, on the contrary, the Canadian attitude is one of disinterestedness based wholly in a desire to render service to mankind. The Canadian position in the League has always been for peace, conciliation, recognition of the rights of others, and, especially, not merely fair treatment but open generosity and sympathy for minorities

Because of this unselfish attitude Canadians are welcome in all lands, and the high opinion entertained for this country is proving a real asset to the business and commercial interests of the Dominion in the opening and development of foreign markets for Canadian products.

Now one of the most influential men in India, Sir Rabindranath Tagore, the world renowned poet, outlines to Canada a duty which rests upon this young Dominion, not only to itself, or to a group of nations, but to wide world. Sir Rabindranath was a distinguished guest and speaker at the recent Conference of the National Council of Education held at Vancouver, and in his farewell message to Canada he gave expression to views which Canadians everywhere may well read, ponder over, and to which they should give heed.

"Canada," he said, "is too young to fall a victim to the malady of disillusionment and scepticism, and she must believe in the great ideals in the face of contradiction—for she has the great gift of youth; she has the direct consciousness of the stir of growth within her which should make her trust herself, which is the only sure way of trusting the world."

How true this last sentence! A man or a nation which does not trust himself or itself, but lives in an atmosphere of fear and suspicion, can never trust others.

Continuing, this great Indian savant said: "Let Canada feel the sacred dawn of her life, that the expectation of human destiny is upon her as upon other countries which have just entered into the cycle of their promise. Canada will have to solve for the salvation of man the most difficult of all problems, the race problem, which has become insistent with the close contact of communities that had their isolation for centuries in their geographical and cultural exclusiveness Canada will have to reconcile the efficiency of the machine with the creative genius of man which must build its paradise of self-expression, reconcile science with religion, individual right with the social obligation that it must acknowledge. She must dream of the introduction of love even in politics, which is the only interest of the nation, knowing that such interest can only have its sure foundation in international friendships. She must ever hope to be able to win the heart of the world by offering the best that she produces."

Although has actual knowledge of this country was limited, Sir Rabindranath said Canada possessed powers of character and material resources that would enable her to come out in due course "from the fatigue that exhilarations suffer from in the shape of cynicism."

This is an inspiring vision of Canada's place in the world. It is one that calls for the best that every citizen, regardless of his race or creed, can contribute. And it is because the Canadian people of tomorrow will be a development of the cosmopolitan population of today that the Canada of the future will find within itself the ability, the sympathy, the international viewpoint which will make possible a real contribution to the future of mankind and the ultimate and lasting peace of the world, for, until the race problem is solved there can be no peace in any country, or in the world at large.

Lend Household Treasures

Royal Family Very Generous With Things For Exhibition

An instance of the true democracy of our Royal Family is surely to be found in the way in which their household treasures are nowadays kept freely for exhibition to the public. After the Lansdowne House collection of domestic art treasures comes the Loan Exhibition of old English plate at 25 Park Lane for Philip Sassoon's London home to which the Queen, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York have all lent household silver which members of the public would never otherwise have been privileged to see.

Ontario Man Inherits Title

Will Go To France To Take Possession Of Property

Count Richard de Manoir de Juaaye has lived for 25 years in one-half of a frame house in the village of Westmeath, near Pembroke, Ontario. All that time he has known he was next in line to the family estates and titles, together with the fine old Norman chateau. The property which has now fallen to the Count on his succession to the family title is situated near Bayeux and it is his intention to leave Westmeath for France and his ancestral home together with the Countess and their son and heir.

The Count, who acted as house painter and general handy man in the unpretentious village of Westmeath, was known as Richard De Manoir. This is the second European title to be inherited by a Canadian within the past few weeks, the other case being that of the Earl of Egmont former rancher of Priddis, Alta.

FEELING TIRED AND DEPRESSED

Then Try the Treatment With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

It is good to be tired after hard work or play, but tired feeling that banish that kind of a tired feeling. Get to be tired all the time, unable to feel strong and vigorous, to be breathless at the slightest exertion, denotes a condition of ill health that must be corrected or worse results will follow. Such a condition the doctors term anaemia, and the best blood of relief in this condition nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which enrich and purify the blood, bringing new health and strength to many of you who have found new health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Hooton, R.R. 4, Elgin, Ont., who says:—"For a long time I was greatly disturbed with pains in my back and felt tired and depressed most of the time. My blood seemed to be in a bad condition, so much so, that I got partly and severely ill like eating. I tried a doctor, but his treatment did not help. Then one day I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, describing a case much like my own and I decided to try this remedy. I used the pills for about two months, and the result was wonderful. I gained fifteen pounds in weight and felt like a new man. I know of nothing that will build up the system like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have since recommended them to many of my friends."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or direct by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box. Write today for a copy of the free booklet, "Building Up the Blood."

Explore Arctic For Minerals

Sergeant Clay, Superannuated Mountie, Joins Private Party

Sergeant Clay, for 25 years of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, left Toronto recently en route to the Arctic Circle. He is superannuated from the force having served 22½ years, and is going back to the Arctic regions not with the Mounties but with private exploration interests. For several years he was in charge of the farthest north outpost of the R.C.M.P. On his first northern trip he started for Edmonton with dog teams and canoes as his only means of transport. This time aeroplane and motor sledges will be used.

The object of the expedition is to explore for minerals in the territories around Chesterfield Inlet, according to Clay, to the wealthiest in the world. They are carrying a complete picture outfit with them. For the past three years Clay has been a successful fruit-grower at Grimsby.

Ship Muskrats To North China

Eight thousand live muskrats are to be shipped from the Swan Lake Fur Farm, Quesnel, B.C., this summer. It is stated by officials of the company. Three thousand are to go to North China and smaller numbers to England, Scotland, and other countries on the continent. The Swan Company estimates that it has a total of 50,000 rats on its farm.

Ready-Made Medicine.—You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles it is invaluable; for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains it is unequalled; while for cuts, sores and the like it is an unquestionable healer. It needs no testimonial other than its use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

Growth Of Tree-Planting

Eight Million Young Trees Planted Annually In the West

In connection with the distribution of trees to prairie farmers in Canada which is made annually by the Tree Planting Division of the Forest Service, Department of the Interior, it is interesting to note that each spring nearly 4,000,000 young trees are sent out; shipment of these trees require 2½ carloads of moss and nearly 10 miles of 45-inch burlap. Before many years are gone, the "treeless prairie" will be a thing of the past.

Garnet Wheat Trial Shipment

Between 4,000 and 5,000 bushels of wheat has been shipped overseas, for trial in flour-making, under joint arrangements of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and the Canadian Wheat Pool. The future of this type of wheat will largely depend upon whether this present lot meets with favor among the millers of Great Britain and Germany.

An Oil Of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the healing qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and still wins favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to supply the need.

"Talking Postcards" will in future, make it possible to dispense with ordinary printed greeting cards at Christmas and on birthdays. The latest novelty is a very small gramophone record printed on a picture postcard. It is about three inches in diameter and looks like a thin brown filament, but is shaped and marked like an ordinary record. It can be sent by post for a penny and on arrival at its destination it will deliver its' messages of greeting by being played on a ordinary gramophone. Messrs. Raphael Tuck, the post card publishers, confidently expect their gramophone post cards to be the novelty of the year. They will be put on the market shortly at threepence each and there is to be a great variety of them. At present, there are ordinary songs like "Annie Laurie" and "Auld Lang Syne," special holiday numbers and a romantic declaration of never changing love. Large records, also, are stamped on calendars, and there is no reason why the Jamuline has of this invention in many different ways.

Travellers aboard the Canadian Pacific Railway's crack summer liner, the Prince Canada Limited, will be surprised this year to find colourful upholstery, green tiled bathrooms, settee, a glassed-in observatory and other unusual features. Special sleeping, dining, and lounge-solarium cars have been designed and built at the company's Montreal Angus shops for this line's transcontinental train, which will be one of the fastest and finest land distance trains in the world.

Construction of the 15-storey Marine Building on the waterfront of Burrard Inlet, Vancouver, has begun. When completed there will be a 20-storey building west of Toronto, where the greatest Belfast, the new Royal York Hotel, of the C. P. R., is 18 storeys in height.

A monument to one of the builders of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Sir William Van Horne, first general manager and later president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is to be erected in the selection of Vancouver as the western terminus for the transcontinental line, a decision that resulted in the rapid and prosperity of Canada's seaward interest; and the citizens of the city propose to commemorate him fortnight.

Every year the Canadian Pacific spends about $1,000,000 in advertising its services and Canada's industrial and tourist attractions throughout the world

In view of the present prosperity of Canada and of the Canadian Pacific, it is amusing to recall the item published in London Truth over forty-five years ago. "The Canadian Pacific Railway," it runs, "has begun business. Its board is at this railway, if it be ever finished, will run through a country fruet-bound for seven or eight months of the year, and will connect with the eastern part of the Dominion a province which can even about the bordering country as any on the face of the earth. British Columbia is very fine, and mountain country that is not worth keeping. It would seem to be inhabited at all unless by trappers of the Hudson Bay Company had 'gold fever' not taken a party of adventurers there. Fifty railroads would not galvanize it into prosperity. The mountain blizzards entombment will not hold out many years. The people who have gone there cannot stand it. Redskins of the western. Men and cattle are frozen to death in numbers but would astonish the bleeding settler if he knows and who are not killed outright are often maimed for life by frostbite."

Considerable Sweet Clover Being Sown This Spring

Apparently there will be a large acreage of Sweet Clover sown in Alberta this spring, and looking at the matter from the standpoint of agricultural lines, this is a splendid sign. Sweet Clover means food and food means stock. It means another thing that is just as important and that is a beneficial effect that the growing of this crop will have upon the soil. Such leguminous crops as sweet clover add humus and fertility, both of which are very essential to the permanence of our agriculture. As an introduction of the new acreage that will be sown the Bacteriological department of the Provincial School of Agriculture, Vermilion, report that they have sent out over 1200 bottles of legume culture this spring already. This is sufficient to seed 1200 bushels of seed, or seed sufficient for nearly 6000 acres. Last year over 3500 bottles were sent out to farmers, and shipments to date are ahead of those of a year ago. The culture sells at 25c per bottle which gives a low cost for this very beneficial crop of approximately 15c per acre. With the thousands of acres already treated with Nitro Culture, this is already one of the main feed and pasture crops grown in Alberta.

Movement Of 2,500 People From Britain Under New Arrangement

Referring to the cabled despatch from London, reporting the completion of arrangements between the Overseas settlement office and the Canadian railways for a movement of 2,500 Britishers, the Department of Immigration explained the situation in a statement recently issued. The arrangement referred to was made between the Overseas Settlement Department of the British Government and the Canadian Department of Immigration and the official announcement concerning it was made three weeks ago.

The plan is that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and the Canadian National Railways have each guaranteed to place 1,000 single Englishmen in farm employment and the Hudson's Bay Company has undertaken a similar obligation for 500. The selection of men who will come under this arrangement lies entirely in the hands of the Canadian Department of Immigration and no man who is not now employed will be included if his unemployment is due to any fault of his own.

Included in the 2,500 will be experienced farm workers and others with agricultural experience. The type of these will be drawn from areas affected by unemployment in the farming industry, but the men will not all be unemployed. Canadian immigration officials have been warned against the inclusion of harvesters who came to Canada last autumn, made no real effort to work and had to be helped home. The same warning is made applicable against all others of a similar type.

Interest Is Proprietary

Prince Of Wales Is At Home When In Canada

The Prince of Wales has expressed the hope that he can visit Canada again before long, though it is added that he will not be able to come this year. The King's convalescence no doubt precludes any personal absence of the heir apparent upon whom now devolve many functions usually performed by the King personally. When the Prince does find the time, he will be welcomed by every class of the population in all parts of the Dominion. For Canadians everywhere feel that he belongs to them as much as to the heart of the Empire. They have a proprietary interest in His Royal Highness.

And the Prince in turn has a proprietary interest in this part of the Empire. In addition to being its future King, he boasts a share of his own to come to when he arrives. — Ottawa Journal

Spring's Sweetness

Sap Now Running In the Maple Trees In Eastern Canada

With the approach of Spring in Eastern Canada, the sap is running in the maple trees. Last year the output of maple sugar and maple syrup produced in Canada was valued at $5,584,568. Of this total 3,982,000 pounds of maple sugar was valued at $2,389,664, and 1,686,583 gallons of maple syrup at $3,194,902. The province of Quebec is the chief source of supply with Ontario the next largest producer. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick account for comparatively small quantities of each product.

There has been a great improvement in recent years in the process of sugar making. The replacing of the pung, the bucket and the old sugar kettle by the modern covered pails and rapid working evaporators, has raised the quality both of the syrup and sugar.

When the sap is in the maples, then is the time to some parts of Eastern Ontario for sugaring parties. These are usually largely attended by young people of both sexes and are the scenes of much wholesome gaiety and fun.

Artificial Incubation

Eggs Must Receive Great Care In Order To Secure Successful Hatch

Whether one is using the broody hen or the incubator it is a matter of first importance that the eggs be produced by good healthy breeding stock. The save the eggs receive has also much to do with the success of the hatch. Mr. P. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman, in Circular No. 71, entitled "Artificial Incubation," points out that the fresher the egg the better the chance of a good hatch. Allowing broody hens to sit on the eggs before they are gathered is a matter of great importance, nor should the eggs be allowed to become chilled. If the eggs are to be kept several days before incubation, it is recommended that they be kept in a covered container and not in an open basket which allows too much evaporation. For best results the eggs should be kept in a fairly even temperature of from fifty to sixty degrees.

It is important to select only normal eggs for setting. Eggs that are extra long, unusually short, abnormal, or thin in the shell as well as those that are double yolked should be used for other purposes than hatching. Rough handling is also a cause of disappointment particularly at the beginning of the incubating period when parts may kill many germs in the eggs. The circular issued by the Department of Agriculture, recommends the use of a well ventilated cellar with a fairly even temperature for the location of the incubator. Fresh air is necessary, it is pointed out, but in admitting it drafts should be carefully avoided. Turning and handling with an ordinary egg size farm flock a 125-egg capacity machine is recommended because it is more convenient than a larger machine to handle.

Letter Rate Is Increased

Effective On And After April 1st Next

Ottawa, March 27.—Postmaster-General Veniot announced in the House of Commons today that the rate of postage on letters would be increased from two cents to three cents per ounce, effective on and after April 1st next. The rate on drop letters will remain unchanged at two cents per ounce.

Mr. Veniot explained that the increase was necessary in order to meet the increased cost of handling mail matter. The rate on letters to the United States and Great Britain will remain unchanged at two cents per ounce.

Heavy Tourist Traffic

In 1928 all records for tourist travel in Canada were broken. Figures compiled by the Department of National Revenue, from returns made by ports and outports throughout the Dominion, show that 2,004,787 foreign automobiles entered Canada for a period not exceeding 24 hours, 1,045,545 entered for a period not exceeding 60 days; 1,173 entered for a period exceeding 60 days and more than six months. During the year 819,871 Canadian automobiles were exported for touring purposes.

Canada's National Parks

New Points Of Scenic Beauty Being Opened To Visitors

In Canada's 11,000 square miles of national parks steady progress is being made in opening new and outstanding points of scenic beauty to the motorist and the tourist. Engineering and construction work carried on during 1928 by the national parks branch of the Department of the Interior, as we learn from its annual report, greatly increased the facilities for the comfort and enjoyment of visitors, and preparation for the coming season's tourist flow on the trails throughout the Dominion there still remain visible evidences of our standing points of scenic beauty to be served; but there are scenes of other and often important actions and events which will long remain a vivid and special reminder of what transpired at these points. The Department of Public Works has been carrying on a valuable work in preserving and restoring the ruins and suitably marking the sites of national historic importance.

MAKE EPIC TREK

Arthur W. North, of the Explorer Club, New York, and his seven-year-old son, Robert, photographed outside the Canadian Northern Railway station at Winnipeg, on their return to civilization after a marvelous tramp of eight hundred miles from Hudson, Ontario, through the winter wilderness of Northern Ontario and Manitoba. Studying the primitive Indian tribes in a country that has seldom been visited by white man, the explorers spent more than two months in the open and accomplished a feat that has never been equalled. From the Canadian National line at Hudson they struck out by way of Lac Seul, Wunnan Lake and half a dozen other lakes and streams to the Nelson River Fur Factory on Hudson Bay. Turning homeward, they reached the start of the Hudson Bay Railway at Amery, and went into The Pas by a work train. Young Robert, who is the author of two books on exploring, will publish the results of this trip within a few months. He is seen wearing a fringed caribou coat made by the Eskimos at York Factory.

Alberta Sheep

Provincial Forest Reserves Used For Summer Sheep Pasture

Farmers who raise sheep on the irrigated lands in Alberta have no difficulty in securing an abundance of winter forage, but it has not been so easy to find adequate pasturage for the summer months. Suitable sheep pasture and an adequate supply of water are scarce in most districts in the foothills of the Rockies. This area, however, is too far away for trailing the sheep from the Lethbridge district, but from a number of years' experience the Lethbridge Experimental Station has found it profitable to ship sheep by rail to and from the summer range. The results of eight years' work have enabled the plan to be both practical and profitable. The superintendent of the Lethbridge Station, in his report for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, states that during the fall and winter months the sheep are pastured on suitable fields or fed at the station. During the summer months from June 1st to frost Segrave's record at Daytona Beach, Fla., skidded at 202 miles an hour and crashed into him while he was operating his camera.

The Cold Frame

Plant Growers Greatly Advanced By Use Of Cold Frame In Early Spring

Gardeners who grow annual flowers and lettuce can advance their plants by using a cold frame for the last month before the time for the construction of a hotbed, but with a mark of glass for a cover. A cold frame is of very simple construction. Select four boards nailed together of the dimensions of the sash to be used (three inches wide). Set the back board higher at the back than at the front in order that the top may have a slope towards the earth to receive the sun and to shed rain. The construction and handling of a cold frame are fully explained in Circular 104, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, and issued by the Publications Branch. When the frost is out of the ground but the soil is still too cold and wet to plant, the frame may be set on the soil which should be well worked with a fork or spade. The frame should be well banked on the outside and the glass sash put on and left in that condition for several days in order that the sun may warm up the soil. Cotton at this time is frosted and sometimes dusted of the glass for the cover and with fairly satisfactory results until the middle of March, so that they were sufficiently developed to be ready to take the plants and soil to chill during the night. The need of annuals, or flowering plants, for the coming October, 1927, the flock showed a gross profit of $4,169.

Canada's Historic Sites

Visible Evidences Of Our History Shown In Book

Canada's historical background contains some of the most romantic and interesting episodes in the history of the Dominion. In many districts throughout the Dominion there still remain visible evidences of our standing points of scenic beauty to be served; but there are scenes of other and often important actions and events which will long remain a vivid and special reminder of what transpired at these points. The Department of Public Works has been carrying on a valuable work in preserving and restoring the ruins and suitably marking the sites of national historic importance.

CONFERENCE ON REPARATIONS ENDS IN FAILURE

Paris. — The second reparations committee has failed in its purpose to re-define German reparations for the damage of the Great War.

The conference, which for ten weeks has been engaged in an effort to set a figure mutually acceptable to the allied nations sent to the German republic seemed definitely wrecked.

A sub-committee was appointed to prepare a report to the several governments stating the "why" of the failure. This sub-committee, conceivably, may furnish a loophole through which revival of the conference could be sought but general opinion did not anticipate such a development.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German delegation, made continuation of the conference impossible when he stated definately that payment of even one-half the total sums demanded must be conditional on abolition of the Danzig corridor, revision of the frontier of upper Silesia and immediate return of the Saar Valley coal mines.

A sub-committee, headed by Lord Revelstoke, had met to endeavor to bring about the "agreement" which the Germans and the allies on the first ten or fifteen annuities.

Discussion over past years formed the first annuity. Dr. Schacht declared that Germany would never under any circumstances pay annuities more than 1,610,000,000 marks (approximately $396,000,000), and for no longer than 37 years. Should Germanbe these payments, he concluded, only if the allies made it possible for her to transfer that sum of money by giving her access to raw materials and other resources of which she was now deprived.

One of the allied experts immediately remarked that "Dr. Schacht speaks the words of the Treaty of Versailles, which was certainly not comprised in our terms of reference."

The chief of the German delegation was then told plainly that his attitude led finally toward breaking up the conference, with the result that reparations payments would revert to the Dawes plan under which Germany must pay 2,500,000,000 marks annually (approximately $625,000,000) instead of 1,500,000,000 marks (approximately $450,000,000) demanded by the allies for the first annuities.

"I understand," replied Dr. Schacht, "but it will be impossible for Germany to execute the Dawes plan and she will consequently demand that the clause giving protection against ruinous transfers comes into play."

The allied and American experts now are unanimous in agreeing that there is no further hope of coming to terms with the Germans.

Snubbed By Chicago Mayor

Thompson Sent "Collect" Cable To Young Australian League

Chicago, Ill.—Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson's political enemies were making the most of the official snub the cowboy mayor has extended to 100 members of the Young Australian League who plan to visit Chicago, April 23.

The youthful British subjects cabled Mayor Thompson that they were coming. Instead of extending them a welcome, Thompson sent them a "collect" cable saying that Chicago had many interesting sights. It cost the Australians $35 to learn that the Mayor, famous as a detector of King George V., was not enthusiastic about their visit.

Undeterred upon the slight affectorially, the British American, published in Chicago, said: "We can scarcely believe Big Bill would be guilty of such stupidity."

The Australian delegates will be welcomed by representatives of commerce, Rotary, and the English Speaking Union.

The Planting Of Ornamental Trees

Should Be Carried Out Under Skilled Supervision

The renewed impetus that has been given to the planting of shade and ornamental trees through the interest taken by horticultural societies, gives hope that country districts will gradually be made more beautiful. While perhaps the chief aim in getting trees planted is to stir up interest in a locality, it is important that when planting is actually undertaken that it be done carefully. Bulletin No. 89 of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, not only names and describes hundreds of varieties of ornamental trees, shrubs and climbers, but it gives very explicit instructions on setting out the plants. They should be dug as carefully as possible so as to retain a large proportion of the root. It is very important that the roots be protected from drying out, to a very slight extent, because the smallest fibrous roots are the ones that have most to depend on for the field nourishment that it must have to become established. The roots may be protected from drying out by covering them with wet moss or wet matting. It is almost fatal to a tree to crowd it roughly into a hole that does not admit of proper spreading in a natural position. Good soil should be put at the bottom of the hole and the plant set in so that it is slightly deeper than it stood in the woods or nursery row. It is important to have the soil firm in the bottom of the soil well and afterwards to pour in pails of water which will settle the soil around the roots. If manure is to be applied it had better be put on the top where the rains will dissolve it and carry it to the feeding roots. As trees cannot be transplanted without the loss of some of the roots it is necessary to remove some of the top so as not to overload the roots that remain in supplying moisture to the tree. The usual practice of cutting off the tops may be safely followed with fruit trees but with others unless one wishes a low-headed tree it is better to take off some of the limbs throughout the top close to the main stem, in this way preserving the natural form of the tree. If the trees are in a position exposed to heavy winds, or if they are of considerable size when planted, they should be staked and secured to prevent them rocking in the wind and loosening the roots.

Imitation Leather

Composition Leather Used In the Making Of Shoe Uppers

The use of what is known as composition leather in the making of soles of American shoes indicated increase of nearly 15 per cent. last year. There was a corresponding reduction in the use of hides. Composition soles may mean something from tissue paper to pressed leather scraps. In some cases the sole may equal that of real leather, but there is always an inferiority. This, however, the purchaser may never know. The shoe may stand up nobly and answer every need. But it is evident that the shoe manufacturers of the nation are using fewer hides, although they are at the peak of shoe production.—Los Angeles Times.

DEATH OF SIR CLIFFORD SIFTON, NOTED CANADIAN

New York.—Sir Clifford Sifton, K.C.M.G., K.C., prominent in Canadian public life for many years, died in New York while sitting in a chair talking with his son, Harry. According to his son, Sir Clifford left his winter residence at Daytona Beach, Fla., last Saturday, and was on the way to his home in Toronto when death overtook him.

Although Sir Clifford had been troubled with heart weakness for about two years, his health was fairly good until last fall and he was quite sick when he left Toronto in November to go to Florida for the winter.

Sir Clifford Sifton, K.C.M.G., K.C., of Toronto, Privy Councillor, former Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, was a member of the Canadian Pacific attained a record last year.

Attorney-General in Ontario, in 1841, he came to Manitoba when a youth with his father, the late Hon. W. J. Sifton, locating at Brandon.

A barrister at the age of twenty-one, Clifford Sifton became a member of the Manitoba legislature in 1886, and entered the Greenway government as Provincial Secretary. In 1889, being only twenty-nine years of age. From that time onward he played a conspicuous part in the development of the West.

Sir Clifford was called by Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the Federal cabinet on January 27, 1896, as Minister of the Interior and Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs. As Minister of the Interior he carried out a vigorous immigration policy, which added largely to the population of the Dominion. In the eight years of his ministry he was specially charged with matters relating to the Northwest Territories (now Saskatchewan and Alberta), and Yukon Territory, and introduced several outlying Acts relative of the Dominion. The Acts introduced and carried through legislation at Ottawa giving responsible government to the Northwest Territories in 1898.

On account of a difference of opinion with the Premier Sir Wilfrid Laurier, over educational clauses of the Northwest Territory Autonomy Bill, Sir Clifford resigned from the Government, February 27, 1905. He continued to be a member of the House of Commons until the General Election of 1911, when he withdrew and did not present himself for re-election, representing the Dominion Parliament from 1896 until 1911, his first year in the Ontario Legislature being by acclamation, following upon his call to the ministry at Ottawa.

Committee To Go Into Matter Of Salaries Of Technical Members Of Civil Service

Ottawa.—The three men selected to investigate the salaries of technical and professional members of the civic service are: E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway; Sir George Carmens, of Quebec City, and Dr. Murray, of the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon. This was announced by Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister in the House of Commons.

"It has been represented," Mr. Robb said, "that the remuneration provided in the government services is no longer attractive to persons of superior technical or professional training.

"The report made last year by the civil service commission recommended a graduated flat increase of from $2700 to $4200 per annum. This would apply to 1,836 persons, and involve $4,500,000 to one class, and $60,000 to another, or a total of $750,000

Germany Wants Big Reduction In Yearly Reparations Payments

Paris.—Germany's counter plan for paying her great war reparations, presented to the allied experts by Dr. H. Schacht, chief of the German delegation, is understood to offer one billion marks less per year than the creditors demanded.

Ottawa. The meeting of industrial and international relations committee of the house of commons took steps to prepare its report on insurance against unemployment, sickness and invalidity. GRAIN INSPECTION SYSTEM SAID TO BE ANTIQUATED

Ottawa.—Standard samples set each year by the chief grain inspector are frequently higher than the minimum set by the Grain Act and on that account ranges are graded lower than they should be. This was the contention of J. de Gallespie, dealers' representative on the grain standards board, whose evidence was continued before the agricultural and colonization committee of the house of commons.

This was the chief complaint, Mr. Gillespie said, against the inspection department. The whole inspection system was antiquated. For instance barley was never graded No. 1 or 2 although there was lots of excellent barley produced. The Grain Act had been completely ignored for years. It did not even followed in the matter of

Increase in Gold Supply

Was Greater By Sixty-One Million Than Amount Mined In 1929

Gold holdings in the United States at the end of 1930 were reported by the federal reserve board in the April issue of its bulletin to have been 37.6 per cent. of the world total, which amounted to $9,581,000,000.

The total gold supply was compiled from reports transmitted to the board from 60 countries and shows that the increase in gold of $461,000,000 in a year was greater than the amount of gold mined during the year by about $61,000,000. The balance was made, the report said, even though about $60,000,000 was absorbed by Great Britain and an unknown amount taken away for industrial consumption.

Airplane On Submarine

Big Innovation Has Been Added To Fearless Newest Craft

Italy's largest and best equipped submarine, the Franco Tosi, has been launched at the dockyards at Taranto, Italy. She displaces but two K-500 horsepower Diesel engines of special designs which can be used separately or together, and which give a surface speed of 19 miles an hour. Two electric motors of 1,000 horsepower each propel the submarine at a speed of ten miles an hour under water.

The submarine's artillery is one anti-aircraft gun and several machine guns. The submarine is to carry a seaplane in a large tube adjoining the turret, a big innovation in submarine technique. The tube is able to accept over 300-foot depth water pressure.

Explanations and Comments

The Temple Repairs Which Led To The Finding Of The Book Of the Law, verses 8-13.—During the twenty-first of age, Josiah turned his attention to the ruined temple and had it repaired. He placed in charge of the work Hilkiah the high priest, Shaphan the royal secretary and the official historian. They handed over to Hilkiah the high priest, the money which the people brought to the temple and which the Levites were charged with collecting from the worshipers. The overseers were appointed by Hilkiah to see that the workmen with music, put other Levites were charged with collectors and porters. The work was carried on faithfully and prospered under it.

The Finding Of the Book Of the Law, verses 14-18.—During the work upon the temple, Hilkiah, the priest, found a book of the law of Jehovah given by Moses. This is believed to have been one of the portions of Deuteronomy, which calls itself "The Book of the Law" and also "The Book of the Covenant." Some scholars think that this had been long known, but had been forgotten during the idolatrous reigns of Manasseh and Amon, and Hilkiah found the copy in the temple and read it to Josiah for the first time. Others hold that it was "a new and enlarged edition of the Book of the Covenant prepared for the needs of the times, and brought forth now because Josiah was a righteous king and would enforce its decrees." As George Adam Smith points out that it is precisely from this time onward that the style and philosophy which are characteristic of Deuteronomy begin to affect the literature of Israel.

The Effect Upon Josiah Of the Reading Of the Book Of the Law, verses 19-21.—After telling the king that the work upon the temple was progressing well, the money having been given to the overseers and the workmen put at work, Shaphan spoke about the newly discovered book and read it aloud (the entire roll, according to 2 Kings 22:10). On hearing the words the king rent his robes in token of his troubled mind. "For," he said, "great is God's wrath against us, because our fathers have not done as this book commands." If we would see the effect the book had upon the susceptible soul of Josiah, we are advised to read chapters 29-30 of Deuteronomy and also with Josiah and his times in mind. The book contains explicit directions as to worship and conduct, and the penalty of spiritual disobedience is threatened "in the days of Josiah and country. "For many generations warnings and precepts alike had been neglected, and when the day of doom should come the sins of the fathers also would be visited upon the children. Could the doom be averted by speedy and complete obedience and penitence?

"It is not enough to read our Bible, its messages must be heeded. Learn and observe these words found in an old Bible:

When thou readest what here is writ,
Let thy best practice second it;
So twice each precept read shall be—
First in your books and next in thee.

The Care Of Books

Many women who take beautiful care of their clothing and their kitchen utensils, their linen closets and their refrigerators, are careless about those choicest treasures of the home—the books. We are all apt to stick books away in bookcases or on open shelves and forget all about them, except to which and occasionally dust or shake the fronts of the shelves.

Books need just as much care as rugs, household linens, and fine leather shoes, if they are to enjoy the long and busy life they deserve to have.

Dust accumulates on book shelves almost more quickly than on anything else, and this quotes of oil to bind it and form a good film. The result is, that instead of having cropped that sandwich have mercy by superimposed another surface, porous in nature because it has been manufactured of too much and too carelessly bound to the surface for the same reason—and that also kicks the dirt from your other carefully dusted surface.

Bear in mind that the natural and logical mechanism that printers puts on wood and plaster must be this coats—it is almost impossible to get this thing off. If a printing coat can be said to be too thin, such a claim.

Make Your Printing Cost

By a primary cost is meant the first, or preliminary, coat of paint or varnish on any surface of wood, metal or plaster. The first object of the printing coat is to stop most of the suction, present to a great extent in wood and plaster, so that the finishing coats will stand out with a uniform degree of gloss, or, in the case of flat-wall paint, with a uniform degree of flatness.

In this connection, please note that so much uniformity can be obtained until the porous nature of the surface, or suction, has been attained. In the case of metal surfaces the degree of suction, or porosity, is for one noticeable; therefore, such surfaces will naturally call for a different priming treatment.

The second object to be aimed at in the first class priming coat is a proper degree of penetration of the coat, so that the paint will to the greatest possible extent become a part of the surface—not merely so much pigment and vehicle coated on top of, and insecurely bound to, the surface.

Bearing these objects in mind, the salesman will readily understand that a thick priming coat cannot possibly be a good priming coat. Why? Take the first object outlined above. If a thick priming coat is applied on wood or plaster the porous nature of the surface will suck away most of the oil from the paint, which, as we have seen, is the thin quotes of oil to bind it and form a good film. The result is, that instead of having

The Lazy Age

Mechanical Perfection Taking the Place Of Manual Labor

One of our contemporaneous philosophers remarked the other day that no generation was ever so strong for suds without scrubbing, heat without stoking and success without thinking.

It is significant comment on the social economic and mental tendencies of the present day. At the rate at which we are moving today toward the perfection of the "pushbutton-for-whatever-you want" principle of existence it seems possible that by day after tomorrow we may be getting everything for nothing. No fuss, no exertion, no required mental process that really deserves the name of thinking. The talevox device will probably be developed to the point of the perfect robot, and we may not even have to push a button to have all our needs efficiently served. Just a word or two in the right key will be enough to make the complicated nerves respond to the desired way. And, of course, as greater delicacy is attained in the mechanical devices the sensitizing a mere whisper will probably be enough to do the work. The millennium, in practical millenium at least, will have arrived.

We have already achieved the sudsy-without scrubbing, and the increasing popularity of heat without stoking has caused considerable alarm in the coal trade. Certain lines of advertising lead us to believe that success without thinking may be a fairly developed achievement in the not distant future. Marked progress has already been made in that direction. It is at least possible today to purchase a considerable amount of thinking ready-made. Why take the trouble to think when there is such a general demand for opinions ready and thought available in the open market?

There is a vast amount of encouragement for lazy adults in all this progress toward an easy-going life The one who is willing to be a mere citizen of a reflective turn of mind is: What under the sun shall we do to occupy ourselves when there is nothing left to do? There is no getting around that cosmic fact that humanity tries to progress in one way or another even when it has no particular occupation. And what is the use of striving for progress that is to be attainable without thinking?—Providence Journal.

Good Advice About Shoes

Should Be Stained Before Being Worn Says Shoe Expert

New shoes should be stained the first day they are worn in order to get the wear out of them, according to a man who manages a shoe shine stand. The reason, he said, is that some shoes do not absorb a long time and the preserving oils are about dried out. Many of my customers get a daily shine while others get one but once they decide their shoes are shabby," he said. "Twice a week is ideal. Then, a cursory glance at the 'Lost and Found Corp' shine, which means a washing of the shoe and the saddle soap contains enough oil to prevent water doing harm to the leather."

In Grandfather's Day

Our poor old grandpa never spoke through a telephone, never heard a gramophone, never saw Mussolini's son's idea of aerial navies in the blue, thought the world was created in six days, believed Mr. Darwin was an agent of the devil, and took his glass on occasion. But he raised a family of a dozen or so children, and had the respect of the community. Does anyone now do more?

Contributed By West

Hogs to the value of $20,000,000 or 60 per cent. of the Dominion's marketings in the year just closed were contributed by the swine industry of Western Canada, according to C. H. Learmonth, secretary of the Western Canada Livestock Union. Of the total hogs sold, 70 per cent. had been within the desired weight of 170 to 230 pounds.

Sweet Clover As Prairie Crop

Likely To Prove Of Great Importance To the Farming Industry

The introduction of sweet clover into Western Canada as one of the main farm crops is likely to be of great importance to the farming industry. It is not only recognized as a useful crop for improving soils, but it also fits in well with the short rotations that are best suited to prairie agriculture. Sweet clover is not only an easy crop to establish, but the seed can be purchased so cheaply that the first year's expense is entailed in the sowing of a considerable acreage with this useful legume.

Sweet clover is an excellent forage crop. Experiments have been carried on at the Brandon Experimental Farm to find out how sweet clover ranks with corn when both are made into silage for milch cows. In his report for last year, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, Superintendent Tinline tells of an experiment that was conducted with herds of milking cows during a period of nine weeks. The cows in the first herd were silage fed during the first and third periods, and sweet clover in the second period. The cows in the second herd were silage fed during the first and third periods, and corn silage in the second period. The corn silage was not quite equally made from North-western Dent corn that contained an average amount of cobs. The sweet clover used in the other silo was cut when about fifty per cent. of the plants were in flower. Records were kept of the yields of milk and the best weight gained by the cows when fed on the different rations. The corn silage proved slightly superior, yielding 1.2 pounds more milk per day than when the sweet clover silage was fed. The cheaper silage for fattening weight for the cows, which in this case were approaching the end of their milking period. The average daily gain was slightly more than one-quarter of a pound more than those getting the corn silage.

Export Poultry Raiser

Michigan Man Has Installed Latest Equipment

Twenty-two years ago a modest school teacher left Kansas, Mich., the son of a chick raiser, brought out his first batch of chicks, with 53 of them living. A year later he sold a cow and with the money entered the first poultry short course offered at Michigan State College, Michigan Agricultural College, at East Lansing.

Today W. A. Downs has his 1929 hatch under way, which will include more than 250,000 chicks. He intends to increase them to 500,000 in four weeks old in a new scientific house which he has architecturally one of the finest in Michigan.

Downs has spent his life and his research in the raising of chicks, and his father was a poultryman. My father was a poultry man, starting 40 years ago, and I have carried on his work."

Downs' new brooder, with a capacity of 16,500, is equipped with electric feeders and water fountains, apparatus worthy of the most complete hospital or health center. In it the chicks are housed for the first three or four weeks under the best possible conditions, in order that they can be of high efficiency later.

Fish Fry Go Free To Quebec Waters

National Railways Helps Conserve Game Fish

To assist in the conservation of game fish in the waters of the province of Quebec, an arrangement has been reached between the Canadian National Railways and Mr. L. A. Richards, Deputy Minister of Mines and Fisheries, whereby the Canadian National Railways will handle gratis shipments of fish fry from the Provincial Government Hatcheries to points on the system within the province.

At the present time, four hatcheries, situated at St. Alexis des Monts, Lac Tremblant, Gaspe and Metabetchouan, Lake St. John, are in operation for the propagation of speckled trout and salmon trout will be the principal fare of these hatcheries at present, later it is anticipated that other game fish will be included and an energetic campaign of re-stocking the waters at the various points along the Canadian National lines in the Province of Quebec will be carried on. In the past, game fish fry have been handled on a similar basis from the federal government of the province of Ontario hatcheries and the new arrangement brings into line also the product of the hatcheries operated by the province of Quebec.

Aged Told By Rings

Study Of Life History Of Halibut Is Most Interesting

The age of the halibut, one of British Columbia's most important food fish, is determined in much the same manner as the age of trees—by the rings. But instead of cutting the entire fish to ascertain the number of rings in a cross section of its body it is necessary merely to test a stone found in the ears of the halibut, according to J. P. Babcock, chairman of the International Fisheries Commission, and a well-known authority on the habits of the halibut.

Mr. Babcock says that during the past few years the commission has collected many specimens of halibut larvae much smaller and younger than any previously known and that it has been possible through these discoveries to study the life history of the halibut much more thoroughly than ever before.

"How long the young fish swim upright and when and what changes before the halibut acquires the habit of lying on one side, with its head twisted sideways, both eyes on the upper side, is unknown," says Mr. Babcock. "It is one of the most fascinating problems on which the commission is engaged. It is one of the most engaging problems in marine biology.

"In recent years there has been no branch of fishery science so rich in results as that of the study of age and rate of growth. In the case of salmon we may determine the life by checking up on the length of time spent in fresh water, the time in the sea and the river in which it hatched. But this is the way we determine the life of the halibut. The halibut lives entirely in the sea. Internal ear. In the ear a stone is developed which grows in size from year to year, as deposits from the outside. The winter growth is more transparent than the summer growth, making the rings which is marked like the rings of the tree. The bones are called otoliths, or ear bones, and these are used to determine age.

"The scales of the halibut also show growth rings, but they are not constructed as to make it more tedious to determine than the study of ear bones. Halibut matures in their eleventh year and we have records of halibut living until forty years of age. The growth of the halibut is slow, but they ultimately grow to great size. Females sometimes reach 400 pounds, while males do not attain more than 100 pounds in weight even at the age of thirty-five years."

Yukon Man Makes Heads Of Prehistoric Ivory

Ivory From Mammoths, Fifty Thousand Years Old Converted To Use

On one of the steamers which ply on the glamorous Yukon River, between Whitehorse and Dawson, there is an engineer named Jack Elliott. The North is full of stories, but there are few more interesting than the story of Jack Elliott. It is not one of the yarns of a man who lost a claim that brought fortune to another; it is not the tale of an accident that unearthed treasure too great for the strength of man; it is not the romance of a heavy poke of gold dust lost on one throw of the dice; it has nothing to do with gold at all. Jack Elliott did not travel the Trail of '98. He went to the Yukon when the first flush of the fever had paled.

He found another treasure. His is the story of ivory. It begins in the days, so dim that men can never quite comprehend them, when the gigantic shaggy mastodon lumbered over the earth and gored each other with appalling tusks The monsters perished. Mercifully they crushed them and buried them deep. When man's quest for gold in the Yukon turned from an adventure to an industry, man dug them up again. Colossal skeletons fifty thousand years old. Enough to make one of the tusks back to Whitehorse with him from one of his trips; great smooth masses of ivory, as thick as the trunks of small trees. He retired and built with his own hands machines for the cutting and polish of the ancient ivory that was found, and other knickknacks. In the summer months, he travels up and down the Yukon, and he collects his ivory in the winter, when the river is frozen and passengers and freight between Whitehorse and Dawson are carried in trains of automobile trailers, he works at his lathe. It is a new romance of the Yukon, and one that has caught the imagination of every tourist who leaves the Canadian National steamer at Dawson way and pushes on to Whitehorse by the little narrow gauge railway that follows the trail of the gold-seekers through the famous White Pass.

Sugar Syrup For Bees

New Postal Regulations To Encourage Bee Keeping Industry

In order to encourage the beekeeping industry in Canada the Canadian postal regulations are being amended to permit of packages of honey not being sent by mail when fed on sugar syrup as allowed by the United States Post Office. Hitherto the post office regulations in Canada demanded the use of a certain coarsely compound as food supply for bees, which it has been found is not at all satisfactory for bees as sugar syrup.

The action of the Canadian Post Office Department in changing the regulations came as a result of representations made by the Manitoba Beekeepers' Association. Bee keeping is becoming an important industry in Manitoba. Of the 19,898,000 pounds of honey produced in Canada in 1928, the provinces of Manitoba accounted for 5,774,386 pounds. It is the second largest producer among the provinces of the Dominion, being exceeded only by Ontario with 8,500,000 pounds. Alberta, be is in third place with 3,800,000 pounds In 1929 the total honey production in Manitoba was only about 120,000 pounds.

Thousands of packages of bees are annually imported into Western Canada every spring principally from Alabama and other Southern States.

Dynamos For Museum

Henry Ford's Edison memorial museum built as a tribute to the inventor, is to be a model of modern as Edison will contain the world's first practical commercial light and power system, which included several dynamos in Sunbury, Pa., years ago The old Sunbury dynamos and engine still are in New York, but will be moved to Ford's museum at Menlo Park N.J. according to F. A Watdin, curator of the Edison historical collection

Curtis: How many cases did you try yesterday Judge?

Judge: Only one. It looked at first like two.

Curtis: Important I suppose

Judge: No it was a woman accused of speeding and I was fool enough to ask her what she had to say for herself.

One woman remarked the merit of a man is just as good as another if not better.

And one man, reputed the wisest man in town, said he was not as good as another. If you don't believe it, ask their wives.

The Hudson Bay Region

Valuable Pamphlet Deals With Important Developments In Northern Area.

Current undertakings instituted by the Canadian Government for the speedy completion of the Hudson Bay section of the Canadian National Railways and the selection of Churchill instead of Port Nelson as a terminal seaport have revived public interest in the Hudson Bay region. Physically and historically this region is of outstanding interest to Canadian development. To meet the demand for authentic and up-to-date information respecting it, the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior has issued a 50-page pamphlet entitled "The Hudson Bay Region."

The subject matter is treated under four headings,—general description, natural resources, mining developments, and transportation. The physical features are briefly described, incidentally pointing out that the Hudson Bay route penetrates deeper into the interior of Canada than does the St. Lawrence system of waterways. An historical sketch reminds the reader that this northern part of Canada has had a longer tenure under one flag than any other extensive part of the North American continent. Climate and precipitation are also dealt with.

A gist of the known data respecting natural resources is contained under the various trade-headings of lands, forests, minerals, waterpowers, fur and game, and fisheries. Of the ancient ivory that has been found in the Yukon, and he collects it in the winter, when the river is frozen and passengers and freight between Whitehorse and Dawson are carried in trains of automobile trailers, he works at his lathe. It is a new romance of the Yukon, and one that has caught the imagination of every tourist who leaves the Canadian National steamer at Dawson way and pushes on to Whitehorse by the little narrow gauge railway that follows the trail of the gold-seekers through the famous White Pass.

Copies of this timely pamphlet may be obtained free on application to the Director, Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Rescued In Mid Ocean

Dutch Seaman Attempted To Cross Atlantic In Lifeboat

Captain Johannes J. Schutterear, 19-year-old Dutch seaman, his first mate, Frederick Meyer, and his second mate, Cornelius A. Vanderlaan, arrived at New York from San Juan, Porto Rico, on the steamer San Lorenzo with the 30-foot lifeboat in which they set out from Lisbon to cross the Atlantic February 3.

In reality, more than a year has elapsed since they began their journey from Amsterdam to New York. They were nearly shipwrecked in the Bay of Biscay in February, 1928.

Then they sailed their boat to Lisbon and finally set out across the Atlantic early in February of this year. On March 18 they were picked up in mid-ocean, half-starved and without drinking water, by the Spanish mail liner Marques de Comillas.

Ugology Accepted

During a discussion at a meeting of the Association of Assistant Mistresses in London a member told a story of two boys who were hard making friends after a quarrel. One boy said, "Of course, Charlie, when I called you a fool and a coward, I did not mean it as an insult, only as a statement of fact. The second boy replied: "Well, if that was all, it does not matter."

ISLAY ITEMS

The concert and play put on under the direction of Mrs. Pullyblank, the music teacher, and Mrs. Withnell teacher of Trimbleville school, was greatly appreciated and well performed by local talent from Islay, Trimbleville and Moo Place from Kitscoty. The United Church was well filled and encouraged their friends with hearty encores. The Ladies' Aid of the church served a dainty lunch and they raised $35 to for the new organ fund.

A school quarter section, formerly owned by N. McIlmoe, was put up at auction and brought only $36.00 per acre. A Mr Hunt was the lucky man. Adjoining land is held at $50

It looks like everybody in this district is out on the land in real earnest on Monday. Very few were in town all day and along the highway it look ed as if every quarter had a seeder or disc at work. We drove up north to the Vermilion river and it was the same there.

There will be a congregational meeting of the United church on Sunday May 12th at the close of the evening service.

On Friday evening, May 3rd, Rev H. A. Boyd, B.D. of Vermilion will preach at the preparatory meeting before communion. There is quite a large class of young people joining the church. The Communion Service will be conducted in the United church on Sunday evening, May 5th

Mr John Pierce of the Bank of Montreal has made his first move after two years of training, and has been transferred to Viking as teller.

Mr C C Miller, chief of the bank was on the sick list last week for a few days.

The Women's Auxiliary of the United Church met at the Manse this month on Wednesday last.

On Tuesday a pretty wedding took place at the Manse. The happy contracting parties were William James Haggerty, Jr. of Manawille and Leona Marie Marlowland of Elk Point. C. H. Robertson and Miss A. Haggerty of Manawille were the witnesses. Rev T. A. Bowen, minister of the United church, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Haggerty will make their home at Elk Point where the former is employed in the creamery.

Miss Charles Cappell of Chicago is here on a visit to her parents for a month.

The play "Midsummer" by the Vermilion High School students enacted here last Friday night, was perhaps one of the best entertainments seen here for some time. It is difficult to criticize the players, as all parts seemed to be acted to perfection. There was a good turnout in spite of the rush of spring work.

Rev T. A. Bowen is a visitor to Edmonton this week.

Modern Motion Picture Equipment For Local Theatre

Coming on the heels of installations in Edmonton theatres of synchronized and sound picture equipment, W. P. Pilkie, proprietor of the Columbia Theatre Vermilion, advises that he has purchased Synchronized and Sound Picture equipment for the local theatre.

It is a source of great pride to know that Vermilion is the first town in Northern Alberta, outside of Edmonton, to secure this installation, and Mr Pilkie is to be congratulated on his efforts to secure for this community the latest and the best in modern entertainment.

We have been advised that the equipment to be installed has been purchased from Radio Industries of Canada, Ltd., a Winnipeg company, which manufactures and distributes the Columbia Theatrephone Sound Picture equipment. We do not hesitate to say that this addition to our amusement enterprise will be well supported and enthusiastically received.

A word from the publisher .. about advertising

The products you see consistently advertised in this paper are worthy of your confidence.

It takes two things to make a consistent advertiser. One is a strong conviction that he has a product that will hold its place in public favor despite competition. The other is actual proof of that . . . the increasing popularity of his product.

If his product will not stand the test of comparison he would simply be throwing his advertising investment away. If the buying public rejects his product after it has been offered in advertising he has thrown his advertising investment away.

That's why the manufacturer who advertises his merchandise consistently is very sure of his quality . . . and why you may be sure of it, too.

Read the advertising here in your newspaper . . . It will guide you to the buying of worthy merchandise.

Get behind Vermilion's Clean-Up Drive!

What seedling became general throughout all this district last week, in fact earlier than that a considerable acreage had been sown. The weather, both on the cool side, has been perfect for making rapid headway and this week-end will see wheat seeding in the finishing stages. The land is reported to be in fine working condition and germination should be rapid.

Every citizen in the fifteen zones into which the town has been divided for the big clean up effort, Monday, Arbor Day, is earnestly requested to co-operate to the fullest extent with the committee men in charge. Show what Vermilion can do!

As one of the fifteen committeemen appointed for the general clean-up of natural property in the town on Monday next, the editor asks the hearty co-operation of the resident and business men living in Block 7, to which he has been assigned. The Standard office is located about mid way in this block, which starts from Lang's Drug store and the Alberta Hotel on the west to Berdan Avenue on the east. Before Monday it is urged that each property holder will have his own premises cleaned up and all refuse and debris piled in heaps for the teams to start carting away on Monday morning. If this is done, it will give the team assigned to this block an opportunity to get all rubbish away in time to remove the cleanings resulting from the campaign of Monday—so be on hand early with hoes, rakes and pitchforks and make Block 7 the banner clean up block of the big day. Your participation and efforts will aid materially in not only making Vermilion a Clean Town but a healthy one as well. Now, all together, boys! Let us put it over!

Monday, May 6th — Vermilion's memorable Clean-Up Day!

Flies or Babies - Which

The above arresting title to a brief but very telling little pamphlet issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company gives a very real reason, to the "Clean Up" week which is being urged on all communities at this season.

Filth and garbage of all kinds accumulate during the winter months. With the coming of the warm days the house-fly appears. It is born in filth, lives in filth and when not busy on butter, milk, preserves or the baby's bottle, is feeding in filth.

It is estimated that the flies are responsible for more deaths than any single known disease. Babies are its particular prey since the infantile diseases are carried largely by the feet. Get rid of it by cleaning up all filth and garbage. Make a habit of burning all refuse. Give it no chance to breed. Screen doors and windows at the first hint of warm weather. Two flies at the beginning of the season will be responsible, if allowed to live, for millions of other flies, they breed so rapidly! So clean up and screen doors and windows. Is it to be flies or babies? Choose!

For literature on the summer care of babies, send to the Canadian Red Cross Society, 407 Civic Block, Edmonton, Alberta.

Edmonton to compete with eleven others for the championship of northern Alberta. Crews won the coveted prize and then came the contest for the championship of the province between Owen and Master McDonald of Red Deer, who held an equal place for southern Alberta. The contest took place in McDougall Church, Edmonton before 2000 people. The Southern representative won out, however, but it was a wonderful thing for Owen to stand second in the Province.

Motorists Hear Of Alberta's Big Highway Program

Heeding the motorists' cry for better roads, the provincial government will award contracts this week covering 164 miles of highways in various parts of the province. This is the first instalment of the programme of road improvements this season.

A stretch of 17 miles from Winterburn to Lake Beach, west of Edmonton, is on the programme for this year. This will connect with the Stony Plain road now built, and be ready for gravelling next year.

Standard earth grading will be done for 26 miles on the stretch from Lacombe east to Norte A 1, mile stretch northwest of Gleichen will also be graded.

The gravelling programme includes 18 miles from Inverlake west to Strathmore, to a point six miles east of Strathmore, and 24 miles of first course gravelling between Lethbridge and New Dayton, on the final section of the Sunshine trail. Then there will be 25 miles of second course gravelling from Carbston to Waterton. It is expected that there will be about fifteen further 'jobs' of road contracts on the program for the summer and autumn.

Members of the Alberta Motor Association are gratified over this extensive programme of better highways. The organization has given special attention to this need and is doing its part in aiding in the proper marking of roads to meet the demands of the growing tourist traffic in this province.

Ottawa that Hon. Mr Stewart had stated that the federal government would do its share in completing the park section of the road. He said work had been under way for three years and it would be finished in 1929.

At its conventions for several years past, the Alberta Motor Association has passed resolutions pressing the government to rush completion of the Jasper highway. The fact that the road has at last been reached is a further demonstration of the good work being done by the Motor Association of this province.

Completion Of Jasper Highway This Year Assured By Provincial And Federal Govts.

Travel as a luxury necessary by the Alberta Motor Association, boards of trade and other bodies for years, is now that 1929 will see the completion of the Jasper Highway as a passable motor route between Edmonton and the popular mountain resort. Furthermore it will mean that an important link has been completed in another all Canadian route to the Pacific Coast.

Announcement of last week by Hon. G. L. McPherson, minister of public works for Alberta, and Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of interior at Ottawa, that realization of the Jasper Highway is assured this year. The Alberta minister stated that this province was ready to undertake the completion of this highway if the dominion authorities would agree to finish the right of way on the park side. Providing the federal authorities would do their part, the province would complete its end of about the same length east of the park and south of Obed.

Alberta was also asking that an charity be given by Ottawa to enable this province to make necessary improvements to the abandoned grade between Evansburg and the park entrance. This work would include removing or replacing culverts where the grade and other conditions are not for motor purposes. This is now being taken up with Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R. and Hon. C. A. Dunning minister of railways. It was stated by the provincial minister that by the end of the season there would be a passably good road, dirt of course but this would be ready for a gravelled surface in the near future.

Every British Dominion Has An Independent Function In The League of Nations Body

One fact which has been made clear by the recent session of the League of Nations at Geneva is that Canada and every British Dominion has a definite and independent function in that body. Despite the conditions under which this country entered the League and the World Court, there still remains in the minds of some European statesmen the erroneous idea that Great Britain is the spokesman for the whole Empire.

Several episodes during the last session brought this subject to the fore, and in such a way, as to make the position of the Dominions absolutely clear. One of these had reference to the World Court, when exception was taken by several European delegates to a British Dominion being separately represented even if the question dealt with was of paramount importance to that Dominion.

Such a contention is absolutely contrary to the whole basis of Dominion inclusion in the League and the World Court and the British delegate, Sir Cecil Hurst, replied very forcibly with the statement that even if an English Judge was on the court, the Dominions would have the right of representation should it be dealing with a question which directly affected any of them.

Neither Canada nor any of the self-governing Dominions have ever recognized the right of Britain's delegates to vote or speak for them, and the manner this is clearly understood by all member states of the League, the sooner will progress be made in matters affecting our interests.

Canadians are heart and soul behind the general idea and ideals for the maintenance of world peace set up by the League, but they will never be satisfied to take any position of inferiority in its councils, or relinquish their vital interests to any one but their national representatives.

Pronouncements Brighter In Maritime Section

Betterment in the Economic Conditions Now Apparent

Since the first of the year, there has been an increase in car loadings for the Atlantic region of the Canadian National Railways of 3,349 cars over the same period last year This forms a very good index as to the economic conditions of the Maritimes. Numerous large works have been undertaken including pulp and paper mills and additions to hydro-electric plants. The cold storage facilities at Halifax are rapidly nearing completion and they will bring Halifax in line with the most modern ports on the Atlantic seaboard. A mill and dry storage warehouse is also under construction at Moncton, and this should prove a very valuable addition to the facilities for the handling of products requiring this class of storage. Altogether the prospects look very bright for the continuance of the betterment in the economic condition of the Maritime provinces. Various mining developments are under way and there has been considerable increase in capital investments both for new buildings and for additions to existing plants.

Will Attract Hunters

Plenty Of Big Game To Be Found in Alaska

As a big game country, Alaska comes a close second to Africa, despite its lack of lion, elephant and rhino. Furthermore, it is likely to attract hunters longer than the latter terrain, for here is less armed "cleaning up" of a district.

What is even more important to the territory back of Anchorage and Alaska railroad, are plenty of moose, caribou, mountain sheep and goat, and black and brown bear.

What is also more important to the ordinary nimrod—it costs less to outfit for the Alaskan hinterland than to attempt Nairobi.

Building Two Ways

The statement made at the convention of contractors held in Hamilton that material used in construction will now almost entirely of Canadian origin and manufacture was something to enthuse over. We build two ways when we build that one way.

A Hazardous Occupation

Natural Scientists Face Many Dangers in Tropical Jungles

Pursuit of moths and butterflies in the tropical jungles of Ecuador is a hazardous occupation, according to W. Judson Creasy, member of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, who returned from a protracted expedition.

Creasy told of meeting bird-eating spiders the size of dinner plates and killing venomous rep-tiles in the haunts of rare and beautiful butterflies. One of the spiders encountered, Creasy said, he was forced to shoot with a revolver as it was about to spring at him.

Rattlesnakes which give no warning when attacking, were brought back by the scientist. They are known as "Zero" or "X" snakes because of their markings and have "rattles" which make no noise.

Manitoba To Have Airplane Factory

Seven Acres Of Land in St. Boniface Rent Free to Firm

An airplane manufacturing plant, heralded as the greatest industrial advancement in years, will be established in St. Boniface immediately. Announcement that the factory would be brought to St. Boniface was made by R. C. Mills, of Mills and Company, Winnipeg, following a special meeting of the Cathedral city council, when seven acres of land were sold for the site.

The plant, according to Mr. Mills, will be the Canadian home of one of the largest aeroplane manufacturing concerns in the world, and it will be controlled entirely in Canada. The name of the parent company has not yet been divulged.

The new concern will be a new plant, which was sold with trackage, is known as the old Rat Portage Lumber Company's land, and lies on Company's property, and is located between Tache Avenue and the Norwood Bridge.

Canada's North is Real Beauty Land

Vivid Picture Of Charm Presented in R.C.M.P. Report

Canada's great Northland is pictured, not as a region of waste and waste, but as a land of beauty and attractiveness, in the report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, tabled in the House of Commons. East of the Great Slave Lake the scene becomes beautiful indeed, according to Inspector Gagnon, who, describing a lengthy patrol to Fort Reliance says:

"The Hornby and Inconnu channels are the most beautiful routes possible. In the former, there is something to captivate attention, either in the abrupt shores or cliffs, or their varied colorations, or the thousand and one islands one encounters. Both channels are lined with innumerable pleasant little harbors.

"The waters are very clear and cold, and full of delicious trout."

There's a Reason

The Egyptian government is planning a motor road over the route followed by the Israelites on their 40 years' journey to the Promised Land. But nothing is said as yet about drying up the Red Sea, says the Buffalo Courier-Express.

Pat—What is it that lives in a barn, eats oats, wakes on four legs, and runs one on wall from behind as from the front?

Mike—I'll bite. What's it?

Pat—A blind horse.

Remarkable Career

Some years ago when our neighbors to the south betrayed an interest in the Canadian right to her unoccupied Arctic hinterland, with particular reference to Ellesmere Island, the Canadian way of taking more active steps to prevent future trouble became apparent. That invaluable and highly efficient arm of the government, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, offered a ready-to-hand solution of the problem and shortly afterwards the business of establishing more northerly outposts was undertaken seriously. It began in 1920 with the placing of a detachment at Port Burwell, near Cape Chidley, at the northeastern tip of the continental mainland, to assist the Customs Department to control the inward and outward bound whaling fleets. By 1922 then the police posts have been located on all the three great islands forming the eastern boundary of the bay of water west of Greenland. That issue is comprised of Davis Strait, Baffin Bay, Smith Sound, Kane Basin and Kennedy Channel, hitherto together furnishing the avenue of approach to the Pole.

On Baffin Island, the southernmost of these boundary islands, the Mounted Police have been stationed—at Fonde Inlet, at the northern end; Pangnirtung, on Cumberland Gulf, and Lake Harbor in the south, on Hudson Strait. On the central island, North Devon, is Dundas Harbor; and on Ellesmere Island, the northernmost, is a detachment at La Roche Peninsula, on Kane Basin, in latitude 79.46 degrees north. In addition, constables have been lent to the Royal Canadian Air Force for service at its bases on Hudson Strait, whence it left by the Hudson coastwise route, and is still being controlled and administered. The police patrols have not hesitated to make very long journeys. For example, in the early party of 1927 the non-commissioned officer in charge of Bache Peninsula Detachment crossed Ellesmere Island to visit the cluster of islands to the west, and, finding no white—and right—some undiscovered territory until a quarter of a century ago. This patrol lasted fifty-four days and covered about 1,300 miles.

About the same time a non-commissioned officer in charge of the Pangnirtung detachment made a patrol of about the same distance, starting from the shores of Cumberland Gulf and returning across the almost unknown interior. A constable, finding the body of a fur trader in his cabin on Baffin Island, hauled it out on his sled for 450 miles of difficult travel to Fonde Inlet, where it was buried and Christian burial. The officers and non-commissioned officers in charge of mounted police detachments have commissions as customs collectors, postmasters, coroners, and magistrates. Bache Peninsula is believed to be the most northerly postoffice in the world. The Eskimos here have shown keen appreciation for violence than further west, but on one occasion, in 1920, a white man was killed by them near Cape Crawford, the northwestern tip of Baffin Island. The non-commissioned officer in charge at Fonde Inlet investigated, found the body, in his capacity as coroner held an inquest, arrested the accused, collected the witnesses and as magistrate committed the accused for trial. In 1923 a special court was sent from eastern Canada, which tried, convicted and sentenced those responsible for the homicide. There also have been cases of religious mania and homicidal insanity among these people. The relations between the police and the Eskimos are good.

Donald's heart ached for this man, whose grief, love for his wife was so passionate at this moment as when she was living. "How he loved her!" he thought.

When Wainwright spoke again his voice was spiritless. "You are the first person to whom I have spoken of my past; even Constance does not know." As he turned to leave Donald gripped his hand in silence, but with a pressure eloquent of heart-felt sympathy.

Andy had noticed Donald's increasing interest in Connie and had carefully refrained from accompanying him on his nightly visits. On this particular night Donald came into the kitchen whistling a lively air, his face wreathed in smiles. He stopped Andy heartily on the back as he asked him for a lunch. His gaiety was so pronounced that Andy studied him closely.

"You look 'appy, Donnie," he remarked.

"I am, Andy; I'm the happiest man in the world."

He finished eating, then sat staring dreamily at the smoke of his cigarette as it circled about his head. Andy discoursed lightly on various subjects, but Donald did not seem to hear him. After he left Andy heard him singing merrily in his cabin.

"Strike me pink, but I do 'ope Donnie has waked up! What a pair, what a pair!" he said to himself.

In the morning Donald made north on the gas-car to the scene of logging operations near the upper lake. He left orders with the men to bring Wainwright's baggage to the station. What Connie's absence would mean was brought forcibly to Donald as he met the trapper leading Pegasus and her pet deer down the trail to his cabin.

Two hours later Connie and her father stood on the station platform. Andy stood with arms folded. "Gone?" he yelled, "of course it's gone. Why in 'ell wasn't you 'ere?"

"I had to go up the line to look over some logs, and the car broke down," replied Donald bitterly.

"Of course," Andy with withering sarcasm, "the timber couldn't 'ave waited another day."

"Andy," asked Donald excitedly, ignoring the remark, "did Connie leave you her address?"

"Why the 'ell should she give me 'er address? 'Aven't you 'er address?" was Andy's unaccommodating reply.

"No, I haven't, I know that they are going to England, and that is all."

Donald sat down dejectedly.

Andy's face softened. "Do you like Connie?" he queried.

"Like her? I love her!"

"In that case I don't see 'ow she didn't let you know where to find 'er," puzzled Andy.

"She doesn't know that I care for her," said Donald gloomily.

Andy's mouth opened. He asked Donald by the direst calamity he meant to tell me that you let that girl get away from you without letting 'er know that you wanted 'er?" he demanded incredulously. "Strike me 'addocks," blazed Andy, "of all the blinkin' mutts in this 'ere world —you—you——" Speech failed him for a moment. "You let that dear little girl go away broken 'arted," Andy," interrupted Donald eagerly, "do you think Connie cares for me?"

For a moment, as he looked into his friend's face, Andy was tempted to tell him of the scene after his departure, but he had promised to Connie and always faithful to his word, he kept it.

"Ow the 'ell should I know?" he mumbled. "If I 'ad been with her I'd 'ave asked 'er. I'll swear she would 'ave answered."

At that moment Donald was heaping opprobrium on a recalcitrant gas-car that had died on his hands for the fourth time.

The conductor called "All aboard!" Connie turned to Andy "Good-bye, Andy," she said sweetly, her eyes brimming with tears.

Andy took her gloved hand. "Good-bye, Connie," he returned, attempting a cheerful smile. "When are you coming back?"

"Maybe never." She choked as she stumbled up the car steps.

As the train started to move Connie came to the rear platform. A small, pathetic figure she seemed to Andy as she strained her eyes toward the north in a vain hope that she would see Donald. Andy stood in the centre of the track waving his hat until the flutter of Connie's little handkerchief vanished around a curve.

As the train roared through the cut, the last view of her loved valley flashed into her eyes. Her face strangely white, she clung to the brass rail and gazed with tearful eyes at the only home she had ever known.

As they passed the trapper's cabin, the noise of the rushing train sent Pegasus galloping madly about the pasture. With flying hoofs that tore up the sod he circled around the field, then came to the fence and with his beautiful head held high on the arched neck he looked with startled eyes at the speeding train.

With a gesture intensely eloquent, Connie flung out her arm. "Good-bye, Peggy," Good-bye!" she found her way to a seat and covered her face with her hands.

Donald flung himself from the gas-car before it had ceased moving. "Train gone, Andy?" he shouted.

A GREAT PUZZLE TO CAREFUL PARENTS

One of the greatest puzzles to the careful parent is to know what kind of medicine to give the little ones. When the child falls ill with griping pains; is seized with cold or fever, refuses food or vomits what he has taken, when he cries a great deal and cannot get the sleep so necessary to the growing child, the parent is in a quandary. What is to be done on the instant? As often as not there is not a suitable medicine in the house. The trouble is that to give him to set him right quickly it is to him quickly. What is needed in such emergencies that Baby's Own Tablets are designed. These peasant little Tablets quickly reduce fever, break up colds, relieve constipation and indigestion and allay teething pains. They quiet the nerves and promote restful little-to-bed sleep. Mothers have guaranteed absolutely harmless and safe for even the youngest and most delicate baby.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Little Helps For This Week

"I know the thoughts that I think toward you, saith the Lord, thoughts of peace and not of evil, to give you an expected end."—Jeremiah xxix. 11.

His perfect plan I may not grasp;
Yet I can trust Love Infinite,
And with my feeble fingers clasp
The Hand which leads me in the light.
My soul upon His errand goes;
The end I know not, but God knows.

Every human soul has a complete and perfect plan cherished for it in the heart of God,—a divine biography marked out which it enters into to live. This life, rightly unfolded, will be a complete and beautiful whole, an experience led on by God and unfolded by His secret nurture, as the trees and the flowers by the secret nurture of the world. We live in the divine thought. We fill a place in the great, everlasting plan of God's intelligence. We never sink below His care, never drop out of His counsel.—Horace Bushnell

Weather Heads the List

Stratford Editor Finds It Most Widely Read Article

What is the most read section of a newspaper? Sports writers will say their page is; editorial men will press the claims of the editorial page; reporters will be certain to assert that they have first place with local stories, while we have no doubt that the lady editors will be quick to claim precedence for the women's page.

All wrong. One day last week the weather, through an error, was left out of the paper, and we had more calls over the omission of that little item than anything else that has ever happened.

An Oil That Is Prized Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish in over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a world-wide call for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

To Check "FLU," Grippe

Fights the Germs in the Throat Before They Invade Other Parts of the Body.

EFFECTIVE PREVENTIVE MEASURES EXPLAINED

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of Influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to garble the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chest is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure, to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline. Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding wastes. The combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

These will be held at Lethbridge, Olds and Vermilion during the week of June 24 to 29. A number of authorities on various branches of co-operative activity will address these meetings which will undoubtedly be attended by large numbers of farmers interested in the problems of co-operation.

COLORED MAN SAYS HE IS DESCENDANT OF WALLACE

His Grandfather Had No Color Prejudice and Settled in North Carolina

Aberdeen, April 27.—A gentleman of colour, descended from a blind Scottish grandfather, and indirectly from William Wallace himself, seems an anomaly. Such a one is, however, in London just now. He is Dr. Richard Robinson, Taylor, vice-principal of Tuskegee Institution, the leading negro school in the United States. His Scottish grandfather had no colour prejudice, and he settled in North Carolina. He always claimed to be descended from William Wallace. Dr. Taylor is on his way to Liberia, the negro republic, to advise on educational

To many colonies there are countless gentlemen of colour descended from kilted grandsires, but they don't carry the family tree so far back as Wallace. Truth to tell, these "never-was Scots" prefer to look ahead rather than adopt the tactics of Lot's wife.

RURAL DISTRICTS CATCHING SPIRIT OF CLEAN-UP DRIVE

Nearby Towns Will Stage Campaign in Conjunction With Edmonton

Not only are Edmonton citizens responding to the clarion call to "Clean-up, Paint-up, Plant-up" but the smaller places of the surrounding district are taking up the slogan and instituting "clean-up" campaigns of their own.

Monday morning W. R. Calder, secretary-manager of the campaign, received a request from the secretary-treasurer of the town of St. Albert for posters and literature to assist in a campaign which is being launched there simultaneously with Edmonton's own. Mr. Calder will forward circulars and other publicity matter immediately.

Both the rural districts and the smaller centres surrounding Edmonton will be linked with the campaign in the city by means of the radio broadcasts, plans for which the committee has on foot now.

One hundred per cent support from the various service clubs of the city is being sought for the campaign and speakers will address the meetings and luncheons of each in turn. Alderman C. Lionel Gibbs, M.L.A., opened the campaign of clean-up addresses when he spoke to the Optimists club at noon Monday. Other speakers will address as many gatherings as possible with a view to arousing a widespread interest in the campaign. — Edmonton Journal

Canada At War!

Canada is at war and with the passing of winter, operations are being renewed and extended on all fronts against the common enemy. Happily, it is not warfare directed against any other people or nation, nor, in the final analysis, is it a destructive, life-taking money-losing campaign in which the Canadian people are engaged. Rather, it is constructive, life-giving, money-making battle in the best sense.

The war is with certain preventable diseases and unnecessary ones. It can never end, and victory can never be wholly complete, for on the other hand, unless the battle is fought and resolutely kept up year after year, defeat for mankind is sure and lasting. It is a case where eternal vigilance is the price that must be paid for the liberty and happiness of all.

It is a war against evil disease insects' carriers.

In the spring of the year when the snow leaves and the frost leaves the ground exposing the accumulations of winter, it is imperative that every householder, every community, "clean up." Failure to do so may, and in all probability will, result in an epidemic of sickness, not to speak of the unwholesome effect upon the mentality and habits of people living amidst unsightly, disagreeable surroundings. The necessity of an annual spring "clean up" and the maintenance of sound surroundings, and sanitary conditions throughout the warm summer months, is applicable alike to the farm and farm home, and the urban community and home.

The danger of the common house fly is now too well known to require emphasis. It is the greatest distributor of the filth and disease breeding germs upon which it thrives and breeds its countless millions. Destroy its breeding grounds and the battle is more than half won. When the first fly gets in his work, battle is all and you will be saved the trouble of swatting hundreds later on.

Then here is that most unpopular little humming bird, the mosquito, who is becoming so many Canadians' unwelcome companion during the beautiful summer months and spoils our garden and open air grounds into places of torture. By taking early action this almost universal pest can be largely controlled for years to come. Screens of the proper kind and mesh are necessary for them by no means; after all each season makes more energetic and concerted effort to destroy them. England is no worse sufferer than other places, but this year while the dreaded Spanish influence has vanished by other service claim, the health such other likely to have and disease is also taking part in the battle.

The mosquito breeds by tens of millions in stagnant water. Pools of stagnant water, slowly drying up sloughs partially filled ditches, cannot all be drained, but can their existence be wholly prevented, but through the simple expedient of scattering coal oil, and other oils, in these stagnant waters, these millions of potential mosquitoes will be destroyed. Regular in surveying the city and its surroundings from the air, thus detecting every spot of stagnant water, and these are to be impregnated with oil. If all our towns and villages locate these pools of stagnant water in and about them and take like action life will be made more comfortable and enjoyable.

When cleaning old oil out of your motor car, tractor engine, or other machinery do not throw it away. Save it, and spread it about in any stagnant water in your vicinity and sink your old oil-soaked rags with a stone in such pools. By so doing you will prevent the breeding of mosquitoes.

The great and lofty war has been waged in other directions and in every interest—federal, departments of agriculture, and the research departments of our Universities and the National Research Bureau in laboratories and in the fields have for many years been engaged in the task of finding a means of eradicating rust from wheat, which takes its toll of tens of millions of dollars from the farmers of the prairies. According to latest authentic reports great progress has been made, and the experts engaged in this work are now fairly confident they are on the right track, and that before long a rust resistant wheat will be developed, fully equal to other wheats in its early ripening ability, in yield per acre, and in its bread making qualities. Such a victory will bring huge rewards for the time and money expended. It is a form of constructive warfare which will reimburse Canada for many of its losses occasioned by destructive human war.

Agricultural and health departments of governments are in the van of this great, never-ending battle. The larger manic publics and many other communities are now awakening to their responsibility. Semi-public organizations of many kinds are joining in the fray. As was the case in the Great War, scientists are doing their part, and doing it well. But as the Great War developed into a struggle between peoples, rather than armies and navies in which every man and woman had a duty to perform, so in this other war in which Canada is engaged, everybody must be enrolled if the largest measure of success and victory is to be achieved. This is a war which recognizes no defined boundary lines; it must be waged everywhere; if the enemy remains unmolested in any one place or district, or even on any individual homestead, infection elsewhere will be of little avail. It is a universal war demanding the active co-operation and alert vigilance of all.

Insanity is said to be decreasing. Maybe it's because so many things that used to be considered crazy aren't any more.

Canada Wins the Banana Trade

Has Largest Banana Carriers Afloat Under Any Flag

The largest banana carriers afloat under any flag is the record claimed by the "Lady Somers" and the "Lady Rodney," the two new vessels of the Canadian National Steamships which went into commission recently. These steamers are equipped with the most modern cooling and refrigeration equipment, and are capable of carrying over 100,000 stems of bananas.

The "Lady Somers" sailed for Bermuda, the Bahamas and Jamaica, inaugurating the western service of the Canadian National Steamships between Canadian ports and the islands.

The ships are elaborately decorated, and the passenger accommodation is complete and first-class. Particular care has been paid to all details of the cargo space and the ship is completely insulated. The "Lady Somers" can carry fruits and vegetables requiring different temperatures, for each section the ship is equipped with devices to raise the interior temperature when necessary.

Frost Kills Insects

Hard Winter Expected To Be Factor In Grasshopper Crop

The winter of 1925-26 was a hard one on insects, scientists at the Dominion entomological laboratory at the University of Saskatchewan believe. A self-recording thermometer, the bulb of which was three inches below the soil level, registered 31 degrees below zero on March 9, the lowest recorded during the past ten years.

The effect will be severe on insects as the majority hibernate at a depth of two to four inches. The lowest temperature recorded beneath the soil in the winter of 1926-27 was 14 degrees above.

Canada and Disarmament

Furthest Advanced Of All Nations On the Road To Peace

Of all the nations represented when the League of Nations' preparatory commission on disarmament convened at Geneva, Canada claims to have advanced furthest along the road to disarmament. That is, if all forms of armament, including frontier protection are taken into consideration.

Canada is represented in the deliberations by Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian advisory officer at Geneva, with Col. George Vanier as technical adviser. The Canadian delegation may possibly have some suggestions to make at a future date in the proceedings, their part being largely dependent on the turn of events.

TO READJUST CAPITALIZATION OF THE C. N. R.

Ottawa.—For the first time since the creation of the National Railways system, the government of the day, through a responsible minister, pledged itself to the policy of readjusting the capitalization of the public owned railway.

In the special committee of the House of Commons which deals with accounts of the National Railways this question was discussed, and Hon. Charles A. Dunning, minister of railways, stated unequivocally that he regarded the recapitalization of the system as being of "very great importance" and that the government desired at the earliest possible moment to deal with it.

Curiously enough, opposition to the recapitalization of the National Railways arose immediately from Conservative members of the committee, R. B. Hanson, Conservative member for York-Sunbury, who has been a consistent critic of the railway policy, said that while the Conservatives would follow and assenting that only in this way could Parliament deal justly by the able and conscientious officials who are endeavoring to make the system a complete success and who find that their efforts are largely nothing in overtaking the needs of a huge, unwieldy and unjustifiable capitalization.

Mr. Dunning introduced the subject and in the course of his remarks made it quite plain that no action probably would have been taken this session had it not been for the interpretation placed by officers of the old Grand Trunk Railway, who are seeking the right to sue the government for compensation on account of their securities.

He failed to inform the committee as to whether or not the government would permit these shareholders to take up a new issue, but it is commonly believed that a deal will be framed and the case carried to the privy council.

War Empire Competition

King's Trophy In Rifle Match Goes To Australian Team

Ottawa, Ont.—Cadets from South Africa won the King's trophy to the rifle match in 1926, which was participated in by 32,000 boys from all parts of the Empire. Canadian cadets won this trophy in 1927, and finished second in 1926. The results have just been made public by the National Rifle Association.

Commenting on Canada's performance the National Rifle Association report says: "Not only does Canada's summer camp more brilliant individual shots than any other country but she has a limited number of units capable of achieving very special distinction. When mass efficiency becomes the principal object of the camp and fewer low scores have to be included in her national team, the Premier prize, the King's trophy will return to the Dominion."

While Canadian boys have lost the King's trophy they have had other successes to console them in the match. They won 82 silver medals which they secured in scores of 99 and 100 points, and 123 bronze medals for scores of 97 and 98. This out of an empire conclined won a total of 1,134 of these medals.

Will Perform Election Duties

Mrs. George Denton To Carry Out Usual Royal Functions

Bognor, Sussex, England. — The message announcing being made by the King is permitting the drafting of tentative plans for future functions, and that, should occasion arise, duties will be carried out. Transfer of the court from Bognor to Windsor Castle will take place on May 10, it is contemplated in view of His Majesty's expressed desire to carry out the usual functions connected with a general election. The King will remain at Windsor Castle until his convalescence permits him to go to Sandringham in Norfolk, where the east coast air he has always found to be beneficial.

It is being suggested that a thanksgiving service for the King's recovery should be held in Westminster Abbey at the end of July, with similar services in other large cities.

Seventy prisoners, the majority transferred from the Kingston penitentiary, a few miles north of Winnipeg, while the remainder were landed here from the westward journey to Prince Albert, penitentiary.

The special train consisted of four steel coaches, the windows of which were heavily barred. Guards armed with rifles, were aboard the train, while during the stop here forty provincial policemen, also armed with rifles, surrounded the train.

The journey from the penitentiary at Kingston was uneventful, according to the prison guards.

Succeeds Lord Revelstoke

Paris.—Sir Charles Addis, director of the Bank of England, and noted English financial expert, has been appointed to succeed Lord Revelstoke as head of the British delegation at a conference on reparations Lord Revelstoke died suddenly on April 18, wounded by the committee's abortive attempts to reach some settlement of the tangled problem of German payments.

Gibson's Proposals

Geneva.—It was understood here that ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, American spokesman at the preparatory disarmament conference, would prepare a memorandum outlining United States disarmament proposals and hand this later to delegations of the great powers.

British Election In May

London, England.—Premier Baldwin announced in the House of Commons recently the prorogation and dissolution of parliament for May 10, and intentions for seats in the House on May 30, and polling on May 30.

MORE NORSEMEN FOR THE WEST

This photograph was taken at Winnipeg after the arrival of the first immigrant special train this season, over the Canadian National Railways, March 30. There were 200 broad-shouldered Scandinavians in a total of 360 arrivals, which included 22 British settlers. Two trains, which followed the first special a day later, brought the total of new-comers up to nearly one thousand. At least half were Scandinavians. All the immigrants have been placed by the Canadian National Railways' Colonization Department.

Germany Wants Aerial Bombs Abolished

But Objections Were Raised By Several Countries

Geneva.—The German proposal to abolish the use of aerial bombs in warfare was defeated before the League's preparatory commission on disarmament. Only five countries were in its favor—Germany, Sweden, Holland, China and Russia. Those against it, including Canada, the U.S. and Great Britain, registered their objections with a rider that a negative vote was not to be interpreted as in any way authorizing the use of aerial bombs against civil popula tions.

Count Von Bernstorff, of Germany, pointed out the toll that could be exacted by bombing planes over Paris, Berlin and London, and said that this method of warfare was horrible and cowardly, because the combatants were protected by defensive appliances.

F. Sokal, of Poland, said no one would deny the horror of such methods but the conference had not reached that point and under the Kellogg anti-war pact was not likely to reach it. When war had been outlawed, it was logical to go on to codifying rules of war, he remarked.

M. Litvinoff, of the Soviet here intimated that Poland's Fahrenheit low zero at Nottingham in January, and 50 degrees above zero in July at Archangel live.

Fog was noted on 39 days and on 14 of these it was dense. Many icebergs were seen. They drifted down through Davis Strait, were carried west along the north shore by the current and finally by the southerly current on the south shore which took them into the Atlantic where their direction sailing stations in addition to those at Cape Hope, Ad vocate, and Nottingham Island are recommended. Add two lightvessels, one based at Fort Churchill and the other at a suitable harbor in the strait.

"The knowledge that an ice breaker is available if necessary," the report states, "gives confidence to navigators of steamers and shipping interests generally."

Other recommendations deal with charting the strait and providing a fuel base.

ITALY DEMANDS EQUALITY AS TO NAVAL POWER

Geneva.—The problem of navy parity between France and Italy loomed out as a reef which might upset the success of any five-power naval conference to reduce armaments.

Premier Mussolini is reported here as the head of the Italian delegation is fly for Italy with France, both on land and sea, while France apparently finds to see the justice of such demands.

France thinks her communications with her extensive colonial possessions and her defense needs down to two oceans are sufficient reasons for her having naval forces superior to Italy's.

This problem of satisfying Italy at least on paper is worrying delegates to the preparatory disarmament commission. Some are beginning to worry whether a real advance on the naval problem could even be made by establishing first of all an understanding between the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

The Associated Press correspondent has received the impression that the Italian attitude is governed largely the way of such a preliminary understanding if it is not to affect her position in relation to the continental powers. A high French authority voiced recently enthusiastic approval of the speech of Hugh S. Gibson, United States delegate to the preparatory disarmament conference in 1930. This would involve a second session of the preparatory disarmament commission during the present summer, until which time he thought the naval question had better be adjourned.

ANTI-SMUGGLING TREATY MAY GO TO ARBITRATION

Washington.—Terminating the diplomatic correspondence on the "Im Alone" sinking, Canada replied to the United States rejoinder to the protest against the sinking by coast guards' gun fire on the high seas, of the Canadian schooner suspected of conspiracy against American liquor laws.

Hon. Vincent Massey, the Canadian minister, delivered to Secretary Henry L. Stimson, a note which is expected to reveal the Dominion's attitude to the "I'm Alone" case in particular, and the scope of the anti-smuggling treaty of 1924 in general.

It is generally accepted here that the United States wants the case to go to arbitration. It is expected Canada will accept. Arbitration probably will proceed under the provision of the 1924 treaty itself which leaves any dispute over the seizure of a ship to a tribunal composed of representatives of both countries.

Because of the whole question of the right of "hot and continuous pursuit," under the treaty will be involved, the importance of the principles would transcend the single case of the "I'm Alone."

The British government is acting back and is being closely watched because the ships is of Canadian registry. But the decision will affect some far-reaching questions of international waters, and United States rights under the special treaty to claim the 12-mile limit specified in its own tariff act.

The treaty was signed by Lord Tyrrell and technically London would have the right to say who would represent the British Empire on the arbitration board. It is likely that some prominent Canadian will be appointed however and he will serve for the Empire.

It is suggested here that the former secretary of state, Frank B. Kellogg, may represent the United States.

Typhoid Fever At the Pas

Serious Epidemic Relieved To Be Caused By Water

The Pas, Man.—Active measures to stamp out the outbreak of typhoid fever, which already has taken a toll of three lives, and stricken more than a score of persons in the little northern railway town 4 Mile 327, on the Hudson Bay Railway, are under way. Four doctors now are in the town, all available cases have been inoculated, and the water supply has been chlorinated. Impure water is believed to have caused the epidemic.

Twelve of the stricken residents of the town have been conveyed to hospital in The Pas, while eight others are confined to the little hospital at Mile 327.

Organize Wheat Pool

Lincoln, Neb. Wheat-raisers of Nebraska and Wyoming to the number of 200 have effected organization of a wheat pool giving it the name of the Middle West Market Association, and a co-operative. The pool was said to represent 12,000 grain farmers in the two states and claim to be the largest in the middle west.

H.B. STRAITS ARE OPEN FOR FOUR MONTHS OF YEAR

Ottawa.—Hudson Strait will be safe for navigation for at least four months in the year, The report of the Hudson Strait expedition for 1927-28 tabled in the House of Commons gives the probable period as from the middle of July to the middle of November.

In his report N. B. McLean, officer in charge, says in part:

"Taking July 19 as the opening date for the Strait, and November 16 when the ice was first reported at Nottingham in 1927, as the closing date, we get a season of 120 days or practically four months, during which protected vessels could have navigated with safety and without assistance of ice breakers."

A further indefinite period would be added, he continues, with the use of ice breakers.

Some doubt is expressed in the report that two years' observations are sufficient on which to base any accurate statement on the length of the navigation season

The extremes of temperature are given as a degree of Fahrenheit below zero at Nottingham in January, and 50 degrees above zero in July at Archangel live.

Australia Commemorated Landing Of Troops At Gallipoli

Sydney, N.S.W.—Anzac Day, set aside to mark the famous landing of the Australians and New Zealand troops at Gallipoli with the aid of strong naval forces on April 25, 1917, was fittingly commemorated in Australia and New Zealand. The outstanding New South Wales feature was the march of 20,000 ex-service men at Sydney.

At Canberra, the Federal capital, an impressive memorial service was attended by Premier Stanley Bruce and his cabinet, while Lord Somerton, Governor-General of Australia, unveiled the commemoration stone of Australia's war memorial which will cost $1,250,000

It May Be Funny to Some Folks

With the advent of the present bright Alberta sunshine and warm spring weather one would think that heavy eiderdown quilts and Hudson's Bay four-point blankets were no longer in demand. Such is not the case, however, as one prominent Vermilion citizen has found to his cost, for a large, practically new eiderdown quilt, a pair of the best four point blankets along with a felt under-mattress, disappeared from his clothes line Monday night where they had been hung during the course of the day.

SCOUT MARWOOD BRIMACOMBE TO HAVE FREE EUROPEAN TRIP

Wins Scholarship

Marwood Brimacombe, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M.G. Brimacombe has been selected as one of six delegates to attend the International Boy Scout Jamboree to be held at Birkenhead, Dunland, from July 19th to August 12th. Consequently Marwood, in company with the remainder of the boys, is doubtless looking forward to the time of his life.

The trips were won in the form of scholarships provided from the Governor General's fund, which means that they will be sent to the big Scouts' celebration at no cost to the province to the local contingent of Boy Scouts. This by the way, is the parting gift of Rev A B Sage to the boys.

The parade promises to be bigger than on any previous occasion, invitations having been issued to the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and Wolf Cubs to take part in the Kiddies' Day Celebration.

Races, etc. will form part of the entertainment for the outer man while ice cream, peanuts, etc., etc. will be provided in abundance for the "inner man."

Given good weather, it should be a great day, and the Brother Bills want to see every kiddy in town and district out on May 24th.

Sees Father For First Time At Mary Lake

Quaint Story of Miss Valfrieda Strauman

Miss Valfrieda Straauman (ever-) three-year old daughter of Karl Straauman of Mary Lake district, some 5 miles north of Vermilion on May 11 declared at the close of Sunday's lasting cause all the way from Leticia province in Russia, and at the Bible sitting she met for the first time whom she never before seen. Tickle told by Miss Straauman who hi other surprised all the facts of the cause in a quaint one and is well worth relating.

Probably more than 23 years ago Karl Straauman, her father left the province of Letvia for the more fruitful opportunities offered in Canada. Mr Straauman had views and a few of his own and his departure was somewhat hurried because the Czar-ist government in the Russia of those times did not like his political beliefs. Mr. Straauman left behind him his young wife. Shortly after he had left Valfrieda was born, but during the early stages of the war which swept over the home of the Straauman, the little girl was lost track of and it was only a short time ago that Miss Straauman happened on some letters which gave her the knowledge of the whereabouts of her father. She immediately corresponded with him with the final result that Karl Straauman had his daughter come to him in Canada, where last week at Islay, he saw her for the first time.

Miss Valfrieda likes Canada and says that she thinks she will like the people as soon as she becomes better acquainted among them and that she has left no tears behind her in her native land.

ELKS Kiddies' Day May 24

The preparations being made by B.P.O.E. for their big day on May 24 bid fair to outshine all the previous efforts of the local Elks. The kiddies of the town and district are assured of the "time of their lives," while the grown-ups are promised a dance at night which will linger long in the memory. One of the outstanding features of the afternoon's programme will be the presentation of a new flag to the local contingent of Boy Scouts. This by the way, is the parting gift of Rev A B Sage to the boys.

The parade promises to be bigger than on any previous occasion, invitations having been issued to the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and Wolf Cubs to take part in the Kiddies' Day Celebration.

Races, etc. will form part of the entertainment for the outer man while ice cream, peanuts, etc., etc. will be provided in abundance for the "inner man."

Given good weather, it should be a great day, and the Brother Bills want to see every kiddy in town and district out on May 24th.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Now that the uniforms are all distributed it is hoped all the boys will be on next Tuesday in full uniform as the Council of Review held on Tuesday it was decided that a good part of the next meeting would be devoted time to preparing for the 24th of this month when we hope to have a large turn out and show how small a Troop we are.

On Wednesday morning the Secretary received the official word that Marwood Brimacombe had been selected as the delegate to the Jamboree. The chance of Marwood will be a popular one and we all wish him the best of luck with no hard feelings among the other candidates in this district.

The Scouts have undertaken to roll the tennis courts every day for a week or two and the boys will get the instructions from their Patrol Leaders.

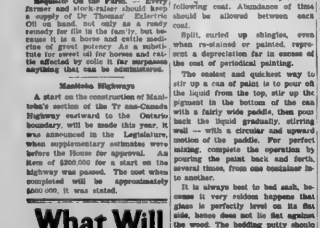
Manitoba Highways

A start on the construction of Manitoba's section of the Ty ans-Canada highway eastward to the Ontario boundary, will be made this year, it was announced in the legislature, when supplementary estimates were before the House for approval. An item of $250,000 for a start on the highway was passed. The cost when completed will be approximately $000 000, it was stated.



There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least 5 million homes are never without it. Yet there are children in your family there's almost daily need of its comfort! And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product, a baby remedy made for young folks Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous as a tiny baby however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name and remember to buy it! It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready; always safe to use; in emergencies or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes fretful, or restless Castoria was never more welcome with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

Paint Pointers

Ei finishing wood it is important that the groundwork be sandpapered and thoroughly dusted off before the next coat is applied. Dusting is indispensable to good workmanship, particularly in the case of woodwork, furniture and automobiles, where a high gloss is the aim of the finisher, and this holds be good whether the work is to be finished in varnish, enamel, color varnish, or even in a high gloss oil paint. Without the duster, even when other conditions are perfect, work will present a blotched, disappointing, and seedy appearance, and, the higher the gloss in the finishing product, the more this condition will be reflected. "Dusting off" does not mean that the dust is to be scattered from any given surface with a rag or anything that comes handy. It simply means that a soft bristle, painter's duster is to be used and that the dust is not only to be removed from the surface under treatment, but also from everything in close proximity to the scene of operations.

In the application of paint to trim work, the first thing to be done is to see that the surface absolutely free from rust. A mere scratch with a knife will seldom be sufficient; a good rubbing with a wire scratch brush is more effective The nurcer of varnishing does not depend altogether upon the quality of the varnish itself. The conditions necessary to ensure satisfactory work are numerous, but the most important are, cleanliness of brushes and surroundings, and a warm temperature.

The first coat on new plaster should be very thin in order that the paint may penetrate and harden the surface so as to form a key for the following coat. Abundance of thinn should be allowed between each coat.

Spirit, curled up shingles, even when re-stained or painted, represent a depreciation far in excess of the cost of periodical painting.

The easiest and quickest way to stir up a can of paint is to pour off the liquid from the top, stir up the pigment in the bottom of the can with a fairly wide paddle, then pour back the liquid gradually, stirring well — with a circular and upward motion of the paddle. For perfect mixture, complete the operation by pouring the paint back and forth, several times, from one container to another.

It is always best to bed sash, because it very seldom happens that sash is perfectly level on its top side, hence does not lie flat against the wood. The bedding putty should be soft enough to run freely from under the thumb.

Whenever possible, shingles, for at least three-quarters of their length should be dipped in a vat of stain and after they are laid a finishing coat should be given them.

Duster bristles should be washed with soap and water before being used on white woodwork, otherwise they are apt to discolor the parts of the ground.

Chamois skins for finishing work should never be thrown on the floor nor allowed to come in contact with gritty substances.

Raw linseed oil and turpentine, mixed, in an infinitely better medium than water for keeping brushes soft.

Spots of flat wall paint from ceilings or walls should never be allowed to dry on the woodwork They should be wiped off at the end of the morning's work, and again at the end of the day, with a rag soaked in turpentine. A little labor expended in this way will save hours of hard work in the finishing of the floors and woodwork.

The time allowed for drying between coats depends on conditions of temperature, ventilation and surface. Time does not mean that a paint manufacturer who declares on his label that forty-eight hours should elapse between coats is merely guessing Not at all! The product has undoubtedly been tested and manufacturer's set on this time schedule under fair conditions, but unfortunately, it is likely to be applied under conditions that are decidedly unfair —such as a cold room, no ventilation, greasy or smoky surface and in such cases the scheduled time of forty-eight hours ceases to possess any value as a reliable guide. As a matter of fact the correct time lapse might be four days—or a week! When the preceding coat is so dry that there is absolutely no suggestion of "tackiness" under a firm pressure of the fingers by hand, the second may be safely applied.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 12

THE EARLY MINISTRY OF JEREMIAH

Golden Text: "We must obey God rather than men."—Acts 5:29.

Lesson: Jeremiah 1.1-10; 6.10, 11; 8.18; 9.1; 26.1-24.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 36.1-7.

Explanations and Comments

Jeremiah's Call and Commission, 1.1-10.—Jeremiah was the son of Hilkiah (not the Hilkiah who found the book of the law, see last lesson) a priest in the little town of Anathoth, near Jerusalem. Jeremiah's name ("appointed by God"), and his father's ("Jehovah is my portion"), are tokens of the family's loyalty to the God of Israel. For a time when the outburst among the Jews of a very different class of personal names betrays on the part of many a lapse from the true faith, and when the loyal remnant of the people were being persecuted by King Manasseh" (the thirteenth year of Josiah's reign (about 626 B.C.). Jeremiah became conscious of his call to be the prophetic office. It is natural to look forward to a time when the dedicated upon his country's sins, but felt himself to be unworthy for them, but was most reluctant to undertake the task. The inward struggle which took place in his mind over and shrinking heart when something different from his own inclination was made him certain that he was called to be the prophet of woe, so he tells in the form of a dialogue between God and himself.

Jeremiah speaks: "Ah, Lord Jehovah! behold, I cannot speak: for I am a child." Jeremiah was not a child in years, but in consciousness of his own inexperience himself at the moment of his call. Moses, it may be recalled, had said Gideon, then an Isaiah, and now a Jeremiah, all of whom became the pliant of their own unfitness. But although their first reluctance was like that of Naginel when he cried:

"The time is out of joint;—O, cursed spite!
That ever I was born to set it right."

yet with them all there was no delay in rendering themselves more fit for their tasks.

"There is a lesson here for all who feel in the depths of the tyranny of their outward lot. There are hard tasks against which we chafe and fret. We are to set to tasks which we feel to be beyond us. We are placed in surroundings which we loathe and dislike. We are all tempted to turn for many relief from the burden of our lot from which the weak heart shrinks, knew that the blessedness promised by Christ is yours, and cherish the hope that God will overrule even that

Harry Service, who was badly hurt by his horses taking fright and running away, dragging him about half a mile last Friday night, is still unconscious in the Islay hospital.

Mr. J. I. James, solicitor of Manville, has made arrangements to visit Islay every Thursday and will occupy Mr. J. T. Fyfe's office on his professional business trips.

There were seven young people united in the United church at the communion service last Sunday evening.

A very enjoyable and elaborate tea in honor of Mrs D. C. Nelson was held on Monday in the United church by the W. A. of the church and the Sunshine Club on her departure from Islay. The tables were daintily set with the best that the good cooks of Islay could provide, and the pretty tea-clothes, doilies and choice china and silverware. Mrs Nelson was very popular and will be a distinct loss to the social life of the town. Mr. and Mrs Nelson left on Tuesday for their new home at Elk Point, where Mr. Nelson will be manager of the Hayward Lumber Co of that town.

Driving Smash May Prove Fatal

HEAVY MAN UNCONSCIOUS SINCE FRIDAY NIGHT

What may prove to be a fatal accident took place one mile north of Islay last Friday night when the wagon driven by Harry Service was struck by a car driven by Otto Walker, resulting in the horses running away and dragging Service for nearly half a mile as he was thrown from the wagon.

Service had been working on his father's farm north of Kitscoty and at the time of the accident was going to his homestead north of Cowley to put a crop in on it. About a mile north of Islay a car driven by Otto Walker attempted to pass him on an extremely narrow part of the road, bordered on either side by a deep ditch. The car struck the front wheel of the wagon, the impact throwing young Service out and causing the horses to bolt. Service became entangled in the lines and was dragged nearly half a mile. His head and face were badly bruised and his spine injured. He has not yet regained consciousness. Mr Walker took the injured man to the hospital in Islay and immediately phoned the A. F. P. officer at Lloydminster, who came up to investigate the case on Saturday.

Mr Harry Service is the son of Mr and Mrs Roy Service, who farm near Kitscoty, settling there nearly 25 years ago, having originally come from Poland. The injured man was born in this country and is 22 years old. He is a married man with a small child.

The rush of wings sounded high in the air as wild ducks passed in swift flight on their yearly pilgrimage to the south. Occasionally a flock would lower in gradually narrowing circles to land with a splash in the restful waters of the lake, then to stretch tired wings, the while bobbing their heads and quacking contentedly. Flocks of geese passed in wedge-shaped formation, their honking coming faintly from a dizzy height. A flock of Arctic swans, skimming so low that the very tip ends of their wings could be heard, landed in the centre of the lake with a great commotion. There with their beautiful necks proudly arched they, floated like white ghosts throughout the night. The red and yellow leaves, like gaudy curtains draped the deciduous trees. The wild crab-apple and high-bush cranberry hung frozen on the naked branches. The sun was surrounded by a ring and shone weakly through a misty haze. The unmistakable breath of the north wind was in the air.

Old John Bain traps down from the loft and oiled them. A patch was found needed to a worn moccasin, and new laces were inserted in his snowshoes. "Winter's comin', ol' timer, and we're going to have a heavy fall of snow." he mused to himself. For two days Nature gave warning, then on the second night the storm came.

A roaring wind came bellowing from the north, lashing the waters of the lake to foam, tearing at Donald's cabin with the strength of invisible giant hands, and howling through the forest with shrieking wails. Gust came upon gust with increasing strength, and in the short lulls could be heard the swish of the sleety snow against the windows.

The big trees creaked as they swayed in the gale, and with a loud groan, as if in mortal pain, a huge forest monarch, as its roots gave way, fell crashing down the smaller trees to smite the earth with a resounding crash.

The wind went down through the night, but the snow fell steadily. When Donald opened his door next morning he looked out on a new world. The wizardry of frost and snow had given the earth a blanket of white that was eye-blinding in its brilliancy under the bright morning sun. The keen frost had locked the lake tight under a coating of clear ice.

CHAPTER XIX.

With a fond hope that he would receive word of the Walnwrights, Donald eagerly awaited the coming of each mail; but after a month of disappointment he became less sanguine, and threw himself desperately into work in a vain attempt to allay his heartache.

During the long winter the mill continued operations in spite of heavy snows, the roads being kept open by the continual traffic.

Donald came twice with gay parties to enjoy the ski-ing and snowshoeing. She found that she loved Donald, and decided that any encounter as to his past was as nothing when weighed against her need of him. Then she reproached herself for allowing her pride to estrange him from her, and with all the arts of a beautiful and cultured woman she sought to regain the power she once held over him.

On one occasion, when Janet meaningly closed the door after her, she crept look in his eyes and caught her breath sharply. The very thought of losing him stabbed her like a knife-thrust.

With the coming of March a change came over the earth. Winter observed and reluctantly loosed his hold. Gentle showers and warm winds from the south honey-combed the ice on the lake; snowdrifts faded away, and the frost-bound soil gave forth earthy odours to replace the keen smell of the snow.

One morning a song sparrow under Donald's window sent out its sweet "Sweet - chip-chee-chee-chu-wee-wee," and from the top of a swaying alder a wren curdled his joy of living in full-throated lustre that said that spring was here. Stirred by the warmth and cleaving buds, the frogs came from the mud, where they had lain dormant all winter, and with swelling throats and bulging cheeks sent out their cheerful "k'tunk, k'chunk."

Mists covered the lake, and in an open spot near the mouth of the creek a flock of ducks disported themselves happily. The sun grew higher with every dawn, gaining strength each day until its warming energy spread the beauty of colour and fragrance over all.

One afternoon, when the air pulsated with the song of birds, and newly-opened buds burdened the atmosphere with perfume, Donald walked up the hill to Walnwright's cabin.

Scores of birds, returned from there yearly pilgrimage to the south, flitted about the deserted buildings, but there was no golden-haired girl with a welcoming smile to greet them. Rivulets from the melting snows had gouged channels in the once neatly kept plots of wild flowers, and the roof of one of the smaller huts had fallen in.

Donald pushed open the door of the main building and entered. The air felt chill and dank. He experienced a quick depression of spirits, and his heart ached as he surveyed the gloomy interior. He shivered as a peck-rat scuttled across the floor and disappeared under Connie's bunk. With a heavy heart he returned to the bright sunshine, sat down, and gave himself over to a period of melancholy retrospection.

FLU Germs Breed in the Throat.
First Appear As A Common Cold, But Gain Tremendous Headway In Six Hours
SOME SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INFLUENZA
Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of Influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chest is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline. Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.
Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding germs. This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

Scientist Makes New Discovery

Says Milk Treated By Wireless Waves Keeps Sweet For Weeks

An Austrian scientist claims to have discovered a method by which milk treated by wireless waves of short length can be kept sweet for for three or four weeks. The new "wireless milk" is produced by passing an intense beam of silver waves through the liquid. This is said to kill all germs which cause milk to turn. The milk itself is not heated by this treatment, and does not acquire a "cooked" taste.

Little Helps For This Week

"Consider the lilies of the field."—Matthew vi. 28.

Consider then the lilies,
O heart of mine, today;
They neither toil nor spin to win
Their beautiful array.
I would that thou couldst lead a lily
So fearless, sweet as they.
—Margaret E. Sangster.

There is a wise meaning and a gracious design in every tint of the lily's adornment and every curve of its grace. Its symmetry is a type and proof of the divine justice. Its life is co-ordinated, and keeps time with the sublime motions of the heavens; and its structure and uses are full of the profound teachings of the Great Creator. God, that He might care for an individual flower which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, much more will He care for an individual human being whom He has made in His own image, and whose life He has made such momentous issues to depend.—Hugh Macmillan.

Solitude Reduces Sentence

Many Criminals In France Prefer Isolation For This Reason

In France's modern prisons at Fresnes-Rungis, 1200 white-masked prisoners live in absolute silence. They neither see each other's faces or hear their voices. From the moment a metal number is hung around his neck, the prisoner is required to wear a white hood whenever he leaves his cell and he may not speak to his fellows. He sees the face of his guard from time to time, but no other, unless he be sent to the hospital or to the warden for discipline. Alone in his cell, he works eight hours a day, but good will and skill enable him to reduce the time to six hours and the money he earns enables him to buy small comforts. The government receives thirty-two cents a day from contractors for each prisoner's work and gives from three-tenths to half the money to the prisoner. The prisoner never sees the money till he leaves, but half of it is placed to his immediate credit for his little expenses. Yet in spite of all that many criminals ask to be sent here because the solitude entitles them to a reduction of one-fourth of their sentence.

Large Scale Fertilizer Industry To Supply the Needs Of Prairie Farmers

"Substantial fortunes are awaiting the prospectors who unearth some of the potash believed to be stored away in the mountains of British Columbia," said George H. Kilburn, of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Corporation, which is working out a large-scale fertilizer industry at Trail to supply the needs of the Prairie Provinces. Mr. Kilburn mentioned that the company is making free analysis of potash specimens submitted so as to assist prospectors.

Saskatchewan Famous For Clays

Saskatchewan has a greater variety of clays, in larger quantities and of the higher grades, than any other Canadian province, and will, without doubt, become the centre of a very important ceramic industry. The clays of Saskatchewan have been the subject of special investigations by the Department of Mines, Ottawa.

Saving Seven Seconds

Many Motorists In Attempting It Have Lost Their Lives

It has been established that seven seconds is the average length of time it takes a fast railroad train to get by a level crossing That isn't a long period of time to the living, but it has meant eternity to many thousands of motorists who couldn't spare the seven seconds They risked their lives to save them. Most everybody, in motoring across the country, has on two or three occasions hurried to cross a railroad ahead of a train, so that they wouldn't have to wait. Some others valued the seven seconds so highly they paid with their lives for them.

Denies Teaching Soviet Doctrine

Peter Kusalak Replies to Charges Preferred Against Him

The commission sitting here as a board of reference with His Honor Judge Taylor as chairman to inquire into complaints preferred against Peter Kusalak, former teacher at Primrose Ukrainian settlement north of Vermilion, concluded its work Saturday afternoon. Further evidence may be given at Edmonton.

Evidence adduced, while not very convincing, still seemed to point to the existence of a secret organization in which some of the pupils and teachers were involved. Letters of a somewhat incriminating nature and signed "Golden Peak" were found and alleged to have been written by Kusalak C. Robinson, successor to Kusalak, said he noticed evidences of subversive attitude which he felt due to their current understanding. He had also ascertained from three or four of the boys, he asserted, that they had been assisted by Kusalak in their examinations. A letter written by an official of the department of education however, stated that after a thorough examination they could find no evidence of assistance and if copying were done it was very ingeniously concealed.

Kusalak took the stand in his own defence, giving an absolute denial to all the charges preferred against him. As to the story of the boys who detailed the manner in which he had assisted them in their examination papers, he said "It was false" Pupils in a Ukrainian settlement and the trouble appeared as he mainly over what they claimed was the teaching of socialism in the school by Kusalak. Kusalak is now at Bellis and the school board of that district sent representatives here to watch proceedings.

Kusalak is applying for reinstatement and his application is backed by the Teachers' Alliance on the ground that his certificate had been cancelled by the department without proper inquiry.

POULTRY MANAGEMENT

(By Alex. Taylor's Hatchery Wpg.)

Of the three phases of poultry raising — feeding, breeding and management — there is no doubt that feeding is commercially most important and to be really profitable one must have a well bred to-lay flock, take good care of them, feed good feed and keep the poultry house sanitary. Low average egg production is undoubtedly due to feeding hens entirely on whole grain. Hens fed on grain and given all they want and allowed to balance ration, average fifty eggs per year. Biologically tested mash has produced 200 egg hens at a small additional cost above grain fed hens. The objects of feeding are to maintain the body in good health, to promote the most rapid and effective growth to obtain maximum egg production. A hen requires from 75 to 90 pounds of food per year; 60 to 70 per cent goes to body maintenance. A hen is expected to produce several times her weight in eggs in the course of a year and one that lays 200 two ounce eggs produces approximately 11 ounces of egg shells; that is one of the reasons why minerals play such an important part in poultry feeding. If the feed is not sufficient in mineral protein or carbohydrates the bird's system is unquestionably severely strained. The ration for a laying hen must include the necessary ingredients in the right amount to nourish all parts of the body and make eggs. She may lay for some time at the expense of her body tissue but ultimately the result is lower egg production and higher mortality. The materials that compose foods are chemically classified as carbohydrates, fat, protein, ash and water. The carbohydrates and fat consist essentially of carbon and water, that function is to supply heat, energy and fat for the body tissues, also yolk for the egg. Proteins in the food should be so balanced as to supply proteins for the chicken and the egg as possible. Ash or minerals play an exceedingly important part in poultry nutrition. A laying hen needs a large quantity of minerals and to feed a ration deficient in minerals will tend to have weak bones and thereon, bush thin and is subject to disease. Large amounts of calcium are required for bones, egg shells and tissues, also quantities of phosphorus, sodium and chlorine are required for blood, bones and tissues. If a hen is given a ration of sufficient quantity of minerals she will eat their laying or decrease the size of the egg and sometimes vomit shelled corn. Feeding which consists of the birds consuming large quantities of mash gives them large quantities of minerals and are able to maintain body weight under the strain of hen 77 cent production.

The Cod Liver Meal and Oil in the mash not only supply quantities of minerals but ensure full mineral nutrition to the other foods in the mash, thus ensuring the blood, strengthens the texture of the shell and the health of the hen in winter and summer, and also during the moulting season

No. 1 Hole — 385 yards, Par 4.

Jasper, Alberta, will be the venue of the Canadian Amateur Championships of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, August 19th to 24th, this year. The Jasper Park Lodge course has by no means been made by an amateur player, and many reputations are likely to be shattered in the tournament this summer. It is expected that the course, which has been described by experts as the finest on the continent, will attract many of the outstanding players of North America.

The photograph shows the first hole of the Jasper Park Lodge course as seen from the tee. Below is a plan of the first hole with the yardage to scale marked below it. Practically every hole on the course has been the amateur championships all play will be from tee No. 1.

Co-incident with the Championships Tournament, the Western Canada Amateur will also be played over the Jasper Park Lodge course.

Over 300 Whales Taken By Canadian Vessels

Ottawa, May 6.—It may be news to a good many people, but whaling adds a tidy little sum every year to the British Columbia trade totals. Last year 336 whales were taken by the fleet of six steamers operating from the two whaling stations on the British Columbia coast and were used in the production of fish meal, fertilizer and oil. Figures covering the value of the 1928 production have not yet been finally revised by the Fisheries Branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries but in 1927, when the number of whales killed was 47 less than in 1928, the value of the meal, fertilizer, oil and whalebone obtained was $241,686.

Of the 306 whales taken last year the largest number, 146, were of the finback variety. Eighty-three sperm whales were killed, 47 sulphur, 21 humps, 31 of the sei variety, and one blue baleabone.

Canadian Canery Biggest Sardine Plant In Empire

Ottawa, May 6.—Sardines are small fish but they mean big money, in the total, in Canada's Atlantic Coast fishery production, and through the season in New Brunswick they keep busy the largest sardine cannery in the British Empire. This cannery is at Black's Harbor on the Charlotte county coast of New Brunswick, the province where by far the greater part of the Canadian sardine fishery is carried on. A small catch of sardines is also taken in Quebec and some of the fish are also caught in Nova Scotia waters. The marketed value of the Canadian production is over a million dollars a year.

Statistics compiled by the Fisheries Branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries show that the total catch of sardines in 1928 was 52,796,200 pounds—a big increase over 1927 when 22,934,000 pounds were landed. The 1928 catch had a landed value to fishermen of $240,235 as compared with $202,000 in the previous year.

"In power, ease of driving, and flexibility, the new McLaughlin-Buick outperforms any car I have ever driven." (name on request)

THE owner quoted above has been driving automobiles for 15 years, and has an intimate knowledge of motor car performance and value. Yet his unsolicited testimony typifies that of thousands who have turned to McLaughlin-Buick after making their own exacting comparisons.

Not only have motorists in all parts of the country accepted McLaughlin-Buick's invitation to get behind the wheel and get the facts about McLaughlin-Buick performance . . . but they have entered orders for more than twice as many McLaughlin-Buicks as any other car at or above its price.

British Soldier Families

Among recent newcomers to Canada were 30 families of British soldiers. These families totalled 164 individuals and their migration to Canada was sponsored by the British and Canadian Legions, in co-operation with the colonization department of the Canadian National Railways and the Cunard Line. Several more family movements under the same auspices will take place during the year.

"Safety Week" Is Worthy Campaign For All Alberta

With the accident toll on a fairly heavy scale in Alberta, there is a necessity for terse and other drastic measures to adopt a Safety Week campaign. This has been introduced in other parts of the country and met with gratifying success

The motor traffic season will soon be at its height. Not only will Alberta citizens be using their cars practically all of the time, but newcomers will be streaming in from all directions.

Under such conditions, the closest call is for safety. To lay down the motto that all is first duty of all drivers and that can only be brought about by initiating and observing safety measures.

Brake testing headlight checking and screening of careful driving can be well emphasized in a safety week campaign. Even the period might be made longer without impairing the benefits of one little bit.

In undertaking any safety campaign towns and other municipal authorities will find that there will be 100 per cent support from officers, officials or members of the Alberta Motor Association. That body stands ready at all times to promote and obtain the fullest possible amount of safety for all motor drivers using the highways of this province.

NOTABLE INCREASE IN GENERAL MOTORS SALES FOR QUARTER

Preference for Canadian-made Cars Brings Prosperity to Oshawa

Oshawa, Ont., May 7.—More than usual prosperity is being experienced by Oshawa and other motor centres as the result of increasing popularity of Canadian built cars. Latest manufacturer to report record sales returns is General Motors of Canada, whose general sales manager, J. H. Deaton made public today the number of production and sales of General Motors cars for the first three months of 1929 exceeded by thirty per cent. the figures for the first quarter of last year.

At the end of the last working day in March the sales of Monarch cars in Canada were 30 per cent. ahead of the sales of the first three months of last year, and the production of Monarch cars had increased 75 per cent. over the same period of 1928. The sales of Pontiac cars in the first three months of 1929 were 50 per cent. ahead of the sales of the first three months of last year, and the production of Pontiac cars had increased 75 per cent. over the same period of 1928. The sales of Oldsmobile cars in the first three months of 1929 were 30 per cent. ahead of the sales of the first three months of last year, and the production of Oldsmobile cars had increased 75 per cent. over the same period of 1928.

Commenting on the record achievement, Mr. Deaton pointed out in an interview that the increased sales were due entirely to the general confidence in General Motors products, and an average of over one hundred cars each full working day since the first of the year. To reach this average it was necessary to run completed cars off the assembly lines at the rate of practically one car a minute during every hour worked.

"Our production schedules for the next few months are based on a belief that favorable buying conditions will continue throughout the Dominion, and that the steady increase in General Motors sales will be maintained," Mr Deaton added

EXCHANGE FARM YOUTHS

Under an arrangement between the colonization department of the Canadian National Railways and the German Students' Cooperative Association, three young men from Germany have been placed on large farms in Western Canada. Three others were also placed in eastern Canada and six Canadian youths will be given an opportunity to acquire similar experience in Germany in exchange.

All of the young men are graduates of agricultural institutions in Germany. After working on the land until after the harvest they can, if they wish, attend an agricultural college for the balance of the year they will spend in Canada or they can remain on the farm for the full period.

Radio—An Agency For Peace

The sittings now being held by the Royal Commission on Radio appointed by the Dominion Government to study the whole question of broadcasting and make report to the Government as to best policy for Canada to adopt in the national interests of the whole Dominion, is having the effect of directing attention from the purely local and entertainment features of this latest of great modern discoveries and enabling people to appreciate more fully the tremendous possibilities of aerial communication, both in a national and international sense

While undoubtedly there is a feeling of regret in Canada that, because of natural causes, it is much easier for people in Western Canada to "listen in" on stations in the Central Western States than it is to "get" stations in Eastern Canada, and for Eastern Canadians listeners to receive the programmes broadcast from New York, Philadelphia, and other Eastern United States cities than it is for them to "tune in" on Western Canadian Stations—a condition for which it is hoped the present Radio Commission can find some solution the fact remains that a closer community of interest between Canada and the United States, and consequently a still better understanding is being developed by means of the radio. And community of interest and understanding is the greatest of all bulwarks to Peace

But to many in this country it will come as a welcome surprise to learn of the great strides made by radio in Europe and the effect it is having in promoting greater understanding among the diverse nationalities and languages of that war-afflicted continent. It is almost inconceivable that within less than eleven years of the signing of the Armistice sending the Great War the radio should be used in Germany and England to teach the people not merely school children but adults, the French language; that international "hook-ups" of Germany, Poland, Austria, Hungary, France, and other countries are being regularly carried out, so that people in Paris and Warsaw can listen to German concerts in Berlin and Hamburg, and the German people can enjoy the opera in Paris, or a great symphony orchestra in Vienna or Budapest

There are some good people in Canada who still retain the old fashioned idea that it is unpatriotic and lacking in true British instincts to listen in this country, if children are taught in our schools to speak and read French, German, or any language but English In entertaining such ideas Canadians are far behind the times, they are not nearly so far advanced as they are in England and other countries where the learning of foreign languages is compulsory. If every Canadian child, whether of British or French descent, was obliged to learn both English and French, Canada would in a generation become more powerful, industrial and prosperous. It would open to our people the rich literature of both races; it would give us greater prestige among all nations; it would help to promote and expect trade in all the markets of the world In this Canada, by reason of its two great races, has an opportunity no other nation enjoys, yet we are not only neglecting it, but many people urge that it would be disloyal to our British connection to encourage it Yet Britain herself is doing it.

It is predicted that within three years, five years at the most, Canadians will through the development of national broadcasting at home, and the use of the beam system of wireless across the ocean, be able to sit in their homes and "listen in" on the finest programmes in the world broadcast from London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and other European centres of culture art and music.

We can now speak with Europe by telephone From the heart of Canada's prairies, and the day is fast approaching, so those in a position to know authoritatively state, when by radio we will be in more or less constant communication with Europe receiving the best they have to offer in public addresses, vocal and instrumental music, and the important news of the day In turn Canada will be brought equally close to them. And, in addition probability "seeing" Europe and European happenings through the instrumentality of the radio will more or less rapidly follow "hearing." just as, in reverse order, the "talking" picture has followed the silent movie.

And these things are all to the good, in the cause of world peace. As we know people and understand them our prejudices and suspicions are removed. We learn they are human just like ourselves: that they have high ideals and are inspired by lofty motives; that they love the things we love, and hate the unclean, the ugly, the vicious, just hate them. As we come to understand their problems and difficulties and aspirations, and they come to understand ours, mutual sympathy will develop, followed by a desire for co-operation rather than antagonism.

It is only on through mutual understanding that permanent world peace can be maintained and the maximum of true progress be made.

Means Taken To Guard Against Depletion Of Finny Tribe

River and lake fisheries certainly, and sea fisheries probably, if left to themselves, conform to the economic law of diminishing returns. The Canadian Government, accordingly, has had for a main object the protection of depletion, the enforcement of close seasons, the forbidding of obstructions and pollutions, and the regulation of nets, gear and fishing operations generally. In addition, an extensive system of fish culture has been organized, the Dominion operating 25 main hatcheries, 6 subsidiary hatcheries, and 4 salmon retaining ponds in 1927

Housing Lightning Flash

No Part Of It Ever Lasts For Appreciable Time

A lightning flash takes about one-seven-thousandth of a second to complete itself and no part of it lasts more than approximately one-thirty-five-hundredth of a second. This is the first time in history that the speed of a lightning flash has been measured. It has also been proved that lightning starts from the clouds and the ground at nearly the same instant, and approximately one-seven-thousandth of a second later the two ends unite in mid-air. These facts were determined by Dr. C. U. Boys, a British physicist, who has been attempting hundreds of photographs for the last twenty-six years, until a stroke of lightning in New York at last gave him this information

RHEUMATIC PAINS

Cannot Be Rubbed Out — The Trouble Must Be Treated Through the Blood

The pain of rheumatism is agonizing that you cannot rub out. Every physician of experience knows. You are advised to rub this or that liniment or oil on the affected part, but after all the rubbing the pain remained. This blood and rheumatism come together and the effect is very properly treated will go together. Anaemia means thin blood, and thin blood is something that can be corrected, so why not build up the blood and the rheumatic poisons are driven out?

This is exactly what is done by the treatment of rheumatism with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Rheumatism in any form shows improvement as the thin blood is built up, and when the corpuscles in the blood are overcome and driven out rheumatism disappears and does not return so long as the blood is kept rich and red. The great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the treatment of rheumatism is proved by the case of Mr. Thomas Martin, of Novar, Ont., who says—"For some years I was so badly troubled with rheumatism that I would hardly walk and suffered great pain. I had medical treatment but did not get much relief. Then I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking the pills for some time the trouble disappeared and has not since shown the least sign of returning."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Historian Finds Ancient Settlement In Heart Of India

Professor Stephen Oslard, archeologist and historian, has returned from a 13-months exploration trip in India and announced that he had discovered two Hungarian tribes in the heart of that country. He said they were named Mar and Marva.

He also said that he had found the ruins of a ancient palace, together with manuscripts, statues and ceramics which proved that the palace belong to Huns.

These tribes, the professor said, were descendants of Magyar nomads who left their homeland to conquer Europe with the army of Attilla 1,100 years ago.

Attractions For Tourists

Vast Extent Of Canada Offers Visitors Interesting Holiday

Canada has a million square miles of forest, countless lakes and thousands of miles of rivers and brooks, providing the finest hunting, fishing, canoeing and camping. The vast extent of Canada and the diversity of conditions in different sections make it difficult for the prospective visitor who is not familiar with the country to decide which particular section interests him most. To overcome this the Department of the Interior has published "Vacations In Canada," a 96-page handbook which sets forth the attractions which Canada offers to tourists and sportsmen This booklet describes the tourist attractions of each region in the Dominion — the climate, the motor roads, the points of historic interest, the fishing, hunting, canoeing and camping, the principal cities and the popular summer and winter resorts. In addition it gives a summary of the Canadian Customs regulations. "Vacations In Canada" is distributed without charge, from the Natural Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, at Ottawa.

COMMUNICATION

OPEN LETTER

To the President,
Vermilion Board of Trade.

Sir,—

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate you and the members of your Board on the splendid success which crowned your efforts in the recent "clean-up campaign." Much credit is due your organization for the influence you exerted in the cause of "a cleaner and healthier Vermilion."

Not only in this particular instance, but in many other branches of community endeavour, your Board has shown itself to be a public-spirited body of which Vermilion has had every reason to be proud, and I personally have on several occasions publicly expressed my admiration of the fine work you have accomplished.

It is, therefore, in no spirit of carping criticism that I am writing to you, through the columns of The Standard, to censure your indifferent attitude to a matter of paramount importance to this town and district. It is a co-ural custom in progressive towns for the local Board of Trade to undertake the reception and entertainment of distinguished visitors, and I was amazed yesterday when your Secretary informed me that no preparations whatever are being made in connection with the forthcoming visit to Vermilion of one of the foremost personalities in the American business world.

I refer, Sir, to Mr J Jamison Jones, who is undoubtedly the greatest advertising expert, on this continent.

Has it not occurred to you and your Executive that the business men of this community might learn much from the ripe experience of Mr. Jones in the advertising field ?

Surely, a banquet might have been arranged at which Jamison Jones could have been given an opportunity to speak. Of course, it is too late now to arrange anything along these lines, but I sincerely hope that your Board will carefully consider the damaging effect that the failure to take advantage on the high reputation hitherto held by them.

Since the Board of Trade have decided not to act in the matter, it is indeed a stroke of luck that the citizens of Vermilion are to have an opportunity or hearing this man and hearing something of his methods.

This is due to the fact that Mr. Jones' hobby is amateur theatricals, and has accepted an invitation to take a leading part in the musical comedy "Pickles," which is to be presented at the Columbia Theatre on Monday May 27th. Might I suggest that the Board of Trade could partly make up for their delinquency by attending the performance in a body. Think it over!

Yours truly,
VIGILANT.

Vermilion, Alta., May 9, 1929.

WENT "OVER THE TOP."

While the clean-up spirit is still in the air, Monday — which was both Arbor Day and our Civic Holiday — completed one of the greatest co-operative efforts ever consummated in this town in a mighty onslaught on "Old Man Dirt." What that night acknowledged utter defeat—but having a last left to stand on. It was a grand campaign, and everyone was too "decrone tired" Monday night to fully appreciate the results of the day's work, the realization of the transformation sank home the next morning —for the old town was a revelation to behold the utmost satisfaction, and even convert the most chronic kicker into an optimist and booster for a town beautiful.

From early morning till night the trucks and teams allotted to the different scenes made routine visits to the dump. Teams were still on the job Tuesday and Wednesday and the piles are pretty well depleted. The debris collected for motion pictures and in the last material barged in the progress of cleaning left no doubt in the minds of all that the campaign was undertaken none too soon.

The result of the clean-up drive should develop a strong civic pride which will continue to keep our town bright, clean and healthy. Careless ness in the handling of waste paper in time of the outstanding contributing to street and set untidiness. All paper should be burned, not thrown into indiscriminately on the rubbish heap to be blown to all parts of the town with the first wind. Receptacles for light rubbish and paper would be effective and do away entirely with the nuisance from this source. Tin cans scattered along the lanes and over lots is another offence easily prevented by exercising a little care. Nothing or no measure has the advantage as wads of loose papers of all shapes and kinds, and tin cans, which here-tofore some people have seemed to take a delight in planting round vacant lots. From now on, however, people are bound to have a different

FORTY-FOOT GIFT FOR RIDEAU HALL

The tableau note is one of the finest examples of Indian art. Right, Their Excellencies Viscount and Lady Willingdon and the C.P.R. Princess Norah, the ship which the first vice-regal tour of the west carried.

When Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Willingdon visited the West Coast of Vancouver Island on the inaugural cruise of the new Canadian Pacific steamer "Princess Norah" two new epochs were marked for that far-flung corner of the Dominion.

It was the first time that a Canadian Viceroy had ever come, and in turn, host soon on the rugged coast that is now teeming as one of the nation's important industrial centres, there was the first official arrival of the North brought to the Pacific Coast a representative to pay in regular service in West Coast waters, since the disappearance of the stately ships of Clyde built vessel

The West Coast had decked itself in gala attire for the visit of the great white chief from Ottawa. The tremendous excitement prevailing among whites and Indians alike at the sail was not dispelled by the fact that This Excellencies paid for quality to the Canadian and entered into the spirit of the many receptions and celebrations with a zest not exceeded by any tourist on the coast. Undoubtedly Lord Willingdon intimated after the tour a hope to return pole standing near nimation of his voyage that it would not be the last occasion on which he would see that particular part of Vancouver Island.

Loyalty of the Indians, evident at all points visited, was particularly demonstrated at Friendly Cove, historic spot discovered by Captain Cook in 1778, when a friend descendant of the great chief Maquinna, first ever to see the white man, gathered his tribe, the Nootka Indians head, in the great council hall to greet the vice-regal party. It was here that Lord and Lady Willingdon were recipients of one of the most valuable gifts in the bestowal of the coast Indians. A huge forty-foot totem pole that for stand for years on the sandy shore of Friendly Cove, the story of which is known to many, was presented to them.

Presentation of the totem was accompanied by ceremonies that were impressive in their simplicity yet picturesque was not lost. Chief Maquinna's head of the Nootka tribe, descendant of Maquinna, addressed the Indians' chief in their native tongue, and then, facing the representatives of the Dominion Government, presented the totem. Then Chief Hesquiat, of the tribe of the same name, addressed the Indians in their native tongue, and then, facing the representatives of the Dominion Government, presented the totem. Mixed Farming Is Becoming Popular

Various Phases Being Taken Up By Saskatchewan Farmers

Not a week passes but there is new evidence of how the farmers of Saskatchewan are taking hold of various phases of mixed farming. At Stockholm, Sask., S. M. Silcox, of the dairy branch of the Department of Agriculture, has been giving some interesting and helpful demonstrations and talks to farmers as to how they can improve in dairying methods, and in the course of which he declared that feeds grown on Saskatchewan farms could not be excelled anywhere in those ingredients that make for successful dairying. He also prophesied that in four or five years Saskatchewan herds would be amongst the leading herds on the continent! And now from R. M. Pugh, provincial apiarist, in an address over the radio comes this encouragement for Saskatchewan honey producers. A year ago, he pointed out, there were 920 registered beekeepers in the province and to-day there are 1,200. There has been an increase of 50 members in the association since March 1 of this year.

Manitoba To Spend Large Amount On Highway

Chinese Emperor Always Stopped Salary When He Was Ill

The amount of the remuneration of the King's physician is causing speculation in some quarters, but it is to be wondered how they would have fared under the reign of the great Celestial Emperor. With some difficulty he was made to comprehend the doctors were paid for the time they attended their patients by sickness. I have four to whom my health is committed, a second by salary is allowed them, but the moment I am ill their salary stops till I am well again. I need not inform you that my illnesses are very short."

Canadian National Railways Additions and Betterments

Extensive Programme Of Work Shown in Estimates Presented To Parliament

Additions and betterments to the Canadian National Railways System, amounting to approximately $35,-750,000 are to be carried out in 1929. This work is provided for in the estimates tabled in the House of Commons by the Honorable Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals.

The net financial and capital requirements of the railway for the year 1929, are placed at $35,750,000. These requirements, however, include $6,000,000 for sinking funds, principal payments, interest, etc.

The $35,750,000 for capital expenditures planned will be spent on general additions and betterments to the physical property of the railways. This work will include laying of heavy rail, some double track and grade revision to facilitate grain movement, extension of sidings and passing tracks, extension of freight and passenger yard and terminal facilities, bridges, development of the rock ballast programme, new steel structures, new ships for the Pacific Coastal Service of the Company, and numerous other items requiring the use of working capital.

Continuing the policy of increasing the standard and laying of 100 pound rail on the main line between Halifax and Vancouver, the work which has been under way during the past year, will proceed on the Atlantic, Central and Western Regions. In all, 191 track miles of new heavy rail is to be provided, requiring the purchase of 180 000 tons at a cost of $9,500 000 including rail fastenings, of which amount $1,112,000 is chargeable to capital account.

Of that total 301 miles will be laid in the Eastern Lines, 334 on the Central Region, excluding Eastern lines, and 160 on the Western Region, and 66 miles on the Grand Trunk Western lines. The principal sections on which new heavy rail will be laid are on the following main divisions: Bedford, 41 miles; Montmagny, 43 miles; Oka, 60 miles, Vilmur, 31 miles; Minaki, 61 miles; Brule, 55 miles.

In addition to new rail of heavy standard referred to in the foregoing, it is proposed to relay rail in various lines, totalling 600 track miles, with rail released from principal routes will be used on branch lines and lines where the traffic is of lighter character.

The work provided for will involve a charge of $330,000 on capital account.

In extending the use of heavier rail, the plates, rail anchors and cemented ties are required on more than a pro rata scale to obtain the highest possible standard of roadbed, necessitated by the increasing use of heavier locomotives and trains of greater tonnage, all of which makes for economical operation. The plates to the total of 7,400,000 will be required for 1929, at a capital cost of $1,380,000 and 1,350,000 rail anchors at a capital cost of $250,000.

To facilitate grain movement between Winnipeg and the head of the lakes, two stretches of double track and a passing siding have been planned. One such stretch will be from Redditt Junction to Middlebro, a distance of 7.5 miles, and the other from Raynham to Cambridge to Manitou. This work will cost $1,000,000. Another section of double track for this year is from Chappel Junction to South Saskatoon and final in with the general scheme of extensions and improvements at, and in the neighborhood of, Saskatoon.

It is proposed to extend local freight facilities at various points over the system and funds amounting to $2,629,000 are required for the development and extension of terminal and freight yards. One such project is at Charlottetown, P.E.I., for extension of terminals and erection of an engine house. Other points affected under this heading are at Windsor, Ontario; Turcot Yards, Montreal; Niagara Falls, Sarnia, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Kamloops Junction, and Port Mann, B.C.

For the extension of commercial facilities for the Canadian National Telegraph, and the development of railway telegraph service the sum of $2 525,000 is being provided. Part of this sum will be devoted to further extension of the carrier current system which has added greatly to the facilities available for the increasing business of the Dominion.

For the hotel system of the company several important items have been included in the estimates. For completion of the Chateau Laurier, at Ottawa, $1,000 000 is being asked. When completed, the hotel will have 312 guest rooms. During the past five years there has been an increasing demand on the resources of the Chateau Laurier.

At Halifax, the Nova Scotia, under construction in connection with the new terminal arrangements, will be ready and opened for business in the Fall of 1929. Since the inauguration of the new Canadian National Steamship service to the British West Indies, the need for additional first class hotel accommodation at Halifax has become more pressing. The sum of $1,200,000 is being provided for this purpose.

Owing to the growing importance of Vancouver, both as a seaport and as a tourist centre the present first class hotel accommodation has been found to be inadequate, and by the construction of a hotel by the Canadian National Railways, the railway will be in a position to maintain much closer business contact with the large volume of tourist and commercial traffic passing through this Pacific gateway Furthermore, by constructing this hotel at Vancouver, the railway is fulfilling an obligation with the City of Vancouver Preparatory excavation and foundation work was commenced in the autumn of 1928, and the sum of $2,000 000 will be required to complete all foundation and steel work, which will be completed during 1929, as well as considerable portion of the general work included in the contract, the whole of which will be completed, equipped and furnished in 1930.

At Saskatoon a start will be made on a new hotel, and $500,000 has been allowed for this purpose.

At Prince Park Lodge in Jasper National Park, Alberta, this proved more attractive to visitors each year, since it was opened in 1921 with accommodation for 60 guests. In 1927, the attendance at the summer tourist survey for lack of accommodation, and, despite the increased number of cabins available in 1928, 200 individuals could not be received. Now cabins are to be erected in conformity with the general plan, bringing the guest accommodation up to a total of 342 persons. For these structures and other extensions, the sum of $265 000 has been placed in the estimates.

Changes, extensions, improvements and general betterments at Jasper and other resorts and hotels of Minaki, Grand Beach, Pictou Lodge, the Port Clarry, the Macdonald, the Prince Arthur and the Prince Edward, which will necessitate a total expenditure of $675,000.

Betterments of equipment and work equipment required during the year 1929 will involve expenditure of $2,000 000

Traffic demands on the water borne services at the Pacific Coast have increased greatly in the past, proposed to augment the fleet now in service from Vancouver and Prince Rupert to Alaska, three steamships being required for this purpose, and one steamer to operate in and out of Prince Rupert to the Queen Charlotte Islands. The sum set down for the construction of these four steamers is $5,250,000.

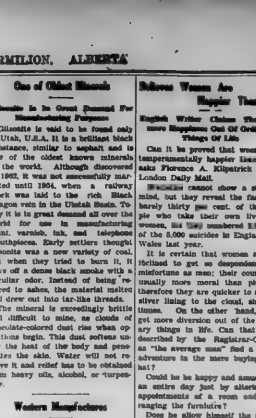
Family Of Joan Of Arc

Reunion Of Living Members Took Place Recently

The thirty-fifth descendants of the family of Joan of Arc, recently held a family reunion and formed a family association, to take part in the 500th anniversary of the birth of the celebrated Her proper work was finished in 1429 when Orleans was delivered from the English occupier and the French King was brought to be crowned in Rheims Cathedral. But her work pushed on for about two years later.

The living members of her family range from soldiers and the professions to those still found on the land and in the factories. The youngest is a race. There is mention of a notary, and notaries have always been the guardians of French family descent.

Bulls Battle at Banff



The Athletic Grounds of the Banff Springs Hotel have recently been taken possession of by several bull elk. Whether or not instinct has informed them that the spot, where the purpose for which the grounds were constructed, is debatable. Certain it is though, that once again, where last September, during the Highland Gathering, famous athletes displayed their prowess in competition, and where next September more will do the same, the latest tenants of the athletic grounds are displaying their battling powers. Sometimes with locked horns they rock back and forth, occasionally one gets a slight advantage and forces his opponent, at other times with their lowered heads, one or more prods they circle and twist, then suddenly disentangle as though to gain second them. They do not, as one fool each other however, for like human beings one eye is always watching the other for an opening. Suddenly, with lowered head, one charges his foe, and the crash is heard and the horns lock with a crash that can be heard some distance away. Then they back off, right and two stroll amiably side-by-side to the nearest grass-plot and there, shoulder to shoulder, munch contentedly. It then dawns on the human spectator that the battle was merely a friendly exercise in competition, a sparring of spirit that all animals feel in the spring. Generally there are a few such battles, but the wise animals of the bulls seldom make poor fools, they appear philosophic and disinterested. Maybe, from their fraternal point of view, it is all nonsense—sheer vanity of the male, so they view it with indulgent silent slightly contemptuous tolerance. The bulls however, keep seriously to the business in hand, oblivious to passing automobiles or the curious humans who get as near them as prudence permits.

Balkan Women Are Happier Than Men

English Writer Claims They Get More Happiness Out Of Ordinary Things Of Life

Can it be proved that women are temperamentally happier than men? asks Florence A. Kilpatrick in the London Daily Mail.

Statistics cannot show a state of mind, but they reveal the fact that probably thirty per cent. of the people who take their own lives are women, the figure remembered 8,000 out of the 16,000 suicides in England and Wales last year.

It is certain that women are not inclined to get so despondent over misfortune as men; their courage is usually more moral than physical; therefore they are quicker to see the silver lining to the cloud, she continues. On the other hand, they get more discouraged over the ordinary things in life. Can that be described by the Registrar-General's figures, which show that the Balkan women are happier than men?

It would be happy and assured for an entire day just by altering the appointments of a room and rearranging the furniture?

Does he address himself the mental relaxation of writing a long gossipy letter to a friend? Rarely does he receive letters which invite the like letter writers are women, and it is one of the greatest interests in life to receive letters.

Observe the faces of the people in the streets, she says. Men walk as a rule, with sensitive, open-air expressions; it is the women who look alert and smiling. The Japanese are the happiest people in the world last in the world in their attitude toward the fair sex — have an old proverb which declares: "Men walk with their hearts; women only with their mouths."

If there is a hint of truth in this, it merely suggests that women's emotions are nearer the surface; because they are sensitive, they can get a keener enjoyment out of life.

Whether one agrees with Miss Kilpatrick or not, this week's food for thought in the suggestion that much happiness and contentment lies in the power to enjoy the simple things of life. Many of the greatest joys of the small pleasures of life is a source of deep zeal lasting enjoyment, and it is an attitude of mind that can be cultivated. An eminent psychologist advised those who would be happy to learn to enjoy the art of doing "dressings"—to breathe deeply of the fresh air now and again, to look around with really seeing eyes at the trees and the hills and the sky, to savor consciously the fragrance of cooking food, to realize that the little things there really are in the routine of everyday life which we take for granted, and which can be made pleasurably to happiness and contentment.

Home Market For Cattle

Canada Could Very Easily Use Entire Beef Production

Speaking in his annual report of the failing markets for Canadian cattle, Sir Henry Thornton said the question: "where in the future will we find our markets?" and added: "Our home market alone takes 85 per cent. of our beef production. Can we not in some way develop that market to take the entire 100 per cent.? That is the better solution, for the cattleman today, and I believe with the combined efforts of all livestock organizations in the interests of cities, that the problem can be solved. — Calgary Herald.

Grasped His Opportunity

The foreman of the roadmenders had been taken ill suddenly, and his right-hand man, Patrick O'Connell, was duly promoted to the post temporarily.

On his foreman's subsequent return he was surprised to find Patrick the only man working, and inquired as to the absence of the others.

"Where's all the boys, Pat?"

"Oi sacked 'em," was the reply, "when Oi tell them to get a move on, so that he won't have a chance to show the pretty little dimples on his chin."

To some all you say is a sure way of making friends. To say all you mean is a sure way of making enemies.

Record of Performance Policy

Bringing Improvement To the Poultry Flock Of the Dominion

Canadian poultry breeders who are keeping production records of their birds under the Department of Agriculture's policy of Record of Performance, are doing a good trade in breeding stock. According to the latest report of the Canadian Record of Performance for Pure-bred Poultry, issued by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, a large number of birds have been sold to foreign countries. The sales that have been made largely through provincial Record of Performance Breeders' Associations, reached high figures last year. One of these associations is reported to have done $60,000 worth of business for the members. This was in addition to sales made privately by members within the same province. The Record of Performance work, now in its tenth year, has tested more than 160,000 birds, almost 60,000 of which have been certified as meeting the requirements regarding vigour, production, egg weight, breed type, and freedom from standard disqualifications. The birds which have thus distinguished are finding a very keen demand for hatching eggs. To provide pure-bred foundation stock hatcheries securing their hatching eggs from good stock a hatchery approval policy has been put into effect. This policy provides for the inspection of commercial hatcheries and the sale of chicks they purchase eggs. It is under the same administration as the Record of Performance policy. Official administered by the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. This policy is recognised as providing a very practical means of contributing to the general farm flocks of the country the blood of bred-to-lay birds of high quality.

Develop Tar Sand Field

Comprehensive Work To Be Carried Out in Alberta

Redesigning of the bituminous sands extraction plant built at Dunvegan yards in 1926; securing of a large supply of separated oil for commercial experimentation; some road construction projects and part of this separated oil; consideration of marketing possibilities, and in general, the bridging of gaps in existing commercial formation, form the outstanding items on a two-year bituminous sands investigation programme of the Scientific and Industrial Research Council of Alberta, now going into effect.

The work will be conducted under the supervision of Dr. E. A. Clark, the Council's chief chemist, at University of Alberta, who has been a pioneer of McMurray tar sands so far as the University of Alberta is concerned.

The excitement about northern metal mining for gold and the draw away public attention from Alberta's potential wealth, in the McMurray district.

It is pointed out, however, that metal mining can never attain the proportions of Alberta's wealth that may be reached in Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan, for the simple reason that only the mineral covering of Alberta (Lake Athabaska region), is included in the pre-Cambrian shield which covers separated from that point, clear across Northern Canada.

Poverty Is No Disgrace

There is no disgrace in taking aid from fellow human beings, in a life-death emergency and particularly there is no disgrace in being a subject of public welfare. For, after all, this is logically merely cashing in on an insurance policy, taxes paid for a long term of years directly or indirectly, by every citizen corresponding to the premiums.

Losing In Berlin

Communists Suffer Casualties In May Day Battle

Berlin. — Communists in an attempt to "conquer the streets" for May Day, caused an ugly riot in the working class quarters in northern Berlin. They erected barricades, using street repair material, and held off police with rifle and pistol fire until machine guns forced the destructions and enabled the authorities to clear out the surrounding streets.

At midnight the casualties for the day had mounted to eight dead and 75 seriously wounded. Hundreds of others suffered bruises from missiles or policemen's clubs.

The rioters erected barricades in the main thoroughfare of the Prenzlauerberg and its side streets. The police charged them repeatedly with batons until the commanding officer realized that his force was too weak for those tactics and ordered the men to open fire. Three armored cars were brought up by the police and finally captured the barricade.

World's Largest Cattle Town

Historical Most.—The biggest cattle yoke ever made in the Northwest is too small for what is considered the largest cattle town in the world. That was the discovery made by Guy Howard after he completed a seven-foot yoke. Now he's engaged on a 16-foot yoke which he believes will "fit" the town. The cattle together weigh 7,000 pounds.

Pretoria, South Africa.—For the first time in many years a white farmer was flogged for injuring a native. Jack Nafte, who tied a native employee hand downward by the legs from a tree and lashed him so severely that he subsequently died, was sentenced to seven years at hard labor and the farmer received ten lashes in the Pretoria jail.

Loyalty Of Acadians

Ottawa, Ont.—In replying to the criticisms levelled against him in the House of Commons, Hon. Peter Veniot, in a spirited speech dwelt on the loyalty of the Acadians of which he was one, to the British crown. He did not, he said, because his loyalty had been attacked by certain newspapers.

TO POSTPONE DISCUSSION OF NAVAL PROBLEM

Geneva.—Complete agreement has been reached by the big five naval powers to refrain from detailed examination of the naval problem at the present session of the preparatory commission for the disarmament conference, it was learned here in responsible circles.

The question of reduction of the fleets as a supplement to the Washington naval treaty will be adjourned to a date which will be left undefined. Meantime, the five powers will continue conversations on the naval problem. The character of these conversations was understood to be not yet determined, but would probably be exchanges of notes between the five nations.

These may possibly develop into a meeting of experts from Great Britain, United States, Japan, France and Italy.

The main theme of these conversations will be an endeavor to reach an agreement on the formula for estimating the equivalent tonnage of cruisers, destroyers and submarines by considering such factors as age, units, displacement and calibre of guns.

It was understood that Japan in particular, the most distant of the five countries represented, would not be able to attend the meeting in person, but would be represented by experts.

Following his amendment Mr. Stewart said facts had been brought out which had startled the country. The whole background of the matter was the civil service commission and the attitude of the postmaster therein. From October 1, 1926, to February 1, 1928, the civil service commission had dismissed 88 postmasters, and from February, 1928, to April, 1928, eight more dismissals had been made.

In 23 cases of appointments by the commission, Mr. Veniot, in some cases returned soldiers had been rejected in favor of non-soldiers. In 22 cases he passed for petty shortages men and women of the postal department all over Canada, but in each case the inspector who it was shown had taken funds improperly, Mr. Veniot did not only increased his salary, but had given him an higher responsibility in office. The postmaster-general's attitude was that the civil service commission, and his attitude toward its was akin to contempt.

In reply, Mr. Veniot declared Mr Stewart had omitted to point out in what way the commission was inefficient, or in what manner he had violated the civil service or any civil act.

It was charged, he added, that he had disregarded certificates issued by the civil service commission. This was correct. But he had done so only for valid reasons, and was given power to do so by the civil service act. He had only done his duty, and the postmaster-general as head of the postal service of Canada.

There had been charges which questioned his loyalty. These were unjust, Mr. Veniot said.

World Welcome Naval Reduction

Tokio.—It was learned here that Count Di Rube, Japanese delegate to the preparatory commission on disarmament at Geneva, had been instructed to agree to any reduction in navies a committee would be formed by delegates from the five leading powers to consider proposals of the United States delegate. Censure Motion Is Defeated By Majority of 24

Ottawa.—The House of Commons defeated another want of confidence motion and carried through the post-master-general. This time the amendment, which, like its predecessor, was moved by H. A. Stewart, Conservative member for Leeds, was defeated by 24 votes.

It was a general amendment declaring that "the administration of the post office department by the present postmaster-general has been characterized by inefficiency, disregard of the provisions of the civil service act, the post office act and other statutory authority, and merits the disapproval of this House." Mr. Stewart's former amendment, moved, like the present, censured conduct of the postmaster-general in connection with the appointment of a postmaster at Montreal, Que., it was defeated by 27 votes.

In the division today, the Conservatives voted in a body in support of the amendment the majority of members of the U.F.A. group in the House, Liberals and Liberal-Progressives united in opposition to the amendment.

Names recorded in favor of the amendment numbered 68, and against, 92.

Battle With Bandit

Detroit Policeman Shoots Assailants In Attempted Hold-Up In Ontario

London, Ont.—Shot in the stomach, Robert Schact, alleged bandit, aged 20, Windsor taxi driver, and formerly of Yorkton, Sask., died on the highway, following an attempted hold-up of D. McLellan, a Detroit policeman and his wife, who were motoring on a holiday. Leo Dereski, 29, Ford City, Ont., was shot in the hip and has in a London hospital under guard. A third bandit got away in the darkness.

On a crime cruise in a stolen car, Schact and his companion attempted to hold up McLellan's car into the ditch. Schact ordered the Detroit policeman to hand over his money. He picked the wrong man. McLellan, for an answer zipped out a .32 revolver and fired twice from the hip. Schact dropped to the road mortally wounded, along with Dereschee. The third bandit picked up Schact and a half carrying him, vanished into the darkness.

Those who made the team are, as has been found it impossible to accept, included Sergt. H. W. Burton, Vic-

FAVOR PRINCIPLE OF INSURANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED

Ottawa.—The principle of insurance against unemployment, sickness and invalidity is accepted and endorsed by the special committee of Parliament on industrial and international relations in a report presented by its chairman, Cameron S. MacIntosh, Liberal, North Battleford, in the House of Commons. The insurance should not be based on compulsory contributions derived from the employer, employed and employed, the report states.

The report continues:

"Your committee recognizes that while it is highly desirable that such legislation should be uniform in all the provinces, and while such insurance has a federal aspect, nevertheless, according to the decision of justice, must remain a constitution legislative jurisdiction in relation to the establishment of a compulsory system of unemployment insurance is vested exclusively in the provincial legislatures.

"Your committee finds that the provinces, on being consulted by the department of labor with regard to the attitude towards the establishment of a general scheme, do not appear to be prepared to take immediate action.

"Under those circumstances, your committee submits the following recommendations:

"(a) That with regard to etch-been insurance, the department of immigration and colonization be requested to initiate a comprehensive survey of the field of public health, with special reference to a national health programme. In this, it is believed that it would be possible to secure the co-operation of the provincial and municipal health departments, as well as the organized medical profession.

"(b) That in the forthcoming census provision should be made for the securing of the fullest possible data regarding the extent of unemployment and sickness; and that this should be compiled and published at as early a date as practicable.

"(c) That the federal government be requested to bring the subject matter of this reference before the next federal-provincial conference, and your committee suggests that the agenda for such a conference is arranged that the provincial governments be invited to send representatives of the employer and employee to discuss the subject matter of this report."

REQUIRE LARGER VESSELS FOR THE BAY ROUTE

Ottawa.—Adopting the annual report of the Canadian government merchant marine, the parliamentary committee on railways and shipping canvassed the whole of the government's shipping activities.

A suggestion by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, that Sir Henry Thornton, president of the company, address himself to the task of reconstructing the finances of the C.G.M.M. with a view to eliminating the deadweight loss incurred year after year met with Sir Henry's approval.

He was giving that matter his consideration, he said. Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways, asked Mr. Stevens would support ear project if it were brought down by the government next year, and Mr. Stevens replied in the affirmative.

The commercial value of the Hudson Bay was discussed, but Sir Henry was opposed to Mr. Stevens' suggestion that the smaller boats of the company be put on that route in the beginning in order to demonstrate its feasibility. Mr. Dunning felt that in order to give the route a real try-out it would have to be done on a larger scale before regular than the government steamers. He was confident however, that when the route was ready a proper trial would be given

So far as the feasibility of the route is concerned, it has been demonstrated to the department of railways and canals whose ships had been operating in Hudson Bay. Mr. Dunning, expounding on the advantage of the route, cited how one ship came in the C.G.M.M. had landed 3,000,000 feet of lumber at Vancouver, had come via the Panama Canal and discharged its cargo at Churchill An analysis of the costs showed that it was cheaper to transport the lumber in this way than to bring it in by rail from Vancouver to Churchill. The rails of the railway had there been laid to Churchill

When the port was ready to ship grain there would be means found to carry it, said Mr. Dunning. The present grain rate, the Most ports had grown like Topsy, but this one had been made.

To Ask Board To Enlarge Hospital

That the accommodations at the Vermilion Municipal Hospital would appear to be wholly inadequate and that the time had arrived when the board of that institution should be asked to move in the matter of enlarging its facilities was the substance of a resolution moved by M. A. Brimacombe at the regular luncheon of the Board of Trade held in the Alberta Hotel Monday evening and which resolution was seconded by W. J Cameron. The resolution asked that a committee to be named by the executive be appointed to interview the hospital board in reference to the matter. It was pointed out in the discussion that on occasions the place was so overcrowded that it was necessary to have patients in the halls, which was contrary to hospital regulations. It was also stated that there were over 80 many patients obliged to go elsewhere for treatment because of this lack of accommodation, or remain at home. Owing to the fast increasing population of the district the need of increased hospital accommodation had become most urgent. There would appear to be a call from all parts of the district for enlarged facilities.

Magnetic North Pole Reached By Canadian

Wireless Message Has Been Received From Major Burwash

Search For the Brightest Boy

Thos. Edison To Grant Scholarship To Candidate Passing Test

Thomas A. Edison, grown grey in achievement and fame, has started out to find a boy to whom he may pass on some day the torch of his genius. He started a search for the brightest boy in the United States! When he finds him, he is going to hand him to college first of all.

A scholarship, taking care of all tuition fees for four years at whatever technical school the winner wishes to enter, will be awarded the high school or preparatory school boy who most intelligently answers a questionnaire to be made up by Mr. Edison.

The winner will be one of 49 to be picked, one from each state and one from the District of Columbia.

Mr. Edison will pay the expenses of all 49 boys from their homes to his laboratory at Orange, N.J., about August 1. There he will put to them his questionnaire.

Nation-Wide Fame.

There is scarcely a corner of this great Dominion where the merits of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil have not been tried and proved. It is one ill the world's most efficient remedies to sore throat, lame back and many other ailments arising from inflammation. Rubbed on the skin its healing power is readily absorbed, and it can also be taken internally.

Canadian Legion

Dominion Convention To Be Held In Regina In November Of This Year

The Dominion Convention of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. will be held in Regina on November 25th 1930.

To those ex-service men who are not members of the Legion, the present is an opportune time to become identified with the organization that has done much to promote the welfare of returned men, their widows and dependents.

The work of the Legion is not diminishing as the years go by, but rather is growing. The membership likewise is increasing and particularly so in Saskatchewan since the provincial Convention, but in the province there are still a number of men who are eligible to join, and who have not as yet identified themselves with the organization, possibly due to lack of opportunity to do so.

With the formation of branches throughout the province, there is now local representation in practically every district, and the provincial secretary, Canadian Legion, Regina, will be pleased to advise anyone in request, of the nearest local branch.

Unity among returned men was accomplished when the Canadian Legion came into being some years ago. All that remains is to complete the membership roll and the organization even more representative than it is today.

On its record of achievement alone, the Legion deserves the support of all ex-service men, and it is hoped that the next few months will see every eligible man in Saskatchewan enrolled. The dues are nominal, but the ultimate benefit returned to man in the ranks of the Legion will be of the utmost value in furthering unity among ex-service men, comradeship, and in promoting that comradeship which is one of its biggest assets.

Useful In Camp.—Explorers, surveying parties with a knapsack will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil very useful indeed. Often the feet and legs are wet and cold it is well to rub them freely with the Oil and the result will be the prevention of pains in the muscles, and should a cut, or contusion be received, as sometimes nothing could be better as a dressing or healer.

CANADIAN AIR MAIL PLANE ESTABLISHES WORLD'S RECORD

The entire world recognizes that Canada, in proportion to her population, is making greater practical use of aircraft for the rapid development and the "work" recordsof Canadian airplanes are regarded as even more important contributions to the advancement of aviation than the endurance and other stunt achievements of other countries.

Canada's latest and most impressive practical record in air is in speedy delivery of air mail and Capt. D. S. Bonnalmal, pilot for Canadian Airways (subsidiary of International Airways of Canada, Limited), as it result of a record flight between Toronto and Montreal, now holds the world's air mail speed record.

Capt. Bonnalmal, flying a Fairchild "71," powered by a Pratt & Whitney Wasp engine, on March 21st, covered the 360 miles from Toronto to Montreal in just one hour and forty-four minutes, and this has now been established as the world's fastest air mail flight.

Remarkable as this time is, Capt. Bonnalmal would have bettered it, but for fog encountered a little over 100 miles from Montreal. Up to that point he has flown 215 miles in just 60 minutes, maintaining a speed of over 214 miles a minute.

Throughout the record-breaking flight Capt. Bonnalmal reported perfect performance from his plane which was fitted with Imperial Aeroplane Spirits and lubricated with Imperial Marvegnol Motor Oil products which have become the almost universal preference of Canadian aircraft operators who choose them for 90 out of every 100 miles flown in Canada.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JEREMIAH CALLS TO OBEDIENCE

Golden Text: "Hearken unto My voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be My people."—Jeremiah 7:23.

Lesson: Jeremiah 7:1-26.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 95. 7-11.

Explanations and Comments

Outward Ritual Not Religion, verses 1-4.—Jeremiah felt impelled to stand at the gate of the temple and warn the people. To all who entered in at these gates to worship in the temple, Jeremiah cried: "Amend your ways and your doings (a favorite expression with Jeremiah), and I will cause you to dwell in this place, you need not fear being carried off into exile. Trust not in the lying words of false prophets who declare unto you that God is prepared to make liberal gifts to religion." The threefold repetition of the words "the temple of Jehovah" suggests the energy of iteration that belongs only to Eastern fanatics. Dean Stanley observes, recalling the repeated cries of the Arabs in the theatre at Ephesus, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians": Acts 19.1 "Is it not thus that the children of godly parents are misled into the notion of ancestral piety? Is it not that evil-living men will risk the consequences of sin, because they are prepared to make liberal gifts to religion? The temple of Jehovah, the sanctuary, the slave-impostor, have been a man and his religion perverted sedatives to conscience, saying: 'Peace, peace, when there is no peace.' The cry of the Lord!" —F. B. Meyer.

Jeremiah Not So Obedience To the Covenant Of Old, verses 5-7.—The continued security of the people in the land of their fathers depended upon their reforming and practicing the moral virtues. Jeremiah declared,—the security of justice between a man and his neighbor, and the freeing from oppression of the stranger, the fatherless and the widow, and the avoidance of the shedding of innocent blood—and also upon the avoidance of the practice of false gods. The stranger was the sojourner dwelling with a family dependent temporarily in Judah. He and the fatherless and the widow had no voice in the administration of affairs and could be easily oppressed.

"As the potter has power over the clay to make one kind of a vessel as he pleases, so is the nation in the hands of God to do with as seems best to Him. It is not for us to try to mould the national life and purpose without God and His Jesus Christ, into whose hands the nations of the world have been given: it is for us to make sure first of all that our nation is right with God and that our spirit is of submission and obedience to Him. Then the clay will come on the vessel of honor, for the hands of God will be moulding the clay on the wheel."

Saskatchewan Hemp

Possibility Of Hemp Growing Has Been Demonstrated

With the object of promoting hemp growing in the district, the Pasqua Board of Trade has constructed its secretary to purchase and distribute quantities of hemp seed. The feasibility of hemp growing as an industry has been demonstrated by seven farmers in the area who have all had plots and four acres under cultivation. Although the area was not sown until June last year, a month late, the hemp grew 12 feet in height. The Provincial Government is assisting in building up the industry. The nearest factory is at Portage La Prairie, Manitoba.

Bay Route Cannot Operate This Year

Impossible To Have Things In Readiness Early Enough

While the Hudson Bay Railway is ready for traffic early this autumn, it is altogether unlikely that harbor developments at Churchill or the aids of navigation which must be installed in Hudson Straits will be sufficiently advanced to permit of commercial navigation of the new northern route.

In order to open the route this year it would be necessary to have everything in readiness by October, as the season of navigation cannot be relied upon to extend past December, this is not deemed to be possible, but the route probably will be in full operation in the summer of 1930.

Survey Work and Mapping Methods As Carried On In Little Known North Country

Alberta is planning extensive exploration in its Peace River region, demonstrated in recent years to contain rich deposits of agricultural soil. Pioneering survey work of this character, once arduous and slow, has been entirely changed and immensely facilitated by the rapid development of aerial observation made possible by the gasoline motor of air navigation and the consequent saving in time and cost. Signalling, in particular, has made most of one former difficulties overcome. The map now produced by the dominion Department of the Interior reveals the progress made in securing accurate pictorial reproductions of the unknown sections of the country. An article in a recent issue of the Department's publication, Natural Resources, reveals that if one treats Lake Captain Bucks' map of the Great Fish River (now Back River), as compiled by Captain Back on his famous overland trip begun in 1825, it will be seen that only such rapid, inlets, lakes and islands as appears on could be seen while passing by in a canoe or going across a portage on foot. It did not include such information about the country lying back from the route travelled. Upon such surveys were based the earlier maps of some of the northern portions of Canada.

Immediately following Confederation, and for some years thereafter, the survey work of the Department of the Interior in Western Canada was principally for the purpose of subdividing the land in anticipation of later settlement. These surveys were in accordance with a regular system, the initial lines for which were meridians and base lines. The meridians were run astronomically and geodetically, the latter being developed temporarily in Judah. He and the fatherless and the widow. The still small voice in the administration of affairs of land could be easily thrown four degrees in longitude apart, and the base lines were twenty-four miles apart.

When these governing lines began to reach into the more wooded and fertile western areas of the north, an effort was made to gather sufficient information on each side of them to fill in the more important topography and detail details. The places where the governing lines intersected the shores of lakes and streams and other physical features were noted. In addition, it was the duty of one of the men on the survey party, called the explorer, to travel over a strip twelve miles wide on each side of the governing line, noting the topography of the country through which he passed. The results as obtained from the line notes and the explorer's observations were compiled in the form of a map of a 96-mile wide strip. Usually these were formed the best available map of the areas covered. They could not, under the circumstances, be extremely accurate or full of detail, and a surveyor who mapped, in this way, about 15,000 square miles of territory could justly feel that he had done a good

BASKET WORK

As an instance of the manner in which mapping methods as applied to this type of country have advanced in the last few years, one or the areas surveyed by the Department of the Topographical Survey, of the Department, working in cooperation with the Royal Canadian Air Force, may be mentioned. This area lies, roughly speaking, in the triangle formed by the 60th parallel of latitude, the Slave River, and Lake Athabaska. Most of the area is in Northern Alberta, but a part is in Saskatchewan, and a small portion in the Northwest Territories. It is rocky country abounding in lakes of all shapes and sizes up to twenty miles in length, some of them of great beauty. Large stretches of spruce and there, and forest fires have kept the timber scanty. The lakes make ideal landing places for the types of flying boats used in the work of aerial photographic surveying.

The party engaged in this work left Winnipeg by seaplane on July 28, and on August 4 alighted in the harbor of Chipewyan. On August 9 the plane used for taking the photographs left for Fitzgerald, a point which point the work was carried on for the remainder of the season. Notwithstanding interference from smoke, by September 7 about 4,000 square miles of territory had been mapped, filling in another gap on previously left blank on our maps.

Young Canadian Inventor Designs Device For Helping Up Canadian Citizenship

And who are these young Canadians? They come, in the West, from many sources. Examples the five candidate's in the Calgary district oratorical contest. One was born in Canada, one in England, one in Russia, one in Rumania, and one in Lithuania; or in Edmonton, one of French, one of Scottish and a third of German extraction. It will be seen that knowledge of Canada, per se, had been conveyed to them by parents, by their fellow-students and by the audiences which hear them in their orations, will be an invigorating nationalizing force from year to year, increasing in its scope and influence. And then, is the more important objective.—Calgary Herald.

Farmer Wheats In Manitoba

Almost Fifty Per Cent Of Wheat Grown Is Of Durum Variety

Tests in the growing of improved varieties of wheat have been carried on by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, in the province of Manitoba. The work has been done by the experimental farm at Brandon, and shows that the Durum varieties are apparently making some headway for the present at least. In the Canada-ensiform variety of wheat, particularly in the southwestern part of the province. Each year the growing of Durum wheat has been spreading farther and farther northward, and according to the superintendent at Brandon farm, almost fifty per cent. of the wheat growing acreage in the province is devoted to the Durum varieties. The growing of Durum wheats has a decided advantage however in that the cost of harvesting and threshing is appreciably greater, due to the heavier crops of straw and the greater weight of the crop to lodge. The provincial wheat growing area are given in the report of the Brandon farm for last year, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, as Minidum and Kubanka, varieties that are sought by the trade on account of their amber colour.

Right-Planting In Germany

Backward Season Led Large Farms To Resort To Novel Practice

Wide-spread development of "right planting" in Germany has led agriculturists and officials to express the belief that the country's crops would not be impaired in spite of delayed seeding.

The exceptionally severe weather of last February, which affected all parts of Europe, hindered planting throughout Germany for a month to six weeks and caused fears that food shortages would result.

Larger farms resorted to drops of as to 30 inches between furrows, but electric flood lights after dark. Although only 70,000 farms out of a total of 2,500,000 have been using right planting the acreage was proportionately greater since only the larger farms were able to follow the novel practice.

Distance Of the Sun

A New Method Is Found For Determining the Distance

A new method of determining the distance of the sun suggested at the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, depends on three accurately known quantities: the velocity of light, the wave-lengths of spectrum lines, and the shape of the Earth's orbit. Daily observations of the spectrum of the sun's centre with a constant temperature spectrum have been made for years and preliminary measurements indicate promising results.

Trying To Obtain Reliable Data To Assist In Forecasting With Accuracy Weather Conditions

Ornamental Hedges

Over One Hundred Species Have Been Tried Out

For dividing lines between properties or separating parts of the home grounds, living hedges are often more suitable than walls or fences. There are many plants suitable for hedging purposes and most of these have been well tested at the Central Experimental Farm, at Ottawa, where there are no less than eighty-four hedges of sufficient length to make reliable comparisons. In testing hedge plants at the central farm, about one hundred and twenty species of trees and shrubs have been tried out. Many of these have proved unsuitable. The hedges at the experimental farm are of different heights and breadths, and include both deciduous and evergreen varieties. These as well as the method of their cultivation and care are described in Bulletin No. 99, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, and entitled "Ornamental Trees, Shrubs and Wood Climbers." For positions where tall hedges are desired the Siberian Pea Tree has proved satisfactory as have also the Honey Locust, the Common Buckthorn, and some of the Hawthorn. For tall evergreen hedges the Douglas Fir and the Norway Spruce are recommended, while for low evergreen hedges the American Arbor-vitae is very desirable. For deciduous hedges of medium height the Alder Buckthorn, the Wayfaring Tree and the Woody Caragana make good effect, while the Japanese Barberry, the Dwarf Caragana, or, in cold areas where low growing hedges are desired. The author of the bulletin, Mr. W. T. Macoun, the Dominion horticulturist, observes that the shape of hedge that has been found most pleasing to the eye and to the maximum amount of sunshine is one in which the lower branches remaining alive almost or quite to the ground, in line with the branches near the top of the hedge at the ground, gradually narrowing towards the top and the top being rounded instead of being pruned to a sharp point.

Alberta Mineral Production

Amounts To Nearly 12 Per Cent Of the Total For the Dominion

According to a statement of the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, mineral production during the year 1929 in the Province of Alberta, reached a total value of $32,367,781, a new high record, and 11.84 per cent. of the total for the Dominion. Among the larger items contributing to the list are: Coal, $20,917,968; Oil and gas, $4,787,807; Clay products and brick $1,486,860, and cement, lime, stone, sand and gravel $2,182,-130. The report indicates that the natural gas produced in the province contributed 69 9 per cent of the total for the Dominion, in volume, and 41 per cent of the value. Alberta's petroleum wells yielded 79 per cent of the Dominion volume and 58.8 per cent. of the Dominion's value.

Province Has Saved Money

Policing Of Saskatchewan By Mounties Saves $170,000 Annually

Enthusiastic approval of the way the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have handled the policing of Saskatchewan since it took over the duties work of the provincial police force is embodied in a statement, was expressed by Hon T C Davis at ceremonies general for Saskatchewan, during an address at Winnipeg By doing away with the provincial police force the province was saving $170,000 annually, Mr. Davis said. The saving would pay nearly the entire cost of cottage pensions insofar as the province had to pay it.

Elite Stock Seed

Importance Of the Use Of Pure Seed Bood Adapted To the Various Districts

In the great wheat growing areas of Western Canada the use of pure seed of varieties adapted to the various districts is of special importance. Investigations carried on by the Cereal Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, as well as by other institutions, indicate the need for the utmost attention to this matter. Indeed one of the most important and most pressing features of the work of the Cereal Division at present is that of developing Elite Stock Seed of those varieties which are registerable and which are in demand.

Will the time ever come when it will be possible to forecast climatic conditions weeks or months in advance? We have weather prophets galore. Among farmers, hunters, soldiers and peasants, in almost every country, there has grown up a certain stock of traditional knowledge based upon observation of nature, though not a little mixed with signs and saguries of a superstitious complexion. Thus, in Northwest Canada, if the snow falls early in autumn, a slight sprinkle, it will be followed by a spell of warm, dry weather. The Russian peasants say that when snow falls on frozen ground the following spring will be unseasonably cold. Everybody knows how the country folk in England believe that if the autumn berries are thick with berries a severe winter will ensue. And the past season would go a long way towards confirming the legend. Similarly when the Arctic feathered migrate southwards and appear in the Manitoba lakes in great numbers, it is taken as a sign the winter will be extraordinarily rigorous. Not to dwell upon the fact that thousands of people consult the weather forecasts and have no small faith in this coastal publication, it may not be generally known that the British Royal Meteorological Society includes a large staff of savants whose business it is to collect these notes of plants and animals and year by year record their habits in connection with the weather conditions throughout the seasons. The conclusion reached is that most popular beliefs about weather signs at long range are mere fallacies.

Amid all the vagueness and uncertainty prevailing upon this subject, the only fact well established is that all weather changes are primarily due to the movements of the sun. It has also been observed that in tropical lands the seasons are more regular and "certain" as regards weather variations than is the case in the temperate zones. Beyond these generalities, there is at present no reliable data, although many scientists are of opinion that the climatic changes experienced occur in cycles, corresponding with fluctuations in the atmosphere of the sun itself. Prediction, then, about seasons, and to determine the completion of the seasons, as that when these spots are at a minimum, mild winters and hot summers will prevail, and when at a maximum, hard winters and cool summers may be expected. It takes eleven years for the sun spots to develop to the full. Professor Bruckner, the Swiss meteorologist, thought he discovered a seven-strike of unusual weather descending to nearly thirty-five years. Others have mentioned recurrent periods of larger measure, a cycle of forty-five, sixty or a hundred years.—Montreal Gazette.

FIRST PROVINCIAL CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, Saturday, May 11th, 1929.

Approximately seventy-five per cent of the wheat crop in the province has been seeded and steady progress is being made with the seeding of coarse grains, according to telegraphic reports received on Friday by the Department of Agriculture. A peculiar situation exists, as in the part of the province where moisture has been most abundant, spring work has been retarded to the greatest extent. A number of central and northern sections report that wheat seeding has been completed, while as a result of intermittent rains and falls of snow over the southern part of the province not more than thirty or forty per cent of the wheat has been sown in some localities.

Meteorological returns are reported to be generally satisfactory, particularly in the south where the average of the open fall and the late March fall of the past winter have been largely offset by the recent precipitation. In some northern districts winds have been more than usually prevalent, and while the soil moisture is sufficient to promote germination, further rains will be required at an early date if rapid growth is to be expected.

An increase of from five to ten per cent in the wheat acreage of the province is anticipated, as compared with last year. This gain will be especially noticeable in central and northern sections, where a large amount of new land was cleared and broken in 1928 in readiness for ground crop. Very little difference is expected in the acreages seeded to coarse grains, except in places where seeding of wheat has been unduly delayed.

Good stands of fall wheat and rye are reported, as these crops have come through with a minimum of winter killing. In a number of districts an increased acreage will be sown to fall wheat and other forage and fodder crops.

Wheat seeding has been practically completed in the Peace River country, and moisture conditions are satisfactory at the present time, although additional rains will be needed shortly to support the present excellent prospects. In this section of the province, a very large increase is looked for in the acreage being seeded this season.

Owing to the abundance of feed available during the past winter, live stock generally has come through in good condition, and pastures are already showing good growth.

DRASTIC ACTIONS RUMORED TO ENFORCE ROAD REGULATIONS

Speed Demons To Get Sudden Check Up

Rumors of sudden and drastic action to be taken in regard to enforcing road regulations are rife in the town at the present time. With every spring come complaints as to speeding and other road traffic infringements within the limits of the town. A few fines meted out usually stops this in most places and from present stated Vermilion is not going to be any exception this season and the punishments meted out aren't going to be few or of a minor nature. So watch your steps and observe a few simple traffic regulations and you will be immune from any of the above. Fifteen miles an hour is plenty fast enough in town, remember pedestrians and teams have as much right to the road as you have. Park at an angle to the curb and on the right side of the road. Go to the street intersection to turn around. Give the other man his share of the road and observe the golden rule in your driving. If everyone followed a few easily comprehended regulations we would have safe and orderly traffic in Vermilion.

PRAIRIE FIRES NUMEROUS

Several prairie fires from various parts of the country have lately been reported, one of them necessitating the fire towers to be sent out but as it could be brought under control. This fire raged on Thursday last. Telling distance of town and also endangering several buildings did not destroy any. The origin has not been explained.

The country right miles south and two miles east of Vermilion is well blackened as a result of a prairie fire which swept over it a short time ago. No buildings or stacks were destroyed.

Dirigible Air Ships To Be Given Further Tests To Vindicate Their Worth

Germany and Great Britain preserved their faith in the future of the dirigible airship after a series of untoward accidents to lighter-than-air machines had largely discounted their value in the opinion of other experts. The recent flight of the Graf Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen Germany, to the Holy Land, and its safe return, however, will go far to vindicate the faith of those of the dirigible further tests before placing it in the discard, and interest will be correspondingly heightened in the maiden voyage of the new British craft that is expected to cross the Atlantic to Canada later in the year. But much more remains to be done before the dirigible can be accepted as a permanent factor in aerial transport.

The Graf Zeppelin returned to her base, completing a voyage of 5,000 miles and of three and a half days' duration, the exact time having been 81 hours and 31 minutes. This was the second long cruise of the Graf dirigible and in mileage exceeded that of either the trip to the United States or the return trip of last year. En route outward bound the dirigible passed over Lyons and Marseilles, France; Corsica, Sardinia, Rhodes, Crete, Cyprus, Haifa, Jerusalem, Crete and Athens, then back along the Adriatic Sea by way of Hungary to Vienna, Ulm and Friedrichshafen.

As on its Atlantic trip last year, the dirigible encountered rough weather shortly after it started eastward. On the first night out high winds made cruising as dangerous, Dr. Eckener, its navigator, explained, as it was off Newfoundland, on the return trip to Germany last year. Perhaps the most striking paradox of these modern times came with the arrival of the Zeppelin over the Holy Land, where the ruins of Israelitish cities are still mainly what they were thousands of years ago camels and donkeys. The airship was first visited off the Mediterranean coast seaport of Jaffa in the afternoon of Tuesday, March 26, the large German money, located at the foot of Mount Carmel, giving it a particularly warm reception. Spectacularly the most impressive spectacle witnessed by the passengers in Palestine, came when flying over Tel Aviv, on the day of rejoicing commemorating the Biblical story of Queen Esther Throngs of visitors from all parts of Palestine had gathered to participate in this year's extraordinary celebration, featured by carnivals, masquerades, balls and street parades. The great dirigible descended to a height sufficiently low to enable the gay, cheering throngs, most of them picturesquely costumed, to read easily the airship's name. As different parts of Tel Aviv small bags were dropped containing mail.

Jerusalem, where many of the Zeppelin's twenty-seven passengers expected to receive the deepest thrill of the cruise, was reached in the dusk of the evening, so that little of it could be seen, though the ship circled the Holy City for a full hour Press despatches told of turbulent Moslem shiehks gazing from centuries-old roof toupe and crying "Allah, they (my name be praised!) how great are thy wonders!" On its way homeward, favored by auspicious weather, the dirigible averaged about sixty-two miles an hour.

"You said you want me to give your friend literary work? Is he an optimist or a pessimist?

"What difference does that make?"

"It makes a lot of difference I want him to edit a seed catalogue."

Young wife (brightly): "Oh, rather! We're saving up hard for a closed in car."

Success in Two Years

Englishman Now Called Trusted King Of Fraser Valley

Two years after Jesse Throssell came from Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, England, he was styled the "Turkey King of the Fraser Valley," a fertile farming country near Vancouver. In the spring of 1927, a few months after his arrival on the farm he bought in the Fraser Valley, Mr. Throssell sent to England for two pure-bred hen turkeys and one tom turkey, and with this acquisition raised a flock of seventy birds that year. In the autumn of 1928 he had between 600 and 600 turkeys ready for the market. He exhibited at the Vancouver Winter Fair in 1928, winning the principal prizes in all the classes which he entered, including gold medals and first prize for the best turkey, and first prize and special prize for the best pair. He also won in the dressed turkey classes. His dressed turkeys which weighed a total of 156 pounds were put up at auction and sold to the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia for $187.80. For the best bird of the lot the Lieutenant-Governor paid $11 weighed 27 pounds. Mr. Throssell recently shipped a number of turkeys to Australia for breeding purposes.

World Food Grain Supply

Canada and U.S. Practically Only Countries Showing Increased Production

The total food grain crop from reporting countries, which are practically confined to the Northern Hemisphere and including Russia and China, figures for which are difficult of access, is now, however, estimated to be about 164,000,000 short tons, being an increase of about 1,000,000 or 6 per cent. over 1927, and 5.6 per cent. over the five-year average. The bulk of the increase is likely to be in the Mediterranean coast seaport of Jaffa in the afternoon of Tuesday, March 26, the large German money, located at the foot of Mount Carmel, giving it a particularly warm reception. Spectacularly the most impressive spectacle witnessed by the passengers in Palestine, came when flying over Tel Aviv, on the day of rejoicing commemorating the Biblical story of Queen Esther Throngs of visitors from all parts of Palestine had gathered to participate in this year's extraordinary celebration, featured by carnivals, masquerades, balls and street parades. Riders on New Trail

Trail Riders at the Glacier Pool.

While most of it members are trying hard in quality for the 500 mile button it is a remarkable fact that more members of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies have ridden upwards of 2,500 miles of trail than have qualified only for the thousand mile badge. That there are now over a thousand members endeavouring to improve their mileage standing also demonstrates the success the organization has attained during its few short seasons of existence.

The Annual Official Trail Ride and Pow-wow is each year attracting new riders and a wider interest. This year's ride, lasting four days, is fixed to start on August 1st.

The plans are that the start should be from Banff and the ride continue up Healy Creek and Sunshine Valley to Simpson Pass, where the first camp would be pitched. The second camp would be on the shores of Shadow Lake under Mount Ball. This would allow of a side trip partly by pony and partly on foot to the marvellously beautiful Egypt Lakes.

Mr. A. O. Wheeler, veteran Alpinist, who has surveyed this territory, is of the opinion that it includes some of the most wonderful mountain scenery in the Canadian Rockies, but except for Alpine climbers and an occasional hunter this area is practically virgin territory.

Shadow Lake has excellent camping ground, and the Canadian Pacific is building a rest house, as the proposed trail will undoubtedly attract many rides after the Trail Riders have gone over it. The last day's ride will be over another ridge, ending up at Castle Mountain Bungalow Camp on the Banff-Windermere highway about noon. Here the Pow-wow will be held. There is a miniature golf course at this Bungalow Camp, said to be the highest in the British Empire.

A few days after this four-day ride, a more ambitious long distance ride to last about 17 days is being planned for the Columbia Icefields from Lake Louise. This will be limited to twenty riders exclusive of guides, and those who participate must hold at least the 100-mile (silver) button of the Order.

Honey Production In Manitoba

Honey production last year in the three Prairie Provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—had a total value of $1,011,010, of which Manitoba accounted for $77,660, and Saskatchewan, $77,660, and Alberta, $86,200

Many Strange Articles Lost

Birmingham, England, Has Queer Assortment Which Are Unclaimed

Who is the Birmingham man who left his hat in the street and forgot to come back for it? For several months the hat, complete with contents, has held a top place in a vast store of articles of every description which have stood as memories of the forgetfulness of Mr. and Mrs. Birmingham.

Improvement In National Parks

Over 600 Miles Of Highways Have Been Built For Comfort Of Visitors

In Canada's 11,000 square miles of national parks steady progress is being made in opening up new outstanding points of scenic beauty to motorist and tourist. Engineering and construction work carried out during 1928 by the National Parks Branch of the Canadian Government Department of the Interior greatly increased the facilities for the comfort and enjoyment of visitors, and preparations for the coming season's tourist flow are now well advanced. The motor roads in the national parks grounds in the Western Provinces were extended during last year and considerable maintenance and improvement work carried out so that there are now over 600 miles of first class highways in the parks. In addition the mileage of tote or secondary roads has been increased, and new riding trails have been laid out and completed.

An Age Of Speed

People Have No Time These Days To Take Things Easy

Nowadays nobody walks . . . every-body runs. If a man owns a car he finds difficulty in keeping within the speed limit. If he is held up by a red light, he waits impatiently for the change, and then breaks at the flash like a sprinter at the report of the gun; if he has no automobile he runs for a street car and piles into the first crowded one regardless of the fact that there may be an empty one just behind. Everybody seems to be going somewhere in a desperate fear that somebody else will get there ahead of him. What is needed is calmness as to what is done in time saved by all this speed. And it is a good guess that nine out of ten of the speeders might spend five minutes in order to tack it on to half an hour of loafing at the end of the trip.

We are perfectly safe in the upgrade and our production and mining prosperity will be increasing. This assertion is justified by statistics. We are a young country with developed resources of an extraordinary character. Civilization will take place at a time when the supply of metals through-out the world is running low. Consequently we shall be able to command higher prices. This is the message we shall leave to our children.

Tattooing Is Recommended As The Best Means Of Branding Pure-Bred Livestock

The Farmer's Advocate says: Tattooing in our time and country is considered only an eccentricity of soldiers and sailors, but it was practiced by pre-historic men and in different countries it was symbolic of courage or mourning, and, in some circumstances, it had religious and social significance. Tattooing reached its highest perfection in Polynesia, and even there it was crude enough, for we are told that during the operation, assistants, usually female relatives, drowned the cries of the sufferer with songs and the beating of drums. In the Marquesas group of islands, the men were frequently tattooed all over the body, even to the fingers and toes, and as each operation required from three to six months many of them must have been 20 years of age before they were completely tattooed.

Tattooing is an old art and it is now being applied to live stock breeding in such a way as to prevent unintentional errors and deception. As many as 200,000 foxes in captivity have been tattooed, and these are easily identified as long as they live. The breeders of pure-bred Holland cattle also already tattooing, and the Jersey breeds are about to adopt the practice.

Tattooing would be more serviceable still to the breeders of sheep and swine as a means of identification of animals that bear fewer distinguishing marks than do cattle. It is a practice that should be made compulsory for all pure-bred live stock so as to give an added value to the certificate of registration. Equipment that is simple and lasts that leaves a permanent imprint may now be obtained, and careful breeders would welcome such a system of branding their animals in order to remove all doubt regarding accurate identification.

The pedigree of an animal that bears the signature of a dishonest breeder is worth the paper it is written on. A certificate of registration that bears the signature of a careless, indifferent breeder is next to worthless. The value of any pedigree is based entirely on the honesty and uprightness of the breeder, and that is a feature of all pedigrees that time will scarcely alter. But the breeder may be honest yet careless, or not adept at remembering the animals as they grow up in his pens or stalls. The breeder may pass out suddenly and leave a herd of stock regarding which no one else in the world knows anything at all. Such things have happened and the wonder is that continuity has been maintained in many herds where identification depended on one man who for one reason or another was not available at the critical time.

The tattoo system of identification is a most desirable and efficient means of preventing mistakes and confusion. It should be adopted by every breeder of pure-bred live stock in the land.

FREDERICK BEVERLY WILKINS

(From the Port Arthur News)

The death occurred at noon, on Thursday, May 9th at his home, 270 North Cumberland Street, of Frederick Beverly Wilkins, brother of H. H. Wilkins, founder of the three Port Arthur department-al stores bearing that name. Mr. Wilkins had been in ill health all winter. He was manager on the store at the above address and came to Port Arthur three years ago from Vermilion, Alberta. He was fifty-four years of age and a native of Grimsby, Quebec. He is survived by a wife and three children, Margaret Mary and Henrietta; his brother, H. H. Wilkins of Port Arthur, and his sister, Mrs. Reid of Toronto. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, interment being made in the Riverside cemetery, services being conducted by Rev. J. H Miller of Knox Church Ladies.

The late Mr. Wilkins was no stranger to many residents of Vermilion, and the news of his death will be heard with genuine feelings of regret by old-timers and former associates here. To the widow (who is a sister of Mrs. John Watts and Walter and Sam Walker of Vermilion), and her three young children, sincere sympathy is expressed.

In line with the policy of the Alberta government to promote the eradication and control of noxious weeds, twenty field supervisors will be stationed at various points through out the province. It is announced by Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture. These men will act in conjunction with municipal councils and local weed inspectors in an educational campaign directed against the further spread of noxious weeds. While they will be vested with authority to enforce the provisions of the Noxious Weeds Act, an attempt will be made in every case to secure the desired results through persuasion and co-operation with the farmers in the districts in which they are stationed. T. H. Taylor of Vermilion is among those appointed, he and assigned to the Camrose district

In addition to the field supervisors, some twenty assessors have been appointed by the Minister of Agriculture to carry on this work in local improvement districts throughout the province.

KEEP IT UP.

"Keep it up" is the third urge in the campaign to make Vermilion the town beautiful, and in a communication addressed to each and all organizations in the town, President Kaiser of the Vermilion A. A. soliciting the further co-operation of the executives of each body in a plan to beautify the athletic park grounds. A copy of this letter follows. The action of the president of the V.A.A.A. will commend itself to all and the Standard bespeaks for it the united support it deserves:

Gentlemen:—

Actuated by a desire to see Vermilion dominating in the matter of civic improvements, I am addressing this letter to you.

A thing of beauty always attracts, and in order to make Vermilion Athletic Park attractive, it should be beautified.

It cannot be done all at once, but we can make a beginning now.

Its location is ideal for all kinds of sport and recreation. But, in its present state it is very unattractive.

My request of your organization is for one tree to be donated and planted in the Vermilion athletic park by each of the officers of your organization to show to the people of Vermilion and to the generations to come, the part you played in the campaign to make Vermilion

THE TOWN BEAUTIFUL.

The making of beauty spots of our public places will be an incentive to the citizens in general to carry the message to their own homes and gardens

The mornins of May 24th is set aside for the official opening of the park and planting of the trees.

It is to be hoped that you will see your way clear to accede to this appeal., I prefer your action in this matter to be actuated by the same sentiment which prompts me to address you this way, rather than you to feel it a duty imposed on you in your official capacity.

Please see your officers without delay as there is very little time to get the trees here for the date mentioned.

Thanking you and anticipating an acknowledgement of your support at an early date, I am

Yours very truly.
A. E. KAISER, President
V. A. A. Association.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The attendance continues to be fairly good, but we would like to see some more new faces in the troop.

Next week it is hoped that definite word can be given about the summer camp. Most of the boys favor Whitney Lake and we hope to be able to make arrangements accordingly. The local committee are giving this matter their consideration this week and their decision will be made known next Tuesday.

The Council of Honour decided next week there should be meetings held on Tuesday and Thursday, this in order to put in extra time for drill, etc. for the 24th of May. The new Troop Flag donated by Rev Mr Hage has arrived and will be presented by Dr. W. W. Bell on behalf of Mr. Hage on the 24th, when the boys will give a demonstration of Ambulance and Fire Rescue drill. Thereafter the swearing in of Tenderfoots and giving of badges will take place

Per that day the boys who are members of the Citizens' Band will join the parade in their band uniform and arrangements will be made for them to change into Scout uniform on the grounds.

Just at this time to press a message has been received from Mr. Kaiser, the president of the Athletic Association, asking for help from the Boy Scouts on Saturday in planting the hedge around the athletic ground. Any boys who would like to help Mr. Kaiser and at the same time help the Troop on Saturday, please see the Secretary, Mr Jack Struthers.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF VERMILION HIGH SCHOOL JUNE 14th

Wet End Grounds to be Worked Down as An Athletic Field

At a special meeting of the School Board held Wednesday evening, it was decided to have the grounds west of the High School plowed and disced, levelled off and worked down in anticipation for their use as athletic grounds.

The closing exercises of the Vermilion high school will take place in the assembly hall of the school on Friday evening, June 14th. This will be the first exercises of this nature held in connection with the high school in a great many years. The arrangement of the program will be in charge of the staff.

The Board decided to advertise at once for a teacher of the commercial courses which it is proposed to inaugurate with the commencement of the fall term. Consideration was given to the installation of caustic sanitary toilets in the east end school shelter to these now in use in the high school This matter, as well as that of the fire escape on the same building, will be further considered at the regular meeting in June.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The soft-ball game at Mannville on Friday, 10th between the High School girls and the Mannville girls was a real game, with consistency scored. The V. H. S. girls proved too much for the others and the game resulted in an official score of 21-12. Several runs from here were up and the females rolled themselves hoarse. The Mannville girls will return the game this Friday, May 17th at Vermilion.

Last Saturday afternoon, the High School boys played a baseball game against the Lloydminster high school team and gained a victory with a 9-6 score. It was a fast and interesting game, with plenty of strike-outs and some speedy base-running. Our pitcher gave a splendid delivery during the whole game, and his retiring had the opposing team guessing. He was backed up admirably by his teammates. The line-up was as follows: Catcher, R. Bowen; pitcher, A. Wheeler; 1b, James White; 2nd b. R. Cornish; 3rd b., C. Walsh; s.s., G. Brimacombe; l.f., W. Fraser; r.f., W. Elliott; c.f., H. Powell.

This same team will return the game next Saturday, May 18, at Lloydminster, and in all probability the girls' softball team will go too, to play the Lloyd girls.

After the game Saturday, the Vermilion high school entertained the visitors at the school with a dance. The party proved very successful and terminated about 12 o'clock after a'n enjoyable lunch was served.

A TEASER

No. 9, Cleopatra—215 yards, Par 3.

The ninth hole of the Jasper Park Lodge Golf Course, Jasper National Park, Alberta, over which the amateur championship of the Royal Canadian Golf Association will be played August 19-24. It's summer, is visibly elevated and the green, which is very fast, is also built up high. Yawning traps surround the green to eat up the strokes of the golfer who fails to play this hole properly. Like its famous namesake, "Cleopatra" is likely to wreck a lot of reputations at Jasper in August.

Co-incident with the Canadian Amateur the Western Canada Amateur will be played over the Jasper Park Lodge Course, and this will provide plenty of competition for those whose high handicaps automatically keeps them out of the Dominion event.

The tippy photograph was made from No. 1 tee. Below it is a plan to scale showing the hole in detail with the three tees plainly indicated. The figures below represent the yardages.

The Power Of Small Things

The following item was recently printed in a large number of newspapers:

"Forty-five years ago there was a strike in an Ohio coal mine. A group of enraged miners took a car of coal, set it afire, and pushed it down into the mine. That fire is still burning under ground, spreading many miles, destroying valuable coal deposits and rendering hundreds of acres of surface ground useless for cultivation. Today it threatens to destroy a school building and some homes in a village. Burning beneath them it is undermining the ground and may cause them to collapse. The fire that a moment's anger started 45 years ago certainly turned out to be a bigger thing than the man who started it ever imagined."

There is a moral to this incident, which might well be heeded, for, after all, it is but an illustration, a spectacular one, it is true, of almost every day happenings. The moral is that a small act may have far-reaching consequences, either for good or for evil.

A cow kicked over a lamp in a barn in Chicago, and the Great Chicago Fire resulted.

A frenzied student assassinated an Austrian Grand Duke and his wife, and the Great War was the immediate outcome with its sacrifice of ten millions of lives and hundreds of billions of dollars in property and other losses.

An aspirin—is dismissed in anger, and perhaps unjustly, and a nation-wide strike follows bringing suffering and ruin in its wake.

A careless workman, or a dishonest contractor, neglects to put a sufficient quantity of cement in the foundations of a building or in the piers for a bridge, or the retaining wall of a dam, and disaster follows taking heavy toll in human lives.

A rotten timber is used in building a ship, and the vessel sinks; a faulty rail is laid in a track, and a train is wrecked; a careless camper neglects to put his fire, and a terrific conflagration wipes out a forest.

And how often has a hasty word, an insulting remark, led to family and business estrangements and to the ruin of all concerned.

How often, too, has the peace and friendliness of an entire community been destroyed because of the whispered scandal, the unguarded reflection upon the honor and integrity of another, the prejudiced utterance casting aspersions upon those of different race or religious beliefs.

All little things in comparison to their terrible effects and disastrous results!

Fortunately, for the human family, the reverse is also true.

We still recall our childhood's interest in the story of the little Dutch boy who by sticking his finger in the small hole in a dam saved his country from inundation. We delight in the personal histories of great men and women who were started on their careers by the kindly, encouraging word of some friend.

We know, too, by personal observation that the mighty oak is born of the humble acorn; that it was in a single kernel of wheat the hundreds or millions of bushels of Marquis wheat annually harvested in Western Canada had their origin.

If we would but remember and give heed to the fact that, just as a pebble thrown into the water causes ever widening circles of little waves to sweep its surface until finally they lash themselves upon the shore, so does every word and act of ours create little circles of influence radiating out into our homes, our offices, our communities and the world at large, and, for good or ill, affecting the lives and future of others and of our country, then, perchance, we would be more careful, more considerate, a little less hasty and impatient of others, and more inclined to extend that degree of sympathy and tolerance to others which we naturally expect will be displayed towards us.

Local Option In India

Voters In Town Of Taran Wand "Dry" To a Man

An astonishing thing has happened in the Punjab. Citizens of the town of Taran have lately secured from the Provincial Government the privilege of holding a local option election as to whether liquor shops in the town should continue to operate. Over fifteen hundred voters went to the polls and voted "dry" to a man. This is probably the most decided local option vote yet recorded in any country. The nearest approach to it possibly occurred in Kentucky some twenty years ago when about the same number of voters were cast, and all were "dry" except three of the two liquor dealers and their relatives—seventeen in all.

The World's Air Centre

British Ports Will Be Headquarters In Next Decade In Prediction

Only a decade or two hence and airplanes and airships may be leaving British ports for all quarters of the Empire and of the world as regularly as steamers do now. Frequent coach to railway from ealing ship to the steam and oil-driven leviathans of today, from the horse to the car, from the balloon to the airplane is the path of man's flailing time and space goes on. And at each new step, in each successive phase, British inventiveness, British engineering, and British pluck are to the fore. WOMEN WHO SUFFER

Anaemia Responsible For Most Of the Ills Of Girls and Women

Medical science shows that most of the ills that afflict growing girls and women are due to the fact that the blood is either poor in quality or deficient in quantity. This anaemia is the cause of low spirits, lassitude, the poor appetite, breathlessness, and the aching backs that make life a burden for so many women. There is no need for any woman to suffer in this way for all the miseries of anaemia can be quickly overcome by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It is an established fact that these pills create an abundance of new rich blood—that is why they relieve and cure so many troubles.

Thousands of formerly weak and ailing women have cheerfully testified to the health they have gained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. One of these is Mrs. Napoleon Gallant, Tignish, P. E. I., who says: "I am among those that can truly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began using them I was in an extremely nervous condition. I could not sleep, neither could I eat, and was constantly growing weaker. I got medicine from a doctor, but it did not seem to meet my condition, and then on the recommendation of a friend, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had taken a couple of boxes there was an change, but they were helping me. I continued their use until I had taken six or seven boxes when I was again in the best of health. I always keep Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house, and if any member of the family feels run-down the pills soon put them in good condition."

You can best begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to the moment you feel the least bit out of sorts. The sooner you do so the sooner you will regain your old-time energy. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Encouraging Business Outlook

Volume Of Business At a High Limit For Five Months Of Year

Business activity generally in Canada during the first three months of this year was greater than any similar period since the war, according to an official review of the current business situation in the Dominion.

The dollar volume of business, as indicated by bank debits at the clearing house centres, was at a higher level during the first quarter of 1928 than at any similar preceding period since the record was first compiled in 1924. The total in the first three months of the present year was 18 per cent. greater than in 1926, and 33 per cent. in excess of the aggregate in the same period of 1927, the total in the first three months of 1928 being $11,540,980,000.

Age No Bar To Flying

Lindbergh Says Properly Trained Pilot Is Always Efficient

Lindbergh will be flying as long as he can drive an automobile, he told a group of reporters recently in answer to the query as to whether he expected to taper off his flying as he grows older. In the opinion of America's foremost pilot, an aviator skilled in the art can fly as long as he can drive a car. Tersely he disposed of the oft-repeated conjecture that he might give up the air as greater responsibilities caused many persons to think that he would be safer on the ground.

"I see no reason why I shouldn't fly," said Colonel Lindbergh. "If a pilot has learned properly, trained he is just as good when he is old as when he was young. Some of the best pilots in service today are getting along in years."

A "Canada Week" was held recently in the city of Glasgow, Scotland, under the patronage of Hon. Lord Provost Sir David Mason. Cash prizes to the value of $1,000 were awarded for the best displays of Canadian products in grocery stores. In England, also, Canada Week was observed at John Barker's great London store, where many show windows and a large floor space were devoted to the display of Canadian foodstuffs.

A QUICK WAY TO END BABY'S UPSET SPELLS

"Like other young mothers, I worried every time Baby cried," says a Nova Scotia woman. "Several times when she was upset or constipated, I tried castor oil but she couldn't touch it. Our doctor told me to try Fletcher's Castoria because it is harmless and babies like it. That ended my worries and I've used it often for all my children." Castoria never fails to delight mothers by the quick way it clears those upsets of babies and children, such as colic, constipation, colds, etc. That's the reason for its tremendous favor and popularity. Like all good things, it's imitated, but genuine Castoria—the purely-vegetable product — always bears the Fletcher signature.

Elliott, of Moncton, N.B., manager of the Maritime Livestock Marketing Board, travelling secretary.

Solicited Money Was Stole

A man deposited $10,000 in a bank. A few weeks later he approached the teller and demanded his money. He was told if he did not want to leave a small balance, "No," he persisted, "I want my money." So the teller counted it out to him. By this time a line of people had collected, each one waiting his turn. The man counted the bills very carefully and handed them to the teller.

"Here," he said, "put it back. I only wanted to see if it was all there.

Find Production Of Radium

Portfolio Supplied In Fund Analysis Appear To Be Lost

Radium is practically the most expensive metal in the world and is valued at approximately $2,000,000 an ounce. Now hospital authorities are cautious because their stocks of radium are slowly transmuting themselves into one of the commonest and cheapest of metals. At varying rates, which cannot be controlled by any known scientific methods, it sends five particles from its atomic nuclei, and these five particles are atoms of helium. Radium is a very heavy element, its atomic weight being 225; helium is one of the lightest of elements, with an atomic weight of 4. Thus the original radium after expelling five helium atoms has an atomic weight of 225—4 x 5, or 205. And 205 is practically the atomic weight of common lead. It seems certain, therefore, that the final product of this rare and costly element is simply lead.

Connie had rehearsed this moment a thousand times. She stood quietly on the steps for a moment, then slipped gracefully to the platform, Confident herself could not have imagined how changed she was. From self-pity to dainty French heels she was dressed as if fresh from the hands of an expert Parisian costumer. So dazzling was she that she positively took Donald's breath away. It seemed to him that she had grown like a magic rose, all at once from a tiny bud to a full blossom. No fault could be found with the perfect oval of her face, or with the delicate white rose skin, from which every trace of tan had gone. The long lashes that fringed her big blue eyes had turned a shade darker than the curling waves of her abundant golden hair.

Andy, whose small form had been hidden in the rear, wavered healthily forward, fumbling the wide hat held in his hand. "Ellie, Connie," he blurted his lips parted; in a wide smile of welcome.

Instantly Connie forgot her assumed dignity and became her warm, impulsive little self. With a glad cry she flung her arms about Andy's neck and kissed him.

"Strike me pink!" breathed Andy, as his hand stole up to touch the spot where Connie's lips had brushed his cheek.

Connie turned to face the lake. "Oh, Dad!" she cried in ecstasy, "isn't it good to be back here again!" She stretched her arms toward the ice-clad peaks. A gentle breeze swept down the wooded slope to fan her face as though in welcome. The blood surged beneath her smooth white skin and went singing through every vein. "Ah!" she sighed happily, as she inhaled a deep breath of air laden with the odour of pine from the hills she loved. Joseph, gazing at her hungrily, saw tears brimming under her long lashes.

From the far end of the train a tall, grey-haired man sauntered a slender sweet-faced woman to the ground, and then walked towards the Maiden. As they stepped to the platform the woman's eyes rested on Donald, who stood with his back to her. Instantly she became conscious of the spot, eyes wide, one hand fluttering toward her heart. With the supreme, wondrous mother-love shining in her eyes, she held out her arms.

"Donald!" she cried passionately, "Donald!"

Donald whirled at the sound of the loved voice calling his name. His heart throbbed wildly, his throats felt constricted and his face paled under stress of strong emotion.

"Mother!"

His arms were around his mother, yearning, tender, hungry, after those long months of separation. Her face upturned to his was white and drawn, but her eyes shone with hallowed joy. His felt his head grippedin his father's strong fingers, and saw his eyes shining with tears. John McLean pulled his boy's dark head with a shaking head.

"Donnie! My boy, Donnie!"

For some time Donald was oblivious to all save the great happiness of meeting his parents. His mother's embrace almost unmanned him, and he fought with difficulty that he kept back the sobs that tightened his throat.

He led his parents to the other end of the platform and introduced them to his friends.

Robert Rennie's comments were simply gasps and a reiterated, "Well! Well!"

Andy offered his usual contribution. "Strike me pink!" he said.

Connie's eyes were filled with soft eagerness as she greeted Donald's new friends. The glow in Donald's face as he spoke to Connie was poignantly significant of his deep love for her. Phil Conrade, to his consternation and dismay, met his ardent glances with a look of cold indifference.

Since Connie's arrival Janet's features held a look of disquietude, but she acknowledged the introduction to Donald's parents with a radiant smile.

A moment later, Connie, with skirts held high, was running down the railroad track.

"Going after her beauty," smiled Wainwright in answer to Donald's question.

"Will you have dinner with us?" invited Donald.

"Yes, thank you," responded Wainwright. "We will sleep in the car tonight," he continued, "but Constance Ogilvie has most return to the old home as soon as possible. She has been busy drawing plans for a church and intends building on the bluff.

Connie returned with the old trapper, the latter leading Pegasus.

At dinner Connie showed no signs of her former shyness. She was as self-possessed, calm and perfectly poised as a duchess. A glad light filled her eyes as Ollila and his pack of "redskins" filed into the big dining-room. She sprang to her feet and greeted them joyfully, shaking hands with each and everyone.

"I'm so glad to see you, Jack," she smiled.

The big logger took her tiny hand in his. "We're sure glad to have you with us again, Connie," he said.

"May I bring Andy in to dine with us, Mr. McLean?" she asked as she came back to the table.

Donald nodded assent. She ran gleefully to the kitchen, and a moment later the loggers grinned broadly as she came through the door leading the protesting cook by the arm.

"Now," she said as Andy sat down, "we're all here." She looked about her and clasped her hands rapturously. "Mother!" she said, "isn't it good!"

Donald's mother looked at her tenderly. "It seems as though I had been gone for years. And oh, it is so nice to be home again!" She sank to a chair by Andy and the latter grinned. "Do you remember, Andy, when you were dressed as a butler and dancing with John at your party?" She threw back her golden head and her silvery laughter filled the room.

Janet was unhappy from the moment of Connie's arrival. She had caught the look of adoration in Donald's eyes as Connie stepped to the station platform. Standing with them she had quite definitely abandoned any hope of winning him. And Donald had been so sure that once she had held a place in his heart. A great depression, a great weariness of spirit, settled upon her.

That evening, as Donald walked with his parents by the lake-shore, he said anxiously, "do you think I have made good? Will you forgive me for being—so—"

John McLean's eyes grew suddenly misty. "Donnie," he began gently, "Mr. Rennie has told me all about you. And no man could speak more highly of another." He drew a newspaper from his pocket. "Haven't you seen this?"

It was Vancouver's morning paper with a full-page devoted to the visit of the Eastern lumbermen. There were several photographs of the Summit Mill and one of Donald. The paper spoke of him as "the able young engineer whose modern ideas and energy had given to British Columbia a logging plant and mill that were a credit to the Province."

Donald saw the proud light in his father's eyes, and his heart was filled with a great peace.

The next day carpenters and masonry arrived for the construction of Wainwright's new home. That afternoon Connie, clad in fashionable riding habit, came to the mill office with her foreman to place an order for lumber. Pegasus in silver-mounted bridle and English saddle was proudly restive. With neck arched he curvetted and rocked while Connie sat on his back with that "complete lack of self-consciousness that is the heritage of a born horsewoman. Before leaving she rode to the hill among the logging workers, her irresistible smile bringing an answering grin from the "redskins," who doffed their hats and shouted a joyous greeting.

All day pack-horses and men struggled up the hill, staggering under the weight of building materials. But although Donald strained his eyes for a glimpse of the golden-haired rider, he saw her no more that day.

Little Helps For This Week

"Obey My voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be My people." —Jeremiah vii. 23.

Three roots bear up Dominion; Knowledge, Will; These twain are strong, but stronger yet the third, Obedience; It is the great tap-root that still, Kaintound the rock of Duty, is not stirred. Though heaven-loosed tempests spend their utmost skill. —James Russell Lowell.

Tenacity of will lies at the root of all courage; but courage can only rise into true manliness when the will is surrendered; and the more absolute the surrender of the will, the more perfect will be the temper of our courage and the strength of our manliness. "Strong Son of God," cries the poet, "Immortal Love, our wills are ours to make them Thine," and that strong Son of God, to whom this cry has gone up in our day, and in all days, has left us the secret of His strength in the words, "I am come to do the will of my Father and your Father."—Thomas Hughes.

Simple Precautions Against FLU

Sore Throat —

— The Danger Signal

Health Authorities Point Out The Necessity Of Treating The Simple Cold At Its Beginning

Nearly every case of "Flu" starts with a simple cold. At first the throat is sore—often just a little hoarse—soon the infection goes lower—then the chest is affected. A safe plan is to gargle the throat three times daily with "Nerviline"—this will keep the throat free from germs. If there is any sign of tightness in the chest, rub on Nerviline—every drop will penetrate deeply—congestion will be relieved—the cold will break up quickly. Many a dangerous case of "Flu" can be avoided by this simple home treatment.

Of course it is always wise to take some relaxing medicine, and for this purpose immediate results will be secured from Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they purge the system of impurities and carry off a lot of disease—breeding germs.

French Scientist Says Wireless Waves Can Be Used To Warm Rooms

Wireless beams from the Eiffel Tower may be employed to furnish heat for the residents of Paris, if tentative plans drawn by French engineers are put into effect.

Heating plants deriving their power from radio waves are operating successfully in Germany, according to Jacques Risler whose report forms the basis of these plans. Risler said that while the question of wireless heating houses is still in the experimental stage, the feasibility of it has been definitely established.

Explaining how the wireless heating plant would operate, Risler said: "In the laboratory two posts were set up about 50 feet apart. The sending post sent out from 400 to 500 volt current waves of two to three meters in length. All that is to be done is to interpose on the receiving post circuit a filament 'in vacuo,' and it is raised to an incandescent state and gives out quite appreciable heat.

"There is therefore no theoretical difficulty in installing in a house a series of receiving posts which would furnish by radio from a point somewhere near the southern extremity of the world. The lease covers a suite in the Dorset, Brenda Knotts, which had been selected by Mrs. Vander Veer.

Several days ago she sent by radio a description of the apartment, the rent asked and other particulars to her husband in the great expanse of ice near the South Pole, and he really expecting that it would reach him. She was surprised, therefore, to receive a message at her home, 631 Homestead Avenue, Mount Vernon, from her husband to close the deal.

The invisible difference

Many motor oils look alike, but there is a vast difference in the way they perform. Unfortunately this difference is difficult to detect.

The invisible difference which makes one motor oil better than another must be inherent in the crude from which it is made.

There you have the reason why Marvelube gives better engine lubrication than oils refined from ordinary crudes. Imperial Oil searched the world over for a better crude—and in South America they found it. From it they make Marvelube—a pure, carbon-free, full-bodied oil that resists the extreme heats and pressures of modern engine operation.

Aircraft operators prefer Marvelube because better lubrication means greater safety and longer intervals between overhauls. Motorists prefer Marvelube because it is the ideal oil for modern motors. It ensures greater power, greater flexibility and greater economy.

Largest Thermometer

Seventy Feet Long Has Been Erected In Museum Tower At Munich

The largest thermometer in the world was recently erected in the tower of the Deutsche Museum at Munich. It is 22 metres—about 70 ft. —long, and shows not merely the temperature of the moment, but the maximum and minimum of the previous day. It is regulated by another instrument of normal size, connected by electrical apparatus. Not until a thermometer becomes more than about 60 ft. long do you realise how exciting it can be. Blow hot, blow cold, the temperature of the breeze changes from minute to minute The mercury shoe and flows like a ripple on the seashore, and the spectator finds difficulty in tearing himself away from contemplation of the restlessness of the atmosphere.

NO MEDICINE LIKE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Once a Mother Has Used Them She Will Use Nothing Else

To once use Baby's Own Tablets is to use them continually—that is as long as there are young children in the home. That is the testimony given us by mothers from all parts of Canada. They all say that they know of nothing to equal the Tablets, that they find them safe and efficient and at the same time pleasant to take.

Mrs. John Hollinworth, Maidstone, Ont., writes:—"I have three children, the eldest fourteen and the youngest nine months old. I have always used Baby's Own Tablets for them and have found no other medicine to equal the Tablets as a relief for the many ailments of childhood."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulates the bowels and sweeten the stomach. They drive out constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers and make the cutting of teeth easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHO'S WHO IN THE MUSICAL COMEDY "PICKLES"

In response to numerous requests, the Advertising Manager of the "Pickles" (musical comedy company has decided to publish a few intimate details concerning the private lives of some of the principals in the play.

The following remarks may therefore prove interesting to those who are looking forward to the big show on May 27th

Madame Bernadoodle: Plays the part of Hank Maier, the hairdresser, is always called "Matt" for short, owing to the fact that he never allows people to wipe their feet on him. His favorite recreation is adding up the days in automobile license numbers

Jack Markle: Plays the part of Captain Kinski, chief of the Vienna Detective Bureau. Is a pedagogue by trade, but many people think he should have been a banker, for the following reasons: As "principal" of the High School he attracts much "interest," and whenever he spends his month there is a decided "overdraft."

Norman Grocott: Plays the part of Sumski, a detective. In very many ways, and has an astonishing appetite for fruit Married a "peach" of a girl, who was the "apple" of his eye Was an electrician for many years, but was fired for stealing the "current." Doesn't care a fig for a large bed, as always sleeps in an "apricot." At present is engaged in the "plumbing" business.

Don Taylor: Plays the part of Rumski, a working mate of Dumski. Used to be known as plain Mr Taylor, but a few years ago he wrote a treatise on "The Life and Habits of the native Spanish Flea," and received the title of "Don" from the King of Spain.

Frederick Olson: Plays the part of Jago a Hungarian gypsy. In private life, he is one of the most talented pianists in the Alberta Provincial Police force. Very military looking in bearing Wears size 33 boots and a small S in hats Received his early training with the Obi Quadro. He claims that, by analyzing the air in a left rear tire, he can tell what the driver of a car has had for breakfast, but the claim has been disputed.

Albert West: Plays the part of Arthur Crofoot, an artiste. One of the most famous of Canadian literary men. Author of the longest novel ever written, which has been running in the Vermilion Standard in serial form for many years, called "Trivial Specials" Favorite recreation: Singing Recently had his tonsils painted yellow by an interior decorator, because he thought it would make him sing like a canary.

Tom Wells: Plays the part of Jonas Pennington, the proprietor of "Pretty Piper Pickles." One of Vermilion's progressive business men. Always walks the longest way home on the day he receives his salary cheque, because he thinks his money will go farther. Favorite recreation: Social service. Spends two hours preaching to corkscrews, in the hope that some of them will go straight.

William Elwell: Plays the part of Jenison Jones, an advertising expert. The intimate details of this actor's life are too awful for publication, although he is generally known as "Heaven's gift to Vermilion."

Emily McLean: Plays the part of Juno Pennington. Sings soprano, but apart from this vice, is highly thought of in the community. Can always be recognized by her peculiar walk, on the never has both her feet off the ground at the same time. Favorite recreation Reading novels, and dancing until 4 30 a.m.

Mary Lou Richardson: Plays the part of Lady Delaney. A charming actress and the inspiration of the following poem:

V.— penning this few lines, dear friends,
I offer no apology;
Because I've spent the last ten yrs
In the study of astrology.
I always think of freckles
When I see Pan's pet spots on;
And when I gaze at Mars
I think of Colonel Watson.
A farmer always makes me think
Of the funniest planet
But when I look at Venus,
Why, I think of Margaret Strathern.

Steven Parker: Plays the part of Lopez, a waiter. A Vermilion High School student. Possesses considerable musical talent, and always can be seen in the boy of B flat minor. Has the peculiar habit of buying a pair of shoes twice, and then getting a pair of shoes to fit them.

Yvonne Cousineau: Plays the part of Rosa, a Gypsy girl One of the highest paid actresses on the continent, her salary last year running well into two figures An admirer sends the following terse rhyme

I don't mind girls who talk a lot
With remarkable verbosity;
But I hate the sort who pass and stare
With stupid curiosity.

BIG FIELD DAY IN POLICE COURT CIRCLES

Several Youths From North Country Bear Heavy Penalties

Fines and costs aggregating nearly $300 00 were imposed by Police Magistrate Fiddis in the police court here on Friday last on several young men from the Mayer and Anglo Lake districts, and in addition three of them drew sentences at the provincial goal at Fort Saskatchewan. One of the rows occurred at the Anglo Lake church on Sunday. In this scrap Bill and Paul Malinowski and Harry Gearnah were charged with assaulting one Alex Krambeck. Bill and Paul were each fined $20 00 and costs, while Gearnah was found not guilty.

A real scrap, however, was the one staged at the Mayer hall on Tuesday, 7th, a Ukrainian holiday. There was a dance and there were the usual factions, one section of the district against the other. According to the evidence an old man named Paul Mychalchuk fell foul of the Malinowski boys and several others, the outcome of which was that he got a black eye and a severe pounding. These boys with George Yarmash, Harry Gearnah and Mike Mychalchuk each taxed with a fine of $20.00 and costs. The more serious offence was that of assaulting one Bill Aderchuk, and the charge here was against the Malinowski boys and George Yarmash, who are of course not related. John Fedczuk. The latter was fined $20.00 and costs, while Bill and Paul Malinowski each drew fines of $50 00 each without the option of a fine and Yarmash four months. With the exception of the Fedczuk case, which was fined elected to serve one month at the Fort in lieu of paying the assessment. They were all taken up the following morning by Constable Olson. This was one of the biggest field days in police court circles here for some time, the array of witnesses and listeners in quite filling the capacity of the fire hall where the hearing took place.

Aksyniuk, the victim of the grievous assault, appeared in court with his head swathed in bandages, covering wounds big and small, bruises and cuts almost too numerous to mention, as Ukrkens would put it. The defense alleged that the whole trouble arose over Mychalchuk going into the hall with an open knife in his hand and giving a general invitation to all and sundry to come out in the open and see what fun could be in a general hand to hand fight. The invitation, they said, was accepted and Mychalchuk evidently got the worst of it. Mychalchuk denied this and said he went in on an errand of peace, as there were then murmurings of discontent inside. P. J. Richardson appeared for the complainants, while J. W. G. Morrison represented the accused. It was a memorable day for the north country.

Popular V. S. A. Teacher Transferred to Raymond

It is with genuine regret that we learn that Miss F. N. Edwards, household science teacher for the past four years at the Vermilion School of Agriculture, has been transferred to the government school at Raymond. Besides being an energetic and successful teacher, and an ardent school girls' worker, she filled a place in the life of the town itself, as will be said by all.

Miss Edwards left on Wednesday night for Calgary, her home, where she will remain for two months before commencing her duties at Raymond.

CHIEFLY FROM R. D. MINUTES

Council of Municipal District of Grizzly Bear No. 453 met at Wildmere on May 4th, Reeve Shane taking the chair at 1 p.m. All the councillors were present, and minutes of previous meeting were read and on motion adopted.

Messrs. A. Arthur and J. Green of Auburndale waited on the Council with a plea for the opening of the surveyed road north of Sec. 15-47-6, noting that this was a continuation of a four-mile stretch of road in the adjoining Municipality. Councillor E. C. Symes is to see what can be done in the matter.

Mr J. A. Morison, Provincial Roads Inspector, was in attendance and made arrangements as to location of Government grant road work, total grant distributed among the six divisions amounting to $2562.

Correspondence in connection with claim by a ratepayer, threatening legal action, was considered, and Reeve Shane and Councillor Priedlard were deputed to seek competent advice and to take such action as the interests of the Municipality require.

Letter from Mr. J. W. G Morrison, Vermilion, re the Municipality's liability for upkeep of the J. Green children, was considered, also necessary forms dealing with same from the Provincial Government, who hold the Municipality liable.

Letters from parties in Vermilion locality as to surveyed road on east of Sec 16-48-4 and to average road work on same, were dealt with. Memos from the Royal Alexandra and from the Misericordia hospitals, Edmonton, re conferring to unpaid accounts of two ratepayers, were tabled.

Reports from the three hospital districts were submitted Vermilion asks $2149, requiring mill rate of 2.2; Islay asks $2250, equal to 2.3 mills. Wainwright asked three cents per acre, or $526. Council took exception to taxes being allocated on an acreage basis, as if the country lands are to the south of the Battle River from which the municipality collects Wainwright hospital taxes, were on a par with the fertile lands near town. The secretary was instructed to protest the requisition, and to ask that allocation be on a fair and equitable basis and passed.

Landsville Pioneer An Octogenarian

A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McLean of the Landsville district on May 11 when a number of jolly neighbors and friends gathered to wish Mr. McLean many happy returns of the day on his eightieth birthday. Mr. and Mrs. McLean settled in this district in 1906 and are among the oldest pioneers of the district. A dainty lunch was enjoyed by all and all arose to drink the health of the host, wishing him many more years of happy life among them.

DR. SCOTT APPOINTED EXECUTIVE DENTAL ASSOCIATION

Dr. W. H. Scott has been informed of his appointment to the executive of the Western Canada Dental Association as one of the Alberta representatives. His expenses to attend the biennial convention, which this year is combined with that of the Canadian Dental Association of Regina the first week in June. A number of eminent lecturers and clinicans from various American and Canadian centres are on the program.

$20,000 ADDITION TO St. PAUL HOSPITAL

Work Already Begun

Since the completion of the local hospital two years ago it has been filled to capacity every day. Negotiations have been under way for several months with a view to starting the new addition to the old building early but plans were not finally prepared until a few days ago. The contractor Mr. Gordon, expects, weather permitting, to have the new building ready for occupancy in three months. —St. Paul Journal.

Greenhouse New Industry

Mr and Mrs. J. H. Payne have now completed their large remodelled greenhouse on their farm some four miles south and one mile east of town. The greenhouse itself is ideally located on the south slope of a hill near a small lake. The building has been constructed after the most approved greenhouse plans and measures 100 by 30 feet in size. Lack of water, which caused the discontinuation of the greenhouse in town, will be unknown here as the water will be piped up from the nearby lake by means of a force pump. The Standard expects to have more information later regarding the plants grown, etc.

CHICKEN, HERE'S YOUR COOP

The above will have to be the motto of all poultry raisers within the boundaries of the town of Vermilion from henceforth, because the by laws provide that chickens running at large are infringing on the laws of the town, and right now is the time to coop them up. Hatching, tree and flower planting are in full swing and it is rather disheartening to have several hours of labor uprooted by some scatty bird after the worm.

Trans-Canada Air Service Outlined

Postmaster-General Has Promoted Ambitious Program To Government

Hon. P. J. Venlot, postmaster-general, outlined an ambitious program for a trans-Canada air mail route when the House of Commons went into committee of supply, and considered the outside service vote of the post office department. This service includes all air mail routes in the Dominion. Mr. Venlot declared. The total vote, including salaries and allowances, is $34,926,630. Progress was reported.

Under the sub-heading of mail service, which includes all air routes, the amount of the vote was given at $18,300,000. Mr. Venlot explained that during the past few months the postal service had extended its mail routes to almost every corner of the Dominion. During the coming summer it was hoped to connect Toronto with Buffalo and Windsor with Detroit, cities along the route which provided landing fields for mail planes could benefit from this service. The department did not intend to construct such landing fields itself. Air mail service in the Pacific coast ports was not contemplated for the present year, Mr. Venlot declared, for surveys of mail routes had not yet been completed by the experts of the department of national defence. As soon as these surveys were finished and the feasibility of mail for western link in the trans-Canada service reported upon, it could be determined when and how the complete service could be given.

Increased Wheat Stocks

Quantity Of Grain On Hand Shows Increase Over Last Year

The quantity of wheat in Canada on March 31, last amounted to 244,422,000 bushels, an increase of 151,154 bushels over the corresponding date last year. The figures which were issued by the department of trade and commerce, are based on returns from elevators. Four mills, railway companies and crop correspondents.

The 1929 wheat stocks on hand comprised 177,250,528 bushels in elevators, four mills and afloat; 60,517,000 bushels in farmers' hands, and 17,613,472 bushels in transit by rail.

Stocks on hand of other grains are shown as follows:

Oats 156,071,343 bushels against 179,817,808 bushels on March 31, 1928; barley, 69,456,935 bushels compared with 83,134,126 bushels. Of the total 29,184,000 bushels are still in farmers' hands.

The returns show an appreciable drop in the quantity of flax seed with 3,716,324 bushels in store against 8,357,604 bushels in 1928. Rye also showed a drop with a 1929 total of 6,648,145 bushels against 7,643,981 a year ago.

An Old Scottish Custom

"Burning the Clavie" Supposed To Ensure Good Fishing Season

"Burning the clavie," an ancient custom, was recently observed in a number of fishing towns in Scotland. The principal celebration was at Burghead, on the Moray Firth where it is a community event. The clavie was a tar barrel, with a firkole, surmounted by burnt staves fixed on it. It was lighted carried around the town, and then placed on an ancient stone on a nearby hill top. Finally it was thrown down the hill side, still burning and there was a scramble by the crowd to secure the fragments, as the ceremony is believed to insure a good fishing season.

Big Ben Seventy Years Old

And Famous Bell Will Likely Be Singing For Centuries

Big Ben, the famous clock in the House of Commons which now supplies the time by wireless to thousands of homes throughout the British Isles, and is listened to by England's colonists, India, and other far lands as a link with home, has now rung its hours for seventy years. Big Ben is a habit of Britain for long periods—Big Tom, the predecessor of Big Ben, rang at Westminster for 400 years—so that Big Ben will probably be ringing whether heavy despite the fact that it was cracked a few months after it was first hung and has remained so to this day. The bell is limited to a dozen and, in consequence, no one now knows the real tone of which it would be capable under different circumstances. Despite this the silliness of tone from the bell is enormous and calls for much careful attention, as the control of the British Broadcasting Company. The microphone which from which the scale is taken in the lower of the House of Commons is wrapped with cloth to soften the reverberations before they are passed on by air for long-distance transmission. Occasionally the booming is louder than intended, and it has been discovered that this is due to the curiosity of the pigeons who are Big Ben's neighbors in the tower and who sometimes disturb the wrapping

Dunne Wrote Cook Book

French Author Created New Dishes As Well As Fiction Characters

The last of the books that emanated from the facile pen of Alexandre Dumas the great French writer, was a cook book. It contained recipes for preparing eggs in fifty-six different ways. The famous author was as happy over the perfection of an omelet, it is said, as he was at the successful creation of a fiction character. The value he himself placed on his culinary ability is revealed in his own words: "I see with pleasure that my culinary reputation is increasing and progressing, soon to efface my literary reputation."

At a time when food-poisoning is the pleasant diversion of an enemy, it is said Louis XVIII. was very adept at preparing his own dishes. In the fourth part of Scott's which we owe that staple of picnics and parties, the sandwich, originated by the earl, who caused to be brought to him at the gaming table—having such a passion for gambling that he could not take the time to dine—two slices of bread with a slab of meat between. Then did he acquire the honorable nickname of Cardinal Richelieu, as tradition has it, caused the creation of Mayonnaise.

Animals Weep Like Humans

Even Elephants Cry When Escape In Cut Did Or They Are Wounded

Though we cannot always be sure of the causes, it is a fact that many animals weep just as human beings do, and often for similar reasons. Dogs, monkeys, and elephants all weep. The latter, not-caused being quite "very-babies" when wounded or their escape is cut off. Calves shed tears when they are ill, and all the cud-chewing animals have the power to weep. Stags and bears both cry when their pride is wounded, according to the statement of sportsmen, who also tell us that the giraffe is equally susceptible to the influence of the emotion. Even the one who has wounded it. Many thoughtless boys, and men too, for that matter, seem to think animals have no feeling, and the cruel treatment does not matter much. It matters a great deal, and even in the case of animals that cannot relieve themselves with tears, a glance at the ruminants' eyes should be sufficient to indicate the suffering they are enduring

The Art Of Flying

Those who have learned to fly are unanimous in saying how easily the art is acquired. It is just this ease which is one of the dangers, because when proficiency is only attained by labor and tears the technical rules of a craft are implanted so deeply in a man's nature, inscribed so indelibly on the tablet of an apprentice's memory that they become part of his instinctive self.

The Farmer's Lot

The agriculturist who bemoans the fact that he has to sell a couple of steers when he wants to buy farm machinery fails to realize that there are other forms of wealth than dollar bills. His herd is his bank account. Whether the farmer has to wear harder lines the average city dweller is debatable. At least he has as a rule, more to show for his labor than the average city dweller whose lot he is sometimes prone to envy.

Victorian Order Of Nurses

Members Of Order Paid In Neighborhood Of $60,000 Visits Last Year

Three B's—buttons, badges and brooches, loom large in the equipment of the Victorian Order nurse. And yet if one were to consult a sort of "Ask Me Another" contest on this matter, it is almost certain that few there would be who could describe in detail the insignia of the nurses to hue.

The Victorian Order Of Nurses, as the name signifies, was founded in commemoration of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria's Jubilee. It is fitting therefore, that the nurses carrying on "her work under the Charter granted by Queen Victoria, should include in their uniforms distinguishing marks of their royal connection.

Victorian Order buttons are bronze, small and round. The letters V.O.N. appear in the centre surrounded by a garland of maple leaves, and surmounted by the Crown. The bar badge is also of bronze and is quite large. It consists of the letters V.O.N. in bronze monogram, flanked on either side by maple leaves and surmounted by the crown. The brooch, worn by all Victorian Order Nurses on the job, consists of a bar from which is suspended by a link a medallion of slightly oval design, containing the words "Victorian Order Of Nurses for Canada" around the edge, and serving to enclose the letters "R.V.I." in open work, surmounted by the crown.

The ladies of the three B's are hard working. According to figures recently compiled, Victorian Order Of Nurses throughout Canada, in 1928 paid in the neighborhood of 600,000 visits. Of these 14,870 were maternity cases. Another way of putting that fact figure is to say that Victorian Order nurses were in attendance at 8 per cent. of the births in Canada in 1928.

One Man's Ration

Frenchman Figures Cut Total Consumption in a Lifetime

How much does a person eat in an ordinary lifetime. A French statistician has estimated that a man of 70 has consumed a whole trainload of nourishment, 30 wagon of fresh vegetables and 10 cows.

These hundred tons include ten of bread, and and three-quarter tons of meat, 12 thousand eggs, 3,500 lbs. of salt. The salads eaten would cover a three-acre field.

Search For Gas

Large Sum To Be Expended In Drilling Operations This Year

The Hudson's Bay Mortand Oil Company will spend $250,000 this year, mainly in search of gas. It will drill a 6,000-foot well in Saskatchewan of the Canadian Pacific Railway's great irrigation dam on the Bow River, if nothing else goes. Found it is proposed to pipe a supply to Regina. Another $100,000 well will be drilled in Alberta, Alberta, and $50,000 will be spent in drilling in the Viking field from which Edmonton secures its gas supply.

The Goitur—"They're all afraid to play me. What do you think my performance is?"

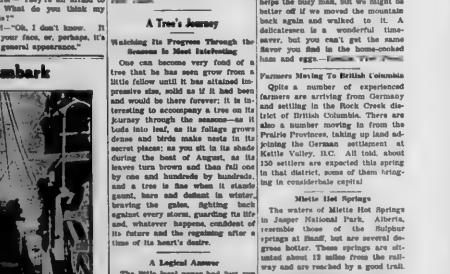
New Canadians Embark



The new Canadian Pacific 20,000 ton liner, "Duchess of York," on her maiden voyage to Canada from Liverpool, carried a large number of British settlers under the "Families, Boys, and Ten Pound Schemes."

There were 1,200 passengers aboard when snow embarking from the tender "Bolton" off Belfast, to the "Duchess of York."

Mysterious Big Lake Trout in New National Park Lakes

Fishes Report Strange Monster In Montreal Lake, the New Rainbow Resort At Prince Albert

Cypogogo, mysterious marine monster of Okanagan Lake, in British Columbia, has a rival and must look to his laurels if he is to retain his place in the sun as the authentic "sea-serpent" of Canada's inland lakes. This challenger is none other than Nanapush, familiar in repute also but none the less mysterious which inhabits Montreal Lake, one of the many bodies of fishing water which are comprised within the limits of the new Prince Albert National Park, lying to the north of here.

Nanapush has never been reported seen by white man, but he has made his presence manifest, for he has been reported by almost every Indian trapper and fisherman who has made this lake his scene of his labors during the few years which proceed the reservation of the territory as a national park. While natives have not seen the monster they have suffered from his presence, for according to the fishing laws enforced in the territories of Saskatchewan and Alberta, which is subject to superintendent J. A. Wood, the monster has been responsible for many lines being snapped by his sudden rushes and consequent loss of fish of his type, there are legends connected with him, one of which is that he can never be taken with ordinary fishing gear until a charm is discovered which is potent against him, but will continue to reign as king of all fish within the waters which he has chosen to inhabit. While he has not yet been known by white man's eyes, this situation may be altered during the next few years, as Prince Albert has already formed a favored summer resort, and at least he will provide an authentic add for the unsuccessful fisherman, for he is said "Big Joe" to get away, breaking any and all fishing tackle.

Perennial Climbing Plants

The Virginia Creeper Holds a Prominent Place in the West

A greater use of climbing plants would add beauty to many of the homes in the country. Houses that lack beauty of architecture may be made very attractive by the planting of some of the handy climbers. Arbors, sundials, summer-houses, milkhouses, fences, rocks, and old stumps of trees covered with a luxuriant growth will change the appearance of the place that it will hardly be recognized by one who has known it before. Unfortunately there are many hardy native climbers available in most districts and most nurseries carry exhibit kinds at low prices. For many a years a large number of kinds of these plants have been under test by the Central Experimental Farms system. The results of these trials are contained in Bulletin No. 98 "Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, and Woody Climbers." Among the most favored of these for hardiness, rapidity of growth, and permanency is the Virginia Creeper holds a prominent place. This vine, Ampelopsis quinquefolia, native of the colder parts of Canada, is one of the hardiest and quite suitable for Prairie Provinces planting. While it has tendrils by which it clings to wire supports and trellises, it does not attach itself to the walls. Another variety is the Virginia Creeper known as the Self-fastening or Hairy Virginia Creeper, attaches itself firmly to brick and other walls, requiring no special support. This variety, found growing wild at Ottawa, is hardy in Ontario and the Eastern Provinces, as well as in British Columbia. Many other attractive climbers of considerable interest and shrubs are described and recommended in this publication, issued by the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

Old Bobbie Still Podged

Farm Horse Still Holding Out Against Onward Tide Of Motor Cars

Notwithstanding the constant increase in the general use of the motor car and power farm machinery among farmers in Canada, Old Bobbie, as the farm horse is affectionately called, is evidently not likely to lose his popularity. Statistics compiled by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics show that in the year there were 3,576,294 farm horses in the Dominion valued at $255,060,000 compared with 1925, the figures show a decrease of only 177,647 in the number, but an increase of $9,-000,000 value.

Total cattle in Canada at the end of 1928 numbered 9,783,272 valued at $363,800,000. Milch cows formed about the total numbered 3,792,522 with a value of $177,000,000.

The value of all kinds of live stock on Canadian farms at the end of last year is placed at $861,403,000, an increase of about $62,000,000 over the year ago.

A Tree's Journey

Watching Its Progress Through the Season Is Most Interesting

One can become very fond of a tree that has been taken from a little fellow until it has attained impressive size, solid as if it had been and would be there forever. It is interesting to accompany a tree on its journey through the seasons—as it looks into bud, as the foliage grows dense and birds make nests in its secret places; as you sit in its shade during the heat of August, as its leaves turn brown and then fall one by one and hundreds by hundreds, and a tree is fine when it stands gaunt, bare and defiant in winter, braving the gales, fighting back against every storm, guarding its life and, whatever happens, confident of its future and the regaining after a time of its heart's desire.

A Logical Answer

The little local paper had just run a contest to determine which inhabitant of the country was the oldest. An old negro man, Uncle Moss, was in the winner. A reporter was sent out to interview him.

"To what," asked the inquiring Reporter, "do you attribute your long life, Uncle Moss?"

"Well, suh, Boss," answered the old negro, "Ah 'tributes dat to lots of things. But I reckon, suh, it's mostly because I done been living for a long time!"

Landlady—"Your bottle of whiskey is finished, sir. Shall I get you another?"

Lodger—"Well, it's about your turn, isn't it?"

Amber is petrified resin from certain trees. Romance called it gruesome.

Business In Healthy Condition

Unprecedented Industrial Activity is Seen Throughout Canada

"Business in Canada emerges from the winter season in a generally healthy condition. The most outstanding features of the last few months have been unprecedented exports of western grains and industrial activity on a scale never equalled before in this country." States the latest issues of the commercial letter published by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. This unprecedented industrial activity is partly attributable to the branch line extension and replacement of plans of the two major railway companies, but it reflects also the large orders placed by these organizations for rolling stock and other equipment, the requirements of manufacturers of farm implements, automobiles and household machinery, particularly that needed for mining, and the increased quantity of lumber required for pulpwood operations purposes," the letter continues. "Other industries operating at a high level are those allied with part of the Young proposals which would reduce the German payments to the Dominion to some.

The pronouns brought forward by the U.S. delegate were by way of a compromise. The Young proposals had become deadlocked on the amount Germany should pay. The German refusal to meet the Allied demands and Mr. Young advanced a plan involving some reduction.

Eclipse Of Sun In South Seas

Thousands In Manila See Phenomenon Through Smoked Glasses

Manila.—The eclipse of the sun cast a shadow of total across Agusilayan and the South Seas.

Manila witnessed the phenomenon with great interest, but some, 90 per cent. of the face of the sun being obscured as the moon's bulk came between the earth and the sun. The obscuration cast a spell over the city but did not prevent the sun from casting shadows.

If the natives feared the phenomenon there was no sign of it here. Thousands of all ages viewed the eclipse through smoked glasses or other improvised instruments.

Astronomers were invited from Iloilo, south of here, where five scientific expeditions located their instruments to view the phenomenon of a total eclipse.

Disappointed In Arms Parley

Stresseman Discusses Failure To Reach Definite Decision

Berlin.—Gustave Stresseman, foreign minister of Germany, in discussing disarmament and the Paris reparations negotiations in a speech at the annual banquet of the Foreign Press Association. Although he specifically disclaimed any desire to give a pessimistic touch to these situations, yet his remarks, especially regarding disarmament, showed disappointment and even alarm at the failure of the Geneva conference to reach concrete and definite decisions.

Oppose Bill For Bath Pay

Ottawa, Ont.—Five Manitoba Liberal members have served notice on the government they will oppose Hon. Peter Veniot's bill to pay $150,000 to the postal workers who went on strike in 1924 and who were taken back into the service. The dissenting Liberals are: Messrs. Glen, Lewis, Stephenson, Brown and Milne. The bill will have to be radically redrafted or what is quite probable, dropped entirely.

Ice Breaks Up On Yukon

Dawson.—The ice in the Yukon river in front of Dawson started moving out on May 7, heralding the advent of spring and summer. First prize in the guessing contest on the movement of the ice was divided between Thos. Leech, of Dawson, and Kennedy and Grace Stewart, of Anchorage, Alaska. The approximate amount of the prize was $7,500.

Falls In Altitude Test

Montreal.—After reaching a height of 17,000 feet, Captain M. F. Jones chief pilot of the Canadian Air Transport at Carterville, was forced to give up his attempt to break the world's altitude record here. Jones made his attempt without the aid of oxygen and in an open cockpit plane.

Adopt Grade Crossing Bill

Ottawa.—Third reading was given in the Senate of the bill amending the Railway Act which provides for the expenditure of $300,000 a year to eliminate grade crossings.

REPARATIONS PLAN UNFAIR TO THE DOMINIONS

Paris.—It was confirmed that the plan for revision of reparations payments by Germany, proposed by Owen D. Young, of the United States, is to be presented to the experts tomorrow. Several Great Britain nothing for the Dominions or for arrears of interest on debt. It would accept that country just enough from Germany to pay the U.S. from now on.

The British experts here refute the contention that this is all that is demanded in the Hallows note. They point out the costs reconstructions due the Dominions from its borns.

The absence of direct representation for the Dominions at the conference is considered by the British delegation as all the greater reason for not yielding on the claims of the Dominions share of German reparations. The delegation is practically certain that Owen D. Young's plan of the Young proposals which would reduce the German payments to the Dominions to some.

The proposals brought forward by the U.S. delegate were by way of a compromise. The Young proposals had become deadlocked on the amount Germany should pay. The German refusal to meet the Allied demands and Mr. Young advanced a plan involving some reduction.

AMENDMENTS TO ELECTION ACT TO BE FORTHCOMING

Ottawa.—Candidates should be allowed to hire automobiles or other conveyances to carry voters to the polls on election day, is the view held by the special committee of the House of Commons reviewing the Dominion Elections Act, Sec. 71, which makes the practice an offence is to be deleted. There are at present two conflicting views on many polling subdivisions throughout the country, Colonel O. M. Biggar, former chief electoral officer stated. Approximately $150,000 was paid out in each election by a revision of subdivision boundaries. Sec. 23 is to be amended in a way to prevent this.

Sec. 27 is to be amended so that an election officer guilty of a wilful act or omission shall be liable to a fine of from $300 to $500, and one half the fine is to go to the informer.

Sec. 29(a), which is the Allied Franchise them all and it would be almost impossible to differentiate.

It is understood that the country is to be amended so that the judges will not have the name of the printer, the candidate cannot be unseated if there is a slip of the printer, provided the section is to prevent anonymous material being circulated.

Farmers and labor organizations may hereafter contribute to election expenses as a result of removing Sec. 9, which provided that no association could furnish money unless it was specially formed for election purposes. The chairman, C. H. Power, Liberal, Quebec South, said that the section operated unfairly in the case of farmers and labor organizations.

Edmonton.—None of the five Alberta women who were appointed to visit England on June 17, when the Privy Council is to hear their appeal in the declaration of the Supreme Court of Canada, which decision declared that they are not "persons" within the meaning of their national character, the British North American Act, will be able to attend a great reception planned for them in their honor in London.

The invitation, which also carried with it an offer of assistance, has been tendered by a group of women in Great Britain, including members of the imperial parliamentary and other notables who have achieved distinction in politics, business, the professional, literature, education and social endeavor.

Harwood Trains Released

Were Held Up During Ten-Day Period In Northern Manitoba

Winnipeg.—Freed from northern snows by a let up in low temperatures, two Canadian National Railway trains were able to proceed on the way to Churchill, the prairie outlet on Hudson Bay. Both trains had been held up during a ten-day period that had swirled down from the northland almost to The Pas.

After days of almost unavailing effort the snow plows succeeded in battling through the trains, on one of which were 100 men en route to Churchill for the department of railways and canals.

Suspect Grain Mixing

Think United States Soft Wheat Is Mixed With Hard Wheat Of Canada

Vancouver.—Possibility that some United States soft wheat is brought to this port and mixed with Canadian grain, is interesting the Saskatchewan Royal Grain Commission just now. Evidence has been produced that at least one such vessel from Seattle was in port, this spring, with a part cargo of soft wheat, and loaded the balance of the ship with Canadian grain. The port warden was before the commission, to explain just what safeguards there are to prevent anything of this sort. His evidence was clear on the point, that in such an event, no government certificate would be issued to cover such a mixed cargo, but that there was nothing to prevent mixing after the Canadian grain was loaded, and put into the vessel. In such an event however, the Canadian certificate would not be construed as applying to the mixture, though covered by bonded buyers might be deceived as to just what kind of cargo they were buying. The point was raised that ships en route to the Orient from Seattle, frequently come in here for grain, and many of them have soft American grain aboard. There is a minimum made in Oriental ports of 2% per cent Canadian hard wheat, and the balance soft, from the United States but this is not covered by a Canadian certificate.

Plans Flight To Sweden

Second Attempt Will Be Made By Ivan Unger

Chicago.—Another flight to Sweden from the United States is being attempted by Bert Hassell, Rockford, aviator.

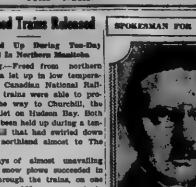
Hassell, who piloted the aviator Rockford on its projected Rockford-Sweden flight last summer and was forced down in the snow fields of Greenland, declared his next flight would be under a route with nine refueling points.

Hassell predicted that within five years aeroplanes with fast loads will fly regularly between Copenhagen and Chicago. The route from the Middle West to northwestward through Canada to Iceland and Greenland, thence to the European mainland, is the safest possible to Europe, he said, with its longest stretch over water being only six hundred miles.

New York Doctor Loses Radium

New York, N.Y.—Somewhere in New York, $25,000 worth of radium is smoldering slowly through its tiny containers and will probably burn its way through a room's width one refueling points.

Hassell predicted that within five years aeroplanes with fast loads will fly regularly between Copenhagen and Chicago. The route from the Middle West northwestward through Canada to Iceland and Greenland, thence to the European mainland, is the safest possible to Europe, he said, with its longest stretch over water being only six hundred miles.



SPOKESMAN FOR GERMANY

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, and spokesman of the reparations conference in Paris.

A BROWN STUDY

Brown is a more restful and tasteful color, the car designers and interior decorators of the Canadian Pacific Railway have decided, so will be the predominant note in the sumptuous new sleeping cars built by the company's Angus shops at Montreal especially for service on the Trans-Canada Limited. The carpets and curtains will be a rich brown, and the wood finish a lustrous walnut. Permanent headboards, too, will give added privacy, dividing each section from its neighbour in cubicle fashion. The feature of the rear end equipment on the Trans-Canada will be a Solarium-lounge car, with green tiled bath rooms and white-glassed sun rooms and smoking rooms for women as for men.

A trip from Germany to the United States and back is due to start soon, after which the post office department was advised the airship would return to this country to start circling the globe.

Must Watch His Colors

Party Workers In England Must Be Wide Awake

London.—The party worker who ships lightly from constituency to constituency during the general election campaign will have to keep a sharp eye for his colors. For by a curious practice in British elections no party has national colors except in every constituency. Sometimes the colors in one constituency are completely reversed in another. Occasionally it is a bit awkward for the party enthusiast who wanders far afield

SAY POOL WILL NOT SELL GRAIN AT A SACRIFICE

Winnipeg.—If western wheat pools are blamed for the grain blockade at Port Colborne and Montreal, they are not concerned at the situation in which they are found. But they refuse to be made the "goat." According to Pool officials' statements in answer to Minister Stegenthaus.

"We could mitigate the situation if we wanted to sell our grain at a sacrifice," commented a senior official, "but we refuse to make farmers pay for a situation that is not our fault. Don't misunderstand us. We are willing to sell grain amount—we are not refusing sales."

"The world surplus is not of our making. There is an enormous amount of grain in the world, and the buying is not exactly brisk. If we wanted to take sacrifice prices we could move the stuff, but we don't intend to penalize our farmers by doing it.

"Why should we relieve the congestion for everybody's benefit but our own? Montreal officials can blame whom they like—we refuse to be the 'goats.'"

Saskatoon.—A report from Moose Jaw said that farmers cooperating with Western farmers for grain congestion at the port of Montreal and Fort William's suggestion that Canadians should accept a lower price if taken exception to here by George H. Williams, president of the Pool of Farmers of Canada Saskatchewan section.

The report published by the Montreal star," he says, purporting to come from an official of the Moose Jaw farmers' committee can hardly be regarded as a very fair statement."

Mr. Williams statement continues. "The article finds fault with western farm organizations because they, through the agency of the wheat pools, are endeavoring to hold the price of wheat up to a level where it will pay the cost of production.

"The report indicates that the official of the lumber combination makes it very clear that the profits of the lumber combination are being interfered with and we note the publication is to lower the price of wheat.

"This has always been the aim of commercial organizations to help farmers produce and supply prices on the farmer and manufacturer that may come up and down and the profits of the handling company. To meet up this demand they suggest that a drop of even a cent would relieve the situation.

"If this is so, how is it that a drop of nine cents in the open market does not relieve the situation? Can it possibly be that all the real profit is in the hands of the pools who are holding it for a sensible price, and that all the hoeing is about a lot of paper wheat in the hands of speculators, which does not exist in real baskets at all?

"Somebody ought to explain it!"

Possibly 100 per cent. control of all the wheat by the pools might not be such a bad idea after all. Apparently it's direct result would be to cut out a lot of market camouflage and let us know just where we really are!

MARITIME GRAIN RATES CASE IS POSTPONED

Ottawa.—Application of the maritime board of trade for a reduction in grain rates from Fort William to St. John, N.B., and Halifax will be heard at three sittings of the board of railway commissioners. Chairman H. A. McKeown and his colleagues on the board, it was announced, will hold local sittings at St. John and Halifax some time in July Later, a final hearing on the application will take place here.

A rate of 19.34 cents per hundred pounds on grain shipments from Port William to the two ports on the Atlantic seaboard is sought by the application, as against the prevailing rate of approximately 34 cents. The rate now effective from Port William to the port of Quebec under the general freight rate revision is now 15.34 cents a hundred pounds.

Hearing of the application was scheduled before the board here, but owing to the illness of Alistair Fraser, K.C., counsel for the Canadian National Railways, presentation of the case has been postponed until July

Wheat Nipped By Frost

Grain in Brandon District Will Ripen Again Say Farmers

Brandon, Man.—Wheat shoots on hundreds of acres in the Brandon district have been nipped off by continued night frost. Grain that is ten inches high has reached a height of one and one-half inches has been leveled. Farmers state that the grain will grow again without re-seeding and some contend that the new growth will be a benefit, strengthening the roots.

Phonograph Records Of Speeches

GIRL GUIDE NOTES

At our regular meeting on Thursday, 9th. Jean Cameron was elected correspondent to the Vermilion Standard, and Helen Norton correspondent to the Girls' Own Journal of the Edmonton Journal. The girls planned to send painting books and crayons to the Hospital for the child patients. At a meeting of the Court of Honor after the general meeting, Jessie Miller was elected Secretary and Jennie Law Treasurer for the Company. We feel that Maureen with his sterling proficiency badges, has set a very high standard for scouts and Guides in our district and as we realize just how much conscientious and patience it has taken, our congratulations are both loud and deep.

Following the suggestion made by H. L. Seymour, town planning expert for the Province, when he addressed a meeting of the Board of Trade here a few evenings ago, the town council has appointed a commission for Vermilion in accordance with the terms of the Town Planning Act. The members of the board so appointed are: J. W. G. Morrison, Mosris Hill, until January 1931; A. E. Kaiser and H. W. Harper until January 1930. In addition to these the Mayor and Chairman of the public works committee of the town council are members by virtue of their office. The Mayor is chairman of the Commission.

As a follow-up of the recent clean-up campaign in Vermilion, the engineers at the local power plant plick bed together to have the floors stained and varnished. The town provided the material and in many other respects the engineers have transformed the general appearance of the plant. Since the work of installation of the new engines and boiler was completed a few months ago the plant has been greatly increased in capacity and power. The number of subscribers to the light and power service has also increased. The steam end of the plant has proven itself a complete success and in all probability the town will be asked to extend the service whenever circumstances permit.

The executive of the Tennis Club regret the necessity of having to dismantle the courts for a few days, but have given the matter full consideration and are of the opinion that this is the only way in which good courts will be secured for this year. The original idea of leaving them and trusting to the rolling to get them into shape was in order to keep down expenditure. The executive have now decided to do what they can to put them into shape and trust that the members will have patience for a week or ten days. One court will always be in shape to play on, so that playing will not be stopped altogether for more than two days at the most.

Sherbank's Saturday night dances continue to attract a large crowd and last Saturday evening was no exception. The usual enthusiasm by the music, and appreciation exercised all tend to make these functions extremely enjoyable. Another one next Saturday night.

The big cast benefit of the Standard's paper cutting machine, wielded in the hands of the editor, broke on Monday of this week and so left the job just dead-like for a few days. However, an expert welding job done by Bon Culvert put all things right again.

Entertainment of Grandmothers

The regular monthly meeting of the Vermilion Women's Institute was held on May 8th at the home of Mrs M Wener and was celebrated as Grandmothers' Day. The meeting was a pleasant one all through. There were some thirty-five present, fifteen of these being grandmothers. After the business was dispensed with, the rest of the afternoon was spent socially. Mrs P G Pilkie favored with a solo in her usual charming manner, also Mrs Brouwer. Others taking part in the programme were Mrs Morrison, Miss Hall, Miss Moore and Mrs Pilcher.

Each grandmother was presented with a tulip from the Institute and a dainty from Mrs Payne. Mr. W P Pilkie invited all the grandmothers to the theatre in the evening, which was greatly appreciated by all.

Barry Bell and Carmen Long in Alberta Dual Trials

Barry Bell and Carmen Long, local sprinters, intend to compete in the Alberta amateur athletic trials for this district. These are being held at Fort Saskatchewan on May 24th. The boys left by car this evening. Several of these district trials are being held throughout Alberta, the object being to heighten the interest and standard of athletics and bring out possible Olympic material. Barry will run in the open 100 yards dash while Carman will take part in both the open dash and the junior 100 also. Both boys are in good shape and can tear off the hundred in less than 11 seconds which is practically as good as he usually does in Alberta with few exceptions.

Tenders Are Already Called For

Nearly 100 miles of highway will be gravelled in the Edmonton district this year according to tenders called for by the provincial highways dept for May 22nd to be opened on May 29th.

Included in this programme is the gravelling of the Vermilion Edmonton road for a distance of 65½ miles, starting from Fort Saskatchewan. This will bring the gravelled road to Vegreville. Doubtless next year will see the gravel reach Vermilion.

ROADS ARE IN FIRST CLASS CONDITION

Motorists planning the short week-end trip can look on with confidence, as the roads leading all directions from town are in a high state of condition. Many of the market roads are being well kept up by municipalities and it is to be hoped that this work will continue throughout the summer.

RURAL ASSESSMENT UNDER DISCUSSION

The assessment commission for Alberta met the assessors and municipal clerks for 11 rural districts at Vermilion and Athabasca at Vermilion on Tuesday to discuss questions relating to assessments in force generally. The chief purpose of the conference was to see if some basis might not be established whereby uniform assessment could be obtained. At present practically each municipality adopts a basis of its own which does not make for uniformity which compares with other districts. One of the most difficult points to discover would appear to be whether brush should be included in assessment either as in connection with decreasing value of land or comparing with land not having any. The commission took different views expressed under advisement.

TENNIS FANS — NOTICE

Science in Service of Mankind

When the real story of human progress is told, probably the salient contribution credited to the present generation will be the alliance of science with pursuits of peace and the mobilization of scientific minds for the common good.

This generation, more than any previous generation in human history perhaps, has effected a divorcement of science from war. In the past, the best scientific minds were directed to the chemistry and physics of warfare, industry and commerce for the most part having to content themselves with the second-best or rely upon adaptation of some invention or process originally devoted to war.

That is a broad generalization which in the specific case may not be true, but which in the main can be substantiated, and the fact remains that war has been the great stimulus to scientific research and invention and, until the present generation, a greater stimulus than industry, commerce and the pursuits of peace. It might also be said that science in its first alliance with industry and commerce had a background of war—of economic war. Now, however, the science laboratory is a workshop, in the true sense of the word.

Illustrative of this idea is the little country of Denmark, where agriculture has reached a scientific pinch higher than in any other country. The great stimulus to scientific agriculture in Denmark was war. Following the war with Germany in which Denmark lost the provinces of Schleswig and Holstein the Danes turned their attention to the intensive cultivation of their very limited resources recognizing that only by high performance per present of land area could they hope to support and survive as a people, and Denmark as a nation. That they have succeeded is proved by the fact that agricultural countries now look to Denmark for leadership and guidance in certain advanced phases of agriculture.

The aeroplane has now occupying a supremely important role in the development of Canada's remoter areas and great mineral-bearing zones, and serving to develop industries which hitherto were impossible. Many times months, of arduous and hazardous travel, made its greatest advancement during the holocaust of the World War. There was less material difference between the war-time Bristol fighter aeroplane, or the plane in which Bleriot first crossed the English Channel and the planes used in the early days of the war than between the planes of 1914 and those which patrolled the front lines in the days immediately preceding the Armistice. That progress of development is another such impetus throughout the world war, has been carried into the post war period, a fact which is abundantly manifest.

The World War was a general mobilization of science not only in Germany where, for some years previously, industrial research had been encouraged in that country's efforts to wage successful economic war against its rival neighbour, but also in and throughout the British Empire and the United States. There was no demobilization of the forces of science after the war in these countries. There was imperative need of retaining the best scientific minds available in the work of reconstruction, and of meeting competition in world trade. Science thus has come into its own.

Canada came late into the movement, but having entered, is now displaying the energy and enthusiasm characteristic of its youth and growing power. With agriculture as the basic industry of the country, it is natural that the establishment of the Research Council should be directed in large measure to the advancement of that industry. Within this movement, the chemist has turned his attention to the milling qualities of wheat. The biologist is studying the factors of hereditary crosses of the different kinds of wheat, the causes and remedies of plant diseases, the insect pests and their control. The physicist has begun to investigate soil temperatures and the engineer to consider problems of water supply and water power in farm homes. The economists have concentrated on marketing problems, and so on.

Noteworthy already have been the achievements of the scientists at work in the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, at Winnipeg. The program already made toward the production of a rust-resistant wheat that will meet requirements as to milling and yield, have been so impressive as to presage an epoch-marking development in the near future.

Guard Against FLU — Sore Throat The First Warning.

Few families will escape. This epidemic constitutes a real danger. Health authorities everywhere warn the public of the danger of the common cold. "The enemy starts with Sore Throat. Unless the germs are killed by some antiseptic treatment a serious illness may develop.

A simple treatment is to gargle the throat three times daily with Zonvitae. The antiseptic properties of Zonvitae quickly destroy the germs in the throat. DO YOU VALUE HEALTH?

Sickness Almost Always Due To Weak, Watery Blood

If your health is poor; if you are languid, nervous, easily tired, or you suffer from headaches or backaches; if there are touches of indigestion, or if your complexion is pale you may depend upon it that these symptoms are caused by impoverished condition of the blood, and that the right treatment is remedial. Dr. Richard Winthrey, who was one of the leaders of the British party which spent the winter in the Arctic in 1927, and who will receive the Canadian editors at his home in Peterborough.

The complete itinerary commences with the sailing of the Canadian Pacific liner "Montclare" on Friday, June 6, and includes visits to France, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Great Britain and Scotland. Five weeks will be spent on the other side of which three will be in Great Britain. The editors will return to Canada from Liverpool on the liner "Duchess of Atholl," reaching Montreal, July 26.

Origin Of National Anthem

Is One Musical Mystery Nobody Has Solved Yet

The origin of the British National Anthem is a musical mystery which has never been solved. It is known that it was first sung in public at Drury Lane and Covent Garden in 1745, when the news of the defeat of Sir John Cope's army at Prestonpans was received London. But it was written a few years earlier than this. One thing students of the subject are fairly sure about is that it was written as a national prayer for the safety of George II. against the Jacobites, and the version given in the "Gentleman's Magazine" in 1745 makes it peculiarly applicable to the fervent prayer of today, though for a very different reason.

Simple and Sure—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is so simple in application that a child can understand the instructions. As a liniment for family direction is to rub, and when used as a drench for horses, the directions are so plain and unmistakable that they can readily understood by young and old.

Not An Affectation

True Courtesy Is Outward Expression Of Sympathetic Mind

Many people regard the graciously mannered man distrustfully, and look with disfavor on displays of extreme politeness—and there certainly is a type of manner which rpes because of its patent artificiality. But true courtesy is not artificial: it is the outward expression of a thoughtful and sympathetic nature and a habitual prayer for enabling success in life; we cannot all perform great services for our fellowmen but it is within the power of the least of us to act graciously in our dealings with others—to behave beautifully in the ordinary affairs of every day. Let us then cultivate that "inner of the fine arts"—courtesy.

Cheapest Of All Oils—Considering the qualities of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil it is the cheapest of all preparations offered to the public. It is to be found in every drug store in Canada from coast to coast and all country merchants keep it for sale. So, being easily procurable and extremely moderate in price, no one should be without a bottle of it.

Newspaper Men To Be Entertained Shortly In Europe

Newspaper editors from all over Canada who leave Montreal early next month for a two months' visit to England and the continent, when they return the visit paid to Canadian newspapers two years ago by the Newspaper Society of Great Britain, will be entertained royally wherever they go. Full plans for the visit, which is being organized by Rupert Davies, editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, were announced recently, following his return from the meeting of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association at which many of those who are going to Europe most.

Among the high spots of the visit which, although entirely unofficial, will be of great benefit to Canada and to the prospects of increasing immigration, are a dinner to be tendered jointly by the Newspaper Society of Great Britain and the Empire Press Union in London, a gala performance at the State Opera House in Vienna and a garden party at which the president of Czecho-Slovakia will be the host.

There is to be much private entertainment with such notables as Lord and Lady Astor, Lord Beaverbrook, Major John J. Astor, of The London Times, Col. Robert McCormick, Sir Richard Winthrey, who was one of the leaders of the British party which spent the winter in the Arctic in 1927, and who will receive the Canadian editors at his home in Peterborough.

The Wonders Of Chemistry

Will Be Used To Build and Change Character Is Prediction

The American Chemical Society, meeting at Columbus, Ohio, heard out a few alarming prospects for the future.

For instance, the time may be coming when a man won't have to build his own character, but can depend on chemistry to do it for him.

Then persons owing crows, they're fortunate enough to have a little woodland, will have the coal-food problem solved for all time because cows will eat wood.

Wood, chemically treated, is already being used for cow-fodder in some countries, according to C. L. Emeleus, Boston chemical engineer, who addressed the society.

Dr. J. R. Matthews, of the University of Wisconsin, predicted that chemistry would be used to change and build character and in this connection he believes the insane will be made sane and the natural-born criminal will become a law-abiding citizen.

Future generations may be giants, one chemist said, if scientists can discover, by synthesis, the cause of growth which lies hidden in the cell nuclei. The discovery, he said he believed, would hinge upon the balance of element.

For 30 years Dr. Torchiet has been associated with the development of the X-ray treatment, and, although suffering ill-effects, has shown great devotion.

NEW TAX ON SALE OF SHARES TO BE LEVIED

Ottawa.—The new tax on sale of shares of stocks scheduled to come into effect on July 1 next, again received the endorsation of the House of Commons. By a vote of 104 to 39 the House defeated the amendment moved by Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader. The amendment would have had the effect of leaving the tax on shares as it is at present. The amendment was moved when the resolution to give effect to the tax changes came up for second reading. This resolution had a rough time when the House was in committee of ways and means but emerged successfully after two votes. The new taxes were attacked along much the same lines. A conspicuous opponent was Hon. Peter Lang, Liberal member for Temiskaming South who condemned the proposal in no uncertain language and voted against it when the House divided.

A number of Conservative members voted their opposition to the new levy but the other groups took little part in the debate.

Following the division, the resolutions received second reading and a bill based on them received its first reading.

During the debate the minister of finance, Hon. J. A. Robb, said there was never a time in recent years when so many people were finding employment as at the exchange throughout the country than had been witnessed during the past year. The fact attested there was a general feeling that the nation should profit by this operation. It was natural that the value of the market and risk their money there was no reason why they should not assist the national treasury, Mr. Robb said.

Engine Driver Acquitted

Verne Alexander Found Not Guilty Of Criminal Negligence

Parry Sound.—Verne Alexander is a free man, acquitted by a jury of his peers on charges of manslaughter and criminal negligence. Alexander was the engine driver of the ill-fated Canadian National train No. 3, which crashed head-on into another train after running past its ordered meeting point at Nobel on the early morning hours of March 20 last. Seventeen and possibly 20 lives were lost, and criminal charges were soon launched against the three surviving members of the train crew.

After a trial lasting three days and a half, Alexander was found not guilty by a jury under Mr. Justice Rinney. The charges against Conductor Edward Riley, of Winnipeg, and Brakeman Charles Gorries, of Toronto, are to be heard on April 15.

The chief defence offered was the distraction under which Alexander was labouring—the operation of a "tramo" engine — coupled with the failure of the warning signal which is to ordinarily operate in connection on a train approaches a meeting place Alexander admitted he forgot his orders and flashed past Derecourt.

Urges Outlets For Peace River Country

Railway Would Lengthen MacKenzie River Season Says General Mellon

Ottawa, Ont.—Construction of railway outlets for the Peace River country from the Mackenzie River to the Pacific, through Peace Pass, which is claimed would increase the present season on the Mackenzie to the Arctic from five and one-half, to four and one-half months, was advocated in the House by General A. D. McRae, Conservative, Vancouver North.

The railway, as advocated by General McRae, would be joined to its course by the present railway from Peace River Crossing and Edmonton and would meet the MacKenzie River, or somewhere below Great Slave Lake in the vicinity of Fort Providence. It would give, General McRae estimated, a 60-hour rail service from Edmonton to that point. This would compare with the present 10-day downstream and 12 days return, and that for a limited time each year.

"The railway, by missing all boat delays due to ice in Great Slave Lake in the spring, would make it possible," he declared, "to reach the MacKenzie River six weeks earlier in the season. It would make it in that fall, increasing the present season on the MacKenzie to the Arctic from two-and-one-half to four-and-one-half months, thus opening up a new Arctic for us."

With such a railway link the MacKenzie River season would be from May 15 to early in October, General Mellon stated.

Would Cost Forty Million

Quarter Being Asked For Manitoba Hudson Bay Railway

Winnipeg.—Approximate cost of the proposed Emerson-Churchill Colonization Railway, which would act as a feeder to other railways and bring Winnipeg 260 miles nearer Churchill, terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway, is $40,000,000, Charles F. Gray and Fred C. Hamilton, directors of the company seeking a charter for the construction from the Manitoba government, told members of the law amendments committee at the legislature session held here.

The committee ordered the bill reported to the legislature with an amendment providing that consideration be commenced within three years and completion of the line in seven years.

The line would be constructed from Emerson, 60 miles from Winnipeg on the Manitoba-Minnesota boundary

Asks Higher Duty On Eggs

Fruitgrowers Have Made Application To Tariff Advisory Board

Ottawa.—For the first time on the records of the tariff advisory board, fruitgrowers have produced before it an application for an increase in duty.

There are 40,000 poultry men of the western provinces and many more from Ontario, as well as more than 2,000 poultry men in British Columbia and the prairies in sympathy with the application placed before the tariff advisory board recently for 300 per cent. increase of duty on imported eggs.

The increases asked in the applications are from 3 cents to 9 cents on every dozen of eggs brought into Canada in the "extras" class on which packers affect more individual producers than any other which has ever come to the attention of the commissioners.

EXPLOSION IN HOSPITAL TAKES A HEAVY TOLL

Cleveland.—Poison gas and two explosion which followed burning of X-ray films in the Cleveland Clinic claimed 134 lives.

There were 90 known dead, and hospital authorities worked desperately to administer artificial respiration to 63 more who were overcome. Victims from the disaster were dying at short intervals, and physicians sent out appeals for additional oxygen for fear that the supply in the city might prove insufficient.

Nearly all the deaths were attributed to the deadly gas which filtered through the four-story brick building—slowly at first, and then suggested by a second and greater explosion than the first, rushed up from the basement and out of escape down the stairways and elevators.

It was learn that the disaster occurred in a very place where the most modern and scientific and laboratories of science had been turned against pain and death. The clinic was owned principally by Dr. Geo. W. Crile, nationally-known physician, who was too occupied with relief work to comment on the catastrophe.

Identity of the powerful gas which brought on one of the worst tragedies in the history of the city had not been determined.

It is possible, however, it was a mixture of gasses coming from many forms of chemicals in the building. In addition, inflammable films gave off a gas said to be bromide.

Although doctors and nurses got out a few patients at the start hardly a minute went by before the fumes filtered out from every opening, forcing rescuers back. When the gas began to lift, they rushed into a scene of shrieking horror.

Many were overcome by the fumes, their clothing still smouldering. Others, crushed by debris, were helpless.

Among the most pitiful sights of the disaster were suffering patients who in agony dragged themselves to windows seeking fresh air, and who were too weak to break the glass to get it. They clawed their hair and shrieked, but their voices were drowned out by other noises. For a moment they stood at the windows hoping helplessly, then slid down to the floor out of sight to die in horrible fear

The Cleveland Clinic is a separate unit of the Cleveland Hospital. The Clinic, a four-story building, houses many laboratories and physicians and the death toll was from both the staff and patients who came for consultations.

All-Canada Telephone Line

Plan Would Link Up East and West On All-Canada System

Edmonton.—Planning an all-Canadian telephone line between east and west, which might be in operation this summer, prominent telephone company officials arrived in the city for a conference with the provincial government. Chicago, who are accompanied by G. H Hulse, chairman of the British Columbia Telephone Board.

At present Alberta and British Columbia are the only two provinces that have inter-provincial telephone service. It is planned to link up all the provinces so calls can be handled on an all Canadian line without having to utilize services in the United States.

After having here the officials will confer with the government in Saskatchewan and Manitoba Mr Hulse will go on to Ottawa, while the others will return to Chicago.

Feed Grain For Poultry

Alberta Wheat Pool To Assist Poultry Raisers In B.C.

Vancouver.—With the object of supplying British Columbia poultry farmers with feed grain at prices lower than those now charged, the Alberta Wheat Pool is turning its attention to this phase of marketing and is expected to institute a service which will benefit the poultry industry, particularly in the Fraser River Valley.

This makes the gist of an announcement made by C. H. McIver, K.C., before the Saskatchewan Royal Grain Enquiry Commission. The sitting was devoted to the hearing of witnesses from among British Columbia poultry raisers. Mr. McIver intimated that he would call witnesses to bear out his announcement regarding the plans of the Wheat Pool

Two farmers who had yet red from the prairies to raise poultry in the Fraser Valley painted a gloomy picture of present conditions in the industry. They agreed that although eggs per head obtained in British Columbia farms are faced ruin.

KING GEORGE RETURNS TO WINDSOR CASTLE

Windsor, Eng.—The King came back to his own friends in this ancient home of British sovereigns like conquering hero.

All Windsor and the surrounding countryside were out to welcome their monarch back after his long illness which for many years months had kept him from them.

Windsor was decorated as never before. Not a single house or shop in Castle Hill or in the near street was without flags and bunting.

The King accompanied by Queen Mary, had a remarkable reception throughout their 21 hours' train journey to Cruiswell House, near Hungerford, where the King will quite recently spent months of his illness. But it was not until he had come to within sight of the towers as it welcomed again the Royal Standard flying from the Round Tower that the King's face showed any signs of emotion.

Thousands of cheering persons including two thousand school children, lined the route from the station to the castle. Many had waited for hours in the chilly dusk. The King and Queen were smiling and bowing from the moment they left the train.

West Fish Industry Employs 7000 People

Ottawa, May 22 — (Official figures compiled here by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Fisheries Branch show that the value of the fisheries production of the Prairie Provinces has increased by more than 10 per cent since 1922.

In aggregate value of the fisheries of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1928 was $2,506,458 as compared with $1,715,875 in 1922 or an increase of $790,583. The figures for 1928 are subject to final revision but should not be altered in the revised returns will be negligible.

Including the figures for the Yukon territory, the increase has been from $1,757,382 in 1922 to $2,558,522 in 1928. The value of the fisheries' production last year was $1,646 as compared with only $11,917 in 1922.

An outstanding feature of fisheries progress in the Prairie Provinces and the Yukon in 1928 was an increase of almost $194,000 in the capital investment. The official figure show that the amount of capital represented by the boats, nets, plant etc. used in the fisheries of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and the Yukon last year was $1,967,871. The greatest increase in investment took place in Alberta where there was a gain of $137,626. In Saskatchewan the increase was $76,500 in Manitoba $22,556, and in the Yukon $6,425. All told, 67,004 men, other than those employed during the year, 1,133 sail and row boats, 319 gasoline boats, 21 steam tugs, and seven barges.

The number of men finding employment in the fishing industry in the three provinces and the Yukon was 6,995 or 636 more than were employed in 1927. In Manitoba there were 4,172 at work as against 4,001 in Saskatchewan 1,504, and in the Yukon 42. Between them they hauled 41,232,760 lbs. of fish. The catch was 578,000 pounds less than in the preceding year but better marketing conditions resulted in an increase of $290,817 in the value of the production as compared with the showing for 1927

Provincial Treasury Shows Record Surplus

Indicating the highly satisfactory condition of Alberta's finances a surplus of $1,817,871 of revenue over expenditure for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1929 is announced by Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer. This gratifying total is made up of a surplus of $1,578,623 on general revenue and $239,048 on the Provincial Telephone System. The former amount will be applied to reducing the debt of the Province and the telephone surplus will be used to reduce the debt on that utility.

A surplus to this amount, constitutes a record for any year in the history of the Province and exceeds the showing made by any province in the Dominion in recent years. General satisfaction is expressed by members of the Government with the sound position of the Province's finances, this surplus being evidence of the fact that Alberta has turned the corner in good better times, as well as a strong vindication of the Government's financial policies.

Attracted By Alberta Lands

One of the outstanding features of the land sales made by the Canadian Pacific Railway Department of Colonization this year is the large number of American farmers who are acquiring land in Alberta, stated S. Rutwell, superintendent of this branch. The increase in the number of farmers selling their holdings in the United States and taking up land in this province, according to Mr Rutwell, is beyond all proportion previous and before the settlement season of 1929 has closed, the influx of settlers from the United States will be greatly in excess of any previous year. The majority of these farmers many of whom are well-to-do financially, are coming from the central mid-western states where exhibits of Alberta agricultural products have been widely shown during the past few years by the Publicity Branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture

Highly Interesting Developments Are Expected In Canada As A Result Of Fuel Research Work

Fuel research may not sound like an entrancing subject, but to materially increase the wealth which Canada will receive from her enormous coal deposits through the scientific and most economic use of the coal is something that does make an appeal. The successful coking of coal means an improved fuel product and less dependence on imported fuel. Our coal deposits are the potential source of an unlimited supply of crude oil, in case the crude oil from wells, though now rapidly increasing, may not always be plentiful. The uses of gas made from coal are also increasing.

These and other matters are dealt with by R. E. Gilmore, superintendent of the Fuel Research laboratories of the Mines branch at Ottawa, in the bulletin of the Professional Institute of the Civil Service. The problem of coking, he says, is not merely one of finding the way to coke different Canadian coals but of finding the coals which will produce a coke that is equal in every way to the best found in imported.

Coke is now produced in Canada mostly by high temperature carbonization. That is, coal is brought to a large centre where there is a good market for the gas that is driven off during the process. But low temperature carbonization, which does not involve disposal of the gas and can therefore take place at the mine, produces a coke suitable for the use of Canadian coal, according to Mr Gilmore. But low temperature process differs in detail for different varieties of coal, and this provides plenty of room for research.

Highly interesting developments are evidently possible in the use of gas made from coal. Mr. Gilmore says: "More and more city houses are being heated with it. We have refrigerators operated by gas as well as electricity so that it is now possible to produce both heat and cold in the same room from the city gas supply. Gasoline can be made synthetically from coal and gas and kraglite, if you will, the possibilities of the development of a process on a small unit scale so that synthetic motor fuels may be produced in private homes and other buildings served with gas. Future developments along this line may make it possible to obtain the motor fuel supply for the family car from the city gas supply, thus converting private garages into private filling stations."

Besides the coke, oil and gas, many other valuable by-products can be taken from coal. The possibilities of fuel research are indeed wonderful. Some of the breaks should be obtained very soon, and others will be a matter of the future. The coal resources will mean very much more to the country if their value can be enhanced, as is expected by the use of scientific methods. Free Press.

Had Good Year

Favorable Report On Sheep and Wool Industry in Canada

For both lamb and wool the sheep industry of Canada had a very good 1928. A report of the Dominion Department of Agriculture says sheep and lamb sales for last year were better than 51 per hundredweight over those of the preceding 12 months, while the wool sales for 1928 showed an increase in values of from 5 to 23 per cent. With a total of 450,712 head the stockyard sales increased by approximately 5,000 head. An appreciable expansion in the industry is reported, with marked gains in Ontario and the four western provinces.

Tiniest Tugger Is Red Cross Champion

Charming little Lenore Moir, of [illegible] Alberta, had the distinction of raising most money for the Junior Red Cross Crippled Children's Hospital when the Annual Primrose Tag Day was held in the city. Twenty-five thousand beautiful primroses were made by April by little children in the city, and offered for sale by hundreds of taggers, young and old. Of these Lenore in her Red Cross uniform attracted much attention, and the "Little Nurse" had the honour of turning in the best box of money and winning first prize.

One thousand dollars were collected for the crippled children of Alberta, on an April morning when the streets of the city were transformed to a garden of primroses that is for ever England.

Adventurers Remembered

Tablet Erected In London To Memory Of Early American Settlers

A handsome bronze tablet was recently placed in a prominent position at Brunswick Wharf, Blackwall, London, to the memory of 105 "Adventurers" who set sail from that spot on December 10, 1606, to found the first permanent English colony in America.

Three ships comprised the expedition, the largest, as recorded on the table being the "Sarah Constant" of 100 tons. The remaining two, the "Goodspeed" and the "Discovery," were respectively 40 tons and 20 tons.

On May 13, the adventurers settled here in Jamestown, Virginia, but owing to the climatic conditions, lack of food, and the hostility of the Indians, 63 of the original 105 died during the first seven months. The handful of survivors, however, carried on, and 13 years later the little colony numbered 3,000 souls.

Summer Fallow Treatment For Wheat

Weeds Should Be Destroyed As Soon As Possible After Germination

The most important item in summer fallowing is to germinate weed seeds and destroy the weeds before they have consumed any appreciable amount of moisture. This is the view held by the superintendent of the Swift Current experimental station, after five years work in treating summer fallow in different ways. Fall ploughing has not proved a help. Indeed it has given lower average yields than any other treatment. Cultivation only during the fallow year gave the best average results for five years, amounting to 26.4 bushels of wheat the year following as compared with 22.8 bushels when the land was fall ploughed previous to the fallow year and cultivated the following season. Discussing this question in his report for 1928, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, Mr. J. G. Taggart, the superintendent, calls attention to the importance of leaving the soil in the fall in a condition that will not promote soil drifting.

London is Changing

But Many People Would Prefer City As It Was

London is dying under our eyes, and not elegantly to slow music, but in violent spasms. Districts change their very character. In Bloomsbury station, at Toronto, one hears of plans for a special Sunday afternoon program at the time and as Mr. Robb spoke from the moving train through the telephone he was connected with the studio and at once put on the air. Despite the fact that the train was travelling at a speed of about twenty miles an hour, and that his words had to be transmitted to Toronto and returned again to the train, the reception was perfect, and he was heard as clearly as if he had sat before the microphone at the studio.

"This is a new feature in the history of radio development," said Mr. Robb, "and a further evidence of the enterprise of the Canadian National Railways in their continued efforts to give every possible convenience and pleasure to patrons making use of the National system. We were the first railway to equip trains with radio receiving sets for the entertainment of our passengers and now we are about to embark on a new enterprise in the way of affording telephone facilities. In the past the traveller, when on the train, was isolated from oral communication with home and office. This handicap to the business man and others we purpose to remove."

During the course of the demonstration the first telegram to be received by telephone on a moving train was read to Mr. Robb. It came from Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president, and was as follows: "Hearty congratulations upon successful experiment. Will revolutionize communication on moving trains. Please thank all concerned for their code of experiment."

Apart from the scientific and practical value as demonstrated by the test, an usual testimonial was forwarded to Sir Henry Thornton by the various representatives of the press on board the demonstration train. This read "undersigned representatives of the press of the United States and Canada congratulate you on the successful consummation of a new and miraculous development in the two way telephone communications from a moving train to points within the Dominion.

The scientific achievement will mark a further step, not only in a commercial way but in the development of the ties that bind the Motherland across the country. Hereafter we may expect interviews enroute with prominent persons destined or waiting until they arrive at some terminal.

SCENE OF R.C.G.A. AMATEUR

No 1 Hole 385 yards, Par 4.

Jasper, Alberta, will be the scene of the Canadian Amateur Championships of the Royal Canadian Golf Association from 19th to 24th this year. The Jasper Park Lodge course par of 72 has not yet been made by an amateur player, and many reputations are likely to be shattered in the tournament this summer. It is expected that the course, which has been described by experts as the finest on the continent, will attract many of the outstanding players of North America.

The photograph shows the first hole of the Jasper Park Lodge course as seen from the tee. Below is a plan of the first hole with the yardages to scale marked below it. Practically every hole has three tees, but in the amateur championships all play will be from the tee No. 3

Coincident with the Canadian Amateur Tournament the Western Canada Amateur will also be played over the Jasper Park Lodge course.

Telephone For Moving Train

Canadian National Railways Introduced Novel Equipment

A chapter unique in railway history and one which for its importance and far reaching effects, has probably never been equalled, was written by the Canadian National Railways, when a special train, operating under the personal direction of Vice-President W. D. Robb in charge of the telegraph and telephone department, demonstrated the feasibility of telephone communication to and from a moving train with the same simpleness of operation as a subscriber would use in making a long distance phone call.

Apart from this achievement, one that railways of the world have waited searched for some years and which the German State Railways imperfectly obtained by the use of one way transmission, an additional dramatic touch was given when unexpectedly the voice of Mr. Robb was heard in the two adjoining radio equipped cars plainly talking through the loud speaker. The solution to this amazing mystery was that the station CNRT., the Canadian National Railways broadcasting station, at Toronto, was broadcasting a special Sunday afternoon program at the time and as Mr. Robb spoke from the moving train through the telephone he was connected with the studio and at once put on the air. Despite the fact that the train was travelling at a speed of about twenty miles an hour, and that his words had to be transmitted to Toronto and returned again to the train, the reception was perfect, and he was heard as clearly as if he had sat before the microphone at the studio.

"This is a new feature in the history of radio development," said Mr. Robb, "and a further evidence of the enterprise of the Canadian National Railways in their continued efforts to give every possible convenience and pleasure to patrons making use of the National system. According to a booklet issued by the Provincial Government's Department of Agriculture, during the year some 1,250,000 lbs. of Alberta turkeys were disposed of outside the province, although ten years ago it was necessary to import large supplies from Eastern Canada. Now, there is a large surplus for shipment to Eastern Canada.

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of The Vermilion Standard

MAY 21ST, 1913.

During the past ten days upwards of $20,000 worth of livestock has been shipped out of Vermilion to Edmonton and Calgary markets. This week alone over 200 head were shipped, aggregating in value about $15,000.00.

Jim Darr has purchased the N. E. of 27-50-7 from Geo. Benson and has the Priedland steam breaking outfit at work. The same outfit has the contract to break 220 acres on the Whitsell land and the acres of stubble plowing to do in the same vicinity.

Work is being rapidly pushed ahead on the new agricultural and sports grounds across the track. The race course when finished will be one of the best half-mile tracks in the West.

The latest town magnates to indulge in the luxury of an auto since last week's issue are A. E. Pilkie, Tom Glanville and Dr. G. W. Payne. This brings the number of autos owned in town up to 15—to say nothing of the motorcycle

The provincial government will spend $5000 in the improvement of the public highways north of town this year

In the supplementary estimates brought down at Ottawa on Tuesday the sum of $25,000.00 was appropriated for a public building in the town of Vermilion.

Those opposed to having the new steel bridge erected east of the present timber one, were successful in winning out in the vote Monday by a majority of 25. The vote stood 93 to 64 against the changing of the location. The matter seems to be one of vastly more interest to the farming community than to town residents and just why the town should have the say so as to whether there were to be any tolls placed and collected month or solidmbly stick to the one, does not seem to be reasonable. Time, however, may determine them of their shortsightedness.

TOWN STREETS ARE BEING LEVELLED

The large carryoucive which reach across our streets wherever the steam line happened to cross them are now being done away with, first being plowed out and then scraped and levelled. This will be good news to all motorists and will greatly improve the streets. Although not so comfortable or easy to ride over, these bumps were absolutely necessary until the earth had got well packed around the pipes.

DODGE DEALERS RECEIVE ANOTHER CARLOAD OF AUTOS

Another carload of the new Dodge Sixes were recently unloaded by P.T. McKone, local dealer, and are now on display at McKone's showrooms. The feature of the car besides the standard sedans was a special model of a dove maroon color with two extra tires mounted on wells in the side. A nice display of Dodge cars are now on hand.

Car in Aquatic Mood

Does Nose Dive From 10-Foot Bank Into River

A Ford car owned by Mr. Moore, who lives east of the Bernadale sidings, does a nose dive into the river evening when it left its parking place on the hillside and backed over the river bank into the river, the spot chosen being a sheer ten foot drop into the water just below the C. N. R. bridge. The car never turned over but by the time the bubbles had subsided only a few inches of the front of the body was visible. The car was a model T Tudor. Mr. Moore had parked the car and then came over to the dance. If there was any fish in the river this spring, but had not responded to his objective before he noticed his car start on its lone run.

The car was removed Wednesday morning by a truck from Vermilion Motors, which had to tow it down stream to a low place in the bank.

CANADIAN NATIONAL

A HARD PAR 4

No. 8, Talbert's Cut—430 yards, Par 4.

Many hopes for a fine score have been wrecked by hole No. 8 of the Jasper Park Lodge Golf Course, Jasper National Park, Alberta, over which the Canadian amateur championship of the R.C.G.A. will be played from August 19th to 24th this summer. It is a dog-leg with a high knoll to be negotiated before the second shot can be placed on a sloping green that is lightning fast and guarded by a deep grass covered ditch. The contour of this green is such that an error of a fraction of an inch in putting means disaster.

Co-incident with the Canadian Amateur the Western Canada Amateur will be played over the Jasper Park Lodge Course, and this will provide plenty of competition for those whose high handicaps automatically keep them out of the Dominion event.

The upper photograph shows the fairway just below the elevated tee. Below is a sketch to scale showing the hole in detail. Play in the tournament will take place from No. 1 tee.

PIGGY PAR - A Golf Tribute

In spite of the fact that Mr. J. Jenson Jones received quite a nasty snub from the Vermilion Board of Trade, it is to the credit of the merchants of Vermilion that they have given him whole-hearted support during his short visit here in his campaign to make "pickles" the staple diet of the community. Without exception, the stores of the town handling the sale of pickles have given window displays featuring what is undoubtedly the most nauseating article of diet known to a dyspeptic humanity.

Nothing can be gained by going in to the details of the unfortunate incident which prevented the local board of trade from entertaining Mr. Jones but the publication of the following letter which passed between that organization and Mr. Jones may, it is hoped, help to clear the atmosphere a little.

From the President of the Board of Trade to Mr. Jones

"Dear Sir: I understand that you were somewhat peeved because our Board did not undertake to reserve you in a manner befitting your position in the business world. May I state that, as respectable citizens, we did not feel disposed to entertain you, in formation in our possession revealed the fact that during your recent trip to Vienna you were carrying on an affair with a certain gypsy girl, by name, Rosa. We believe, Mr. Jones that no further explanation is necessary.

Yours truly,
H. W. Harper.

From Mr. Jones to the President of the Board of Trade:

"Dear Sir: I regret that you could not see your way clear to entertain me, but I think the judgment of your Board in regard to the girl, Rosa, is somewhat harsh, under the circumstances.

"It is a well known fact that the majority of the members of your board have never travelled west of Edmonton nor east of Lloydminster. It is certain that they have never visited Vienna, or they would be more truthful and to make allowances for my passing lapse.

"This unfortunate affair has worried me a great deal. Mr. President, and I would so justify my own conduct that I have arranged for the gypsy girl to be present at the Columbia Theatre on Monday evening next, May 27th. If you can persuade all your members to attend on this occasion, I am willing to donate $500 to any local charity, providing there is a single member who will not be satisfied by the lovewitching charms of this fascinating lady. May I add that the stage manager of the "Pirates" musical stock company requests that your members will not come around the stage door after the performance.

"Yours truly,
J. Jenson Jones."

The following letters received by Mr. Jones may also prove of interest to prospective patrons of the bier show on May 27th:

"[illegible] regret that our Board of Trade failed in their duty [illegible] entertain you. [illegible] to assure you that our citizens are always hospitable and always glad to welcome visitors to our town. [illegible] our citizens are always hospitable [illegible] basis of a two-mill rate — that is on the basis of one mill for every [illegible] yard. We have no pretty girls [illegible] shop mill.

"From now on however I intend to have some [illegible] documents to view and all business firms contribute towards the town exchequer. This may teach the [illegible] to behave when [illegible] visitor.

"Yours truly,
W. A. Fallow, Mayor."

"Dear Sir: Last month I sold only one mill pickle. Since carrying out your [illegible] advice, I have sold twice as many, six month.

"Yours gratefully,
Eli Bruse"

"Dear Sir: I sold one of my run counts that if she would try one of your pickles she would never eat anything [illegible] ordered one yesterday afternoon, and I was right. [illegible] died in the morning.

Yours truly,
Ed Davies"

MOSQUITO BITE CURES.

After many years of discussion as a carrier of contagion, the mosquito is beginning to emerge as a friend of man. J. F. Marshall, director of the British Mosquito Control Institute, declares that a certain type of mosquito has recently been used in cases of general paralysis with considerable success. It was found that the fever resulting from a mosquito bite lessened paralysis and some complete cures were effected.

READ FROM END TO END

Arthur Brisbane, one of the world's foremost editors, says "The small newspapers of the country are the most important newspapers and, incidentally in proportion to their circulation, their advertising rates are the largest and their advertising rates the smallest in the country. They are read from end to end. Every copy of [illegible] reaches an entire family —no a family living in one room with a cook-stove, but a family that owns its own house, and land around it, at least $6 times out of 100. OLD FROG LAKE LANDMARK BURNS

Bush Fires Threaten Serious Damage Prior to Rains

One of the first buildings erected in Frog Lake by a white man after the Riel Rebellion, disturbing the period when the present settlement began, was destroyed by a prairie fire which swept the district last week.

The building was built by H. Bowsell on the banks of Frog Creek, near the old water wheel [illegible] of the rebellion) in 1910. It was used as a store by Mr Bowsell for many years in later years it served many purposes, being used as a store room at the time it was burned.

A Record Mineral Output

High Mark Was Reached In Canada Last Year

Canada last year established a new record in her mineral output, according to figures recently presented by Mr. R. J. Cook, chief of the mining, metallurgical and chemical branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The Bureau's preliminary report states new records were established in each of the following metals: Cadmium, copper, gold, lead, nickel, metals of the platinum group, and zinc. In the non-metal and structural fields, new records are reported in the following: Cement, coal, gypsum, lime, salt, and stone. In point of total output values, new records were also made in natural gas, petroleum, and sand, and gravel. Metals, in particular, made magnificent advances, despite the prevailing lower prices for lead and zinc. Total values were helped by the improvements in the prices of silver and copper.

While Canada produces about 70 different mineral products of economic value, 15 of these make up 80 per cent. of the total annual output value. More than 50 other products, each interesting in itself, and many having potential commercial values, are produced in relatively small amounts, so that they are not, presently, of great economic importance. In order of production values the leading products are: Coal, gold, copper, nickel, cement, lead, silver, clay products, asbestos, zinc, stone, natural gas, sand and gravel, lime, gypsum, petroleum, crude, and salt.

Process Has Not Changed

Shotmakers In England Say Method Same As Century Ago

The old Shot Tower which stands on the south bank of the Thames, near Waterloo bridge is a familiar landmark to many in London. The projected removal of Charing Cross station is the site of the tower has aroused conjectures as to its future. The structure looks like an old-fashioned lighthouse, except that during the day a faint volume of smoke can generally be seen issuing from it. It belongs to a firm of lead and shotmakers, who have been in business since 1778. A representative of the owners announces that if the tower has to be removed it will be erected again on another site, as the processes for which it is used are the same today as when the tower was built more than a century ago.

People Should Change Position During Sleep

Sleeping Like a Log Takes Away Pep Says Educator

"Do not sleep like a log" if you want to be peppy next day, Dr. Colin M. Griffith, of the University of Illinois, warned members of the Middle West Society of Physical Education.

Experiments on athletes have shown, Dr. Griffith said, that sound sleeping hindered the body in its work of restoring strength. An athlete exhausted, who sleeps soundly without moving from side to side as does the ordinary sleeper, awakes the next day "half dead on his feet" because the blood circulation has not been active during the sound sleep.

Most normal persons, he said, shift their positions while sleeping about every 10 to 15 minutes.

Two children were arguing.

John: "It is."

Elizabeth: "It isn't."

John: "I tell you it is, 'cos Mummy says it is, and if Mummy says it is, it is, even if it isn't."

Rain Not Always Reliable

Age Of Sheep Cannot Be Determined By Teeth In All Cases

The teeth of a sheep are accepted as a guide to its age, but the rule is not always reliable. The condition of the teeth depends mainly upon the country on which the sheep have been pastering. If they have been running upon stony ground and short grass, the teeth will break and wear much earlier than if they have been on soft country carrying long grass. The reason is that upon the short grass country the teeth come in contact with hard, stony gravel, which causes extra wear and tear.

The sheep has 32 teeth, eight in the lower front jaw, and 24 in the back jaws. The back teeth are placed six both top and bottom; on either side of the upper and lower jaw, which is a rubber-like pad. A newly-born lamb may have from two to four teeth at birth, or they may not appear for a few days. During this period the temporary back teeth make their appearance. The full number of incisor or front teeth (eight) make their appearance during the first year.

These are temporary or milk teeth and remain as such for the first 12 to 15 months. When a lamb reaches 15 months or thereabouts, the two central milk teeth drop out and are replaced by permanent teeth. At three years of age two more permanent teeth make their appearance. At four years of age two more permanent teeth appear.

From this onwards the age cannot correctly be determined by the teeth, although, as a general rule, at five years of age the two central teeth will show signs of separating in the middle. The following year, when the sheep is six years old, the next two permanent teeth will separate, and the two first permanent teeth may be broken. The sheep is then said to be broken-mouthed. The back or molar teeth are used for masticating the food, their surfaces being irregular and suitable for grinding, and usually they remain in the jaws up to any age.

Verify Your Compass

Conscience Is Too Sensitive To Be Absolutely Safe Guide

"It's a funny thing," explained a Naval officer, "but usually you have to do a lot to a compass before you can rely on it. There are so many things on an iron-and-steel ship like this that will give a compass a lot of trouble. The consequence is that you can't always know whether it's telling the truth or not. Most of our companions have to be tested by experts, and tested often, too, or we'd never dare to put out to sea."

There is not a suggestion for all of us in this statement? Most people seem to think of conscience as an absolutely safe guide. They forget that they can take a lot of things aboard their lives that will affect their consciences. Too much money, pleasure, ignorance—conscience is very sensitive to such things. The thing to do is to verify it every day by the truth of God's Word.

Good Rule To Follow

Road To Success Must Be Paved With Politeness

Marshal Foch used to tell his staff there's only one way to deal with the English. They had to be polite to them. "If you are polite to them you can get anything reasonable from them; if you are rude to them you will get nothing." If the French Marshal had been in business he would have laid down the rule to be applied to a lot of other people besides the English. Neither efficiency, nor go-getting, nor speed, nor the follow-up, gets a man so far as does common politeness. It beats the rude.

A Place For Men

For every pioneer homestead in Canada someone made a sacrifice. Someone fought at some time or other bad weather, floods, famine, fire, sickness and poverty, all rolled together or in single portions, to make the wilderness the pioneers found into a land of plenty. Peace River is certainly no place for loungelizards, cake eaters, or boy friends with enamelled hair and scent on them. But it seems to be a land of heart's desire for men of the old Canadian stock who never know defeat.

"How do you guard against microbes?"

"First I boil all my water."

"Yes, and then?"

"I filter it."

"Yes."

"And then I don't drink it."

A Boston doctor has crossed the Atlantic 85 times. It's about time he made up his mind on the question.

Method Is Wrong

Destroying Seized Firearms Does Not Do Away With Menace

A few days ago a New York patrol boat cruised out to deep water and ceased overboard the collection of death dealing weapons seized by the police during the past year. The collection included 2,641 revolvers 351 shot guns and several hundred other deadly instruments. The object of salt water immersion is to prevent their falling again into the hands of criminals. This is all right as far as it goes, but it does not deal effectively with the situation. This can only be done by legal enactments making it much harder for crooks to secure weapons. They have little difficulty in buying all the firearms they want and this applies in Canada as well as in the United States.

Potato Planting

For Earlier Crop and Larger Yield, Use Seed That Has Sprouted

Sprouting potatoes before planting not only ensures an earlier crop but an increased yield of marketable stock. An experiment carried on at the La Ferme, Quebec, experimental station, showed that Irish Cobbler potatoes that had been sprouted in the seed grew a yield of 7,560 pounds of marketable stock per acre, which was about 1,600 pounds more than from the non-sprouted seed. The crop from sprouted seed was ready to use eighteen days earlier than the other. In the case of Green Mountain the advantage of sprouting was even greater, the yield of marketable tubers from the sprouted seed being 13,200 pounds, which was almost 7,000 pounds greater than from the unsprouted seed. There was twenty-one days difference between the crops in respect to readiness for use. These results are shown in the report of the station for the years 1926-27, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, which also shows the result of placing the sets at different distances apart.

In the experiment the highest yield of Irish Cobbler was obtained from the crop that was grown in rows 30 inches apart with the sets 14 inches apart, and amounted to 294.3 bushels to the acre. The highest yield of Green Mountain was 316.7 bushels to the acre from planting sets 12 inches apart in rows 30 inches apart. Considered from the standpoint of yield and market quality, the superintendent of the station, Mr. Pascal Fortier, concludes that a distance of 30 inches between the rows and 12 inches between the sets appears to be the best.

Giant Airplane For Western Mining Areas

Machine Similar To Bremen Will Carry Over Ton

A Junkers plane similar to the Bremen, which made history on April 13, 1928, by landing on Greenly Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, completing the first aeroplane non-stop crossing of the North Atlantic ocean from east to west, has arrived in Montreal to be assembled by the Canadian Vickers, Ltd.

The big craft is to be delivered to Western Canada Airways, Ltd., which will use it for transportation work in mining areas. It is solely a freight-carrying machine, like the Bremen, though of a later type and slightly larger. The plane has a useful load of 2,000 pounds.

Cannot Eggs Shipped To S. America

A sample shipment of Canadian eggs to Buenos Aires, Argentine, made by the Canadian Federal Department of Agriculture has, according to cable advice of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioner there, created a very favorable impression among the buyers and the prospects for a good market for eggs from the Dominion in the Argentine are encouraging.

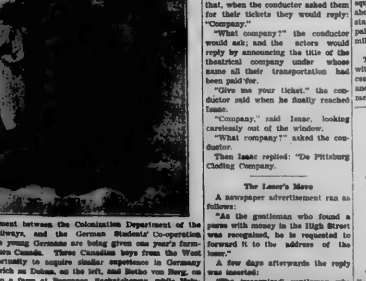
STUDY WESTERN FARMING METHODS



Under an arrangement between the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways, and the German Students' Co-operation Association, these three young Germans are being given one year's farming experience in Western Canada. These Canadian boys from the West will be given an opportunity to acquire similar experience in Germany under the plan. Heinrich zu Dohna, on the left, and Botho von Berg, on the right, have gone to a farm at Penzance, Saskatchewan, while Heinrich Sippler, centre, went to a farm at Central Butte, Saskatchewan. All are graduates of agricultural institutions in Germany.—Photograph Canadian National Railways.

Method For Control Of Canada Thistle

Ploughing Or Seeding Alone Proving Useful, Will Help Farmer In Fight Against Pest

A weed no well established as is Canada thistle, will not be exterminated by any means at present in sight, but a reasonable measure of control is both possible and economically sound, according to Herbert Groh, of the division of botany, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The control, for its success, demands attention to two things—the seeding habit, and the rooting habit of the plant. While the latter is receiving suitable attention in the fields, the former must be watched beyond their borders.

The seed menace requires that all stragglers in waste places, along roadsides, etc., be destroyed before maturity, by cutting, salting and pasturing, plowing under, or otherwise. Each neighboring farmer must be likewise concerned; a state of things which inspection under provincial weed laws is intended to bring about. Each farmer, moreover, must avail himself of all the protection in the matter of seed purchases, that the Seeds Act of Canada offers. No amount of work performed in the field, will keep down the tree of Canada thistle, while its exceptional facilities for seed dispersal are being ignored.

Field infestations themselves are certainly best dealt with by the method of starvation. By the time a plantation of crops has come around to hay, following grain, thistles will have reached their maximum recovery from previous suppression. If the choice of hay crop, and its stand is such as to make a good smother crop, this is the first step. Legumes, especially alsaifa and sweet clover, make a heavy cover. They are relished as soon as the thistles begin to show after mowing, the ground is plowed, and, through the balance of the season, the underground parts are kept deprived of nourishment from the foliage, by use of the broad-shared cultivator. A somewhat deeper plowing late in the fall is a good finish to the season's work; and a cultivated crop the following year gives further opportunity to keep the foe at bay.

It will be seen that only the livelier or mixed farmer can make full use of the method outlined. The crux of the matter is that only to the extent that the straight grain farmer can modify his practice in this direction, can he hope for much success in combatting a weed so well at home in a grain crop.

Sprays and other chemical expedients that have been experimented with may yet provide additional offensives for use on small areas; but experience at the Dominion Experimental Farm has not proved them generally economical. All they can do usually, is to deprive the thistles of foliage, and by repeated application thus starve the root-stocks, a process more satisfactorily accomplished under field condition, by tillage methods. Other tests to be conducted this season may justify a better word concerning one promising material.

Belonged To Company Too

Jew Thought He Knew Way To Travel Without Ticket

Isaac Jacobson got on the train in New York to go to Philadelphia, but had no ticket. In the car with him were the executives of several theatrical companies, and he noticed that, when the conductor asked them for their tickets they would reply: "Company."

"What company?" the conductor would ask; and the actors would reply by announcing the title of the theatrical company under whose name all their transportation had been paid for.

"Give me your ticket." the conductor said when he finally reached Isaac.

"Company," said Isaac, looking carelessly out of the window.

"What company?" asked the conductor.

Then Isaac replied: "De Pittsburg Clothing Company.

The Loser's Move

A newspaper advertisement ran as follows:

"As the gentleman who found a purse with money in the High Street was recognized, he be requested to forward it to the address of the loser."

A few days afterwards the reply was inserted:

"The recognized gentleman who picked up a purse in the High Street requests the loser to call at his house."

Garnet Wheat Test Results

Quality Of Mix Superior To Marquis But Color Of Flour Is Too Yellow

Following a milling and baking test on Garnet Wheat at the Keewatin Mill of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Ltd., J. H. Pearson, chief miller of the company, states that this large scale experiment has not changed their opinion in any degree in regard to the use of Garnet wheat flour for Canadian milling. In the tests made the quality of the Garnet mix was really superior to the Marquis and the weight per bushel heavier, but in spite of this the yellow color of the Garnet flour put it at a decided disadvantage.

Both flours were bleached under identically the same conditions with the most modern bleaching equipment, and Mr. Pearson states that this color spread is a feature that Canadian mills cannot overcome. British and Continental mills have the native white wheat and Australian wheat to build up the desired color by mixing. The loaf made from the Garnet wheat flour was also degraded in point of volume of loaf and texture.

Baking tests with Reward wheat, however, were very satisfactory, giving uniformity in excellent baking quality, and it was consistently from one or two per cent. higher in protein than the Marquis and equal to Marquis in all the best baking points.

Summer Following

The Cost Of Summer Fallow By

The cost of summer fallowing varies according to the method by which it is carried out. At the Swift Current, Saskatchewan, experimental station, tests were made with land divided into three parts in such a manner that equal conditions were provided. Field 1 was ploughed by a three-bottom fourteen-inch gang plough; field 2 by a ten-foot one-way disk; field 3 was prepared and packed by a twenty-four foot disk harrow, and the remaining half was double disked by the same implement. All the work was done between the dates of June 7 and 11. The land was badly in need of fallowing, as it was very weedy. The cost of the labour and fuel used varied greatly. With a single disking the cost was 11 cents an acre; double disking 22 cents; ploughing with one-way disk 80 cents; and ploughing with three-bottom gang 56 cents per acre. Neither the single nor the double disking succeeded in killing all the weeds on the land at the time of the initial operation. The results of this work make it appear, according to the report of the superintendent published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, that the three ploughing and the one-way disk are equally efficient in destroying the yearly growth of weeds on summer fallow land and in putting the soil in such condition that the duckfoot cultivator can perform subsequent operations successfully. As the one-way disk does its work at almost half the cost of ploughing, it is believed by Mr. Taggart, superintendent of the station, that this implement has a very definite and useful place on land not too heavy for its successful operation.

Port Of New York

A ship enters or leaves the port of New York every 10 minutes in the daylight hours, compilations by the U.S. Merchant Fleet Corporation disclose. The area of the port district as legally defined is almost 1,500 square miles, with a population of about 8,000,000. It is located in two states, embraces nearly 200 municipalities and has a waterfront 483 miles long.

The best way to look at life is with a little humor, a bit of play, a ceaseless curiosity, a love of beauty and a sense of comradeship with all men.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Tuesday's meeting proved to be the best attended so far this year, there being a full attendance with one exception, caused by mumps.

Owing to the lengthy programme for Friday, the following boys were sworn in as Scouts the previous evening:

Muir Brimacombe, Leslie Prowse, Arthur Dixon, Ken Marfleet, Tom Seabrook, Milton Seabrook, Bob Tatham, Harold Whitley.

The troop welcomes these boys as Brother Scouts.

The local committee decided that the camp this summer should be held from Wednesday, 10th July to Sunday 28th, July at Whitney lake or vicinity. No boys would be allowed to attend camp unless they had served a full month with the Scouts, possessed a complete uniform and had passed their Tenderfoot test. All boys are asked to note these conditions, as they will be strictly adhered to.

We are glad to see that the Athletic Association are offering prizes for the best turnout on the 3rd of June parade. Let's see which patrol has the neatest turn-out that day and take off first prize. Patrol Leaders, get busy now and do your job well.

GOLF NEWS

After two weeks' work with men and teams on the golf course a working-full programme is mapped. Bronze have been gathered from fairways, bridges and rougher bowlders and all such stones hauled off. The greens have been shaved out and are now in a plentiful condition to. The fairways have been shaved to a uniform height and the tees moved and rolled. Practically nothing remains to be done in the way of improvements to the course. Mr. Mathieson is responsible and deserves to all residents of the town and district to join up now and pay their fees in order that they may get the full use of the course throughout the season. Outstanding members are also welcome to join the club at half price.

Later on in the season, the edges of bluffs on some of the fairways will be trimmed so as to give wider fairways and bunkers and sand traps are being planned.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Relieved Backache and Other Troubles

"Dodd's Kidney Pills relieved me of backache and other troubles which kept me from my work. I had suffered from backache for years and I suffered so that I felt badly all the time. I had been working in a factory but for a long time was not able to work as I was so run-down and nervous. My friends told me of the Vegetable Compound. C.P.R. Branch Lines

Heavy Programme Of Extension For the Season Of 1929

Under its policy of development and expansion, the Canadian Pacific Railway has already this season let contracts for 238 miles of branch lines construction in Western Canada, according to D. C. Coleman, vice-president, western lines. This figure was reached following the announcement of four additional contracts totalling 112 miles, and it is expected that when the contracts for the newly authorized Lacjan-Prince Albert branch are let, that the construction programme for the season of 1929 will call for slightly more than 400 miles. Work on these contracts will be commenced immediately.

Contracts announced follow:

Nipiwin, toward Prince Albert, 25 miles; contractor F. Mankin, of Calgary.

Montenay-Landing to Proctor, 35 miles contractor Dutton and Grant, of Winnipeg.

Archive to Wymark branch from Lake Johnson to Wymark, 27 miles; contractors, Riley, Reid and Sandgren, of Edmonton.

Sutfield to Starbuck, branch from Arrowwood to Starbuck 25 miles, contractor F. Mankin, of Calgary.

Chauvin to Provost, 35 miles contractor Dutton and Grant, of Winnipeg.

Tawin westerly 50 miles contractor Flora and Wickerstrom, Youngstown 41 miles; contractor F. Mankin, Calgary.

This programme will also proceed with the 2 bed line northwesterly, a distance of 20 miles. Stewart & Cameron, of Winnipeg, are the contractors.

In making the announcement Mr. Coleman stated that 70 rail laying had recently been received to the railway, sufficient to complete the laying of the branch line from Lanigan to Prince Albert, and that it was proposed to let contracts for this work in the earliest possible moment, and immediately following the acceptance of the plans by the Board of Railway Commissioners, at Ottawa. This line will be 117 miles in length, and will form an important link in the western branch line system of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Coleman said, indicated that the Canadian Pacific Railway was proceeding actively with its projected branch lines further, and that it was going ahead with its plans for the opening of the northern country. This was particularly emphasized by the letting of the contract to build from Nipiwin toward Prince Albert, and by the fact that during the winter improvement devoted a great deal of energy to the construction of a concrete highway and railroad bridge over the Saskatchewan River at Nipiwin. The plans for his bridge are now in place, he stated, and the structure will be completed as soon as possible. The company's keen interest in northern development was further indicated by the announcement that the Lanigan-Prince Albert branch would be proceeded with this season. Another important line that scheduled from Kootenay Landing to Proctor, to British Columbia. This line when completed will give an all rail southern route to the Pacific Coast. The line, a connecting link, was made necessary by the growth of traffic and will do away with the necessity of using boats on Kootenay Lake. The construction work itself will be one of the most difficult since early construction days in Western Canada as the line will be built through mountainous country. It will be necessary to put in two tunnels, one 400 feet and the other 1,000 feet, and one bridge over the Kootenay Lake at Kootenay Landing which with approaches will be 3,500 feet in length.

The branch lines on the prairies will, he stated, prove of immense value to the agricultural communities and will greatly facilitate the movement of grain to markets and manufactured commodities of the farmers and distributing centres.

Negotiations with the Canadian National Railways are proceeding of, fecting the entrance of the Canadian Pacific Railway to Battleford and North Battleford and negotiations for an exit for the Canadian Pacific Railway from Prince Albert northwesterly will shortly be undertaken.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The High School baseball team went to Lloydminster on Saturday to play a return game, and suffered a 12-10 defeat That, however, evens up the score, so we have one game and so have they. Our team is daily showing improvement, but is by no means top yet. Several errors were made in Saturday's game that could well have been avoided. We hope to see the team in better shape when we play the tie-off game with the Lloydminster high school team.

Vermilion Plans Big Celebration

Delegates and Speakers From All Over West in Orange Parade

Preparations are advancing quietly but rapidly with respect to the big Orange celebration at Vermilion on July 12 next. The quota now outlined that will be in attendance is between 4,000 and 5,000 people.

Orange lodges from Lashburn in Saskatchewan and possibly as far east as Saskatoon and the whole of northern Alberta are expected to line up in the monster parade which will be held in the forenoon and which will march through the town of Vermilion to the exhibition grounds where the celebration will take place. It is likely the procession will form on the grounds of the Vermilion Athletic Association in the east end of the town. The route of parade will come through the main portions of the town. The Vermilion and Wainwright bands as well as bands from Edmonton, will be in the parade and one of the big features of the day's program on the exhibition grounds will be the rendering of several numbers by these bands.

Prominent speakers from all over the western provinces will take part as well as several of the officials of the Grand Lodge of Canada. The refreshment booths will be in charge of the Mannville and Vermilion ladies' lodges and these are already arranging plans to that end. There is no doubt in the minds of local prominent Orange men that this will be one of the largest gatherings ever held in northern Alberta. Special trains will carry visiting lodges and their friends over the C.N.R. both from the east and the west.

CUT OF 10 PER CENT. MADE IN STEAM HEATING

The town council has decided to cut the price of steam heating 10 p.c. The original price set was based on the initial charge of North Smithfield plant and while this rate has proved very profitable to the town it has taken a hefty loss deep into the pockets of the consumers. The Mayor informed The Standard that five months' operation netted a profit of $1000 The year will not be up until December 21 and even with the reduction now made, the profits for the year are placed at $4000 As the capital investment is only $15,000, the above sum is not to be sneezed at

Now that the grass is growing the full value of Vermilion's big clean-up campaign can be appreciated. The vacant lots in town being rich in a thick coat of green grass instead of the usual town growth of tin cans assorted trash heaps, etc.

All of the Imperial gasoline pumps in town have been painted a "beautiful" green color

"Pickles" Drew Packed House

The musical comedy "Pickles," presented last Monday evening, the 27th at the Columbia Theatre under the able direction of William B. Elford, was a decided success. The Company which consisted wholly of local talent put on a show well worth seeing a second time and this opportunity will be given the public on June 10th

The show was full of highly amusing comedy and delightful music. Matthew Brimacombe as Hans Maier, proprietor of Wurstsiesserei Inn, gave his usual excellent performance in a natural and easy manner. Norman Brownell and Dan Taylor, the two policemen, were a highly amusing team Tom Wells, as Jonas H Pendleton, pickle manufacturer, was true to life and carried off a rather difficult part with credit.

Albert West, as Arthur Crofont, Artie, gave an excellent interpretation of this character and his splendid voice was heard to great advantage in his songs with Jane Prendergast, the American heiress This last part was taken by Emily McLean in her usual delightful manner Margaret Strathern, as Lady Vivian Delaney, was a charming widow and in her words the part was very convincing

Frederick Olsen, as Jigo, a Hungarian Gypsy, is a new-comer on Vermilion's amateur stage and judged by his performance last Monday evening is a find His work was marked by his thorough mastery of the part and easy presence on the stage

While speaking of new-comers to the stage, the writer must mention Mora Parker, who took the part of Loelia, a waitress. She was extremely good and got everything out of the part she had. Her wooden mentor, Jack Markie, as Captain Kinski, gave an extremely diverting and original portrayal of the pompous chief of detectives. His performance, as it followed true of all the artists on the stage, would be a credit to a professional.

Vessie Heckbert, as Ilona, the gypsy girl, is new to us as a leading char acter. Her portrayal of the part was very artistic and gave the impression of ease and natural expression. The writer particularly noticed that her enunciation in the various songs was unusually clear and carried to the back of the hall We hope to see Mrs Heckbert again on the amateur stage here

Last, but not by any means least we refer to William B Elford Mrs H It was his usual inimitable self Of true character with the part he was playing We must admit that this advertising get-up of Mr Elford's is not anything in his subject. Regarding the costumes for the performance, we may say that they were all in keeping with the part and the gypsy girl Ilona

The chorus which consisted of Mrs Ang, Lyle, Mrs Kennedy, Nellie Brownell, Grace Bain, Estelle Copeland, Kathleen Craig, Bertha Hill, Isabel McKenzie, Agnes Newbiggin, Dorothy Oakley, Bertha Scott, Agnes Stubbs, Elizabeth Whitbread, Clarence Wood and John Wartzki was a decided improvement on past efforts in point of view of musical ability. Decided improvement was made in strength and volume of the singing The costumes of the chorus were very colorful and added much to the general effect.

We would like to compliment Miss Edythe Lilley on the highly artistic manner in which she accompanied the musical numbers and in fact every one derived much pleasure from the delightful accompaniment to the Peal Song of Ilona and chorus

The outstanding musical numbers of the whole show so far as the writer was concerned was the medley chorus in the gypsy camp with Frederick Olsen as soloist This number would be a credit to any city musical chorus of similar size, and the same opinion was given by a stranger to Vermilion who happened to be at the show

Mr "B E Bury and Wm Dewis stage manager and assistant stage manager respectively, did much to ensure the success of the show and did highly commendable work in connection with preparing the stage and properties

The whole production was under the auspices of the local Elks and may we have more shows of a similar standard

A Handsome Gift

Mr. W. S. Ashew, Of Scotland, Donates Large Sum To Aid British Colonization In Canada

The Department of Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway announces a munificent gift on the part of Mr. W. H. Ashew, of Ladybirk, Scotland, to the cause of British colonization in Canada. Mr. Ashew who is a gentleman of means and well known in Scotland for his broad public spirit, has provided ten thousand dollars to enable suitable families from the border regions of England and Scotland to emigrate to Canada and engage in agricultural work.

Forty of these families are now on their way from Great Britain, and their departure has received wide publicity in the British press on account of the original circumstances under which these families are being moved.

The fact that Mr. Ashew has provided ten thousand dollars makes possible, under the provisions of the Empire Settlement Act, an advance of a further ten thousand dollars for the forwarding of suitable British families to Canada. The Act in question authorizes the Secretary of State jo co-operate with suitable organizations in furnishing and carrying out schemes for affording joint assistance to suitable persons in Great Britain who have been settle in any of the Overseas Dominions. It is quite possible, therefore, that as a result of Mr. Askew's donation to empire prosperity British colonists in the manner mentioned, another hundred families may be enabled to come forward to Canada.

The amount depends on the special amount advanced to each particular family.

Mr. Mr Askew's request the Department of Colonization and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, has entered into an agreement with the Immigration Branch, Department of Affairs, for the recruiting, placement in agricultural occupation and general administrative work connected with the scheme.

The families which will arrive during the next week-end will be at once distributed on farms in the course of placement which has already been arranged; twenty-five families having been allocated to the Canada Colonization Association, subsidiary of the Department of Colonization and Development; others will occupy rented cottages erected by the Colonization Department Branch of the Canadian Pacific, and the remainder on farms prepared by the Canadian Pacific under the agreement made from time to time with the Overseas Settlement Committee.

Asked for his personal comment on the new scheme Colonel W. J. Dennis, C.M.G., Chief Commissioner of the Department of Colonization and Development, said: "I have no hesitation in saying that Mr Askew's magnificent action is a strong reminder that the whole matter of the movement of British colonists to Canada calls for special efforts on the part of all organizations and individuals who are in a position to speed up the important task in question. As is well known we have always concentrated our efforts on the movement of the largest possible number of British settlers to Canada, spending large sums in that connection, but due to conditions which have existed in the last few years and the administrative difficulties, which seem to arise now and again, under the apparently necessary numerous regulations which must be observed, results have been disappointing. The Askew scheme, however, as it is sure to be widely known in the British press, may go forward in the progress of British colonization in Canada, and we are greatly pleased, of course, that Mr. Askew should have seen fit to ask us to join in (his) proposal, which is now electing much consideration in Great Britain, and will continue to reflect the greatest credit and satisfaction to its sponsor."

How To Dye An Old Rug

Successful Method That May Be Used In the Home

Old rugs may be dyed at home in a practical way. Here is a method in the May issue of "Successful Farming:"

"First of all, spread the rug out flat and scrub thoroughly clean with one can of rug soap and water. Let it stand for two hours and then spray well with cold water from the garden hose, or rinse with buckets of cold water. After it is dry, cut up six packages of one of the standard, well known brands of dye designated for silk and wool variety, using for a color with a half pint of vinegar, full strength. The rug will take the dye slowly while it is damp but the drying takes some time."

LATER EXPERIENCES OF JEREMIAH

Golden Text: "Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake." — Matthew 5.11.

Lesson: Jeremiah 20.1-6; 37.1 to 38.28; 43.1-7.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 5. 5-11.

Explanations and Comments

The Princes Fear the Influence Of Jeremiah and Seek His Death, verse 4.—Jeremiah was held a prisoner in the guard-house at Jerusalem during the siege by the Babylonians. He could still address those around him, and he prophesied the fall of the city and its royal dynasty. The effect of his words was to weaken the courage and purpose of the fighting power of the people. The princes denounced him to the King as one whose words weakened the defense of the city, that "this man is not seeking peace," they urged, for "he seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt." — Keil. "I become your enemy by telling you the truth." — Jeremiah.

Jeremiah Is Cast Into a Dungeon, verses 5, 6 is the first honor bestowed upon the weak king, and with this gesture the Babylonian monarch pledged that he could not withstand them; that he could do nothing to prevent it by council. "He was afraid of Jeremiah, afraid of God, afraid of his princes, afraid of Nebuchadnezzar, afraid even to be himself" — Emily Huntley. — Zedekiah surrendered his scruples between listening to the prophet's words and obeying them, and the impotent noble's advice to resist to the last gasp. He would have spurn, he was afraid to do right, and fancied that he was compelled by the force of circumstances to do wrong So he drifted and drifted, and at last was attached to fragments on the rocks, as all men are who do not keep a strong hand on the helm and a steady eye on the compass. The winds are good servants but bad masters." — Alexander MacLaren.

The Desert Song

— BY —

VIRGINIA MORRIS

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"The Desert Song" is a Warner Bros. picture based on the novel by Rida Johnson Young and the play by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein 2nd and Frank Mandel.

CHAPTER I.

Greedily the copper coin of the sun was being swallowed by a fat hand into the coffers of the desert. Now a purple radiance suffused the burning sands till the deepening twilight gradually wrapped its cloak around them. A few hours before a pure silver moon had been poised in the cloudless daylight sky, but as night descended this assumed a golden red and seemed to retain, reluctant to leave the heavens, the glow and color of the desert landscape that was now clothed in a soothing gray.

Out of the range of the moon's brightness silver stars began to show their fire. A soft wind arose slowly but surely and, shifting the sand drifts into new undulations that stretched to far horizons. The majestic silence was so intense as to be almost audible.

One would not dream that not a human being dwelt within two leagues of the spot. Then all at once out there in the infinity of desert space arose a faint stirring. For a moment nothing was seen, but as the stirring grew into a definite far-off sound, under the rich light of the orange moon there appeared a tiny speck where sand and sky met on the distant horizon. Over the crest of the dunes another speck appeared, then another and another. But now the leader was distinguishable as a rider on a fleet-footed horse. Above a white ribbon of other desert cavalrymen clad in turbane and flowing robes, their white teeth bright in the night gleam to proclaim their warring spirit.

The swish of galloping hoofs raising granules of sand in a dusty trail behind them was at first the only sound to break the stillness. But on this last rider came into view over the crest of the distant slopes the voices of a hundred men filled the night ringing the rousing tears of their tribal song the song of the Riffs, those desert outlaws who have recently been the terror of the allen French

Far across the desert these riders swept, and headed for the crags where they had their secret encampment. Up a short trail they thundered on to opening in the rocks that formed a narrow cave. Here they dismounted. Some unbitched to where a fire was started, ing goat's meat for the evening meal

In the fire's light Sid El Kar — Lieutenant in the Red Shadow —the leader of the Riffs, examined some messages that the horsemen had brought from scattered members of the tribe. The subordinate who stood beside him ventured a worried comment:

"I hope the French don't find us. This new leader of theirs, Captain Paul Fontaine——"

Sid El Kar uttered a vile oriental oath and spat in the sand. "To the devil with him. For five years the frog-eaters have been chasing our band and all they have caught—is our dust!"

"But," put forward the other, "it is different this last week since Captain Fontaine has taken over command. Three times they have nearly trapped us."

Sid El Kar's mouth framed a contemptious sneer. He pointed to the tent that lay pitched closest to the fire.

"Our Red Shadow is a match for a million Captain Paul Fontaines!"

There were few faint hearts in the Riff band. They had confidence in their prowess as fighters and above all in the bravery of their mysterious and intrepid leader, the Red Shadow. A stranger out of nowhere, he had come to champion the cause against the tyranny of the French who believed that the desert people were best subdued by the ruthless attitude of conquering and vanquished. But even against the armed forces of the French garrisons the Riffs had succeeded in preserving their independence. Now led by this fearless desert Robin Hood, they defied the rule of the invaders and defended their desert brothers against the domination of those who failed to understand their passionate love for freedom. Surely the Red Shadow was sent by Mahomet himself to protect his children! Like whoever or whatever, but when the signal fires were lit and the Riffs assembled, the Red Shadow always appeared at the head. Then it was that the good work was accomplished he rode off, where no one could say.

Presently by the savory smell of the cooking, other members of the band who had watered their horses at the pools, came over and joined the fire. To their companions who had remained in camp they recounted the events that had occurred in their latest expedition. The whole town, it seemed, was talking of this Captain Paul Fontaine who, with a detail of devils from the Foreign Legion, had set out to discover the Riffs' hiding place. General Hiroud, the commandant of the post, was offering him every assistance with additional horses and troops.

They had picked up another juicy bit of gossip, too. Captain Fontaine was in love, madly enamoured of a beautiful and chic French girl, Margot Bonvalet, who had recently come out from Paris. Her father, a one time Civil Governor of Fez, had been friend Ibraheau, and it was at his quarters that she was staying and breaking the heart of every hotblooded officer in the regiment. But her preference it was clear, was for Captain Fontaine who had promised her, with a gesture of bravado, that he would bring her the Red Shadow as a prisoner.

The threat caused a wave of merriment among the band. The Riffs would never fall under the power of the French!

"To hill the Red Shadow, Fontaine must kill us all!" shouted one of them hotly.

"May evil spirits possess them," added another fiercely.

All at once their talking ceased as they drew themselves to military attention. For before them stood the Red Shadow himself!

CHAPTER II.

Every line of his fine straight figure proclaimed the fighter. His wore a loose, bright scarlet burnouse, the hood of which was bound round around his forehead by a white band. His was shod in gleaming black leather boots and his sword was sheathed in the scabbard that hung beneath the folds of his cloak. His

To Check "FLU," Grippe

Fights the Germs in the Throat Before They Invade Other Parts of the Body.

EFFECTIVE PREVENTIVE MEASURES EXPLAINED

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you get a long way towards stopping the trouble. An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle. The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the chief is sore, by that throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding wastes. This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr. Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

Identity Still Kept Secret

Kaiser's Best Woman Spy Now Inmate Of Insane Asylum

"The Madonna of Antwerp," Germany's most valuable spy during the World War, who lured hundreds of the ablest allied intelligence agents to their death by the mere fascination of her blonde hair and marvelous blue eyes, has been locked up in an insane asylum at Cologne. The commitment papers in her case state that her illness is considered incurable, but her identity, jealously guarded by the Germans during the war, is not revealed even at this time. She remains the same mysterious and elusive personage who was dreaded and hunted for four long years without success.

Her exits was as enigmatic and wistful as Circonda's in the Louvre, of a certain childlike innocence, but as deadly as Borgian poison. Once she had extracted the information she sought from her victims her features grew hard as steel and she knew no mercy.

Rumors during the war had it that she was a Polish Belgian birth. This was due to the fact that she owned a large mechanical chateau on the outskirts of Antwerp, which she inherited from 1912 onward. When Antwerp and the surrounding country fell before the German advance of September, 1914, and hundreds of thousands of people fled across the Dutch border, "The Madonna" stayed behind and soon revealed herself as having been an agent of the German Intelligence

She directed the location of treasure and valuables in the neighborhood of the Flemish capital, left behind and hidden by the refugee owners of chateaux and country places and in that way revealed their rarest which made her dreaded from one end to the other in the occupied territory of Belgium and French Flanders

"Continue in prayer — Colossians 4: 2

Be not afraid to pray,—to pray is right.
Pray if thou canst with hope; but pray
Though hope be weak, or sick with fear, pray!
Pray in the darkness if there be no light.
Whate'er is good to wish ask that of Heaven.
Though it be what thou canst not hope to seek;
Such hope be perfect, though material leaven
Seem all the spirit as on earth to be;
But if for any wish thou darest not pray,
Then pray to God to cast that wish away. — Hartley Coleridge.

Prayer is not only profitable, at night it is our evening, in the daytime it is our armour. Prayer is the key to unlock the day, and the bolt to shut in the night. Prayer sanctifies all our actions.

Why go to Peru?

When crude oil is so plentifully available here in North America why does Nature hide 4000 miles to Peru for the crude from which Marvelube is made?

It is because Marvelube is made lubrication properties which make it particularly desirable as a base for a superior motor oil.

That is why Marvelube is giving Canada's motorists longer periods between oil changes and a greater margin of safety.

Marvelube meets the needs of the modern high-speed motor, in the air or on the road, because its carbon-free and heat-resisting superiorities are created by Nature herself.

Let Marvelube give you the benefits of better lubrication. There is a grade of Marvelube refined to meet exactly the specifications of your car, truck or tractor. See the Marvelube Chart at Imperial Oil dealers and service stations.

Miss Beryl Bristow left on Sunday night for Westlock where she is taking undergraduate work in the hospital.

Miss Jean Fyfe spent the week-end at her parents' home, returning to her Edmonton school on Sunday night.

In order to make room for the new tank the scaler room of the school did not take a holiday on the 24th. Mrs. McMasters of Edmonton is taking the place as Mrs. Sherbeck is on the sick list.

A farewell tea was held last Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. W. C. Pulleyblank who is shortly to leave Islay and take up residence in Vermilion.

Earl Bowser was in attendance at a weed convention held in Regina last week.

Stewart Bothwell has left for Grand Prairie in the Peace River country with a survey party.

Our basketball girls are showing their heels to all comers this season. On 24th they bitcaded the Kitscoty sports and walked away with the $50 first prize, defeating Vermilion first and then Kitscoty in the finals and having only one basket (two points) scored against them all day.

Tennis bounding in Islay these days and the court is always in use. The climbers have all been scraped off, leaving a hard clay surface which is excellent for playing purposes. A mixed doubles tourney was held on Victoria Day, Mrs. W. Barnes and W. Eaus winning the competition.

Jas. Lane of Vermilion is now in charge of the Superior Lumber Yards here, having changed places with Mr. Pulleyblank, who is now yard manager at Vermilion.

POOL TERMINAL STORAGE IS TO BE INCREASED

The Alberta Wheat Pool is continually increasing its elevator system (in Monday of this week the contract was let, more than doubling the storage of the new Pool terminal at Vancouver. The number of Pool elevators in Alberta has been increased until the total is close to the 600 mark.

The Pool's continual objective is to handle as much of its members grain as possible through Pool elevators. Each year sees an increase in the volume of grain which handled through Pool facilities. This year the total is around 65 per cent.

The new Vancouver terminal was completed last fall and had storage facilities to handle 2,500,000 bushels of wheat. The proposed additional storage of 2,750,000 bushels will have a total capacity of 5,250,000 bushels. This will provide total terminal space now controlled by the Alberta Wheat Pool on the Pacific coast of 8,250,000 bushels.

The contract for building the additional storage in Terminal No. 1 was let to Carter, Hall & Aldinger of Winnipeg. C. D. Howe and Company, Port Arthur, are consulting engineers.

Our Weekly Fairy Tale

Barry Bell, Art Weber and Carman Lane, lured by the dights of Jasper Avenue on Saturday night, tarried too long and arrived in breadus heats at the station just as the Vermilion express with pulled out, leaving our three heroes marooned. However, always on the alert, on seeing our heroes approach to a taxi-driver, alighted on them, and they informed them that for the modest sum of two dollars he would put them on the train at North Edmonton. Happy thought! Our three desperate heroes jumped into a large limousine and were quickly hurried to the North Edmonton depot at a modest rate of some 65 to 85 miles per hour, arriving in time to board the train homeward

HUSBAND AND WIFE FACING CHARGES ATHABASKA CASES

Harry Bowtell and Wife Emma Bowtell Are in Custody

TAKEN AT FROG LAKE

Charges in 1925 Election Scandal Now Total Thirteen

Carrying the list of charges in connection with the Athabaska election scandal to thirteen, three more were added on Monday. As a result Harry Bowtell, of Frog Lake, was arrested by Sergt. R. S. Warrior of the R.C.M.P. on a charge of perjury and of counselling and procuring a false oath, while his wife, Emma Bowtell, was taken on a charge of forgery.

A. B. Macdonald, Edmonton barrister, is acting for the solicitor general in carrying on the prosecutions, as he has done in previous cases. How bail and his wife are to arrive in the city on Tuesday afternoon's train and appear before Magistrate G. B. McLeod on Wednesday for preliminary hearing.

One charge against Bowtell is that on or about October 25, 1925, at Frog Lake, he did unlawfully counsel and procure Emma Bowtell to commit perjury by forging a certain transfer certificate authorizing H. M. Burton to vote at poll 172 by forging the name of Peter Peterson, rural registrar, for poll 216. Bowtell is also charged with perjury on the grounds that at Fort Saskatchewan during the inquiry conducted by Mrs. Justice A. H. Clarke, he swore to the effect that he had never seen a certain transfer certificate authorizing H. M. Burton to vote at poll 219 and that Bowtell had not signed the certificate on that date. The charge against Emma Bowtell is that of forging the certificate authorizing Burton to vote at poll 172 by forging the name of Peter Peterson, rural registrar.

British Admiralty Has Brought To Perfection An Electrically Controlled Torpedo

After several years of experimenting with a new type of electrically controlled torpedo, the British admiralty has brought to perfection a projectile which follows the target and carries sufficient explosive to blow the vessel to bits when it comes in a direct hit, according to reports heard today.

In a test on the admiralty ranges in Portsmouth harbor, one of the torpedoes got out of control and tore around the harbor at 40 knots. Fast admiralty vessels chased it but they could not overtake it and finally the torpedo headed at Weymouth beach.

Spectators were not allowed to approach within 100 yards of the mysterious projectile and photographs taken by several persons were confiscated for fear the secret of the torpedo's mechanism might be revealed.

The torpedo is not fired like an ordinary torpedo but is launched into the water. Thus the vessel that is carrying it is able to hide it a cove and destroy the enemy vessel with these electrically guided torpedoes without revealing the torpedo carrier's position by an explosion. Once launched, the torpedo is steered by a small wireless apparatus looking like two-tube amplifiers.

The first current applied starts the powerful gasoline engine and the attack of the projectile. As it travels forward, a fine copper wire unwinds behind it apparently acting as a sort of aerial. A second wave of current controls the steering apparatus which gives remarkable control, enabling the torpedo to follow all the twists and turns of the target. A fin, similar to that of an aeroplane's, gives the operator the choice of launching the torpedo over the surface of the water at a tremendous speed or of submerging it several feet in order to make a bit below the water line.

The tests produced amazing results. Several old vessels were towed out to sea and a torpedo launched many miles away from them. In every case, and there were 14 tests of this kind, a direct hit was scored by the operator who was able to guide the torpedo to within a foot of the spot aimed at.

The torpedo contains a new and deadly explosive of such strength that several of the target ships were cut in half.

The Weymouth mishap occurred when the control instrument burst a tube and left the operator able to guide the torpedo in one direction only. Hence the projectile made ever widening circles until it was grounded.

The explosion of the torpedo head is caused by the contact of four detonators, two at the head and two on each side. The explosion occurs immediately when any one of these come in contact with hard projects.

The Explanation

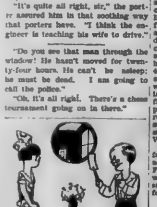
On this trip the crack express had been far from living up to its reputation. First it would go forward fifty yards or so, then back, then stand still, puffing uncertainly, and then begin the same thing all over again. At last one of the travellers lost his patience and summoned the porter.

"What's the matter with this train?" he exploded. "Nothing at all and jerking forward in this awful way."

"It's quite all right, sir," the porter assured him in that soothing way that porters have. "I think the engineer is teaching his wife to drive."

"Do you see that man through the window? He hasn't moved for twenty-four hours. He can't be asleep; he must be dead. I am going to call the police."

"Oh, it's all right. There's a chess tournament going on in there."



"I have killed five flies, two mosquitoes and three feminines."
"How do you know that?"
"Two were on the table and three on the looking-glass."—Il Travaso, Roma.

Cement Wheat Found to Be Suitable To Manufacture of High Grade Flour

In color, volume of loaf and fine-ness of grain, Cement wheat is equal to Manitoba, and the two varieties show no appreciable differences in absorption and bread yield, according to tests made by the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd., which has completed at the Canadian Pacific elevator at the Lake of the Woods Milling Company's plant here.

"If a high quality of flour is to be a first consideration," states the report of the company's investigators, "we cannot recommend Garnet for our mills. The result of this test further confirms our previous convictions."

To stage the experiment, which was begun in accord with previous tests, a mix of 2,000 bushels of Garnet wheat was milled in comparison with Marquis on a commercial scale. "An excellent sample of Garnet was used in the test, weighing 65½ pounds per bushel and the Marquis 62.8 per cent. protein, the Marquis sample weighed 63½ pounds per bushel and averaged 13.2 per cent. protein.

Regarding Reward wheat, the company's test states, that the variety, composed of 83 pieces of wood, and the American legion emblem.

Address to Royal Geographical Society Reveals Grim Record

The contest to which the drug traffic is to complain during 1929 may be gathered from a statement by Colonel Pearce, Chief Constable of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, which has been reported recently established.

He declares that the number of Mayrigines who habitually take drugs is estimated at more than 200,000 in a population of 10,000,000 inhabitants. Opium alone costs them £500,000 to £600,000 in opium annually on the purchase of narcotics.

The Chinese is engaged in a stern fight against the dealers in narcotics. One member of the gang recently tracked down in Vienna is reported to have netted £98,000 during the last two years from the drug traffic.

Without the use of a single nail or screw, Burton has constructed a table that many amateur collectors would like to own.

The top is constructed of 1,547 pieces of wood, 17 different kinds being used to give the desired color effect.

Attractive in its simplicity, the unique table contains but three designs, the Masonic square and compass, composed of 63 pieces of wood, and the American legion emblem.

Saving For Daylight Saving

Twenty-Five Million in Stamps Will Likely Under It This Summer

The Investors' Association of New York announced recently it had completed a survey showing that 25,000,000 persons in the United States will save by daylight saving time this summer.

While a few of the smaller cities and towns have discarded the practice since last summer, one made two years ago, the association said the latest figures indicate the movement has the whole to growing.

A bill authorizing daylight saving is now pending in California; Massachusetts has a statewide daylight saving law; the whole state of Rhode Island will be on daylight saving by virtue of numerous local ordinances, and virtually the entire state of New Jersey will observe the new time.

In New York State 191 cities and villages set clocks ahead, and 23 communities in Connecticut will again adopt the plan. Chicago and eight other cities in Illinois and six cities in Indiana are among other places to adopt the scheme.

Canadian Ice Cream For South Americans

Shipment Goes Forward To Georgetown, British Guiana, By C.N. Steamship

The first shipment of ice cream, which it is believed was ever made to South America from any place in Canada, went forward recently from Truro, N.S., consigned to Georgetown, British Guiana, by the R.N.S. "Lady Drake" of the Canadian National Steamships. The order, which is of substantial size, was received by the manufacturer entirely unsolicited, and the manager of the firm foresees great possibilities in this trade with the inauguration of the new services by the Canadian National Steamships.

Two years ago they made their first shipment of this delicacy outside of Canada to Newfoundland, and since then have developed into a regular trade. Convinced by their success in Newfoundland, the firm decided to extend the export field with the results as noted.

Decline Of Chivalry

Knighthood Appears To Be No Longer In Favor

It was bound to come. Woman, having every field of male activity insisting that complete equality between the sexes should be demanded, many disputes have arisen on the absence of qualities of which she has deprived the stronger sex in the process of competing with them. A correspondent who writes to the Star lamenting the lack of chivalry in these days today suggests that womanish a create a demand for those graces in their men friends which former generations classified as "knight-errantry." But knighthood here at any rate is no longer in favor, and if chivalry is inseparable from titles, then there is small hope that the lady's with will be gra'ified —Montreal Star.

Canada Makes Great Strides In Past Few Years In Work Of Aerial Mapping

Care At Shooting Time Well Repaid

Clean Floor and Neat Bailing Of Fleece Are Rewarded

With wool providing a very important proportion of the total revenue from sheep and with this product sold on a graded basis as it is in Canada, it is important to exercise care at shearing time, point out officials of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers. Clean wool, free from chaff, burrs, dung locks, binder twine, and other foreign material and also from the short black or gray hairs found growing on the heads and legs, is worth decidedly more than wool not so carefully cared for. With the weather warming up those sheepmen who are anxious to get a good start of new fleece on their animals before the fall fairs open are shearing now, although this work will not become general in the East for six weeks yet and in the West before the first of June.

Now-a-days sheep are seldom washed prior to shearing. Washing did not get rid of all the grease and foreign material and the wool had to be scoured when it reached the mills anyway, so today the work of washing or smearing is generally left to the mills, and the grower is content to sell the wool in the grease. There were many disadvantages to washing on the farm anyway, and in particular being to get the wool into nice shape for shearing. Furthermore there is nothing to be gained essentially in selling washed wool as against unwashed.

Shearing should be done in dry weather on a reasonably warm day, and by all means on a clean floor or piece of canvas. Before shearing all the regular fleece all heavy and badly stained tag locks should be trimmed off. After shearing the fleece should be spread on the floor flesh side down, the sides folded in and rolled firmly from brisch to neck so that the best parts of the fleece, which are over the shoulder and back, will show on the outside of the package.

Wool officials are opposed to tying with binder twine, pointing out that this, like the tufts of black or gray hairs which should not be included with the fleece, will not take the dye when the wool is being processed, and therefore make it unfit for many uses. They advise using paper twine, as supplied by the Wool growers to all their shippers, or if this is not available the use of the neckpiece, which is twisted into a rope and passed once around the fleece which is then tucked in. Standard wool sacks which hold from 15 to 25 fleeces are advocated for packing the wool in after it is shorn, or if not available, really clean brus sacks. Tight packing in these sacks is very essential as it means less shrinkage in bulk in store the wool in a dry place until sold.

Loggers Great Egg Eaters

Net Amount For One To End Half Dozen For Breakfast

Poultry producers in British Columbia have been giving more attention than usual, of late, to the local market afforded by logging camps. Logging camps afford a profitable special market for a number of individual poultrymen. Loggers, as a whole, are great egg consumers. A poultryman has just returned from a camp of logger consumers, which is surprising, totalling 3,200 men. Loggers are served with eggs without stint for breakfast. It is not unusual for one logger to eat half a dozen eggs as a starter for the day.

Ants Have Fire Brigade

Some ant-hills have their own fire brigades. A woman naturalist in France discovered this by placing a lighted taper on a hill. A number of ant firemen promptly appeared and extinguished it by squirting liquid formic acid from their jaws on the taper, while others tore at it. Many of the ants were killed, and one here dragged another from danger.

Canada Must Improve Barley

Professor Harrison Plans Missions In Europe Only Two Best Quality

Prof. T. J. Harrison, Manitoba Agricultural College, and Paul Brent returned recently from Europe, where they have been making investigations into the barley requirements of the British and foreign trade. Professor Harrison is preparing a report on his trip, but in the meantime is prepared to say that Canada grows the world's worst barley. With plenty of room for improvement, Professor Harrison is making his plans for encouraging better quality. There is a market there for Canada's O.A.C.-21 in the distilling and malt extract trade, but not for brewing. With such quantities of mediocre barley the European maltsters have plenty of opportunity to skim the cream, and it is only the best they

Department Bars School Teacher

Case of Peter Kolaski Which Stirred Vermilion Is Brought to Close

As a result of the findings of the commission of reference handed by His Honor Judge Taylor, to enquire into the conduct of Peter Kolaski, formerly teacher at Primula Ukrainian school, near Vermilion, the provincial department of education has definitely decided not to renew the interim certificate granted to Kolaski after his graduation from normal.

Kolaski had been charged with writing letters to his former pupils, after he had relinquished the position of teacher there, calculated to be subversive of discipline, and after enquiry the department of education refused to grant any further extension of his interim teaching certificate.

Representations made to the department by friends of Kolaski, stating that he had not had a fair hearing, led to the naming of a commission consisting of His Honor Judge Taylor, Alfred Waite and F H Herbert.

This commission, after an enquiry here, decided that two out of the three charges were substantiated, and made its report accordingly to the department, which, as a result, has decided not to extend Kolaski's interim teaching certificate

It might be explained that upon the graduation of a student from normal school with teacher training, the certificate given him is an interim one only, and is not made permanent until three satisfactory reports on his work have been made by school inspectors. Upon these, subject to his conduct being satisfactory in other respects, the teacher's interim certificate is then made permanent

The Alberta Teachers Alliance, which demanded the commission enquiry into Kolaski's case, is now satisfied that the young teacher concerned has been given a proper opportunity to reply to the charges and that the previous injustice of reaching a decision without giving the teacher an opportunity for a proper defense, has been remedied.

No further action will therefore be taken in the matter by the Alberta Teachers' Alliance.

NEW ESSEX SPEEDSTER

The most recent addition to the 1929 line of the Hudson Motor Car Company is this flashy, ultra-stylish, special "derby" speedster" mounted on an Essex the Challenger chassis. The body, built by Biddle and Sharp, is low and suggestive of the fleetest of race cars. It is equipped with a folding windshield and there is a surprisingly large rumble seat in the rear deck. A top and side curtains are included as part of the standard equipment.

The car comes in a variety of colors, and all bright work is chromium plated as on all Greater Hudson and Essex the Challenger models.

On account of the extreme lightness of this type of body, and the low center of gravity found in this model, Hudson engineers have found it practicable to incorporate an overdrive, which makes it possible to combine safety with the "over-odious speed which this car attains.

By means of special construction which makes it possible to lower the back of the seat to the floor, it is possible to convert the entire rear of the car into a very comfortable bed.

ANNUAL AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS, 1929

Ottawa, May 14. — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has made the customary arrangements for the collection and publication of the annual agricultural statistics of Canada for the year 1929. These statistics will be based upon returns to be collected next June from individual farmers upon cardboard schedules issued to them through the teachers and children of the rural schools, as well as from farmers direct, which will be circulated on an increased scale this year. The schedule is a very simple one, calling only for the areas sown to field crops and the numbers of farm animals a few on the farm in mid-June. Upon the resulting estimates of total areas sown are based the preliminary, provisional and then bestimated yield, which are of supreme importance in connection with the movement, financing, distribution and sale of the principal cereals, especially of wheat, of which Canada is now the world's leading exporter.

The present plans for the collection of these statistics have been followed consecutively since 1917, and the extensions thereon have come to be confidently relied upon by all interested in the production and distribution of Canadian grain.

Accurate statistics are indispensable for a proper appreciation of the national progress, and in order to ensure that the statistics may be as accurate as possible, it is earnestly hoped that farmers throughout the Dominion will not fail to render the small service required by filling up and returning the schedule issued.

If any farmer should not receive the cardboard schedule by the middle of June he should apply for same either to the school teacher of the nearest local rural school, or to his provincial Department of Agriculture; or to the Dominion Statistician at Ottawa. The aim is to obtain a completed schedule from every farmer, as the more numerous the returns, the more trustworthy will be the resulting estimates.

FIGURES PRESENT STRIKING EVIDENCE

Popularity of Durant Car is No Myth According to Production Reports

Striking evidence of the nationwide popularity of Durant automobiles is contained in the fact that during the first four months of this year, the production exceeded that of the entire year of 1928 by nearly 40 per cent. In one month, April, production equalled approximately one-half the entire output for 1928.

During the winter a new executive building was erected to house the executive and office staffs and the space made available by this change was immediately taken over by the production department to increase its production facilities. Even with this additional space and equipment, it has required the best of concentrated effort to keep pace with demand, so great has been the popularity of Durant cars spread throughout the Dominion.

The sales executive attributes this condition to the enthusiasm of Durant owners who seem never to tire talking about the good qualities of their cars.

Week's Watchword To Be "Empire"

Many Stores Feature Empire Shopping Week Displays In Windows

Empire Shopping Week is now in full swing. From one end of the empire to the other the economic importance of trade between the various units of the empire is being brought to the attention of everyone. In England the housewives are being reminded that if they buy Canadian meats and apples, Canadians will be able to buy more Sheffield cutlery and woolen goods, the manufacture of which gives employment to English workingmen. In Canada the reverse of the holds true. "See it is made in the empire before you buy," is the watchword of the week.

The sponsors of Empire Shopping Week urge that everyone buy local products as first choice, Canadian products as second choice and empire products as third choice.

Predicts Doubling The Wheat Yield

Can Be Accomplished Through Subsoil Dusting, Far Sight Says Professor

Doubling the yield of wheat per acre in America within 10 years is predicted by H. H. Whetzel, professor of plant pathology at Cornell University.

This will be done he says, through application of a recently developed method for wiping the rust parasites from wheat by sulphur dusting.

Stem or leaf rust of wheat, like flu nauseants to steel, is an inconspicuous scourge. It is a microscopic fungus, visible only as a slight discoloration. How devastating its effects have been was disclosed fully only when experimental fields were protected successfully from rust.

In Manitoba, Professor Whetzel says, sulphur dusted wheat produced 40 to 50 bushels an acre, against yields of but 10 to 20 bushels from dusted unprotected against rust.

Leaf rust of wheat long known to southern grain areas has been considered a specialty bad past. But experimental sulphur dusting, Professor Whetzel says, revealed that this form of rust regularly reduced crops by about 20 to 30 per cent.

The sulphur dusting method has been under experimental development for several years in areas representing different kinds of wheat growing conditions.

The pathologist foresees power machines dusting results so far developed in future grain fields. He believes it will take a decade to put over the cereal dusting idea, but that handsome profits will more than pay the bills besides. Two or three dustings a season are sufficient he says, when they are timed properly.

Trees For Windbreaks

Wide Spacing in Planting Permits Horse Drawn Cultivation

Many varieties of trees are proving suitable for windbreaks in the Prairie Provinces. At Swift Current, Saskatchewan, nineteen varieties are classed as ornamental in the report of the superintendent, published by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. It is shown that thirteen of the varieties tested have withstood winter temperatures without any sap killing whatever. These include Caragana Maxgib, Siberian Pea Tree, Weedy Caragana, Common Lilac, Villosa Lilac, Tartarian and other Honeysuckles, Missouri Currant, Siberian Dogwood, and others. Planting about eight feet apart under dry conditions is recommended by the superintendent of the station. This method, he states, allows access for horse-drawn cultivation for a longer period of time than is permissible by closer spacing. This is a matter of much importance, because it facilitates weed control. Such trees as poplars, elm, maple, ash, spruce, and Scotch and Jack pine do remarkably well. Poplars planted as cuttings in four years had reached heights of from fifteen to twenty feet.

Presented With Flag

The flag of Bermuda was presented to the R.N.S. "Lady Somers" at the Canadian National Exhibition, when she called at Hamilton on her maiden trip this month Admiral Somers founded the colony of Bermuda in 1609. In presenting the flag, the president of the Bermuda Chamber of Commerce said this fine of ships was proving the salvation of the agricultural industry of the Island.

Mushrooms Of Large Cities

Neighborhood Is Pleasure People Have To Be Watched

Life in the big cities has its attractions, but neighborliness even among people who live in adjoining houses isn't one of them. The other day a householder who had parked in one of the residential sections of Detroit for four days. People roamed to the back yard, never thinking it odd that the owner didn't drive off with his property—or if they did think of it, they didn't bother about it. Finally a policeman investigated and found that the car contained the lifeless body of a woman. The murderer merely disposed of the body by leaving it in the abandoned car, which turned out to be the easiest way to get rid of it without detection. It might have been three yet had the policeman not come along.

People in most big cities do not know and do not care who 'O'-ny neighbors are. They just go about minding their own business and expecting others to do the same. Sometimes it isn't only or desirable to be come too inquisitive, so they drop the idea of becoming acquainted. But they are thus missing one of the greatest coveted pleasures of life—neighborliness. The beauty of life in the smaller cities is enhanced by the ability to know and see one's friends, and to enjoy their company. That is why a small city is the most ideal place of residence. One can have neighbors, and get the most sociability out of life. Life without neighborliness would be unbearable to anyone who has become acquainted with the joy it puts into human existence.

Sweet Clover

Seven Varieties Tested At Swift Current Experimental Station

There are several varieties of sweet clover grown in the Prairie Provinces for fodder purposes. At the Swift Current Experimental Station seven varieties were grown side by side. None of these gave very heavy yields, but all of them made very good stands when sown alone on fallow ground. The variety Zouave reached a height of 57 inches at harvest time, yielding 1.33 tons of cured hay per acre in 1927, and 1.58 tons as the average crop for three years in succession. A variety called Dwarf, growing to a height of only 15 inches, gave practically a ton and a half of hay to the acre as a three year average. Common White, that reached 32 inches high, yielded practically the same tonnage. Grundy County, tested only for two years, gave a lower yield of about a ton and a third. Macoupin yielded 1.39 tons to the acre; Arlow 1.25 tons, and Arctic 1.19 tons as an average for three years. These results are given in the report of the superintendent of the Swift Current Experimental Station, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

The Value Of Resistance

If Things Were Made Easy Development Would Be Retarded

No doubt a world in which matter never got out of place and became dirt, in which iron had no flaws and rock no cracks, in which gardens had no weeds and food grew ready cooked, in which clothes never wore out and nothing was or many to advertisements describe it, in which the right word was not hard to find and there had no exceptions, and things never went wrong, would be a much easier place to live in. But for purposes of training and development it would be worth nothing at all. It is the resistance that puts us on our mettle: It is the conquest of the reluctant stuff that educates the worker: I wish you enough difficulties to keep you well and make you strong and skilful.—Henry Van Dyke.

Out Of His Line

Roaming interestedly through Harlem, a stroller eavesdropped on this conversation between two colored preachers. "Where you-all a-preaching now, brother?" "Nowhere," was the answer. "A fine preacher like you is, too," said the first. "That's just it," retorted the other. "I'm a preachin' preacher, and what that last congregation wanted was a prayin' preacher and that ain't in my line. Seems like they's too much opposition nowadays."

"The man is so honest he would not steal a pin," said the admiring friend.

"I never thought much of the pin lost," conveyed Miss Cayenne. "Try him with an umbrella."

Allen—"How many students are there at your college?"

Geoffrey—"Oh, about one in every ten."

Cream For Buttermaking

Should Be Stored in Deep Pails, Says Dairy Specialist

The place and method of storing cream being a close relationship to the quality of the butter from which it is made. The practice of holding the cream in cellars is not the best, according to pamphlet No. 87, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, "The Care Of Cream For Buttermaking." Experiments carried on by the Dairy Branch and referred to in this pamphlet, proved that cream can not be kept sweet for thirty-six hours, or a little longer every other day in the ordinary farm house cellar. It was also learned that cream left uncovered in the cellar has a tendency to develop an objectionable flavour which destroy cleanly in the butter. A much better way of keeping the cream is to store it in deep pails standing in ice and water. Even though the temperature of the cellar is as cold as that of the water, the cream keeps much better under the water system, the difference being principally in the rate at which acidity is developed. Cream kept for thirty-six hours in a water-cooled tank with the cream at 52.5 degrees, the percentage of acidity was .157. Kept for the same length of time in a cellar at 54.5 degrees, the percentage of acidity was .47. This shows that the cream from the cellar had three times as much acidity as that cooled in ice water. Indeed, when kept for sixty hours in ice water at 52 degrees, the percentage of acidity had reached only .165. The ice water cooling is especially valuable where cream cannot be delivered to the creamery oftener than twice a week. In such a case the temperature of the cream must be kept down to forty-eight if the cream is to be delivered in a satisfactory condition. Frequent deliveries of the cream are desirable even when the best system of storing is used, as cream will not keep any longer than two days at the farm but, it is believed, much to do with the old cream flavour so common in gathered cream butter.

Double Chemist Finds Bullfrogs Realize An Interesting Plaything

A Seattle chemist, who recently purchased an up-to-date and very delicate set of scales has worked out some interesting problems with his latest plaything. A strand of human hair, he states, long enough to encircle the earth at the equator, would weigh 750 pounds.

The ordinary domestic variety of postage stamp ADHERES ounces. The ordinary 3-cent postage stamp is lighter than the air mail stamp, the former respectively weighing .01297270 ounces and .02580 ounces. The ordinary human hair, one inch long, weighs .00003 grams or .0000079 ounces.

Can you see quite well, darling? Yes dear, thank you.

No one in the way?

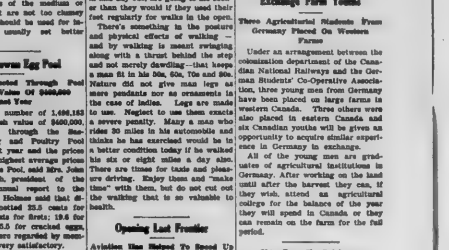
No, dear.

Then change places with me.

Jack (over the phone): "And please mail my bill this evening."

Jacqueline: "You'd better come and get it; glass breaks so easily in the mail."

OBJECT OF HISTORY



This piece of stone from the ruins of Fort Prince of Wales, opposite Churchill, is the first authentic piece of freight shipped over the Hudson Bay Railway from Churchill to Winnipeg. It was presented by W. G. Saunders, freight traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways, to the Board of Trade of Winnipeg on the occasion of the 50th anniversary celebration of that body on April 30th. The president of the Board of Trade was asked to sign the freight delivery sheet for the stone, which will be suitably engraved and placed in the museum of the Board of Trade.

Fort Prince of Wales was, in its time, one of the strongest forts on the continent. It was begun in 1733, completed in 1767, and demolished in 1782. It had 44 cannon, of which 32 lie among the ruins. The site of the fort is directly across the harbor from Churchill.—Pictograph Canadian National Railways.

Poultry Husbandman Gives Modern Hints On How To Obtain Best Results

When chicks are to be hatched by the natural method it is well to set several times as many eggs as one eggs are tested from time to time and the infertile eggs removed, these remaining can be given to the hens. Then when the chicks hatch a few hens will be able to brood a larger flock of the same age. When this system is used the hens from which the eggs have been taken may be re-set and kept going for several weeks. F. C. Elford, the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, recommends thoroughly dusting the hen with sulphur or insect powder before she is set. The nest should be made ready and the hen placed on the eggs preferably after dark. To test the hen as a brooder it is well to give her a few common eggs for a few days and if still inclined to set she may be given a setting of from 13 to 15 eggs, according to size. It is important to see that the nest is properly clean and disinfected before allowing the hen into it. It is regarded as good practice to set the hens where the laying stock cannot get to them A colony house makes an ideal place for this purpose. There should be kept near at hand a constant supply of fresh water and hard grain either placed on the floor or in a hopper as well as green feed. Some hens do not set as well as others and Mr. Elford regards it as common sense management to continue the good setters at work for several weeks. This may be done by removing the eggs to other hens before they are hatched. If they continue to set well and keep in good flesh it may be possible to keep them at work for several hatchings before allowing them off with chicks or putting them back into the laying pens.

The lighter laying breeds like the Leghorns, though they may become broody, seldom make good hatching setters. Hens of the medium or larger size that are not too clumsy and awkward should be used for incubation. Hens usually set better than pullets.

Saskatchewan Egg Pool

Quantity Marketed Through Pool Had Cash Value Of $400,000 Last Year

Eggs to the number of 1,606,163 dozen, of a cash value of $400,000, were marketed through the Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Pool during the past year and the prices paid were the highest average prices ever paid by the Pool, said Mrs. John Holmes Asquith, president of the Pool, in her annual report to the delegates. Mrs. Holmes said that direct shippers netted 23.5 cents for extras; 19.6 cents for firsts; 16.6 for seconds, and 15.5 for cracked eggs, which prices were regarded by members as being very satisfactory.

Phyllis (yawning): Well, what shall we do this evening?

Algy: "Let's think hard—

"No, let's do something you can do, too!"

Mistress: "And why did you leave your last place?"

The Cook: "It was so far away my husband had to take a taxi to eat with me."

London Taximen Are Very Reliable

Show Metropolis By Night and Value Of Knowledge Gained

The taximen of London may be less hoodwinked than the Parisian variety, but they are none the less proud of their own city. Many of them are old men, survivors of the horse-and or "growler" days, who have been advancing in years a bit more gradually than most Londoners. A visitor taking his first trip in a comfortably driven hackney carriage will discover that he is riding in the original taximeter.

Nobody seems to know the age of a London cab, but it would be safe to classify most of them among the more mature motors. They are probably as comfortable as any cabs in the world. The passenger shuts the unbelievably depths in the back seat, pulls down the folding seat for a foot-rest, and is kept awake by the rattle of the window panes. The driver, who has passed a searching examination, knows the location of almost sacred rite in London traffic.

Occasionally he engages in heated conversation with the police or with who is fortified behind the extension of the motor hood like an ancient warrior sheltered behind a shield. Most of the taximen know the city and suburbs by heart. The majority follow the same route between any two points in London, and the route usually avoids traffic delays in favor of the shortest journey to your destination.

No Substitute For Walking

Physicians Agree That No Better Exercise Is Known

No physician has ever found anything so conducive to longevity as habitual walking in the open air, it may be said, no physical culturist, professor, fitness man who can lay claim to the doors of their office and devote every ingenuity to avoiding taking a few steps during the day, and then motor home, and this day in and day out, are going to die sooner than they would if they used their feet regularly for walks in the open.

There's something in the posture and physical effect of walking—and by walking is meant swinging along with a thrust behind the step and not merely dawdling—that keeps a man fit in his 50s, 60s, 70s and 80s. Nature did not give man legs as mere pendants nor as ornaments in the case of ladies. Legs are made to use. Neglect to use them exacts a severe penalty. Many a man who rides 20 miles in his automobile and thinks he has exercised would be in better condition today if he walked his six or eight miles a day also. There are times for taxis and pleasure driving. Enjoy them and "make the most" with them, but do not cut the walking that is so valuable to health.

Opening Last Frontier

Aviation Has Helped To Speed Up Work at Canada

The northern part of Canada is the world's last frontier and its opening coincides with the development of flying. Aeroplanes have been successfully used for aerial surveys, for explorations, for fire patrols and for transportation, and new regions are being opened with rapidity that would have been unthinkable in the old days of canoes and dog-trains. In the process Canadian flyers have shown themselves enterprising to adopt in developing new uses for planes, and in the utilitarian side of flying. They have made splendid progress in overcoming the difficulties of winter flying, and deserve great commendation for breaking into what too many people, including Canadians, have insisted on regarding as the frozen North. The conquest of the last frontier is being made by air.

Birds In the Making

Two actors met after a long interval.

"What have you been doing lately?"

"Well, as a matter of fact I've left the stage," replied the other.

"But what made you do that?"

"Well, I had a hint that I was not suited to it."

"Oh, I see," said his friend; "the little birds told you, eh?"

"Well, no, not exactly, but they might have become little birds if they had been allowed to hatch."

League Doing Good Work

The League is a fact, and you hope the greatest fact in the world of today. Already it has prevented wars, it has saved lives and repatriated exiles. It binds the nations of society binds individuals, yet leaves them true liberty. The League had done great work and will, with the support of the people who make up the nations, do more.

"Preventer Of Ills" Doctor Of Future

Opinion Expressed By One Of World's Greatest Surgeons

"Preventive medicine will be the supreme human science of this century," one of the world's greatest surgeons, Dr. Alexis Carrel of Rockefeller Institute, predicted during an interview at his Mayfair residence. The conversation was devoted to three subjects: (1) the value of natural sunlight and, in many cases, of ultraviolet rays in connection with the prevention and cure of disease; (2) the importance of dieting in relation to his longevity.

"Man needs a certain amount of sunlight. And where he cannot obtain the exposure of travelling to places where the sun shines, then in many cases the so-called 'artificial sunlight,' or ultra-violet rays, offer an excellent substitute."

He added: "But people hate new things."

Emphasizing the importance of preventive medicine, Dr Arbuthnot Lane stood an extract from an article of his in "The Golden Health Library," a health encyclopaedia in magazine form which the great surgeon has just founded.

"The underlying conception of this work," he said, "is that good health can be attained and maintained by ascertained principles of living. It is not a close secret of the medical profession, nor is to be found in specifics and prescriptions. Modern civilization is obsessed by the disease complex, and medicine which is dominated at least as much as other professions by the mists of public opinion, has come to be chiefly limited away from that false and injurious attitude toward its function. The physician as 'healer' still carries the strongest popular appeal. Yet it cannot be denied that it is the physician as 'preventer of ills' who will be the doctor of the future."

Exchange Farm Youths

Three Agricultural Students From Germany Placed On Western Farms

Under an arrangement between the colonization department of the Canadian National Railways and the German Students' Co-Operative Association, three young farmers from Germany have been placed on large farms in western Canada. Three others were also placed in eastern Canada and six Canadian youths will be given an opportunity to acquire similar experience in Germany in exchange.

All of the young men are graduates of agricultural institutions in their country. After working on the land until after the harvest they can, if they wish, attend an agricultural college for the balance of the year they will spend in Canada or they can remain on the farm for the full period.

Ship Eggs To California

Record Shipment Of 90,000 Eggs Sent To U.S. from British Columbia

A record shipment of pedigreed White Leghorn hatching eggs was made recently by the Poultry Breeders' Association of British Columbia to a hatchery at Petaluma, California. The shipment consisted of 90,000 eggs, valued at $6,000.

The British Columbia eggs, which were all laid by pedigreed stock, will, it is understood, be used to obtain pedigreed cockerels for distribution among the poultry farms in California supplying eggs to the hatchery.

One of the Audience—"I've heard of a man who got down on his hand telling others how to raise children neglect your own."

DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE TESTING CHEMICAL WEED DESTROYERS

It has come to the attention of the Department of Agriculture that certain persons have been recommending to farmers a chemical preparation for the destruction of noxious weeds, and in published statements testifying to the value of this preparation, have represented themselves as being connected at the time with the Department.

This creates an impression which should be corrected, and it may be pointed out that the Department of

The Weekly half-holiday starts on Wednesday, June 5th at 12 noon and will continue until the end of August at least, with every possibility of continuing until the end of September. Great Soldier's Warning Against War

One of the greatest errors some parties make says Toronto Saturday Night, is to suppose that all modern military ability favor war. This is far from being true and the fact is illustrated by the great British general, Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who has on many occasions raised his voice against war as an institution for the settlement of international disputes.

Quite recently he has spoken again, pointing out that the desire to avoid another war is common to most countries. It would be strange if it were not so for says Hanworth as the last war cost the world ten million lives or double the number lost in all wars of the preceding 120 years put together. It also cost not less than $200,000,000, a sum that the human mind is hardly competent to conceive or say nothing of an incalculable total of distress sorrow and injury. Its failure as a solution of international dispute is demonstrable from the fact that it left behind grievances and re-sentiment that can not be eradicated within the lifetime of most adults now living

Yet though war is condemned by the intelligent men of all the nations who twenty years ago thought of it lightly as an inevitable future development, and devoted of possible advantages, preparations go on much as they did prior to 1914. Sir William Robertson is genuinely alarmed over the tendency to increasing competition in armaments. All the great powers, with (we are glad to state), the exception of Great Britain, are today spending more money on armed forces than they spent five years ago. Even with a reduced scale of expenditure Great Britain is practically compelled to spend $1,270,000,000, irrespective of the contributions of India and other parts of the Empire, from the sheer necessity of fulfilling her military responsibilities in various parts of the world and protecting sea communications. France and Italy have approximately as many men under arms as in 1914 Germany is complaining of her defenceless position and if armaments are piled up by her neighbors must some day be given permission to arm also. Many smaller nations of Europe are on a military footing and maintaining a threatening attitude toward each other The United States (only that future security) demands a vast additional naval expenditure

What does all this madness portend" Peace is a game which all must play if it is to be maintained. Let us hope that the cranx for armament, falls of its own weight before the nations get at each other's throats again. The only vestige of a silver lining to the dark cloud that menaces the destruction and prevention of years now exists, a factor never previously known in the world's history; but it is plain that the miracle which will conquer the human mass from madness to sanity cannot be performed with a single gesture

What Britain Has Done

Has Led the World in Discovery, Says Stanley Baldwin

"Years ago seaman sailed from Plymouth to discover a new world. We are going to rediscover a new moral world, which is a very much harder task," said Premier Stanley Baldwin, speaking at Plymouth, during his campaign tour of western England.

"We have led the way to disarmament," the premier said. "The best today is half the size it was in 1913. That is practical disarmament and no nation in the world can come any where near that, yet there are Englishmen who say we are lagging behind.

"My hope is that the new government and be able to arrive at an agreement with the United States which will fit the whole problem of disarmament in a new plane of action and not tail."

Ten Of Old England

For some reason Great Britain alone among Western nations has popularized the use of tea. It has become her national beverage. "A cup of tea" of England" has given place to the "tea of old England." and in its advertisements of something a "cup of tea" can vie with a "mug of ale." It is not too much to say that the British fought the war on tea.

The recent death of Marshal Foch, writes "Looker-On" in the London Daily Chronicle, leaves only one soldier entitled to wear the Order of Merit his fellow-countryman, Marshal Joffre The only other foreign member of this Order is the veteran Count Togo of Japan. At present there is no British soldier wearing the Order of Merit. Marshal Foch's death, too, leaves only one foreign, Field-Marshal in our army. This is King Albert, of the Belgians, upon whom His Majesty King George conferred this rank eight years ago.

Soviets Changing Policy

Will Proceed Along Different Lines Regarding Religious Practices

Removal of constitutional restrictions on religious practices is soon to be proposed to the Soviet congress, A. Sykoff, president of the Council of People's Commissars, told delegates to the congress they would soon be invited to vote on such an amendment to the constitution.

The fighting religion had proved to bring harm as well as benefit, he said. President Sykoff added that congress would be called upon to ratify a constitutional amendment providing for separation of church and state, and schools, and granting all citizens the right to religious practice as well as to religious propaganda.

It appeared from the speech of the president that the Soviet was not to abandon its attempts to discredit religions, but simply to proceed, removing the stimulus of persecution.

The commission set up on the establishment of Soviet socialist republics, forbidde the practice of any religion.

HON. R. FORKE GIVES HIS VIEWS ON IMMIGRATION

Ottawa.—The national development immigration scheme propounded by General A. D. McRae (Conservative, Vancouver North), is no want and expenditure that it should be carefully analyzed, declared Hon. Robert Forke, minister of immigration, in the House of Commons when he replied, for the government to the Vancouver member's want of confidence motion, which calls for the immediate reorganization of the department of immigration and colonization, moved in the House.

So far as he himself was concerned, he had his doubts as to the practicability of the McRae scheme, said Mr. Forke.

At least, Mr. Forke said, the member for North Vancouver had had something to offer on the subject of immigration, and his remarks were not negative in character. It was not hard, he said, to sit down and criticize and evolve a plan of immigration. Mr. Forke did not believe, though, that any scheme involving the expenditure of many millions of dollars would be successful.

He did not think that the settler loaded up with too heavy a financial load, had nearly the same chances for success as one who proceeded slowly. If any difficulties in respect to the cost of clearing the land in the Peace River district.

He did not wish it to be said that he was opposed to immigration, Mr. Forke continued. Immigration of the right class was necessary. What he did object to was the bringing to Canada of a greater number of persons than we could properly use in the industries of the nation at their rate of growth and expansion.

In order to maintain the fear that Canada was becoming overrun with a foreign population, Mr. Forke asserted that the per cent. of the natural Canadian population was Canadian born, 12 per cent. British born and only ten per cent. was of foreign origin.

He would answer the allegation that thousands of Canadians had left Canada for the United States in recent times, by showing, he said the comparison between population day by decade, and that of 1924. In 1921 149,560 immigrants had come to Canada, while 139,000 had left for the United States. Certainly the tide had changed. Even if the Washington figure of 72,000 were correct, also he doubted its correctness. The number of persons leaving Canada for the United States today, had been decreased very materially.

Clergy and Tobacco

Heated Discussion Takes Place At Meeting In Toronto

Toronto.—Stormy scenes developed here at a meeting of the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church over the adoption of a report by a special meeting on the use of tobacco by ministers.

Heated discussion took place regarding a section of the report which read: "That the Christian character of those who regard the use of tobacco as an innocent gratification should not on that account be impugned."

Dr. J. Kerr denounced the use of tobacco and objected to the adoption of the committee's report.

"I cannot accept Dr. Bland's report," said Dr. Kerr. "It implies that the use of tobacco is an innocent gratification. I do 'not believe it. I think it is a wasteful habit."

He presented a resolution, later adopted, which deplored the effect of tobacco on the youth of the country.

Submarine Disasters No Longer Possible

Naval Officers Consider Demonstration Of Rescue Great Success

Colon, Canal Zone.—For the first time in the history of the United States a navy submarine and its crew were raised from the bottom of the sea in Panama Bay. On May 17 the S-51 went down to a depth of 87 feet, was raised by the submarine S-12, and was rescued by the rescue ship Mallard a few hours after going to the bottom.

Naval officers here were so impressed with the demonstration that they said no disaster such as followed the sinking of the S-51 or the S-4 was now possible.

The S-12 caught the signals just one hour after the loss of the S-51. Then the rescue ship Mallard arrived for the spot and sighted all bubbles at 10:30 a.m. Twenty-five minutes later a grappel had been hooked on to the sunken submarine.

Joint Radio Control

Plan Is Endorsed By the Royal Society Of England

Ottawa.—Joint control of radio broadcasting by the federal and provincial governments, with special preference given to educational programs, public information and entertainment, was endorsed as the best policy for the Dominion at a session of the Royal Society of Canada.

Another feature of the day's proceedings was the defeat of a recommendation submitted by a sub-committee which would have limited the printing of scientific papers in the official journal of the society.

The decision concerning radio control, made in response to a request by the Rougl Commission on radio for the society's opinion, was reached largely as the result of a report made by Dr. H. M. Tory, head of the Federal Research Council.

Mgr. Camille Roy, rector of Laval University, delivered his presidential address, in which he cited the society as a model for development of cooperation among all the over-lapping intellectual spheres from coast to coast in the Dominion.

Full-wing his address Mgr Roy presented the Sir Joseph Pleville medal for outstanding work in science to Dr. A. H. R. Buller, University of Manitoba, and announced that the J. H. Tyrell medal for outstanding work in connection with the history of Canada had been awarded to Prof. George M. THREE MEMBER GRAIN BOARD IS SUGGESTED

Ottawa In order to give Lesle Boyd chairman of the grain commission, and Matthew Snow, who is a member, an opportunity to confer over recommendations which it will submit to the agricultural committee of the House of Commons, the committee met only a few minutes this afternoon

It was explained by Hon James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, that the two commissioners who were witnesses before the committee have not had an opportunity to talk matters over because Mr Snow has been in the West and Mr Boyd has been undergoing treatment in Montreal

A three-member grain board with headquarters at Winnipeg and with six commissioners to look after the various parts of field men to inspect elevators deal with complaints and to investigate conditions on the various grain growing districts in Western Canada were urged by Mr. Boyd.

The commissioners would be located at John Moose Jaw, Northern Manitoba and Southern Manitoba There should also be additional elevator inspectors for the rush seasons The members of the board would be salaried than five as proposed, he thought. The members should meet often enough that uniformity in its decisions could be obtained

Mr. Boyd agreed with the suggestion that the member of the board who had the authority of Deputy Minister should be a member of Winnipeg the western viewpoint since many there would be thought necessary. He also with the idea of the board being under the civil service commission as fairly satisfactory

As to time Hon Hepburn for the head office of the grain board Mr Boyd agreed Regina was more nearly the centre of the prairie grain growing districts than Winnipeg, but most important had to be adjusted at the company headquarters which were at Winnipeg It was for this reason he favored Winnipeg.

CHANGES IN THE GRAIN ACT ARE RECOMMENDED

Ottawa. Changes in the Canada Grain Act were recommended to the consideration of the agricultural committee of the House of Commons by the board of grain commissioners. Leslie Boyd, chairman, and Matthew Snow, members of the board were before the committee to explain and amplify their suggestions The committee will further discuss these recommendations

Many of the changes in the act suggested by the board would increase its power as against the present provisions requiring the order of the governor-in-council. The changes would facilitate the administration of the act without so often appealing to Ottawa.

Another recommendation was that the testing laboratory be under the supervision of the National Research Council instead of the grain board.

Although it was pointed out that the grain commission charged for seeing grain was fixed by the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, the committee took the view that the act should not be changed to relinquish such right of the board to regulate such charges as it might arise when it would be advisable

The question of the "hybrid" elevator was likewise put to the committee which explained its action in that The board had been blamed on many occasions this year for not refusing to allow these elevators to be used on the ground that they took away from the farmer the right to designate the terminal to which the grain should be shipped

Not Sufficient Evidence

Crown Not In Position To Make Out Good Case Against Broadman

Ottawa There is not sufficient evidence in the opinion of the Crown to warrant the prosecution of Harry Broadman for liquor smuggling charges, it was announced in the House of Commons by Hon. Ernest Lapointe minister of justice The minister's statement was as follows:

The department of national revenue transmitted to the department of justice the findings of the customs commission in a number of cases, and upon consideration of the same proceedings were instituted by the department of justice but in the case of Harry Broadman, the department reached the conclusion that while as found by the commission, there might be a prima facie case against him, the crown was not in a position to make out a good case in law and that consequently was entitled to withdraw the proceedings as was done by the deputy minister of justice."

For next year the finishing up of the quarter mile track, the changing of the basketball courts to a different location, with the possible building of a grandstand are on the program.

How Methods Needed To Make Headway Against Cancer

Sir Arbuthnot Lane, one of the leading medical authorities of Great Britain, thinks the leading profession must shirt its ground completely if it is to make any headway with the fight against cancer.

Undisputed statistics prove that the death rate from cancer constantly rises in nearly doubled between 1911 and 1926. The British physician says, and multiplied eight times in less than a century. Therefore a complete change of method on the part of those fronting this disease seems necessary.

"I believe," said Sir Arbuthnot, "that the only cure for cancer lies in prevention. It never attacks the healthy organ. Accordingly he proposes that advising the healthy how to keep well to be the function of the physician in future. Simple enough if the doctors can do it. Detroit News

Provincial Agriculturists To Meet

Canadian Wide Gathering Of Seed Growers and Selection At Winnipeg

(By E. Cora Hind)

June 8 to 18, are to be important days for agriculture and livestock in Canada for during those eight days the year's work and findings of the Plants Breeders Of Canada, the Canadian Seed Growers, the Canadian Technical Agriculturists and the Western Canada Society Animal Production, will all be disclosed and action taken on such important subjects as the standardization of names of seeds of vegetables and flowers for registration and approval and determine the extent to which the Seed Growers Association might go in encouraging the production of pedigreed seed, vegetable, garden and forage crops suitable for registration. Especial interest will centre on the question of the registration of Alfalfa and other cross fertilizing crops.

From the cereal breeding committee will come a report which will be the basis of a discussion on the desirability of retaining generation numbers and especial attention will be given to whether or not "number one registered should be eliminated. It is expected that a decision will be arrived at as to the proper type of Marquis wheat required for registration.

The Canadian Seed Growers will have only two addresses from their own members. President M. G. B. Stragge, will deal with the work generally and Prof. T. J. Harrison will speak on his recent trip to Russia and the types of barley required for the British market.

The Animal Production men are bringing two world famous men whose addresses will be shared by all the organizations. These are Dr. F. C. Crew, Ph.D. F.R.S., professor of animal genetics University of Edinburgh and Sir W. L. Williams, Professor Emeritus of Veterinary Surgery Cornell University. The Provincial Government at Manitoba and some of the important men of the City of Winnipeg are showing their appreciation of the importance of the gatherings by entertaining luncheons and dinners.

On Monday night, June 16, the Provincial Department of Agriculture will give a dinner in the H. B. Co. store when the Minister will preside and Premier Bracken will be the speaker. Canada's First Passenger Train

Seventy-six years ago on May 16th, at 8 o'clock in the morning, the first passenger railway train to run in Canada, pulled out of the old station nearly opposite the Queen's hotel on Front street, Toronto, and made its initial trip to Aurora, Ontario. Up to that time the only form of transportation was the old horse-drawn stage coach and the carrier's wagon. The train consisted of a 24-ton engine with 5-foot driving wheels and a 14x20 cylinder, a box car and a passenger car. Alderman John Harvie was the conductor, and passengers had to purchase their tickets from him on the train. The fare was 81 each way. The journey occupied two hours. The engine drawing the train was named "Lady Eagle" after the wife of the governor-general.

Foundation Of the Farming Industry

Cow Serves Mankind In More Ways Than Any Other Animal

The cow really forms the foundation of the farming industry. Not only does she supply the world with all the milk products, such as butter, cheese, milk, and cream, but almost her flesh can be eaten, and beef is the staple meat of most countries. Her hide is used for making leather, and her hair for mixing with plaster. She is made from her hoofs, and gelatine powder from her joints. When everything else is removed her bones are ground into fertilizer in so many ways.

THE STORY OF THE RECHABITES

Jer. 35.

Golden Text: "We will drink no wine."—Jeremiah 35.6.

Lesson Text: Jeremiah 35.1-19.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 107.1-9.

Explanations and Comments

Jeremiah's Test of the Rechabites verses 1-5.—"Among the people who crawled into Canada during the days of the dreaded Nebuchadnezzar, was a tribe that excited much curiosity because of its strange manners. The sheik's name was Jehaziniah, to whom Jehovah hears. They refused to shelter in the luxurious permanent buildings, but pitched their tinsky tents in an open space within the city walls. Their record was honorable, and reached far back into the early days of Hebrew history. From the wilderness march of the Exodus the Kenites the people of Jethro had relations with Israel during the intervening centuries, and it was to them that the Rechabites owed their origin (Judges 1.16; 4.11; Num. 10.29; Chron. 2.55.) About the time of Elijah, and perhaps through his influence, the leader of the branch of the tribe was Jonadad, the son of Rechab. He was evidently the outstanding corruption of the Northern Kingdom, which had fallen under the spell of Jezebel and Ahab. In his energy to save his people from such a fate, this man, afterwards John's confederate in the battle against idolatry, bound his people under a solemn pledge to drink no wine for ever; not to build houses, to seed, or plant vineyards, but to dwell in tents." D. Meyer.

These Rechabites and their stanch adherence to the principles laid down by their ancestor, afforded Jeremiah an excellent opportunity for an object lesson. Accordingly, he led them into one of the rooms ranged around the temple courts and bowls full of wine set before them, using the cups as usually poured into cups. "Drink ye wine," Jeremiah bade them, "it is a severe test of their principles, for it was the prophet himself who bade them drink

Surgeon Thinks It Will Prove Good Substitute For Natural Organ

In Experiments

A cat equipped with a rubber heart lived for several hours, Dr. O. S. Gibbs, of Dalhousie university, announced in a lecture at the Nova Scotia land of medicine.

The heart, electrically operated, maintained full action in the feline through the ordinary circulation which the natural heart had been removed.

Experiments to study the effects of the rubber heart on the organs of the cat without the natural heart, Dr. Gibbs said. He expects the rubber organ will prove a success when used in operation to replace the heart in the cat took about five minutes.

Romantic Story Of Progress

Empire Report Are Empire Builders, Making Prosperity For All

Carry the mind's eye back half a century and there commences a most romantic example of city building on this continent. It is the scene of the Red River Settlement, then an infant Trading Post in the Hudson's Bay Company's fur field and the capital of the Great West. And what a West! Half a century ago it was the plains in true also of the West as we know it today. Edmonton, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton were all many other progressive centres of life. There was the third of August, 1870, marked the closing scene of the Red River Rebellion. Louis Riel, shoulen and crazed with fear, had fled from Fort Garry. The commissioner, at the head of the 60th Rifles, entered that Garry. The arrival of the troops infused confidence into the people of Fort Garry. Trade revived, money became plentiful.

The first census of Manitoba was formed on June 12th, 1871. A census is a thing we should not attempt to a nation divided as follows: French half-breeds, 5,757; English half-breeds, 4,083; Whites, 1,565; Indians, 1,600; total, 12,000.

Winnipeg's population at this time was 241. Its commercial organization was by Red River Cart overland to St. Paul. No regular stage route was established. Mail came in by the Dakota. There was no bank, no post office, no lawyer, one doctor, one church, one public newspaper, one policeman and about 20 houses. Such was the primitively currency in existence was Hudson's Bay Company "Made Beaver."

In 1873, Winnipeg (capital of the province since 1870) had a population of 1,869, was incorporated as a city with a population of 1,800.

And Calgary, the cowboy capital, in 1, Chambers, in partnership with Jerry Potts, hardy plainsman, embarked with spirit and faith of the Selkirk settlers, founded Fort Calgary. Even Canada's first biscuit factory — Ogilvie's Royal Mills, Winnipeg — had its beginnings in 1873. Such was the promise, was at last on the road to progress.

It was in this same year (1876), that the first town directory was published, which contained 1,600 names. Winnipeg, William Nassau Kennedy, was in office. Two thousand and fifty buffalo robes were shipped out of Winnipeg by Red River cart.

The opening of the Pacific Canadian National Railways dealt the first shipment of Manitoba wheat direct to Europe (shipped to Hamburg). Rivers and Prairies (1892), the first electric street cars appeared in Winnipeg.

The site of the first Pacific Chamber factory was on the north side of Main Street South (a little north of the present Main and Pacific Ave.) Street at that time was a prairie trail, but one of the famous dotting the frontage and these at great intervals. Remembered that the Pacific Chambers' establishment was between Main Street and the Red River), there was an Indian camp, where every summer Salteaux or Swampy Cree Indians from St. Peters Indian Village camped on this spot, which was then part of the Pacific Company's reserve. Here they held their Sun Dance, their religious rites, and the sound of the drum could be heard all through the summer nights. Close by was an Indian graveyard, the graves covered with a small rail-like fence of bent willow bark.

The annual buffalo hunt was then at its zenith. Each spring in preparation for this great event the hunters gathered in a tent at Spencer's Creek, near the present Portage Avenue. It is stated that the buffalo hunt gave employment to about 1,000 men, using 1,200 Red River carts.

In the year 1880 - just a few years before the first carload of wheat was shipped over the C.P.R. from Western wheat fields—a new site for the Pacific Chambers' factory was selected on Rose Avenue and a frame building erected.

The next 10 years saw a marvelous change in the growth of the West. The C.P.R. was opened in 1886, and from then on the prairie became a fertile plain, growing magnificent crops of grain. The eyes of the world turned to the new Canaan. Winnipeg expanded and grew. Population came. In 1898 the east half of the present Pacific factory was built. In 1899 the company was incorporated. Soon after standing upon its "ten-legs" the company transferred the manufacture of Pacific Chocolates and Confectionery; starting with 20 different lines. And so to the great boom year of 1909 when overnight Winnipeg became a full-grown city and every other town in the West experienced "growing pains." This company, however, maintained a conservative attitude in the face of abnormal conditions and steadily expanded through the merit of its products, and the consistent maintenance of the standard of quality first set by the founders, the master bakers whose pride in the purity and excellence of their products outweighed every other consideration.

In 1909 a very extensive addition was made to the eastern half which today constitutes the factory's frontage.

From that time on Pacific Chambers Co., Ltd. has kept pace with the growth of Western Canada, and its progress has been rapid. In 1921 distributing warehouses were established at Port William, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton, and in 1926 the Vancouver warehouse was added, an expansion made necessary by the phenomenal growth of the Western provinces and an ever increasing demand for Pacific's products.

Pacific explained already: Quality and Purity have, through the years, been steadily maintained in the manufacture of all Pacific products; the best and purest ingredients, skilled manufacture, clean, safe handling—right standards which have so impressed themselves upon the home-makers of the West, that today the very name "Pacific" implies the utmost obtainable in quality and purity in biscuits and confections. They the company manufactures 70 lines of biscuits and 200 lines of confectionery (including chocolates) employs in its plant on an average 300 people; has an average yearly factory payroll of a quarter of a million dollars.

From bottom to top and in every phase of operations Pacific's is empire made, building the charm of empire trade, bringing into the homes of the people of the West, "Canada empire made products of the highest purity and excellence and doing its share in building prosperity in industry in its own sphere the surest important duty that can be performed by a company or individual—and that of its patronal is cheery interrelated to each other's homes and lives through the medium of service. Half of their customers they have proudly stated "and that like Pacific building empire trade in their own niche has not been unappreciated by their many friends.

Conditions Better In Great Britain

Great Improvement Shown In Many Industries

"Conditions in Great Britain are materially better than they have been for years," said a man who has been a great improvement in the basic industries," said P. A. Clews, assistant general manager of the Canadian National Railways, who has come to Canada from London on a short business visit. "There has been a marked revival in the coal trade," he said, "and the severe depression which swept over Europe last winter helped the British producers to regain some of their lost markets."

Last year, Mr. Clews said, the Canadian National Railways dealt with the largest freight traffic in Europe in their history. "The reason for this improvement in Canada is increasing prosperity" he added. "The people in Europe are becoming more and more interested in the possibilities of spending a holiday in the Rocky Mountains. Every year we have more passes as Jasper National Park, which appeals greatly to their imagination."

Wilkie performed the ceremony, the bride being attended by Miss Margaret Nicks, Jack Wright, pilot, acting as best man, and following the ceremony the happy couple went for a half hour honeymoon flight.

Right Class Of Immigrants Cannot Fail To Make Good In This Land of Opportunity

The shipments of immigrants who are now arriving at our Atlantic ports and making their way to various parts of the country will, we have no doubt, with few exceptions turn out to be self-reliant people prepared to make the struggle that average human beings have to make in order to get along. It is to be presumed that they have all heard about Canada as a land of opportunity, and they cannot misunderstand that is to mean opportunity for living in idleness. Such of them as intend to stay, and not merely to linger a while as birds of passage on their way to the United States, must intend to do their part in the production of wealth. From time to time there may be need to help individual families to get on a farm or to their maintenance. Neighborly kindness from people already settled and thriving here is to be asked for granted. It is worth far more than any excessive paternalism on the part of the state.

Some organization in this country and some persons who set themselves up as immigration experts see a great show of uneasiness about the increasing of the country's population by immigration. Some people fear that we shall have more town dwellers than we can find work for. Agitators in the agricultural regions profess to be alarmed over the increase of filers of the soil, who would add to the output of farm products and bring the price of they products down. These woeful ones worry more than the selling and enterprising workers who arrive as immigrants. If the newcomers are industrious, they add to the country's total output they also add to the country's total consumption. Efficient producers in the agricultural districts, if they increase the produce that is to be marketed they also increase the capacity of the home market. Worthy immigrants cannot be long in this country without very greatly increasing their buying power. They will live better than they lived overseas because they can afford to do so. A hundred thousand new consumers of the first stamp will be a great asset to Canada in a few years be worth far more to Canada as consumers of her products than they were as producers of foodstuffs products in the countries whence they came.

Canada has no fault to find with her own people. She cannot have too many of the same kind. We hope the native-born Canadian spirit is on increasing in number. Men and women of the stock that settled this country are the salt of the earth, its population and become the fathers and mothers of native-born Canadians. Then let us welcome with open arms all of the right kind who come from the British Isles and from the preferred countries of the continent of Europe. The coming of such people will assist in giving a further impetus to the progress of this country. — Toronto Mail and Empire

British Capital Wanted

Canada welcomes American capital, as many other capital observers the Ottawa Journal, and will always treat it fairly; but next to confirm of Canadian enterprises by Canadians the best thing that can happen is to keep control of what we have within the British family. That is one kind of "preference" more about which there should be unanimity.

The Call Of the Land

Cyrus G. Shaver Returning To Manitoba To Farm Again

"The call of home" is strong. In the case of Cyrus G. Shaver, the call of the soil was too strong for him to resist.

Mr. Shaver was born and raised on a farm in the Pembina Valley, in southern Manitoba, and in 1922 he left Canada and secured employment in Detroit.

In Detroit he did well and bought a home and settled down.

The call of the soil of the homeland was too strong and he recently appeared in the Land Settlement of the Canadian National Railways at Winnipeg.

Two days later he had secured a farm, and seven days after, near the town of Dugald, two stations east of Winnipeg.

He has made arrangements to bring his family back to Canada with him to take up life in the province he knows intimately. The farm is reported to have fine clean buildings and much of the land is now under cultivation.

Buying More Wheat Flour

Increase In Sales From Canada To Northern Europe

Canada is increasing sales of wheat flour in Northern Europe, despite tariff barriers in many cases. This statement is contained in a report to the department of trade and commerce by M. R. Palmer, acting trade commissioner to Hamburg.

Sales to Germany, Austria and the Baltic States, Scandinavia and other countries in the area amounted to 2,624,012 barrels of flour valued at $15,882,307 in 1926 as compared with 2,182,860 barrels valued at $13,972,-903 in 1927. Germany imported 14,-912,623 bushels of wheat from Canada in 1926; 2,108,390 bushels of rye; 4,788,925 bushels of barley, and 946,-796 bushels of oats. These total nearly $27,000,000 or 37½ per cent. of the total value of Canadian exports to that country.

Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark and Scandinavia are also heavy buyers of Canadian grains. Germany buys large quantities of packing house products from Canada, notably sausage casings to the amount of 1,376,-000 pounds valued at $726,000 in 1926. Other commodities of great importance in Canada's exports to Germany are cheese, dairy products, honey, canned goods, fresh and dried fruits, fish and fish meal, seeds, crude drugs, whiskey and furs.

Canadian Geese In B.C. Bird Sanctuary

Number Has Increased Rapidly In Last 30½ Years

Very rapid increase has taken place in the number of Canada geese in the Vaseaux Lake Bird Sanctuary, British Columbia, since this area was established for this purpose in 1923. In one part of the reserve, an island in the lake where only three nests with eggs in them were found, 1,000 were counted in 1928. Throughout the whole sanctuary the number of nests counted in the latter year was twenty-five, whereas in 1923 the number of incubating birds was very small in number. In the latter year also, 1,000 young broods were counted at one time.

The Tables Are Turned

There are no more people migrating from the United States to Canada than there are Canadians emigrating south of the line. Year ending March 31st, 1929, Canada received a total of 58,253, of which 37,189 were returning Canadians. The number of Canadians leaving for the United States has been declining in the last four years.

The ninth hole of the Jasper Park Lodge Golf Course, Jasper National Park, Alberta, which is the championship of the Royal Canadian Golf Association will be played this August 17-24. The course is considered one of the most picturesque and difficult in Canada. The championship No. 1 tee is situated on a high elevated and the green with its cover four acres in extent, is built up high. The tee is three feet in height and the green 70 feet above it. The green Wanning traps are situated on the right of the green to cut off the shots that go over the green. Any golfer who fails to play this hole properly. Like its famous namesake, Cleopatra is likely to wreck a lot of reputations at Jasper in August.

Coincident with the Canadian Amateur Championship of the Western Canada Amateur Golf Association will be played over the Jasper Park Lodge course and this will provide plenty of competition for those who are particularly keen golfers. Visitors to the Jasper Park Lodge golf course during the month of August will be treated to the sight of many of the leading golfers of the Dominion event

The Interesting Story Of A Remarkable Achievement In Canadian Railway Construction

Canada's High Grade Seeds

Excellent Quality Is Commanding Recognition On Foreign Markets

The production of high-grade seeds in Canada is steadily increasing in importance. Canadian-grown seeds command recognition on foreign markets by virtue of their inherent qualities of winter hardiness and vigor of growth, and because the standards of quality for graded seeds of all kinds are so highly regarded. Stocks of high-class seed of wheat, oats, barley, alsike clover, sweet clover, brome, Canadian blue, and brown-top are usually available for export. Average imports of timothy seed are about 3,000,000 pounds annually, but with further encouragement Canadian production will soon be equal to our requirements. Alfalfa also shows a decrease in production due to adverse climatic conditions. Red clover seed production in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia is increasing from year to year, due to encouragement given by the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, and the demand for hardy, home-grown seed. Alsike seed production in the older districts of Ontario is keeping up in quantity, but not in quality. The newer districts of Ontario and Quebec are producing small supplies of cleaner seed. Tests are being conducted in Northern Manitoba and Saskatchewan to determine if alsike seed can be produced profitably in large areas free of troublesome weeds. While white clover seed obtained from England has been distributed through the Canada for tests in connection with seed production and permanent pasture purposes. Results so far indicate that it is a valuable permanent pasture crop in the central provinces Brown-top or Rhode Island Bent is being produced in Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, and creeping red fescue and velvet bear grass in Alberta Field root and garden vegetable seed production is making progress in British Columbia.

Snow Survey in Foothills

Valuable Information Is Secured In Regard To Water Supply For Southern Alberta

For the last six years, the Dominion Water Power and Reclamation Service, Department of the Interior, in co-operation with the United States Geological Survey, has annually conducted a survey of the snow conditions on the headwaters of the St. Mary River in Montana. The discharge from St. Mary River is of vital interest to the large irrigation projects in Montana and southern Alberta and to operate the irrigation facilities of these projects all the higher degree of efficiency some advance information as to the available water supply is essential. While this survey may still be regarded as in the experimental stage its to the limited number of years of existence some remarkable results have already been obtained. It is now established that a direct relationship exists between the depth of snow in the mountains in May and the total run-off from the area during the following summer months.

Radio Commission Report

The report of the Dominion Radio Commission which is anxiously awaited, will be complete by the end of August It is expected by Sir John Aird, chairman of the commission, who has returned to Toronto from a tour of western Canada. Hudson Bay is now on the railway map of the Dominion. This is the interesting opening to an article in the May issue of "Natural Resources of Canada," the monthly review of current events published by the Dominion Department of the Interior. The arrival of steel at Churchill, the Bay terminal, on March 20, last, had of course been duly chronicled, but it required more than brief news mention to enable Canadians generally to realize just what the announcement signified and what rendered the event important and memorable. For "Natural Resources" declares that by linking that historic body of water with the outer world of steel, yet another epic has been added to the glorious saga of Canadian achievement. The speedy laying of the rails and ties and to this authority, constitutes in truth the accomplishment of what many people had long deemed impossible. Certainly, it proceeds, no other main line is exactly like the Hudson Bay Railway, stretching northeastward across Manitoba from The Pas to Churchill, and no other railway has been built under similar weather conditions.

Not only was the undertaking on one day the most northerly right against the elements and the physical obstructions of a treacherous country, but on the other, a grim race against time, calling for bold and urgent expeditions on the part of the builders, if the road was to be not been in place before the frost broke, the consequent delay would have been fatal to success. Steel, however reached the terminus on March 29, permitting more than 300 miles of track to be laid that year and made available for the development of the port This prevented what otherwise would have been a long and costly interruption due to the spring break-up. Apart, from the physical hardships entailed on the workers, the undertaking had more than its normal share of seemingly insuperable difficulties. Much of the land to be mashed, and right here the talent of the Canadian engineer came in for he utilized the frozen surface of the muskeg as a road forward without delay over time-consuming obstructions. When cold weather prevailed the working week was abandoned until the spring and the tracks were laid on ties on the frozen muskeg. The land of "Fish-Fish-Fish railway

With the advent of spring, the grading gangs took up their interrupted work of ballasting the temporary track, one gang working up from the north while the same time another party began working its way southward from Churchill. Simultaneously, the contractors for parties will meet, most likely early next August when the golden spike will be driven by the Honorable George P. Graham, who as Minister of Railways and Canals, turned at the first sod to mark the first and to the construction of the railway Thus the finishing touch will be put on an undertaking of engineering daring that has won the admiration of the world. Owing however, to the large amount of work to be done on the port facilities engineers expect that the first shipments of grain will not be made until the season of 1930. The work at Churchill will proceed on steadily planned lines so that there will be no demand for labor which has not been foreseen and provided for.

The slope of the ground, the bunkers and traps, as well as the length, make this one of the many difficult holes on the Jasper Park Lodge Course, Jasper National Park, Alberta, over which the Canadian and Western Canada Amateur Championships will be played, Aug 19-24, this summer.

Par for the entire course is 72, and the nearest to it any amateur has come to date is 74. Compared with some other holes this one is easy and that means a lot of reputations may be wrecked this summer, not a few of them right here.

LARGE NUMBERS OF REPATRIATES RETURN

Winnipeg, May 31.—During 1929 about two thousand French-Canadians will be repatriated from the New England States to take farming in Quebec, Ontario and the far west of Canada, according to estimates of the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways. In 1928, through movements in which the Canadian National was directly interested, 1540 Canadians, most of them natives of Quebec, returned to Canada to go on the land.

Three Factors In Durant Success

Company Policies, Dealer Organization and Quality Products Account for Present Strong Position.

The substantial growth that has characterized Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, has been brought about by a combination of three things; namely, sound business policies on the part of the management, close cooperation with a loyal dealer organization and the production of automobiles built on a quality basis.

The present-day popularity of Durant products is the result of this combination. The policies adopted by the management made it possible to declare a dividend in 1924. The profits of the company had steadily increased and the financial position was such that this success was commented upon by local financiers and financial publications throughout the country.

While the financial position was being improved, the dealer organization was added to. A Durant franchise had become attractive to dealers who could foresee the conditions prevailing today, and there was this added feature, that a spirit of loyalty was gradually gaining ground because of the treatment accorded them.

Quality Comes First

As a foundation for this feeling of security there was the unbreakable policy of "quality" first in the building of Durant products. The motto held up to all men in all the departments of the Durant plant was and still is, "build each car as you would wish to receive it for your own personal use." This has resulted in a spirit of loyalty throughout the plant that is just as strong and just as important as that which permeates the dealer organization.

It is therefore not surprising that the history of Durant Motors of Canada, Limited, is the history of a business consistent that it simply is unequalled by any organization in America. The fruits of this preconceived plan are to be seen today in the strong financial position of the company and in the ever-increasing number of Durant automobiles and flagfly trucks on the Canadian highways.

Appointment of these two men to the directorate preserved the leadership forwarded tradition of the company which almost makes it a necessity that the men who direct it must have come up through the ranks. Mr. Sheidrick qualified by reason of his 18 years' service with Hudson, manufacturers of Hudson and Essex cars, while C. C. Winningham's association with the company goes back 20 years. He is president of his own advertising agency, which has handled Hudson advertising since 1909. Prior to that he was Hudson's advertising manager and, later, director of sales.

In the passing of W. F. Daley of this district, whose death is recorded in this issue, the community suffers a decided loss. He was a type of man that won many friends, of fine outstanding personality and genial disposition which always made it a pleasure to meet and converse with him. Farming here since coming from the United States in 1910, he has shown himself to be a progressive agriculturist and met with commensurate success in his operations. It was natural he should associate himself in the promotion of agricultural interests and for a number of years past he has been a valued member of the board of directors of the Vermilion Agricultural Society, which will feel his loss keenly. It was the pleasure of the editor to meet Mr. Daley just previous to his settling here and the impression then formed has grown from year to year. We feel in common with the community, that our district has lost a good citizen, a kindly neighbor and a warm friend

MOLLYCODDLE IMMIGRANTS
(The Montreal Herald)

Many an old-timer in Montreal and elsewhere must be wondering what on earth is the matter with some of the British immigrants who come to Canada. The other day, for instance, several immigrants were sent to prison in Montreal for doing damage to property. They said they couldn't find work, and acted as they did in order to be sent back home. Then there was a report in the paper of another immigrant who had thrown up his job in disgust because he was only being paid $10 a month. He neglected to say that he also received board and lodging. Sharp on these reports came a statement from Mr F. R. C. Clarke, manager of the Protestant Employment Bureau, that there was an actual shortage of labor in Montreal and that if any of the immigrants aforesaid really wanted work they could have found it, even laborers being paid from 35 to 43 cents an hour.

Of course the majority of the men who come here find work and settle down. Nothing is said about them. But much is made of the noisy few who don't succeed. These men evidently expect Canada to thank them for honoring the country with their presence, and to reward them for their condescension by giving them soft snaps.

Coming to a new country they should expect to meet with a certain amount of hardship at first just as they would if they went to another part of their own country. If they are not plucky enough to make their own way in a land of such opportunity as Canada, then it is better that they should go back to where they can be coddled. Canada has no use for mollycoddles, but the has rich rewards for real men.

Home Life Of Western Canada

The progress of the Indians on reserves in the three Prairie Provinces towards a position of self-support and independence is one of the gratifying features of the work of the Department of Indian Affairs. In farming and cattle raising these wards of the Government have, during recent years, moved conspicuous success and the prosperous conditions prevailing on western reserves are reflected in the improved mode of living. New houses are springing up on all the reserves at the annual rate of from 350 to 400. These are of log and frame construction with at least six windows providing ample light and ventilation. Well kept gardens are laid out near many of these homes while milch cows, flocks of poultry, and pigs are not uncommon sights in the barnyards.

The improvement in home life on the reserves is due in a large measure to the training received by the young Indian women in the boarding schools maintained by the Department. In these they learn, among other things, the principles of domestic science and hygiene. At one time it was a difficult matter to make the Indians realize the value of milk as a food for themselves and their children and to get them to milk their cows. However, a gradual change has taken place in their attitude. An increasing number of cows are being milked and milk, cream and butter are in use in Indian homes. The development of gardening is another gratifying feature of the Indians progress and last year nearly 25k acres were sown to vegetables.

In the matter of hygiene, the Department of Indian Affairs makes every effort to encourage good practice. Where the wives and mothers are school graduates, the value of sanitary conditions is fully appreciated of their once extensive ranges. The use of the mail by Indian women, the work of the travelling nurses and field matrons is gradually bearing fruit. Four travelling nurses are constantly on the road visiting Indian homes on the various reserves in the West, instructing the women how to live and how to care for their children. This service is supplemented by the work of a staff of field matrons who make frequent visits to give any advice and assistance needed by the native women.

The care of the aged is also a particular responsibility of the Department, and officers on the reserves provide food, clothing, and homes for indigent members of the bands. During the last three years the policy of the Department has been to encourage as many old Indians as possible to live in teepees during the summer. The teepees are usually large and well ventilated and the old Indians are greatly benefited in health by this practice of living in these airy summer habitations.

Says Earth's Interior Sea Of Liquid Glass

Geological Pole Temperature Over 10,000 Degrees Centigrade

Now comes Professor Daly, of Harvard, geologist, and tells the world that the interior of the earth "is a sea of dense liquid glass," hotter a the internal regions under a pressure of 50,000,000 pounds to the square inch. To be exact he puts the temperature down there at more than 10,000 degrees centigrade. He says the earth's crust is "some thirty miles deep. Under this is granite on top of basalt and yet lower is some material not unlike the metallic iron found in meteorites. Then comes the liquid glass from center to surface in one-half its radius. If ever that turns loose under the pressure there'll be the greatest spurt from the world's surface on record.

Switzerland a Busy Country

Can Hold Its Own With More Populous Competitors

Switzerland, the great holiday resort of Europe, is a small land-locked country, without direct access to the sea, and cannot be compared with its larger neighbors in regard to the scale of its particular problems or its method of handling them. But it has shown remarkable genius in the way of centralizing and concentrating its industries, and in devising ways and means of overcoming its commercial handicaps. The Swiss can hold their own with their more favored competitors in most lines of big business they undertake to tackle, and the Canadian Trade Commissioner, in a report published in the Canadian Intelligence Journal, pointed out that Switzerland conducts business on a large scale in the manufacture of Swiss industry abroad and many branch factories are now operating in foreign countries. The domestic market is small and restricted, and hence the bulk of the manufactures must be exported.

The secret of industrial success in Switzerland lies in the fact that the tendency is towards a high degree of specialization, backed by well-paid and highly skilled and intelligent labor. The chief industries are textile, silk manufacturing, cotton and embroidery manufacturing, machinery and metal industry, chemical and dye industry, and the watch making industry, and the people are thrifty, industrious, painstaking and clever.

An All-Night Session

"Yesterday," said Jabson, "I refused a poor man a request for a small sum of money, and in consequence of my act I passed a sleepless night. The tones of her voice kept ringing in my ears the whole time."

"Your softness of heart does you credit," said Mabson. "Who was the woman?"

"My wife."

Specific Orders

Father had been in the habit of warning his little daughter regarding her conduct as he left home.

One morning he kissed the child and said:

"Now be a good little girl."

With an expectant smile, she added:

"And don't whet?"

Ground Must Be Clear

Thorough Cultivation Should Precede Sowing Boys Crops

The use of Government tested high-grade clean seed grain from a reliable source is always to be recommended, according to W. H. Wright, of the Dominion Seed Branch, but this alone, this official states, is not sufficient in order to keep the farm clean. Clean cultivation must precede sowing in order to kill those weeds, the seeds and roots of which have ventured over in the ground, and where clover, alfalfa or timothy is being sown with the grain, it is also essential to have this cleaned up too, Mr. Wright urges, if the best results are to be had. Government-graded seed, but where a farmer is using his own he is urged to get it tested, before sowing, in the nearest Government laboratory. These are located at Calgary, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa and Quebec City, and up to three samples will be tested for any farmer free of charge, with a nominal charge on additional samples. Clean high-grade grain will give a yield of five bushels to fifteen per cent. more than ordinary uncleaned seed, but it will not keep the farm clean unless the other two conditions mentioned are carried out.

Achieve True Success

Those Who Learn World Better Than They Found It

He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much, who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children, who has fitted his niche and accomplished his task; who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had, whose life was an inspiration; whose memory is a benediction.

Canada's Arctic Expedition

The annual expedition by ship to Canada's Arctic islands will leave North Sydney, Nova Scotia, about July 20th next, on the R.M.S. Bastille. The first port of call will be Godhaven, Greenland, after which the expedition will call at the Danish Government headquarters in the archipelago.

Victory Over Diphtheria

Dread Disease Could Be Absolutely Stamped Out In Two Years

The lives of 1,300 Canadian — mostly children—are wantonly sacrificed yearly to the dread disease diphtheria, declared Dr. Charles J. Hastings, Medical Health Officer for Toronto, in a health bulletin issued recently.

"A case of diphtheria occurring in any community or municipality is a reflection on the department of health, the medical profession, and the citizens," declares Dr. Hastings. "Every death from diphtheria should be looked upon as due to culpable negligence.

By close co-operation of citizens with their family physicians and the various departments of public health diphtheria could be absolutely stamped out of Canada within the next two years.

Immunization is the method recommended by Dr. Hastings to effect the disease from this country. The discovery of the Schick Test, by which it may be finally determined who is and who is not susceptible to diphtheria attacks, was the final victory over the disease.

Before the development of the Schick Test the discovery of the immunizing solution, "toxoid," put into the hands of the medical profession a weapon of certain deadliness against diphtheria. "Toxoid" is administered in three hypodermic injections of 8 drops each, at intervals of a month. This agent thus administered renders the subject immune to the disease for from 12 to 15 years and probably for life.

By the Schick Test it has been determined that 15 per cent of all infants under 3 months are susceptible to diphtheria, 30 per cent between 3 and 6 months, 60 per cent from 6 months to a year, 50 per cent from one year to two years, 30 per cent from two to five years, and from that age onwards the percentage decreases until at the age of 20 only 15 per cent are susceptible.

Of thousands of toxoid administrations to Toronto school children there has been not a single failure.

According to statistics compiled by the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, 1,200 people died in Canada last year from diphtheria while 13,500 people were infected. Under modern conditions and in the light of the latest scientific discoveries both death and sickness from diphtheria can in future be avoided.

"It is apparent," Dr. Hastings says, "diphtheria is still one of the most deadly enemies of children, especially those under the age of 5. From 50 to 75 per cent. of all diphtheria deaths occur in children less than 5 years old. This is the preschool age, before they come under the observation of the authorities or health in an organized way, and it is at this age that parents are most frequently deceived by the insidious onset of the disease; they frequently think the child has only an ordinary cold in the head until it has progressed too far to be cured."

Three Historical Valleys

Are Situated In Southern Part Of Saskatchewan

In the southern portion of Saskatchewan there are three outstanding valleys, the Saskatchewan Valley, the Qu'Appelle Valley, and the Moose Jaw Valley. All have historic and romantic associations, the Saskatchewan Valley is associated with La Verendrye, the Qu'Appelle Valley with the Cree and the Saulteux Indian, and further with the black robed form of Pere Hugouard. The Moose Jaw Valley is conspicuously historic because of its associations with the buffalo and the Sioux Indians.

In the early 70's because of its nearness to the American border, and because of its luxuriant growths of vegetation and many watering places, the buffalo in the Dakota and Montana were driven by famine to make the valley an animal rendezvous. The Indian hunted the buffalo in the Moose Jaw Valley through the years, the nearest white settler being Le Care, then with his trading post near Wood Mountain. For many years the Indians used the valley as a hunting ground, later drifting to Le Care's country, as the settlers came to the prairie

Welsh Miners Coming To Canada

More than 1,000 Welsh miners will soon sail from England for Canada, under the direction of the provincial department of colonization, Hon. John R. Martin, minister of colonization, announces. "The men will be placed on farms as soon as they arrive here," he said. "We have plenty of room for them."

There is no place like the home of a young man's best girl.

Thomas Lipton Patronizes Stampede

For a week in July of each year the entire populace of Calgary, casts off its conventional modern clothing and dons chaps and 10-gallon hats in honor of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede, a relic of the Last Great West and one of the finest exhibitions of horsemanship in the world. This year's Calgary Stampede will be held July 9-12, inclusive, and Guy Weadick, its manager, will known impresario of the Canadian West, has announced that it will be bigger and better than ever. The attendance at the Stampede has increased by leaps and bounds ever since its inception in 1912, when it was witnessed by a few inquisitive thousands, for by 1922 it had reached the 103,000 mark; it had doubled by 1924, 1925, and 1926 saw 230,000 people cheering and revelling in this exhibition of the old-time pioneering days.

Several world-celebrated personages will donate prizes for the annual cowboy contests in 1926, among them being the Prince of Wales, W. Bently, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and Sir Thomas Lipton, British yachtsman and sporting enthusiast.

The various events scheduled include bronco-busting, steer decorating (once known as bull-dogging), calf-roping, wild steer riding, wild horse and chuck-wagon races, wild cow milking contests and races in which both Indians and squaws demonstrate that the Red Man has lost neither speed nor stamina with the depletion of the numerical strength of the tribes. The Indian camp at Victoria Park, Calgary, and are a picturesque phase of a really remarkable exhibition. During the 1927 show a human square, dutifully engaged in bronc-work in her brave's tepee, was informed that the square race in which she was to participate was the next on the program. Rushing from her tepee, in apron tied round her waist, she jumped astride an Indian cayuse and won first prize in her apron whipping behind her in the broncs.

Fitting Boys For Life Overseas

British Migration Committee Launched On Good Work

H.R.H. Prince Arthur of Connaught, visited Bristol, England, on May 5th, to open a commodious hostel in which forty boys are to be in residence for training for farm work in Australia and Canada. A nine to twelve weeks' training course is prefunded, no less than 120 to 180 boys and girls will be sent out each year.

This scheme has been launched by the British Migration Committee, which has the Lord Mayor at its head, and which, with the co-operation of the City Council, will be able to train the boys on the Corporation Farm of 300 acres. It has a herd of cattle ranging from 60 to 100, sheep, horses, a big herd of pigs and about 800 poultry. The boys will be taught to adapt themselves generally to farm life.

His Royal Highness in opening the Hostel said:—

"The Australian are an example of what can be done by whole-hearted co-operation between all sections of the community. I am glad to hear that the hostel has been generously supported by the City Corporation and the Government. From my personal knowledge of the Dominions, I am certain that they offer great opportunities to these boys. At the same time, it is vital that boys going to the Dominions should be trained and prepared for the new life they are to live out there. The testing and the training which will be given at this hostel will undoubtedly stand them in good stead.

"Just over 600 years ago, the pilgrims of Bristol equipped Sebastian Cabot to sail from this port on a voyage which is famous even in your famous annals. They did better than they knew, for, though the voyage showed no commercial profit, it was the first practical step towards founding our Empire overseas. (Applause.) I believe Cabot took with him five cabin boys from this district, no doubt boys of similar ages to those I see round me now; and it is, I think, specially appropriate that the descendants of citizens of Bristol should follow up and consolidate that work, by helping their young manhood to maintain the British stock, and the British traditions in our great Dominions overseas. (Applause.) I know that these boys will be heartily welcomed there by their kith and kin. They are going to help in the re-creation of wealth from the fertile land of these new countries, and it is well that their fellow citizens should see to it that they are properly equipped, as Cabot and his companions were, for the work that lies before them. I wish the boys every success. I would urge them to work hard, and play the game, never forgetting their parents, their city or their motherland." (Applause)

Canada's Air Mail Grows

A recent statement shows that up to April 30, 1926, a total of 416,985 pounds of mail, some 4,320 pounds have been carried. Even the north has had its share for in the Mackenzie River district, up until March 15 of this year, 6,914 pounds were carried.

The Desert Song

VIRGINIA MORRIS

Copyright 1926 Western Newspaper Union, Pictorial Review, Inc.

"The Desert Song" is a romance of love, dissatisfaction of class unrest. It is based upon the Riff Rebellion in Morocco, 1925-26. Synopsis and Pencil Sketches.

Old Hasst nodded. He remembered the night well, remembered the smashed figure who had stepped into their camp and shouted defiantly, "Give me twenty of your young men who are not afraid to die! And if the law is wrong, we'll overturn the law!"

"I was only a boy indeed, continued the Hasst Bradner. "but I dreamed of saving the people of Morocco from injustice. When I returned to the, they forced me to resign from the army. I acted as if that blow had made me stupid almost half-witted. I spent all my time picking wild flowers and so they searched high and low for the Red Shadow, suspecting that he was the stupid, timid boy living right in their midst."

Then came what had arisen. General Fontaine died and the Red Shadow's own father, General Birabeau, was appointed governor to command the post at Fez. He had come with one purpose uppermost in his mind—to wipe out the Red Shadow. How war has won, Pierre, to meet this situation? Could he betray the people he had learned to love? He could not. And yet it was no less difficult to keep his parent from suspecting that his boy was an enemy of the French.

"He I continued to play the fool," he went on, "and I succeeded in deceiving my father. Now because he thinks I am a weakling he hates me. That is bad enough, but to see Margot despise me too! Why, I came to Morocco to show Margot I was a man!"

Back among the tents there came a scurry of excitement. A volley of guttural oaths filled the night as a dozen of the Red Shadow's men dragged in a prisoner caught by the sentry. He was thrown unceremoniously in front of the fire. Her feet of insignificance dressed in bulging riding breeches fashioned out of enormous check. It was hard to say which was the most ludicrous, his outlandish clothes, his mustache on his tiny face, pale with consternation.

Hasst drew his sword. "Let's kill him! He's a spy! I'm after blood."

The stranger's squeaky voice protested. "Well, don't look at me. I'm an ananiste."

The menacing face of Hasst retorted him.

"You can't kill me, I'm an American! I'm no spy, I'm only the society correspondent for the Paris Herald. I didn't even mean to come here. Early this morning I went out horseback riding with my friend, Pierre Birabeau. Later he gave me the slip and I thought he had headed this way."

At this point the Red Shadow came forward. He spoke in the Riff's native tongue. What he said meant that the prisoner should be released.

CHAPTER III

Like most girls who have read story books and believed in them Margot Bouvalet was beginning to find life a bit disillusioning when she came to actually living it. She had arrived in Fez expecting to find there all the high romance of the sentimental novel. Her Paul would be a dashing hero in his uniform of the Foreign Legion. He would sweep her into his arms and carry her away on his charger, far out into the desert,—and there would be a wild courtship under the Moroccan moon. But instead, she had made the disappointing discovery that Paul was first of all the soldier and only the lover when there was nothing else to interest him. His devotion to military duty made him more of a machine than a dauntless knight.

He left her alone a good deal of the time and she found it necessary to rely on inconsequential flirtations with the officers or tedious conversations with General Birabeau's son, Pierre, who worshipped her at a respectful distance but who scarcely qualified as a suitor since Margot regarded him as a mollycoddle. There were other women at the garrison, except Susan, the secretary and sweetheart of Bonnie Kid, the Paris Herald correspondent, suspecting that she

BIG Car Beauty Style Performance and something more—

It takes more than mere size to make a BIG Six. It takes more than beauty, more than style, more than performance. True, a car needs all of these before it can become a BIG Six. True, Pontiac Big Six has all these.

But it has something more . . something that stamps it once and forever as a real BIG Six. It has the "feel" of a BIG Six. People unanimously in smooth driving will know immediately what that means.

And it's not a coincidence you can count on. You have but to ask behind the wheel, drive the car and get the "feel" of it . . you'll know in an instant whether or not you are driving a Big Six. P-25-5-29G

DRAMA OF SEA SALVAGE

When the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France and the Pacific Salvage Company's big steam tug Salvage King rubbed sides near the entrance to Victoria Harbor recently greetings were exchanged between two principal actors in an outstanding drama of the sea's mastership. They were Captain Bowker, former master of the freighter Haviloh, and Captain J. M. Bevison, master of the Salvage King, the former being a passenger on the giant passenger liner.

The tug after sixty days out of her home port was returning after performing the heroic feat of towing the disabled freighter Haviloh from Dutch Harbor, Alaska, to Osaka Japan, through days of constant gales, terrific seas and under almost every kind of marine handicap, a distance of 3,100 miles.

The Haviloh broke her moorings, however, and was towed through gales and mountainous seas for nine more days to Osaka, Japan, covering 3,100 miles in 25 days. Meanwhile the Empress of France, on which the captain and officers of the freighter were passengers, she was completing a voyage of 10,500 miles after having performed a task that no other salvage vessel on the Pacific had been able to undertake.

GIRLS HAVE ROCKY RANCH CAMP

The Lake Windermere Bungalow Camp which was the first of its kind established in the Canadian Rockies will this year be transformed into a Ranch-Camp for girls under the direction of Miss Mary E. Cutler, of Minneapolis, and Dr. Harriett E. Cooke, of Chicago, who have had considerable experience in the management of such Camps and have selected this as an ideal spot for girls desiring an active outdoor life, combined with instruction in art. The staff includes instructors in riding, swimming and camp-craft, in addition to teachers of handicrafts and painting, and the course will include participation in the annual four-day cross country ride of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies. Both Miss Cutler and Dr. Cooke have spent several summers in this region and are enthusiastic about the healthgiving value of ranch-camp life in these Alpine regions of Canada for the younger generation. They look part in last year's Trail Ride to the Lake of the Hanging Glaciers which is in the Lake Windermere district, and have engaged Walter Nimmo, the well-known hunter and guide to supervise the trail riding expedition which will form part of the course in camp-craft for the girls. The Hon. Randolph Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, has his summer home in the neighborhood and is taking a keen interest in the movement.

The First Trans-Atlantic Flight

The first trans-Atlantic flight was successfully accomplished by two British aviators, Captain John Alcock, D.S.C., pilot, and Lieutenant Arthur Whitten Brown, navigator, the machine used was a Vickers Vimy Rolls Royce twin engine.

It was a marvellous flight and greater glory attaches to it because it was made under bad weather conditions, indeed for so observed vision at times that the machine was discovered to be flying upside down and once only fifty feet from the water.

The journey of the Atlantic flight was originated by the late Viscount Northcliffe in the London Daily Mail in April, 1912, and suspended during the war.

Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown left St. John's, Newfoundland at 1.13 P.M. Saturday, June 15, 1919, and landed near Clifden in the way, Ireland at 9.40 the next morning—a flight of 1890 miles, taking sixteen hours, fifty-seven minutes—truly marvellous flight, which won for the victors a prize of [illegible] pounds.

Both Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown were knighted by His Majesty the King in 1919. Sir John Alcock crashed during a flight about a year later and was killed.

A spool of thread was unknown 125 years ago.

The Charter of Anglo-Saxon Liberties

When King John of England placed his seal upon that historic document Magna Charta on June 15, 1215, the date went into history as that of the greatest single event in the political development of modern freedom.

Nearly 700 years after the signing of the Great Charter of Liberty a movement which had its origin in the United States gave birth to the International Magna Charta Day Association, with headquarters at Old Pan, Mass. The main objective of the organization is to have June 15 of each year recognized as Magna Charta Day or Inter-Dependence Day—to use the phrase preferred by the society.

Great national holidays, each year which is the common heritage of these English-speaking nations is urged by the Association as an expression of the recognition of the common tie that binds these nations and the common debt they owe to the one document responsible for the Great Charter which is the foundation of modern ideals of liberty. The Association urges observance of the day, also as a means of cementing the friendship and permanent understanding between these nations which, speaking the same language and having the same ideals, are acknowledged to be the greatest force extant to permanent world peace. Magna Charta provides numerous features worthy of such an observance to commemorate its signing was an epoch-making incident in human history, summed up the highest conception of popular freedom the Anglo-Saxon race had attained at the time. The yearly observance of Magna Charta Day not only helps to keep vibrant this Anglo-Saxon International Good Will but it serves to set out in sharp relief a wholesome example of true patriotism.

The alternative title Inter-Dependence Day itself is an acknowledgment that international peace must be built on the fundamental basis as those of the British Nations including Canada and it is interesting to note that since the Association was organized the Day is observed annually in the United States, Canada, Australia, the British Isles, Australasia, New Zealand and South Africa. That in the nations which time threw the laws back to the historic document forced upon King John by the Barons of England and in remembrance of the freedom it has conferred upon all days J. W. Hamilton Founder-Secretary of the Association "More and more it has become the Inter-Dependence Day of the English-speaking republics as men have come to understand the inter-racial kindness its recognition indicates.

The thought to American born a gesture of deference to the acknowledged fount of freedom and a tender of goodwill to other English-speaking lands of the earth.

The Day is now observed as a legal holiday but as one of remembrance. Teachers in the public schools wherever the Day is observed emphasize the significance of Magna Charta to their pupils, and explain its significance in the lives of all residents of English-speaking countries. In many places, too, it is supplemented by setting aside the nearest Sunday to June 15, as "Magna Charta Sunday" on which by pulpit reference or Sunday School lesson the goodwill which is the central feature of the observance of the Day is given prominence. It might as well be the basis of a valuable lesson in British History for the cosmopolitan people of Canada—and for that reason it is interesting to note that Canada as a nation has endorsed the idea of Magna Charta Day.

Briefly stated, Magna Charta was established trial by jury, reclaimed the Crown from using harsh and arbitrary methods of raising money, virtually placed control of taxation in the hands of the people gave protection to minors and widows, established uniform weights and measures limited fines and protected merchants, established the law of evidence, and, generally, assured the rights and freedom of the subject. These are the most important features of that charter which recognize as conspicuous a place in history and which established the supremacy of the law of England as the governing power over the people.

The 39th article of the charter which is the basis of jury trial, declares "no man shall be taken, or imprisoned, or outlawed, or banished except by the lawful judgment of his peers." Another short article is significant of the desire for justice for all. In it, the King declared "To no one will we sell to no one will we refuse or delay, right or justice"

FLU Germs Breed In the Throat.

Flu Appear As A Common Cold, But Gain Tremendous Headway In Six Hours

SOME SIMPLE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST INFLUENZA

Simple precautions taken now will enable you to fight dreaded "Flu" which is sweeping rapidly through the whole country. The germs of influenza gain access to the body through the mouth and throat. Keep the throat healthy and you go a long way towards stopping the trouble An effective means of prevention is to gargle the throat three or four times daily with Nerviline. Half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in water makes a most efficient gargle The germ-killing properties of Nerviline quickly destroy any bacteria in the mouth or throat. If the throat is sore, if the throat is hoarse, if you have a cough—be sure to rub the neck and chest with Nerviline Every drop of it will rub in, and out will come the congestion.

Of course it is absolutely necessary to house-clean the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills which stimulate the eliminating organs, and rid the system of disease-breeding germs. This combination treatment of Nerviline and Dr Hamilton's Pills will give prompt and entirely satisfactory results.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Disease Of the Nerves Which Must Be Treated Through the Blood

St Vitus dance is a disease of the nerves brought on by a watery condition of the blood. It is a common disease with children, but sometimes attacks adults The treatment is through the blood, because rich, red blood is the food of the nerves In this way Dr. William's Pink Pills have proved beneficial in even the most severe cases of St. Vitus dance because they enrich the blood supply, thus reaching the root of the trouble in the nerves. In proof of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind we have the statement of Mrs William Bond, Hamilton, Ont who says:—"My eldest girl at the age of nine years suffered from an attack of creeping chorea. She left her very weak, and finally developed St. Vitus dance. She was under a doctor's care but with no benefit to result. We also tried other treatment, but they did not relieve her. To make matters worse, she was taken down with la grippe. Again the doctor was called in, as she was unable to walk and her limbs so terribly that we had to take her out in a little hand wagon I thought a change of air might prove help her, so we sent her by boat to Port McNicol, a distance of about 300 miles. She seemed to improve while there, but as soon as she came home her strength was gone again I took her to another doctor, but with no better results. I was then advised to use how helpless she was becoming, so decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I got six boxes, and they did what neither doctors nor other remedies had even started to do. In all cases of nervous trouble the St. Vitus dance disappeared, she got a fine appetite, took part in run and play with the other girls, a thing she had not done for seven (7) or eight (8) years. She walks to and from school a distance of about a mile, which is a conclusive proof of her present good health I have much pleasure in recommending Pink Pills for, and always recommend them to all cases of nervous trouble."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Good Friend To Trappers

Radio Makes Life In Northern Wilds Less Lonely

The trapper's life in the wilds of northern and central British Columbia is not the lonely existence it used to be, for the radio is keeping the isolated cabin homes of these forest nomads closely in touch with the world's activities.

The radio has been a wonderful boon to the Canadian trapper and only the loneliest of them have not equipped themselves with sets. Indeed, owing to the distance to be covered and the various technical difficulties to be overcome to obtain satisfactory reception, most of them have bought powerful sets. No longer does the trapper find that nights are made for sleep alone. After following the trapline all day the modern trapper spends the evenings in his cabin smoking his pipe and listening to the news of the day and the orchestra broadcasts from hundreds of miles away.

COLORFUL SCENES AT ELECTIONS IN GREAT BRITAIN

London, England. — Hundreds of thousands of Londoners kept watch the small hours of the morning on the fatal figures shifting on hundreds of lofty screens and electric signs.

In Piccadilly Circus, Trafalgar Square and other famous centres of London, the jostling crowds took on a carnival aspect. Vendors of various-colored toy balloons cheered men in evening clothes, while male revelers waltzed along the pavements masquerading in women's coats and hats.

Trops of the buses were crowned with people out to see the spectacle and apparently careless of the fact that they were not getting anywhere. In the meantime, the traffic in the Lower Regent Street by midnight was jammed with buses fifty deep. It was estimated at least 30,000 persons had packed into Trafalgar Square, where a huge stereoscopic electric bulletin was mounted.

Party partisans even decorated the huge lions at the foot of Nelson's monument, and the lions, too, but the police cleared them away.

In night clubs, restaurants and hotels throughout the fashionable West End, thousands of London society folk danced the hours away in to the early morning, while the election returns by radio broke in to music.

Premier Baldwin spent the evening more quietly at Number 10 Downing Street, his official residence, with with Mrs. Baldwin and a party of friends. He listened to the returns over the radio

His Majesty Suffers Relapse

Public Is Worried Over News Regarding Condition Of King George

London, England. Somewhat as surging news as to the condition of King George who was learned to be again confined to bed and suffering from an attack of fever, was obtained from Windsor Castle.

The shock caused by the news that His Majesty had suffered a relapse, was two-fold. This came first from its unexpectedness, since most of his subjects thought their ruler normally convalescent, and, second, from the gravity of the King's malady. Empyema is considered a dangerous disease, particularly apt to strike a man of advanced years.

Very few persons knew that His Majesty had suffered a relapse. The fact was not given to the public by the Canadian patrol boat Hirides after seizure off Tow Hill Graham Island, for violation of Canadian fishing regulations

Captain A. A. Pillion of the salmon trawler Lisa he was taken to Tow Hill to make repairs as allowed under international agreement.

The seizure of the "Mary C. Fisher" follows a number of other seizures of U.S. salmon trollers recently It is claimed that the boats are using Canadian waters for fishing within the guise of entering the waters for shelter, effecting repairs, or other valid reasons

Sewer Gas Explosion Causes Much Damage

One Person Believed Fatally Injured When Blast Rocks Ottawa

Ottawa.—Explosions of sewer gas in four parts of the city caused probably fatal injuries to one and have a number of others, at the same time destroying considerable property where the blasts were most severe.

There was panic in several sections when the booming of the explosions, accompanied by leaping pillars of flame and water, shook dwellings and rattled the windows of houses and office buildings. Women and children ran screaming from their homes.

In the streets, man-hole covers were thrown into the air a height of 50 or 60 feet. Confusion reigned. Fire alarms brought apparatus to scout fires, and patrol where there was likelihood of further explosions.

St. Martin's Reformed (Episcopal) Church, built in 1876, and a landmark in the hearts of Hill district, was churned into wreckage as though it had been blasted by high explosives. Windows in the church vicinity were also destroyed, but persons in these latter buildings were not badly hurt.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED ON REPARATIONS

Paris.—The German experts and their creditors came to an agreement on revised reparation schedules as proposed by Chairman Owen D. Young.

These annuities average 2,050,000,000 gold marks (about $492,000,000) for thirty-seven years; 1,700,000,000 marks ($408,000,000) for twenty-one years, and 900,000,000 marks ($216,000,000)for the final year.

Under the agreement as concluded the German treaty will run from September next, instead of from April 1 last, as originally calculated. The Danzig scale of payments will meanwhile continue in force.

The situation was explained by Louis L. Loucheur, United States representative, as follows:

"Both creditor and German experts have formulated declared themselves willing to accept the annuity figure of 2,500,000,000 marks as suggested by the chairman, although a difference existed on the question of interpretation.

"This difference has now been reparred and a common basis for interpretation acceptable to both the creditors and to Germany has been found, subject, however, to agreement on the outstanding conditions which still remain for discussion and settlement."

It was further explained this agreement was no one's victory, for both Germany and creditors gave way to make it possible.

The general opinion of the experts was that a most important step had been taken toward final elimination of the threat War There was no agreement with the experts on the following points among German commissioners and other German representatives any one of which if not satisfactorily disposed of might make final agreement impossible.

A. L. Wener Dies At Vegreville

Death of Former Vermilion Citizen Unexpected

VEGREVILLE, June 10.—Vegreville is mourning the loss of one of its most respected citizens in the person of A. L. Wener, baker and confectionery owner. Though Mr. Wener had only spent a comparatively short time in Vegreville, in that time he had won the esteem of everyone with whom he had come into contact. Mr. Wener made two of the town's "white elephants" into two of the town's finest buildings, his residence and the Wener block on the corner of Main street and second avenue.

His death was totally unexpected so on the Tuesday previous to his death he had made a trip by motor to Edmonton and had returned on Wednesday. He complained of feeling unwell on Thursday and stayed in bed Friday morning. About noon on Friday he was feeling better and sent his daughter Senia out for a newspaper; when she returned about twenty minutes later it was found that he had passed away. The cause of death was given as heart disease.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, interment taking place in the Hebrew cemetery, Edmonton.

General regret was expressed here on receipt of word of the sudden death of A. L. Wener, for many years one of the leading business men of Vermilion, and general sympathy is extended to the family in their sore bereavement.

Abraham Lazarus Wener was born 56 years ago in Russia. He came to Canada 30 years ago, residing first in Montreal but moved to western Canada eighteen years ago, taking up his residence in Vermilion. Twenty-nine years ago he married Sarah Deborah Cahn in Montreal. Besides a host of friends, Mr. Wener leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Joseph of Vermilion and Emil of Vegreville, and six daughters Rose, Mrs. C Podor city; Edmonton, Laura, Mrs. E. Lopes of Herbert, Sask.; Zyllie, Senia, Milly and Miriam at Vegreville.

Mr and Mrs M Wener Mr and Mrs J Wener and Mr and Mrs Jos Wener were in attendance at the funeral in Edmonton on Sunday

The big six horse community club float from Claysmore was the high light of the June 3rd exhibition parade and carried off the major prize. Jim Winters headed the reins with W. A Strange People

Russian Scientists Fully Believe Interesting Discovery In Siberia

Discovery of a strange race of people who make a habit of smoking from the cradle to the grave, and who live on a steady diet of animal fat during the winter to keep themselves warm is reported by a Russian exploration party.

Known as the Udeka tribe, these people inhabit the vast virgin wood lands of coastal Siberia. They live in crude dwellings built of branches of trees and bark, and they use bows and skins as covering.

According to the Russian explorers the total number of the tribe is no more than 1,500 As they have no means of recording events, the history of their origin cannot be learned, but it is presumed that they were driven out of Manchuria and Mongolia several hundred years ago.

Although secluded, they are not shut off entirely from the rest of the world. Russians, Buriats and Korean farmers live in the lower valleys of the rivers in which they fish, and contact with these neighbors is believed to be the source of firearms among the Mongol tribe.

Bank For Land Still Growing

Settlement In Northern Alberta Under This Year Most Extensive And Unprecedented

The land rush to Northern Alberta continues apace. It is reported by the Edmonton offices of the Canadian National Railways Colonization Department that approximately 1,-000 new settlers with capital aggregating more than one million dollars, had gone into the Peace River country and Northern Alberta since the first of the year and up to the first week of April. It is estimated that during April alone nearly 1,000 settlers will settle in these districts. During the period of April 1st to 15th, a total of 312 settlers with capital totalling $170,000 went to the Peace River District. Among these was one man with $20,000 capital, another with $14,000 and another with $12,000.

During the first quarter of the year 400,000 acres of government land were taken up by homesteaders in the four western provinces, an increase of nearly 100,000 acres over the same period of last year. In the period mentioned, 1,500 homesteads were taken in Manitoba, 894 in Saskatchewan, 1277 in Alberta, and 96 in British Columbia. Homesteading in Northern Alberta has been unprecedented during this period.

During the month so far this year has seen homestead entries at the Edmonton office double over the corresponding months last year. Signaller Deserted Post

Member Of Scots Guards Has Been Discharged From Army

George Beveridge, 24, of the Scots Guards signaller who shattered all British military traditions by deserting his post in front of Buckingham Palace not long ago, will not be a heroic figure for tourist and nursemaid any more.

He was found guilty by a court-martial and was sentenced to 112 days' hard labour in a civil prison and to be discharged from the army with ignominy.

Beveridge had pleaded that he was sleeping.

JUDAH TAKEN CAPTIVE

Golden Text: "Righteousness exalteth a nation: But sin is a reproach to any people." — Proverbs 14.34.

Lesson: 2 Kings 25.1-21.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 107. 10-16.

Explanations and Comments

The Seige Of Jerusalem, verses 1-3.—In the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, 588 B.C., in the tenth month according to the Babylonian calendar, which numbered its months from the spring season, the tenth month corresponding to our January, and on the tenth day of the month, Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, came with his army and besieged Jerusalem. "The nation never forgot the month, and the day on which the armies of Chaldea finally invested the city. It was felt as the day of the deepest gloom by the Israelite exiles, Ezek. 24. It has been commemorated as a 'fast,' the Fast of Tebeth, ever since in the Jewish Church."—Dean Stanley.

Nebuchadnezzar's army encamped around the city and built forts against it. The forts were probably movable towers from which missiles could be discharged over the city walls. Jeremiah held out for eighteen months. From Jeremiah 34: 7, we learn that a part of Nebuchadnezzar's troops were engaged in attacking Lachish and Azekah during this time, and from Jeremiah 37.5, 11, that the reported approach of an army from Egypt caused a temporary raising of the seige. The seige was pressed, and at last famine became so acute in the city that there was not bread for the people, Read the account in Jeremiah 21.7-9; Lamentations 4.8-10; 5.10.

The Fate Of Jerusalem, verses 8-10, 13-17.—On the seventh day of the fifth month, Nebuzaradan, the captain of Nebuchadnezzar's guard (literally "chief of the executioners," the king's bodyguard to whom such duties belonged), came to complete the destruction of Jerusalem. The work of destruction was thoroughly done. The gold and silver vessels and the pillars and vessels of brass of the temple were saved to be carried to Babylon, and then the sacred temple, on which such a passion of love had been lavished, was razed to the ground. The king's palace and every great house in the city were burned, and the city walls were broken down.

I recommend the Vegetable Compound and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. Delores Wellace, Union Street, North Devon, New Brunswick.

Canadian Cheesers

Make Splendid Showing In Competition Held In New York

Americans are accustomed to Canada winning high honours at international stock and grain shows, but a surprise was sprung when two Canadian made cheese went to New York and captured second and third places in competition with the best made cheese on which such a passion of love had been lavished, was razed to the ground. The king's palace and every great house in the city were burned, and the city walls were broken down.

Finally he becomes convinced that his wife means to poison him. The bride who has married the professor at the insistance of her mother, learns that she really loves Billy, and when they mother learns that Billy is wealthy and that he is in love with her daughter, she consents to divorce the Professor from Zoie. She is successful in this and in the first instance marriage is proved a failure.

GOOD OPENINGS HERE FOR DANISH FARMERS

Great Opportunity for Workers Danish Advisor Tells C. N. R. Officers

WINNIPEG "We are pleased to know that Danish settlers are so acceptable to Canada, and I can see that there is great opportunity for them in Agriculture here, provided they are ready to work," stated Chr Christiansen, Government Advisor in Agricultural Matters Western Jutland, Denmark, while on his way home after escorting a party of Danish settlers to Winnipeg, where they were handed over to the agents of the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways

While in Canada Mr. Christiansen took the opportunity of studying the junior farmer movement, and the work of the boys' and girls' clubs, which has proved immensely successful in Canada in raising the quality of live stock produced on the farms

"With the same amount of work he would have to put into an uncultivated farm holding he has a fine farm, further should be able to become very prosperous on the rich quality of land he has acquired. The Government is carrying with C.N.R. colonists the same personal assistance in Canada as it does with its own people, so no one is turning a hair to our country. The climate and the people are the same, and there is no reason why Danish settlers should not be successful here.

Government Collecting Agricultural Statistics

The co-operation of farmers and others throughout the province is urged during the present month in the agricultural survey being conducted by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The cards which are circulated through rural schools, farmers are asked to report the number of acres of the various crops being grown this season and the number of live stock of various classes kept on their farms. It may be pointed out that the information supplied to the government is of a confidential nature so far as the individual farmer is concerned and that those supplying the information asked for are greatly assisting the government in compiling its agricultural statistics from which crop forecasts in March of next year are made.

Scarcity of Houses Still Acute; Several in Course of Construction

Scarcity of rentable houses in the town is still felt and as a result rent is high. Practically every dwelling in the town is inhabited at the present time. While rentable buildings are scarce, yet houses may be bought, any number of these being for sale. Pitkaville has not an unused residence in it, while besides a couple of the "Company" houses there is only one house without a tenant in the town. Last fall there wasn't one. Residence in the course of erection will no doubt alleviate the shortage before the fall again sets in. J. Common, P. Miller, Miss Reynard all having residences in hand of carpenters.

Thousand Accidents Due To Carelessness

Forty Per Cent Caused by Negligence of Drivers at Protected Railway Crossings.

Winnipeg.—In nearly one thousand accident cases reported to the Board of Railway Commissioners during the past year here was danger of loss of life or damage to property because of negligence at highway railway level crossings, according to a bulletin received by the Canadian National Railways. Of these accidents 349 were reported on the lines of the Canadian National and under the various classifications of negligence more than 40 per cent at the accidents occurred where crossings gates are operated. There were 325 cases where vehicles broke or damaged crossing gates which had been lowered; 23 where drivers lessened signals and drove through gates; 35 cases of driving under gates left behind being raised or lowered; seven cases of driving on to crossings after opposite gate had been lowered; five where drivers under the influence of liquor crashed into gates, and three accidents due to pedestrians climbing over or under gates.

Under the heading "Inexplicable Negligence" the Board lists 106 cases, in which 14 drove into the side of moving trains, 34 drove into the side of standing trains and one drove between railway cars exercising; 7 were persons stopped or parked too close to railway tracks, and seven drove their automobiles under the railway trucks, while one driver went to sleep in his automobile after parking directly on the railway track, and then stepped his car in the middle of the crossing while he walked back to find the automobile which he had stopped, the driver of a wagon stopped on the railway tracks to adjust his load. Inattentive brakes were responsible for eleven accidents as reported and the balance of the list were under the heading of "Miscellaneous."

Operating department officials of the Canadian National system point to the strong work which has been done by automobile drivers and others here to co-operate with railway engineers, who have to be constantly on the alert to avoid injuring or killing such people for whom every possible safeguard is provided, though they will not avail themselves of the protection offered, and also point out that large numbers of locomotive engineers suffer serious breakdowns during their service because of the extra load on their endurance by the carelessness of people using the highways.

The Desert Song

—BY—

VIRGINIA MORRIS

"The Desert Song" is a Warner Bros. picturization of the novel by the same name by Otto Harbach, Laurence Schwab, Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, and Frank Mandel.

CHAPTER IV.

Margot Bonvalet was alone. It was late afternoon and she had just given Paul Fontaine his orders. General Birabeau would marry them that night. She was allowing herself a few last moments of meditation. Leaning against a tremendous mosaic archway, she stood on the balcony and gazed at the vast desert. It awoke in her heart an infinite longing, the ache for an indescribable something that would never be fulfilled. This was not the wedding day of which she dreamed.

Her reverie was broken as a man's figure swirled in the doorway behind her. She gave a startled cry, for the stranger was clad in a burnoose of flaming scarlet and his face was hidden behind a protecting mask.

"Oh, you're the Red Shadow!" she managed to exclaim when she had recovered her breath and had steadied herself against a chair.

He bowed gallantly. "A votre service, Mademoiselle."

Margot assumed a dignity that she did not feel. "How dare you come here?" she demanded.

"I heard you call for romance," her visitor explained. "I, too, long for romance and I would dare anything to get what I want. But what would you dare, that's what I came to find out."

The girl ignored the question which the Red Shadow had spoken with guile.

"Do you realize that one scream from me would wipe out the Red Shadow?" she asked him.

The mysterious stranger shrugged his shoulders. "You wouldn't call for reinforcements—not through fear, I'm sure, for you're not that kind of a girl in your heart."

The ardor of his voice grew as he leaned toward her. "Will you come with me?" he begged. "If you come, I promise not to hold you, but you will enjoy."

Margot had been clutching her riding crop to give her confidence. Now she raised it quickly. With it she struck the man before her straight across his face. He buried his head in his arms to alleviate the pain and reeled against the balcony rail.

But the girl's indignation quickly cooled. She was alarmed at what she had done. "Oh sir, I've blinded you!" she cried, running over to him. But the Red Shadow had by now recovered himself.

"No, Margot, you haven't blinded me, you've just opened my eyes. Now I'm going to make you love me!"

Before she could protest she felt his arms around her, felt his crush her body against his own, felt his mouth seek hers. For a wonderful moment she yielded. But the remembrance of her promise to Paul restored her to her senses and she drew herself away from him.

"General Birabeau! Paul! Paul! Come quickly.

With a terrible leap, the Red Shadow scaled the balcony once more and, blowing her a kiss, was gone.

A moment later she was surrounded by the officers of the garrison. In breathless sentences she told them of the outlaw's visit, of his presumptuous advances. General Birabeau was inclined not to believe her. He thought that the episode was an invention of the girl's feverish imaginings, inspired perhaps by the successful disappointment in Paul. She found a sympathetic listener when Pierre came in a little later.

"What did he look like?" he asked.

"He was all dressed in red, Pierre. His complexion is no darker than yours. He was masked, but his eyes seemed to gleam through. He's a big man about a head taller than you and, oh, how strong he is!"

At this juncture, Captain Fontaine, who had heard the report of the Red Shadow's visit, came hurriedly in. He could not understand how the leader of the Riffs had gained access to the house, for every entrance and exit was carefully guarded by troops. However, he consulted the man's effrontery in coming a personal challenge to him and determined to run him down that night. Already the signal fires were blazing on the darkening horizon. The Riffs were calling their leader and he would answer them as always.

While her fiance prepared to leave, Margot was both disappointed and relieved. After all, he was as she had known him to be, her lover only whom the bugle did not summon him to military adventure. With the menace of the Red Shadow now uppermost in his mind, romance was again forgotten. He would lead a cavalry troop into the desert at once to kill the Red Shadow, for he realized that the natives loved this man and might revolt if he were taken prisoner.

Again alone, Margot waited she knew not for what. A sudden volley of shots in the courtyard told her that the Riffs and the French were in active combat. The outlaws had dared now to attack the garrison itself. She felt the impulse to run to her pocket and ask about to seek an even surer safety when the Red Shadow entered the room once more as mysteriously as before. She whipped out the gun and levelled it at him.

"Come a step nearer and I'll fire!"

For a moment he said nothing but only looked at her very steadily. When he noticed that she wavered, he whispered softly, "Put down that gun!"

Quickly she raised it to take aim, but more quickly still he caught her wrist and turned it until the weapon fell to the floor. And before she could make further protest he had picked her up in his arms. In vain she fought to free herself. In vain she called for help. There was none to aid her, for every soldier in the garrison was fighting grimly to keep off the attacking Riffs.

Outside, his white horse waited for him. In an instant he had thrown the girl across the saddle and had mounted. The pony galloped wildly forward, far, far across the sand into the mystery of the desert night, into the vast unknown where romance and love are found. Margot Bonvalet, no longer struggled. She clung to the rider, who held her close while he spurred his horse on to a greater speed, and the world she had known was left far behind.

CHAPTER V.

The Red Shadow did not take his beautiful hostage to the Riff's encampment in the hills. Instead, he turned his horse's head to the distant oasis in the midst of which towered the magnificent palace of Ali Ben Ali. Riding close at his heels came twenty of his own men who carried off General Ross and their prisoners. Their leader lifted Margot from his saddle and gave her into the care of the soldiers while he went to greet his host.

Ali Ben Ali received him in a great hall sumptuous with oriental luxury. His highly polished floor was inlaid with rare mosaics. Low divans covered with priceless rugs invited one to luxurious ease. Within the reach of them were great brasbowls heaped high with luscious fruit. Of one preferred smoking in the fashion of the east, there were low tables holding porcelain hookahs, the bubble glass from which bears oriental tobacco is inhaled through water.

The great Sheik who had been amusing himself with some dancing girls from Spain, dismissed them when his guest approached. He stretched out his arms, saying "Hail, friend!"

The Red Shadow reciprocated this gesture of goodwill.

"Once more, Ali, I beg your kindness and hospitality."

"Should not I protect the prestige of my race? What is it this time? Have you been caught on a prison or kidnapped a tax collector?"

"This time it's a little different!" admitted the visitor with a smile.

"Ah, yes—to be sure—you bring two women captives that is unusual. Many times I have offered you the hospitality of my Harem but you have always been as shy about women as a—as a Christian."

From the Garden, Red Fl the entered with soldiers guiding Margot and Susan. Both of them were bandaged but the Red Shadow immediately ordered the bandages removed from their eyes.

"Where is my Bennie?" demanded Susan, querulously.

Margot, still tugging at the ropes that bound her hands, cried "What's that brute—that outlaw that kidnapped—"

The Red Shadow bowed very low before her Sheik Ali Ben Ali entertained a suggestion of hospitality. He addressed himself to the leader of the Riffs. "I presume you want them to get the same treatment as my women have just had, unbathed?"

The Red Shadow nodded. "It is no means!"

"How dare you," protested Margot. "As a French citizen in the domain of the republic of France I demand to be released!"

Firmly but quietly, two slaves led the women away Susan relished the adventure as much as Margot shrank from it. Some Riffs had brought in the captured lieutenant Bennie Kid, who was already rousing his secretary's jealousy by his not too furtive glances at the seductive Spaniards.

"Oh, Bennie!" squealed Susan. "he's taking me upstairs But somehow, Bennie made no movement of protest.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 90 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 90 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions. Any druggists.

Farming Near the Equator

Girl In South Africa Turns Forest Into Farm Land

A land girl of Kenya Colony, Africa, is turning a forest into a dairy farm.

In addition to looking after her employer's cows, Miss Peggy Billson, a member of the Women's Farm and Garden Association, is hard at work clearing 367 acres of forest land. 8,000 feet high, Molo, near the Equator, with the help of only half a dozen boys.

She writes that it is a slow job, as there is no dormant season and weeds grow all the time, but she has now cleared, stumped, fenced, and planted about six acres with oats.

Since the war land women have had wonderful success as trained milkers, dairymaids, and stockwomen, and the demand for them steadily continues.

Large Numbers Of Repatriates Return

1,500 Canadians Returning To Canada From United States

During 1929, about two thousand French-Canadians will be repatriated from the New England States to take up farming in Quebec Ontario and the far west of Canada, according to estimates of the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways. In 1928, through the movement in which the Canadian National was directly interested, 1,500 Canadians, most of them natives of Quebec, returned to Canada to go on the land.

The royal road to success would not be so much a mile. When a strong north wind blows the current is reversed.

River Runs Up Hill

A curious investigator reports that he has discovered a number of unique things in Pomeranis. One of them is a river that occasionally runs up hill. The Oder has a fall of not quite 20 inches in the last 34 miles of its course or only six-tenths of an inch a mile. When a strong

A New Use For Radium

Eliminates Danger Of Fire In Soviet Rubber Factory

Radium, precious tool of medicine, has a new use in a rubber factory at Leningrad in Russia, it prevents fire. Its remarkable fire-protecting quality is due to the ability of radium to make the air around it a better conductor of electricity.

Hitherto sparks of static electricity that jump from rubber fabric passing over the factory rollers have constituted a dangerous fire hazard. Since a rubber drying room is filled with inflammable vapors, says Popular Science Monthly. Now the presence of a small capsule filled with radium permits electricity to leak slowly and harmlessly from the rollers into the air, instead of accumulating a sufficient charge to produce a fat spark.

CHANNEL TUNNEL UNDER DISCUSSION

Will Connect England and France by Rail — Relieve Unemployment

LONDON, June 11.—Construction of a tunnel under the English channel to connect England and France by rail is one of the schemes which Rt Hon. J. H. Thomas has his eye on, in connection with his plans to solve the unemployment problem. Mr. Thomas has been delegated by the new premier, Rt Hon. J. Ramsay Macdonald to direct the new Labor government's work in dealing with the unemployment situation.

He is organizing a new government department of employment and is obtaining reports on a number of projects which might supply work for some of the men now unemployed as a precipitation to the cabinet by experts from all the government departments. With the aid of the experts, he hopes to frame definite plans for road building, industrial development and railway reconstruction. At the same time, he is not to forget emigration and the development of the empire and the part they may be made to play in reducing the army of unemployed.

Likely Chain Theatre Will Be Built Here

Main Street Property Said to Be Thought to be Solved

That a theatre is to be erected on the main street property recently purchased by a city realty firm for an unnamed client is the latest rumor concerning the destiny of these lots. This information, while not authentic was gleaned by a Vermilion business man while in the city recently and is further substantiated by a chain company opening up theatres in three towns along the Camrose line. The policy of this company is the grouping of amusement houses within easy communicating distance of each other, allowing for the exchange of films. The really firm making the purchase of the lots stated that property where a side entrance would be available was desirable.

Further developments on this property will be watched with interest, and the next rumor we expect to hear is that a printing and publishing company intend starting a daily paper and this land is to be used for their new and storied building.

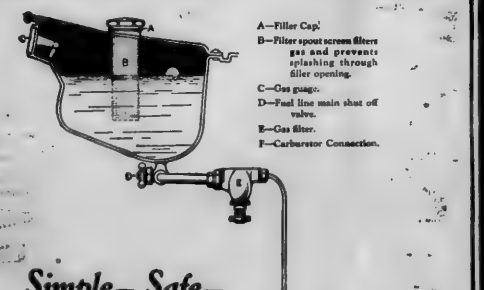
Farmer Killed By Lightning

CEYLON, Sask., June 11.—Struck by lightning, Floyd Jones, 40, bachelor homesteader, was instantly killed here. His body, badly burned, was discovered by his aged housekeeper lying in the farm yard after a crash of thunder and a blaze of lightning. The James farm is located in the Fort Comfort district.

NEW CARS STILL COMING OUT

Transportation problems of the family are still being solved by the local automobile agencies and new cars are still rolling merrily out from the local showrooms. Four new sedans were shipped out from the Chevrolet agency this past week, Geo Thrasson, Bill Selwood, Fred Paunch and Kirk Wilson being the purchasers; this brings the number of sales for the popular make up to 47 new cars. Bert Searle and Geo Webb are both driving new Fordsters, while Ainsley Dell is sporting a new Essex sedan. Mr. Wright has purchased a Willys-Knight through the local agent, W. A. Findlay, while Tommy Gilles of Islay bought a Nash from W. Mit. Two new Dodges have also been noticed on the streets. Mr. Price of Islay is driving a Model A Ford and Ronald Mercier a Chevrolet coupe.

THE FORD CAR FUEL SYSTEM



A—Filler Cap.
B—Filter spout screen filters gas and prevents splashing through filler opening.
C—Gas guage.
D—Fuel line main shut off valve.
F—Carburetor Connection.

Simple— Safe— and Dependable

THE Ford car fuel system is simple because it is direct. Gravity flow does away with forced feed. A short feed line with a minimum of elbows and connections is easy to service and eliminates approximately 100 parts required by the vacuum tank or fuel pump system.

The nine gallon tank is so placed that it is well protected from front or rear end collision. Any overflow runs off on the ground with no serious results, since the only point of possible spark contact is the rear end of the exhaust. Three screens instead of one, as in most fuel systems, prevent foreign matter reaching the tank. A solid steel dash separates the Ford gas tank from the engine.

The gas guage on the dash of the Ford car is controlled by a simple float as shown in diagram, being more direct, simple and accurate than any other type. Another point of driving convenience made possible by the gravity flow system is the ease with which the tank may be filled, while the driver supervises the operation without moving from behind the wheel.

Among those will be Dr. Norrie, Chief of the Agricultural Division, Institute of Co-operation, Washington, D.C.; Clyde I. King of the Wharton School of Finance; Professor J. T. Horton, Director, Research Bureau, Detroit; C. B. Denman, President National Live Stock Producers association, Chicago. The Alberta Wheat Pool will be represented by Geo. Bennett, Manville, J. E. Love, M.L.A. the Dairy Pool, and the Livestock Pool by A. D. Claypool, president. In addition to these Premier Brownlee, Dr. Walker, president of the University of Alberta, Dr. H. W. Wood, Hon. He may also act as chairman for a number of the meetings. Other chairmen selected are Mrs. R. B. Gunn, Wm Irvine, E. S. Stevens and H. A. Craig, deputy minister of agriculture. The whole convention is designed to study co-operative methods as they apply to Western Canada.

A year ago when the institute was held at the University of Alberta, many hundreds of people attended the convention. Three similar institutes are being held this year at Vermilion, Olds and Lethbridge, in order to reach as many people as possible.

The Vermilion School of Agriculture and the U. F. A. are each allowed twenty junior delegates whose railroad and other expenses will be paid while attending the convention. The V. S. A. students have already been notified, while the names of the U.F.A. juniors are being received. Anyone who is interested and who may wish to do so may register as a delegate, and by sending in $1.00 with their registration will receive a badge which grants the privilege of the convention floor, and will also secure them of a complete printed report of the addresses and discussions. All registrations should be in the hands of the undersigned by June 15th.

Those who wish to may stay right in the large dormitory in the School of Agriculture, which has a capacity for 200 and the rate will be $1.00 per day. Many will undoubtedly drive in to the institute each day and may prefer to bring a picnic lunch and eat same on the lawn. Single meals may be had in the dormitory at 60 each. It is expected that the large gymnasium at the School of Agriculture will be filled to capacity. There will be community singing, other entertainments and a concert, with a banquet and dance for the delegates on Friday evening, June 28th.

All are invited to study for a few days this great co-operative movement that is coming to be such a prominent thing in our Western Canadian life.

The Vermilion committee of the Co-operative institute will appreciate the newspapers making these meetings known as widely as possible.

THIRD FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, Saigsday, June 8th, 1929.

Crop conditions throughout the greater part of the province are very satisfactory and grain is making splendid growth, according to telegraphic reports received by the Department of Agriculture on Friday for the third fortnightly crop report of the season. Moisture requirements for some weeks have been supplied by the heavy rains which visited the southern section of the province over last week-end, and all crops are growing rapidly.

Prospects in the Peace River district are very promising and any immediate danger of drouth has been removed by frequent rains during the first three weeks. Crops growing on land newly broken this season are looking exceptionally well.

In the Edmonton district and for some distance south and east the continued absence of precipitation is beginning to cause some concern, although in many districts the fear of drouth as yet seriously reduced the prospects of a crop. In some limited areas high winds have caused damage from soil drifting, but this is by no means general. Breaking on new land has been retarded to some extent in this section of the province by the absence of moisture in the soil, while in the south a larger acreage than usual is being broken in readiness for next season's crop.

Early sown wheat in most localities is now covering the ground, and an exceptionally good stand of fall wheat is reported from many districts in the south. Alfalfa and sweet clover are making a vigorous growth, and prospects of an increased tonnage of silage have been revealed. Livestock generally is in good condition and in a number of districts increased numbers of farmers are making a start with a small flock of sheep.

Millionth Unit Frigidaire

Completion Celebrated by Crashing of High Explosive Bombs over City of Dayton, Ohio.

High explosive bombs smashed for an hour above the city of Dayton, Ohio, the other day as the one millionth refrigeration unit to be built by Frigidaire Corporation came through one of the many conveyor lines and swung off as a finished electric refrigerator, all ready to freeze ice cubes.

Beneath the bomb smoke, foam figured from the roofs of factories and office building. But there was no panicking of whistles to signal even a short shut-down. With the planes far behind orders thousands of employees continued their work, while the steady reverberation of bombs marked the building of the millionth unit.

For many weeks three shifts of workmen had been tending the fifteen great porcelain enamelling furnaces, held unvaryingly at 1500 degrees Fahrenheit. For weeks also other Frigidaire departments had held to the same operating schedule. In one day 1214 carloads of finished products were shipped from the factories. And on the day the millionth unit was completed the factories were still farther behind orders than they were two months earlier.

The millionth Frigidaire, bearing a gold serial late, was shipped by air plan to Atlantic City to be a feature exhibit at the annual convention of the National Electric Light Association.

Refrigeration equivalent to 12m00 tons of melting ice daily is the capacity of the one million units already built according to E. G. Biechler president and general manager of the corporation. This ice tonnage would be sufficient to supply 9 million families with 22 pounds of ice daily.

"There is a vast difference between the units of 1917 or even as late as 1921 and our present models," said Mr. Biechler "Back in 1922 there were but two Frigidaire models, one a household cabinet with nine cubic feet of storage capacity and the other with fifteen cubic feet for local storage. The factory price of the latter priced model was then $450.00 The lowest priced model now sells for only one-fifth that price at the factory

Production in each quarter of a million marks a very definite period in development of Frigidaire equipment. The first 100,000 was a period of small production and house development. The second quarter of a million marked the period when the big demand was placed upon a mass production basis and all fundamental problems solved. The third quarter of a million followed the introduction of the new Frigidaire, with its quiet mechanism. The fourth quarter of a million will always be associated in history with the introduction of the Frigidaire Cold Control the greatest single contribution to household refrigeration since the building of the first ice box

Science To Rescue Agriculture

Recent developments in the realm of agriculture indicate that science is backing up the practical efforts of Western Canada and that the time is not far distant when many farmers who make an earnest study of the applications of science will appreciate the discoveries which are being made in chemistry, physics, botany and other sciences for them. Science is the ally of the practical farmer and the combination is destined to be the successful business-man.

Perhaps the most interesting field for experiment concerning the man upon the land is one which is comparatively new to him. These are the questions of reducing the cost of the production of crops, and the necessity of not only fighting "the enemy within the crop" but also through the agency of weeds and insect pests.

Fully one-fifth of the world's crop yields annually to insects and many times that amount is destroyed by weeds which can only be beaten by the alert farmer. On the same area of land, for instance, the farmer can hope to secure a much greater yield of grain than his neighbor who allows weeds to grow.

Consider for instance the cost of producing a bushel of wheat. While a certain degree of fertility must be maintained, it is undeniably known that some farmers are able to produce a bushel of wheat in their granary or in the elevator at a more profitable figure than others. Why is this? Is one farmer more intelligent than the other? Is it a matter of better seed? Is it a matter of better cultivation? Is it a matter of more favorable weather conditions? Is it a matter of greater fertility? It is a matter of all these things. The thoughtful farmer has carefully studied the economic effects of the use of good seed, thoroughly sound cultivation methods and the cheapest and best modes of harvesting his crop. Not only this, he has done this but he has kept some record of the cost of his various operations thus enabling him to find out the weak spots and remedy them.

In the field of agricultural effort a great deal of pioneering work has been done by the farm implement companies, individual farmers of an inventive turn of mind, and leaders of agricultural engineering. It only remains for the average farmer to avail himself of the scientific work already done in this direction and apply and perhaps modify it to his own conditions and circumstances. Many are already doing so to their profit.

There then is the average farmer, the Provincial Government, the presidence of weeds which are annually taking a huge toll from farmers. Here again a good deal of research work has been carried on by experts in the employ of the College of Agriculture, the Provincial Government and the Federal Department of Agriculture. It has been demonstrated beyond all doubt that methods can be adopted which will keep these pests within control in some cases and in others that they can be entirely eradicated.

As an illustration of what is being done investigations conducted by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture last year as to the possibility of eradicating some of the most serious weeds by the use of chemicals might be cited. It is true that the tests showed that the use of chemicals as a weed destruction agents on a large scale may be uneconomical but the value of such chemicals in stamping out small patches and preventing them from inundating the farm was clearly proved. A combination of chemicals suitable cultivation methods the use of clean and pure seed will go a long way towards reducing the losses occasioned by weeds in this province.

Similar research work has been and is being carried on in the fight against diseases affecting wheat and other cereal grain crops. It is only necessary to refer to some of the varieties which are being used to breed a wheat that is not only resistant to the ravages of rust but that also contains those milling and baking attributes which makes Canadian hard red spring wheat so desirable in the export market. Recent reports indicate that the use of chemicals in combating the efforts of technical workers and it is probably only a matter of two or three years before the farmers will be able to secure their seeds with a rust-resistant wheat of good milling and baking quality.

The foregoing are only one or two illustrations of the manner in which science is being enlisted to aid the farmer and the farmer's son and daughter and generation it is essential that the agriculturist inform himself of what is being done on his behalf and apply the results of the work of those trained men in his own particular problems.

Imperial Airways Plan Luxurious Liners

Change In Construction Places Body Beneath Both Wings

Progress of commercial flying is shown in the new plan of Imperial Airways for a fleet of passenger air liners giant craft. As usually, the pilot, stationed in the front, passengers in the enclosed cabin right behind, in the engine room just ahead. The wing will be arranged in two stages or planes, enabling the body, with a private cabin similar to those on Pullman cars, will be arranged for partitioned two or four. In addition there will be a bar where refreshments can be served en route. Four engines two on each wing, on either side of the fuselage will drive the mammoth ship through the air, and three engines are if necessary alone be used. Safety slots will be fitted. One of the big changes in construction is that the body of the craft is placed beneath both wings, instead of between them. This helps to prevent noise in the cabin, and also gives the passengers a clear view.

All-Canadian Highway

Before the year is over it may be possible for one to drive from Winnipeg to Vancouver on all weather highways without detours to the United States pavements Gravelled roads already exist from Calgary to Golden B.C. and the British Columbia and federal governments are now building around the "big bend" of the Columbia river to join the existing road down the Fraser Canyon to Vancouver This highway when complete from Winnipeg to Pordie the water will go through some of the most interesting country and the most spectacular scenery in the world.

It then remains to bridge or tunnel Lake Superior.

Browning Inexplicable

Feeling Seems To Be Veering Away From Coaxing People To Come To Canada

Three members of parliament, a Liberal, a Conservative, and a United Farmer, spoke the other day against continuing a heavy expenditure to induce immigrants to Canada. They represent farming districts in Alberta, Ontario and Quebec. There is reason to think that the view they express is gaining ground among farmers, and that it spreads rapidly, among townspeople. The advisability of "coaxing" people to come to Canada is being questioned there is no doubt about that. But perhaps more would come if we stopped inviting them "There never was a country more wanting to get into the United States as since the quota" law was passed. "The closed door" is a phrase that is used by what lies beyond it Edmonton Bulletin

FEELING WORN OUT

When the Blood Becomes Watery a Breakdown Follows

How many girls and women suffer from headaches pain in the back dizziness, poor appetite, nervousness and a constant feeling of weariness and dejection. Do not bear this dreadful affliction. Of course, all these symptoms do not always mean the same but any one case but any of them show that the blood has become thin and watery and good health can only be regained by enriching the blood. This should be done without delay. For this purpose nothing can give as prompt and so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose makes new rich blood that tones weak nerves and thus brings new health and vitality to the whole body. Mrs. Alexander Dupuis, aged 27 years ago a girl grew so weak I could scarcely walk across a room, suffered from Dr. and King, R.N. S. Truro, N.S., who says: "For years ago I grew so weak I could scarcely walk across a room, suffered from Dr. blood was thin and I was almost bloodless. I had to give up my work. Pink Pills on a former occasion with good results, and so decided to try them again. By the time I had taken three boxes I had the color in my cheeks and my health was restored. I continued taking the pills for several months, by which time I could walk for miles with little effort and do all my own housework and care for four children, so you may be sure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

Canadian Stock For United States

American Breeders Continue To Look To Canada For Foundation Stock

Some of the world's finest dairy stock, Canadian owned, went to American buyers at the sale held recently of the famous Innis herd of purebred Holsteins at Woodstock, Ontario, declared F. W. Walsh, superintendent of agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, who returned to Montreal after the sale, during which he bought one of the most outstanding herd dispersal sale of purebred dairy stock ever held in Canada.

Internationally famous stock, males and females which hold continental records for production, sold at the sale, which was held for the purpose of disposing of 70 head of cattle, the herd which has been known breeders at Woodstock, Ont. American buyers were very prominent at the sale and took away some of the best animals, which is only another indication, states Mr. Walsh, that American breeders continue to look to Canada for their seed stock.

The famous all-American bull, Abbekirk Sylvia Lad, which headed the Innis herd, fortunately, however, went to a Canadian breeder, M. L. McCarty, of Sussex, N.B., for $3,000, and Mr. McCarty also secured a fine cow, in line with his present policy of building up one of the finest show herds on the continent.

The full sister of the champion bull, Aggie Sylvia Third, went to the Detroit Zoo, while a number of Canadian exemplified the all-American Sean progeny of Dan last year.

The average price paid for the 69 head sold at the sale, stated Mr. Walsh, was $533. A number of the animals went for around $1,000 a piece. A year-old bull went to an American buyer for $2,000 and the all-American cow of the herd, was taken up by a Canadian buyer for the same price

Straw Board Is New Product

Good Substitute For Lumber In Construction Of Buildings

Paper made from corn stalks has been proven successful in the middle Western States. Now Western Canada has found a new and profitable use for straw. A company has been incorporated in Regina for the manufacture of straw-board to replace lumber in many lines from the construction of buildings and one machine has recently been placed in operation at Lumsden, Sask., by Mr. Clunker, one mile north of Regina. Patent rights for Canada have been acquired. The machine turns out a compressed the straw under a pressure of 100 pounds to the square inch, the product being laced with wire and turned out in boards 14 feet long by five feet wide and two inches thick. The machine turns out 4,000 square feet of straw board per day. It is contended that the product is fireproof on account of the pressure to which it is subjected and that it possesses insulating qualities to a high degree.

Guarding Canada's Coastline

Eternal Vigilance Of Lighthouse Attendants Makes Water Commerce Possible

Except in fog or storm, Canada's rapidly growing water commerce seldom gives even a passing thought to the eternal vigilance of a silent service which makes that commerce possible, says the Boston Transcript. Only in time of trouble is attention paid to the 11,763 individual establishments of the lighthouse service guarding the 33,000 miles of Canada's coastline.

From Cape Race, at the extreme eastern point of this continent, to Queen Charlotte Islands, on the Pacific Ocean, over 200 persons are employed in guarding the paths of trade. The lighthouse service in which they are engaged consists of 1,771 lighthouses, 200 fog signal stations, 643 gas and signal buoys, six submarine bells, twelve lightships, and 8,470 unlighted buoys, beacons and day marks.

Distribution of the various orders of lighthouses, according to areas, is as follows: New Brunswick and Bay of Fundy (both shores), 170; Prince Edward Island, 24; Gulf of St. Lawrence and Strait of Belle Isle, 246; Nova Scotia, south and east coast, and Bay of Fundy, 186; Quebec Lower St. Lawrence and Bay of Chaleur, 290; Montreal, 242; Prescott, and Ontario, 160; Georgian Bay, Lake Parry Sound and Lakes, 178; Keewatin, nine; Manitoba, sixteen; Victoria, B.C., 140; and Prince Rupert, fifty-six.

Canada's War Legacy

Over 117 Millions Is Required For Interest On Debt

Canada's ordinary expenditures (excluding capital, her outlay upon capital account), exceed 255 million dollars per year. Of this great sum, nearly 143 millions are directly attributable to the Great War, although the war has now been over for more than eight years.

Interest on the war debt demands over 113 millions; war pensions, over 40 millions; soldiers' civil reestablishment, nearly 8 millions.

While expenditures attributable to the Great War mount up to almost 163 millions, the so-called war taxes raised less than 143 millions in the last fiscal year, the greater part of this being secured from the sales tax, stamp taxes and income tax.

War taxes constitute less than one-third of Canada's revenues. Customs and excise duties furnish the country with more than half her ordinary receipts

Canada Must Use Aircraft

In Business Of Dominion Will Be Hampered Says General MacBrien

Major-Gen. J. H. MacBrien, of Canada's air force, has stated its relation to commerce and war, at the opening meeting of the Advertising Association's twenty sixth annual convention in Montreal recently.

General MacBrien declared that Canada's business would be hampered unless aircraft were fully utilized in the speeding up of communications. The highways would be unable to cope with the traffic, he declared, and Canada must have her share When telephone and telegraph airports and safety devices became more general, aviation would be the safest form of travelling. he said

NEED FOR MORE RESEARCH WORK IS STRESSED

Similar.—"Don't be content with second rate men, nor expect treatment as results in a year, but be confident in the future of scientific research in Canada. If you do this, you have nothing to lose; for the future of the Dominion in industry is unlimited," said Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council, speaking before the Canadian Manufacturers Association on the work of the council in the investigations into Canadian resources.

Outlining the unprecedented development of research into the scientific phases of industry in Britain the United States, Japan and Italy, since the war, Dr. Tory told the manufacturers the time had come for Canada to take her place with the other nations of the world in the establishment of laboratories and the special training of scientists to man them. "But it will be money wasted," he said, "unless the manufacturers of Canada, are alive to their opportunities and employ them. This is rapidly happening that we must take our places from other peoples Too many of our brilliant men are lost in building up the industrial life of foreign lands."

Speaking of the work that had already been done by the Institute of Canada, Dr. Tory instanced the magnesite industry, which in three years of research, had been placed in a position amply able to compete in the world market. During the past year 102 industrial fellowships supplied on the development of new resources and this work would be greatly extended by new buildings, with the addition of students now being trained.

Discuss Tariff Question

Canadian Manufacturers Association To Make Pronouncement

Hamilton, Ont.—"The manufacturer who takes one view on protection for what he produces and another on what he buys and who is inconsistent but he undermines the very position he seeks to safeguard," was theopinion of President Lorne Thomas at a session of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, at which the report of the tariff committee was adopted with a motion that a committee be appointed by the president to draw up a pronouncement on tariff matters.

Canada's tariff problem was different from that of any other country, said H. M. Jaquays, Montreal. On one hand were the agriculturists entitled to special consideration in their needs and their prosperity, and trial development was essential Any tariff policy must be shaped toward the goal of a well-balanced people and members of people can certify that it healed where properly applied.

Cranberry Portage Suffers Heavy Loss Through Fire

The Pas, Man.—Surrounded by a wall of fire, forest rangers, railway construction workmen, miners and every available able bodied man in Cranberry Portage, Hitie Manitoba mining town, on the shores of picturesque Lake Athapapuskanow, battled to save what remained of the settlement after the flames had brought destruction the day before

It was the townsite of Cranberry Portage, constructed only a few months ago, across the railway tracks from what is now known as the Old Town, that was destroyed when flames from a forest fire swept in from the north.

Within 30 minutes, a score of dwellings, several business buildings, the railway station, and hospital, were smouldering ruins, and 200 persons, and men's 800 population had been rendered homeless. There were no casualties. The property loss ran into thousands of dollars and many small personal fortunes were swept away. No insurance was carried, as Cranberry was considered a fire hazard by the underwriting companies, surrounded as it is by forest.

Four Break Between China and Russia

Trouble Arising Over Arrest Of Soviet Officials In Manchuria

London, England.—Russian troops were said by a Peking dispatch to the Express, to be massing on the Manchurian frontier to prevent thousands of Chinese from leaving Russian territory. The flight of the Chinese was in fear of arrest and deprivation of their belongings in retaliation for the arrest of Soviet officials in Manchuria.

Reuss news agency of Japan reported that Soviet consul general Kunmetoff, of Mukden, was under arrest at Hailer and that investigations this was felt in the Harbin Soviet community where a complete break between Russia and China was feared.

The strained relations between the two countries began with Chinese raids on Soviet consulates in search of documents to support charges that Communists were actively interfering in Chinese internal affairs. The raids were followed by sharp notes of protest by the Soviet virtually suspending diplomatic immunity of Chinese officials in its territory

The figures were disclosed at the annual meeting of the Canadian General Council of the Association at Fort Westminster, B.C. when delegates from North Centre compared their respective associations' records. Hydro Electric For Province of Alberta

Interesting Address at Board of Trade Luncheon

H. J. Castle, Dominion inspector for this province of meters was the speaker at the Board of Trade luncheon held on Monday evening at the Alberta Hotel. Mr. Castle, referring to the local situation, said that the meters in Vermilion have never had proper care, in consequence of which they were running slow and while the meters might gain by take the C.P.R. was losing certain revenue. The question in which, however, he had been vitally interested for the past number of years was that of hydro electric. He mentioned the success of the Ontario system and said that the time was rapidly approaching in Alberta when we would have to decide between public and private ownership of a resource like this. There should be a commission of men from this province to go into the whole question. This would cost a lot of money and would take time, but the people would then know exactly how matters stood. We have had our report already, but it was so highly tinctured with the views of corporate interests as to render it almost valueless for the purposes of a public-owned hydro system.

The Vermilion hospital situation came up again for review. It was stated that the need of increased facilities was becoming urgent, as a fact that the authorities were now enforcing the statutory requirements with respect to the accommodation of patients. The board has appointed a committee to interview the hospital board and this will be done in the near future. In this connection J.W.G. Morrison, who was on the hospital board when that institution was built, gave a brief resume of the difficulties they had to contend with at that time and that it was due to the vision of the members of that board we have had the splendid hospital that we have, but "it is acknowledged by everybody that the time has arrived when its facilities must be increased."

Maynard Brimacombe, the Boy Scout referred from this district to take part in the big jamboree in England in July next, was the guest of honor and was, during the course of the luncheon, presented with a token of remembrance on behalf of the board. The presentation was made by Mr. W. W. Bell who acted as chairman for the evening. Mr. Morrison in referring to the happy incident expressed to the boy for a universal support of the Boy Scout movement in Vermilion. He said that the members of Troop No. 1 Vermilion was made possible by the fact that a few prominent citizens had taken hold of the organization last fall and seen it through. Mr. Bell paid high tribute to the sterling qualities of the scoutmaster and said that he would bring honor and credit not only to the movement with which he was associated but to the town and district of Vermilion as well

Building Program Exhibition Ground

New Dancing Pavilion and Exhibit Building to be Erected

At a meeting of the directors of the Vermilion agricultural society held recently it was decided to take steps at once looking to the erection of a large dancing pavilion and a new exhibit building at a cost of about $2000. It was also proposed to dismantle the present metal covered building used for this purpose and remove the dining hall to a more convenient location. This program has been urged upon the society largely because of the increased area required by the midway shows. In former years the fair shows were confined with some 200 feet frontage but now they need three and four times this area.

The directors have also decided upon making a new entrance to the grounds. This will be situated on the north-east corner, another move forced upon the society because of increased area wanted for parking purposes. A portion of the corner fence will be cut off and with more ground acquired the new gates will be found a big improvement on the old ones. The ticket offices will be located on the driveway

Channel Tunnel Plan Favored

Would Help To Solve Unemployment Problem in Britain

Construction of a tunnel under the English Channel to connect England and France by rail is one of the schemes which Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas has in store on his connection with his plans to solve the British unemployment problem. Mr. Thomas has been delegated by the new premier, Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, to direct the new Labor government's work in dealing with the unemployment issue.

He is organizing a new government department of employment and is obtaining reports on a number of projects which might supply work for some of the men now unemployed as a preliminary to calling in experts from all the government departments.

With the aid of the experts he hopes to frame definite plans for road-building, housing development and railway reconstruction. At the same time he is not to forget emigration and the development of the Empire and the part they may be made to play in reducing the army of unemployed.

A Forest Of 2,000 B.C.

Ancient Douglas Fir Standing At Bottom of Lake in Oregon

An unexplored wilderness of Douglas fir trees stands upright on the bottom of Crescent Lake, in Lane County, Oregon—probably green and flourishing in 2,000 B.C. These firs, we are told by John D. Outarie, writing in American Forests (Washington), were growing in a little valley high up in the Cascade Range, when, about 2,000 B.C., or before, there were eruptions from many peaks along the crest. The peaks belched forth lava, and the molten stream spread out over thousands of acres. A tongue of this flow most here run into the little valley of the McKenzie and almost filled it. Then:

"The heat may have killed the Douglas firs in the valley, or they may have been literally drowned by the rising waters. In any case, the river gradually filled the little valley above the lava dam, submerging the fir trees, and formed a lake about a mile long.

"The Douglas fir trees are still standing on the bottom of the lake. The waters are the cleanest of any of the Cascade's lakes, and crystal-blue, so that the bottom, shining white with the accumulated ash of long ago, seems but a few feet below you. With the air excluded, these old trees have been perfectly preserved through all these centuries, and today the wood is readily identified. It is as sound as ever, with no breaking down of the woody tissue whatever, nor any evidence of infiltration of any kind."—Literary Digest.

"Talkie" Novels Here

People Can Enjoy Book Without Trouble Of Reading It

Talkie novels have come as the natural sequence to talkie movies.

The first talkie novel is a story "Artaban," by Andre Cayatte, and has been put up in a series of phonograph records each record containing a chapter. The story is related by the author.

Several others are in preparation, but the plan has been changed by using, most and women to recite the lines of the characters of the novel as they go along with "says she" and "says he."

Editors of the talkie novels predict a great future, principally because it will now be possible to enjoy a book without even the effort of turning every page.

New Yorks Are Famous

Americans may believe there is only one New York, but England has three and Scotland one. England recently claimed a New York in Kent, Lincolnshire and Northumberland counties and immediately all good Scotchmen pointed to their New York on the western shores of Loch Awe.

A Famous Field Marshal

Viscount Allenby Has Had Distinguished Career As Soldier and Statesman

Field-Marshal Viscount Allenby celebrated his 68th birthday recently. He has displayed marked and outstanding ability in two fields of soldiering and statesmanship. At the outbreak of the Great War he assumed command of the Cavalry Division with the Expeditionary Force, and afterwards won undying fame as the conqueror of Jerusalem. Then as High Commissioner of Egypt in 1925 his firm attitude after the assassination of the Sirdar undoubtedly prevented a very ugly situation developing into positive disaster. His is a temperament which the Orients understand and appreciated. On the Western Front he was known as "The Bull."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

. JUNE 16

PSALM OF PRAISE

Golden Text: "Bless Jehovah, O my soul."—Psalm 103.1.

Lesson: Psalm 103.1-22.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 107. 23-31.

I. Exaltation and Counsel (Psalm 103.1-5).

Questions: Who Put God's Blessings versus 1-5.—"Bless Jehovah, O my soul"; thus the Psalmist addresses himself. "The Soul" the Septuagint have no word for 'soul,' if the Syriac-has to render 'a kingdom divided against itself.' It says 'a kingdom divided against its soul.' If it has to render 'yourselves' it must needs say 'your souls'." And all that is within me—my whole self, my whole being. All my faculties and powers—bless His holy name. As we have often noted, "name" stands for person: bless Him who is holy.

"It takes all there is of a man to praise and worship God adequately. Half-hearted praise is quite as much out of place as half-hearted devotion to one's family or country."

Bless Jehovah, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits. Forget none of them: take note of them for grateful. How often is forgetfulness the cause of ingratitude!

"I believe thanksgiving to be a greater mark of holiness than any other part of worship."—McLaren.

In the two clauses of verse 3 and the first clause of verse 4 Professor Drummond notes in the last part of each, three facts of similarity to guilt of sin, the stain of sin, and the power of sin: and in the first part of each, three facts of similarity to forgiveness, healing, and redemption. Who forgiveth all thine iniquities: (by) crookedness, thy sin! Who healeth all thy diseases.

"Is not the receptive power of nature God's own healing touch? He not endowed our bodies with that other touch, the touch of sympathy and sickness, no bone would ever set, no wound ever close, no patient ever recover. And so it is with the immortalities of the soul."—W. L. Watkinson.

Who redeemeth thy life (thyself), from destruction. Destruction, or the pit. Revised Version. "It stands for Sheol, which is the picture of the grave." Who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies.

"God's goodness is not like the barometer — sometimes high, sometimes low, but always moving about. It is the constant quality on which we can ever rely."

Who satisfieth thy mouth (thy desire) with good things, so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle. Make thee young and lusty as an eagle."—Coverdale. "The eagle is selected as the loftiest image of strength and vigor." "Possessors who are provided for after this royal fashion preserve their brightness and youthfulness, as a result the ageing influences of the years, and every day God imparts a new freshness to their lives."—Thomas Phillips. Compare Isaiah 40.31.

II. Believe that God forgives all my iniquities. Who heals all my diseases. He believes that God forgives all my iniquities. Who heals all my diseases my life from destruction, crowns me with loving kindness and tender mercies, and fills my years with good so that my youth is renewed like the eagle, not because I read the story of this experience in the Psalms, but because I experience it in my own life; but, perhaps I should never have experienced it in my own life if I had not first read it in the Psalms."—Lyman Abbott.

MADE IN ENGLAND

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THERE can be no all-powerful life producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the rays are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass for the purpose, WINDOLITE loses the health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely settled the long-felt want.

Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionised gardening given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light list strong windows for cattle sheds, dairy stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings. It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, schools, factories, hospitals, sanitariums, hot beds, plant covering and greenhouses.

—will not crack or chip.—cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only. A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs. while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness, weighs about 125 to 130 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.

Price $1.25 Per Square Yard, f.o.b., Toronto.

Opportunity for British Traders

Canada Offers Good Market For Empire Made Goods

The great bulk of Canadian imports come from the United States, a nation which has pursued a consistently selfish, if not hostile tariff policy against this country. Resentment in Canada is strongly in favor of the purchase of British goods rather than American. The opportunity is here for British traders to capitalize on this sentiment. To do so, they must take a leaf out of the American book. They must send representatives here to get into close touch with Canadian conditions and market requirements. More vigorous merchandising methods are essential. The appointment of an agent in Montreal or Toronto to look after the entire Canadian market is an obsolete arrangement. There must be more vigorous commercial penetration and the results will justify the cost.—Calgary Herald.

Phosphates For Fertilizers

Manufacture Of Fertilizers On a Large Scale To Be Carried On In B.C.

The vast deposits of phosphates in British Columbia, to be converted into fertilizer by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, will save the "wheat sick" parts of the grain belt in Western Canada, said C. C. Castle, of Victoria, formerly member of the Canadian Grain Commission, in other days. "The Ally," he said. "The manufacture of fertilizer on a large scale will be the greatest salvation the Canadian farmer has ever known. It will cause an increased yield; an earlier harvest, closer settlement and bring a reduction of taxation."

A Large Order

Mrs. Highly-Tightly: "And these are all the vacuum cleaners you have?"

Salesman: "Yes, madam, I have shown you all we carry."

Mrs. Highly-Tightly: "Well, I'm afraid I don't need a new vacuum cleaner. I'll just send you my husband."

"Nurse," said an amorous patient, "I'm in love with you. I don't want to get well."

"Very well, then you won't," she assured him. "The doctor's in love with me, too, and he saw you kiss me this morning."

Bill: "With who was your wife interviewed by the police?"

Albert: "Oh—er—she was scolding the dog."

Bill: "Your beast—I heard her threaten to take the front door away from him."

A lot of people would have fewer troubles if they would think less about the injustices of life and work more.

Commercial Fertilizers Must Be Produced In Increasing Amount To Maintain Present Crop Yield

The astonishing computation is made that if the farmers of Canada were to entirely replace by chemical fertilizers the amount of plant food annually used it would entail a yearly expenditure of $365,000,000.

This figure, contained in a new report on "The Commercial Fertilizer Industry in Canada" prepared by the National Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, will be interesting to those who are in the habit of referring to the "Canadian prairie desert." Here is a statistical refutation of the term, for it is shown that the total consumption of fertilizers in Canada in 1928 was 1,441,000 tons.

The fact is stressed that such computations are theoretical and of no practical value except as pointing to the immense field open in time for the fertilizer industry in Canada. The aim of the report is stated to be to put before the Canadian public the latest view of experts in world economics that commercial fertilizers must be produced in ever increasing amount to maintain present yield and sustain a multiplying population and to show the amount of commercial fertilizer which Canada is using, might use, and may contribute to the world demand.

Contrasting with the value of the commercial fertilizer theoretically necessary to replace depletion the soil is the actual figure of $5,904,453 expended in Canada for purchased fertilizers in 1927. Another calculation of the soil is going on year after year the annual consumption of fertilizer in Canada is increasing rapidly as is shown by the expenditure of $4,408,230 in 1918. It is held that there is a boundless field in Canada for the manufacture of commercial fertilizers but that to reach the full benefit of the growing market awaiting the industry the Canadian demand must be strengthened by education of the farmer in the rural schools, by practical demonstration of the value of fertilizers. Manufacturers, producers, and distributors need co-operation and the consolidation that other industries are finding necessary with a view to greater efficiency, uniform marketing and economy in production.

An interesting section of the 50-page mimeographed memorandum gives figures to show how the present low rate of yield of the larger crops compared with that in other countries might be profitably increased by the use of commercial fertilizer as advised by the Department of Agriculture. Prevailing tariffs and Dominion Acts regulating sale and manufacture of fertilizers are dealt with and a map indicates the location and names of producers of commercial fertilizers, and fertilizer materials, whether wholly or partly manufactured in Canada. Copies of the publication may be obtained free of charge from the director, National Resources Intelligence Service, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Brains To Spare

"We are given 10 times as much brain as we need. Very few persons use 50 per cent. of their brains, many but 5 per cent.," said Sir Arthur Keith, lecturing at the Royal College of Surgeons, London. He asserted that as a railroad bridge is constructed to carry a weight 10 times more than expected, so with the brain.

"What has happened to you? Shall I take you home to your wife?"

"Thanks. I have just come from there."—Buen Humor, Madrid.

Real Wealth At Home

Canadian People Will Not Find Better Opportunities Elsewhere

In January, there were 4,164 persons who left Canada to settle in the United States, mostly in a new report on migrants, and 4,427 persons left the country as emigrants.

Assuming that persons move from one country to another to improve their positions in life, one is reminded of an utterance of an English writer, William McPee. In his recently published life of Frobisher, Mr. McPee remarks that while the Elizabethan adventurers were seeking gold abroad, and while Frobisher was taking back to England unknown rock from Arctic islands, the real wealth of Britain was in the soil about one mile below the estate which Sir Martin was able to purchase in his later years.

Mr. McPee was a real land of opportunity. But unfortunately some of her people continue to think that opportunities are better in other lands.

Passing Of Oratory

There is a tendency on the part of modern audiences to want facts and to dislike excessive verbiage such as the old-time speaker indulged in. Times are changing and have changed, and while there should undoubtedly be some attention paid to teaching the average student to talk before his fellows, it is doubtful if a lot of this effort on oratory is really justified.

Timber Consumption For Lumber And Pulpwood Compared

Figures compiled by the Forest Service of the Department of the Interior, afford a striking evidence of the manner in which Canada's forests have in late years been subjected to a heavily increasing demand for raw materials.

The timber consumption in the manufacture of lumber has shown no very pronounced upward trend in the last decade or so, but the advance of the pulpwood industry has been responsible for doubling the drain on the aspect of forest utilization. Twenty years or so ago the yearly pulpwood cut expressed in terms of standing timber, was equivalent to hardly 30 per cent. of the annual lumber cut. Today the timber consumption for pulpwood has risen to a point where it is equal to about 77 per cent. of that used for lumber and the trend, except for a slight reaction in 1920 71, has been generally upward. It is quite conceivable that a few more years may see the pulpwood industry outweighing the lumber industry in its yearly tax upon the Dominion's forest supplies.

The main significance of this trend lies in the fact that with these two timber-using industries both developed upon a huge scale, the Dominion now has a vastly increased stake in good forest management. Formerly the cut of saw logs, against the cut of pulpwood log, would have to be limited with a view to keeping the latter from overtaking the former. Now, however, the two industries are of equal importance and the cut of saw logs can be increased without fear of overtaking the pulpwood cut. Today the limiting factor is the annual growth of the forest.

Saskatchewan Wheat Pool Conducting a Survey Of Wheat Grown In Province

The Saskatchewan Wheat Pool is conducting a survey of the varieties of wheat grown in this province. This work has been undertaken in connection with the provincial crops committee, which was constituted in the spring of 1928 at the request of the pool, to bring about the desired uniformity of recommendations by agricultural authorities.

A questionnaire was sent out to 6,000 members of wheat pool committees. Approximately 2,500 replies have been received. Among the questions asked were the following: "What variety of wheat do you grow? Why that variety? What other varieties are grown in your district? Why are they grown? What variety is showing the most rapid increase?"

The replies are now being tabulated. The wheat pool has had the cooperation of the university, the provincial department of agriculture and the Dominion experimental farms.

Another piece of work has been undertaken by the Manitoba and Saskatchewan wheat pools in connection with the Western Canadian Society of Agronomy in determining the earliest varieties for Manitoba and where such mixing takes place.

Simultaneously this year, in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, under the direction of the interprovincial committee of the Western Canadian society of Agronomy, the pools have collected samples of wheat: (1) as sown by farmers, (2) as delivered by farmers to country elevators, (3) as delivered by railroads at terminal elevators, (4) as loaded into lake vessels by terminal elevators, and (5) as delivered by vessels to British markets.

The samples thus collected are being graded by the experimental institutions in the provinces along with pure samples of the wheat varieties which they say considerable extent in western Canada. Milling and baking tests are made from these pure samples and compared with similar tests made from typical mixtures of varieties as found in the various classes of wheat grown on experimental farms from the samples collected.

It is hoped by this work to arrive at an answer to the question as to who is responsible for the mixture of varieties which takes place between pure seed and the odd country miller, and in what manner such mixtures affects the quality of the flour.

RUSH FOR LAND STILL GROWING

WINNIPEG, June 18. — The land rush to Northern Alberta continues apace. It is reported by the Edmonton offices of the Canadian National Railways Colonization Department that approximately 1,000 new settlers with capital amounting more than one million dollars, had gone into the Peace River country and Northern Alberta since the first of the year. It is estimated that during April alone more than 1,500 settlers will have settled in these districts. During the period of April 1st to 15th, a total of 212 settlers with capital totalling $170,000 went to the Peace River district. Among these was one man with $20,000 capital, another with $14 000 and another with $12,000.

During the first quarter of the year 400,000 acres of government land were taken up by homesteaders in the four western provinces, an increase of nearly 100,000 acres over the same period of last year. In the period mentioned, 126 homesteads were taken in Manitoba, 924 in Saskatchewan 1277 in Alberta and 96 in B. C. Homesteads filed on in the Edmonton district, an increase of 147 per cent over the previous year. There is every reason to believe that the increase noted so far this year will not only be kept up, but may even exceed that of 1928, over 1927. Even if the figures only double, it will mean that close to 7000 homesteads will be taken up in this district alone.

The shield itself is nicely engraved with the name of the donors, the constituency for which it is the district it is open to, as well as having a number of small shields for the names of the winners. The shield at present in the possession of W. E. Hutton who will be only too pleased to show it to anyone desiring to see same.

The Desert Song

— BY —

VIRGINIA MORRIS

Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"The Desert Song" is a Warner Bros. presentation of this novel. It is based upon the story by Otto Harbach, Laurence Schwab, Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, and Frank Mandel.

An hour later the Red Shadow received from his host the advice that the French girl was alone in the upper chamber. He found this room to be a gorgeous apartment lighted by great oriental lamps that burned live coals and suffused a weird effect. Margot was sitting on a low silk couch. Her dusty riding habit had been exchanged for a flimsy chiffon skirt that revealed every line of her alluring body. A narrow pearl bodice took the place of a waist and her bare arms were bracelet with broad bands of precious stones. She was far more beautiful in eastern garb than the Red Shadow had ever seen her before.

"Why did you bring me here?" was Margot's first question when the Red Shadow entered. She arose from the couch and stood in defiant attitude

"Why?" he replied. "To teach you to love me — so fiercely that you could give up home and friends. Call it a mad dream, but mad as it is I'm willing to risk my whole future to make it come true!"

"Leave love out of it," she answered. "I hate you! I love Paul!"

But the Red Shadow knew better. With a final positiveness, he told her, "You—do—not—love—him! Come to me!"

His persuasiveness had not won her, for she shrank from him. "Tell me one good reason why you will not," he insisted.

"Why there . . . . there are many!"

"Give me one!"

"Why I love . . . . I love Pierre Birabeau! I know that I do. Once I dreamed of romance and adventure, but I've had enough of it, want the quiet life that Pierre planned for me!"

The Red Shadow made an impulsive attempt to take her in his arms but before he could do so the door burst open and Al Ben Ali entered —followed by General Birabeau!

The Sheik motioned to them. "Believe me, I wish to prove myself a friend of the French. You see my people are innocent. He stole her . . . I know nothing!"

The Riffs all ang with Al Ben Ali's men, now crowded into the room. General Birabeau turned to the owner of the desert palace. "Sir, Azuri guided me here," he explained. "I've come alone—and I want to take this girl back with me!"

Birabeau walked directly to the masked leader of he Riffs.

"Azuri tells me that you've boasted that no man can beat you in single combat. Well, I am going to kill you or you will have to kill me!"

For the first time the Riffs saw the Red Shadow turn pale and shrink back from a challenge. Without explanation he ignored the insult of the Frenchman. Even Birabeau was aghast with astonishment.

Ali Ben Ali, who knew the ruthless code of the desert, warned the masked man. "What has come over you, friend? Your own followers will send you out in the wilderness if in if you do not fight!"

Still the Red Shadow made no attempt to defend his honor. General Birabeau, nevertheless, would not let the outlaw evade him.

"So, this is the famous Red Shadow?" he sneered. "The myth that has frightened all Morocco! I think you're a coward!"

Margot ran between the two men. "Please don't, General!" she begged.

But the commandant pushed her aside roughly. Then reaching in his belt, he drew out his glove and struck the Red Shadow in the face!

CHAPTER VI.

A dreary day passed for Margot. She was back at the garrison in Fez but she knew that the total happiness of life had been left back there, in Ali Ben Ali's palace. Her dreams of romance was all but fulfilled and yet she herself had been the force to reject it. Her desert love had told her what no other man had ever said —that he was willing to risk his whole future to have her as his own. The contempt with which she had treated him now made her heart ache.

Although Ali Ben Ali had granted General Birabeau, Bennie, Susan and herself safe conduct back to Fez, she was not sure that the leader of the Riffs had meted out to the Red Shadow. The law of their tribe had left them no choice but to slay one who allowed an enemy to dishonor him and there was the inevitable punishment that Allah had ordained. The disgraced one was sent out into the desert alone, without food, without water, with no weapon of defence but his broken sword. And those men who had been his loyal soldiers, those men who had loved him as a blood brother, stood watching silently until he had disappeared over the crest of the farthest hill. Later they would choose a new leader but now they turned their faces toward Mecca and prayed

For hours Margot had stared into the hot smoky wastes. Not even Pierre was there to distract her with his chatter, for the night the Red Shadow had kidnapped her he had taken a boat for Tangiers. She thought of Pierre puzzled her. Although she felt herself madly infatuated with the outlaw, she believed that sternly had prompted her to tell him she longed for the safety that life with Pierre would mean. Her heart was a maze of contradictions but, after all, nothing could matter much now.

She did not hear Captain Paul Fontaine enter. He startled her, when he sat on the arm of her chair and tried to take her hand.

"Please, don't, Paul," she protested wearily.

Fontaine's face flushed with jealousy "I know why you're not happy. It's because the Red Shadow is in danger. You've fallen in love with him"

Margot turned her head and looked at him defiantly. "What if I have"

Their quarrel was interrupted by the arrival of General Birabeau. "Paul, the command to take the Red shadow a prisoner is changed. He is not to be brought in alive!"

Fontaine smiled but Margot jumped to her feet and exclaimed, "But the man you've after is alone and unarmed! You cannot be cowards enough to kill him!"

"Go, Paul, you have heard my orders!" insisted the General. But he was not devoid of sympathy for the girl, for as his subordinate left, he turned to her: "Margot, I advise you to give up this dream of romance. It has caused you enough heartache."

Thinking it was kinder to leave her alone, he disappeared quietly to the garden. The girl resumed her vigil, scanning the desert spaces she knew not for what. Afternoon darkened to dusk and dusk darkened to evening. Then, out of the stillness, cries of the returning soldiers were heard. A moment later Captain Fontaine burst into the room and the instant thig Margot saw his face she knew that his mission had been successful. He was followed by General Birabeau, who asked, "Tell me what happened?"

"We killed him!"

"Who? Which one of the soldiers?" the commandant enquired.

Paul Fontaine hesitated. "None of our soldiers. But the last man you would ever suspect."

The door opened and Pierre Birabeau stood before them. Over his arm was the cloak and the mask of the Red Shadow and his hand held the outlaw's broken sword. Gradually his father realized the daring of the deed he had almost despised. It was he who had killed the dreaded enemy. In a rush of emotion he put his arms around the boy and held him close. Then another realization slowly possessed him, for his whispered an that only Pierre could have "You were bravest when you refused to fight!"

That evening Pierre Birabeau was the acknowledged hero of the post. Margot alone failed to congratulate him. The General, bursting with pride at the bravery of his own boy, urged him to tell the girl the details of his amazing exploit. As he left the room he saw Pierre put his arm around Margot Bonvalet—and he had never dared that before!

"Margot.—" Pierre began

"Please, Pierre—don't tell me saying more. I—I want to be left alone."

"But answer just one question, Margot, and then I will go. Did you love this man very much?"

There were tears in the girl's eyes "Yes, I loved him—as I never will love anyone else."

Pierre did as he had promised. He went quietly from the room but Baby's Own Tablets and she put brews them. I am never without the Tablets in the house."

The Home Of Porcelain

Saxony Town 500 Years Old Is Planning Celebration

Meissen, a beautiful town in Saxony, one of the first places in Europe, if not the first, where porcelain was manufactured, is 500 years old this year. All kinds of celebrations have been planned for this anniversary, among them chimes of real porcelain bells, the first of the kind in the world, to be hung in a Meissen belfry. But the most remarkable commemoration is a war memorial chapel of porcelain. The whole interior has been lined with porcelain, and large commemorative groups have been fashioned in china clay, colored and baked to decorate the interior. The man who first made "Dresden China" was named Botticher

WHEN BABY IS WELL MOTHER IS HAPPY

The happy mother is the one whose baby is well — It is the laughing baby who always brings joy to the home. When baby is ill everyone in the home suffers — not only though worry over the little one but through loss of sleep — no one can find rest with a sick baby in the home. Thousands of mothers are happy mothers because they have found the way to keep their little ones well or if sickness does come on suddenly, as it usually does with little ones, they have found the way to speedily bring the baby back to health again. Mrs. George Koch, Lindsay, Alta., is one of these mothers, and she writes as follows:—"I am the happy mother of a seven-month-old baby girl Baby is healthy and sleeps and sleeps well at night. I give her no other medicine but Baby's Own Tablets and she just loves them. I am never without the Tablets in the house"

Polish Universal Exhibition

Canada Sending Valuable Exhibits Which Will Advertise This Country

Saskatchewan has contributed to the Canadian exhibit to be displayed at the Polish Universal Exhibition, being held from May to September of this year at Poznan, the University City of Poland. The Dominion Government, several other provinces, the railway companies and the Hudson's Bay Company also have contributed. Other countries participating include Great Britain, Holland, Russia, Turkey, Japan, China, United States, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, France, Italy, Germany, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

The Canadian exhibits will illustrate this mode of living of the Polish-Canadians in city and country. The Dominion Government, apart from contributing models exhibiting the agricultural, mineral and industrial wealth of the country, is donating a group of Canadian buffaloes The Canadian Railway system will exhibit illustrations of the stations, shops, bridges tunnels, irrigation projects, etc

The Province of Saskatchewan is providing delightfully colored transparencies, complete with electrical fittings in readiness for erection, showing public buildings, including the Parliament Buildings, University, Colleges, Normal Schools, Hospitals. together with a group of sixty large photographs, uniformly mounted, providing views of Saskatchewan farming operations, scenes and live-stock. To each individual photograph is attached a description written in English, French and Polish. It was interesting to find, in translating the descriptions, that no such word as "Combine" has yet found a place in the Polish language. Kindred grain containers carrying the Saskatchewan "coat-of-arms" will contain exhibits of Saskatchewan-grown wheat, oats, barley, flax and peas. The Provincial Museum has provided mounted specimens of fur and bird life to be found in the Province

I fall, my feet are bleeding from the stones

Mathematical Genius

Six Year Old Danish Boy Has Dumfounded Scientists

Danish scientists have been dumfounded by the mental antics of a six-year-old mathematical genius. Paul Larsen, whose father is a modest tailor in the village of Hvidovre. On a recent visit to Copenhagen the clubby little fellow multiplied figures with products as high as 10,000 Most of his answers were given in less than ten seconds, and if the calculations of his inquisitors may be relied upon, all of them were accurate. According to his proud father, Paul has displayed his ability at arithmetic since he passed his fourth birthday, and no one has ever taken particular pains to train his mind in that direction. When he is not performing for curious visitors, the child spends his time playing about the streets of his native village

Automobile Accidents

The summer months of July and August undoubtedly witness the heaviest automobile traffic throughout Western Canada. It is during this period that tourist traffic is greatest with foreign cars in large numbers from other Provinces and the United States crossing and re-crossing these prairies. They come from Provinces and States where traffic regulations frequently are different from those in force in these Western Provinces. During this mid-summer period, that which we may term "domestic" traffic is at its peak. Roads are at their best, and following the closing of the schools many of our people tour "on family" while week-end journeyings to summer resorts are much in vogue.

While care in driving is at all times necessary, and with the steady increase in the number of cars in use is becoming a more and more vital matter, it is nevertheless the case that during these summer months extra care should be taken.

There are certain factors to which special attention should be paid, and the importance of which are reinforced as a result of careful investigations into the cause of auto accidents carried out during a period of years. For example one would naturally suppose that the majority of such accidents occur on bad roads, at intersections, curves, etc., but statistics prove that the majority of accidents occur on the so-called "safe" parts of the highways. Apparently drivers are careful on curves and badly surfaced roads, and let themselves go on straight, smooth stretches.

Statistics compiled in the State of Iowa in regard to accidents are certainly illuminating:

10,686 accidents occurred on straight-away stretches where the drivers of the colliding cars had a clear view of the objects with which they were colliding.

7,286 occurred at intersecting roads most of which were due to the fact that one or both vehicle operators were driving at speeds too great to be checked upon perceiving the approach of the second car.

3,568 were caused by failure to grant the right-of-way at street crossings.

940 occurred on curves, caused by the drivers of the two vehicles going in opposite directions "hugging" the "inside" of the bend in the road to help them maintain high speed.

1,169 resulted from driving on the wrong side of the road.

117 were caused by cutting corners

1,788 were caused while ascending and descending hill.

The roads were in the following condition:

28,000 roads were good: 888 were rough. 3,196 were wet. 483 were covered with snow; 1,616 were icy, 186 were sandy; 51 were muddy.

These figures seem to fairly establish the fact that the better the roads, the greater the number of accidents. In other words, where roads are not good drivers are forced to exercise care and because care is exercised accidents are reduced to a minimum notwithstanding that conditions existing would naturally predispose accidents, but where roads are good, drivers become careless, even reckless and, sooner or later, the inevitable result is an accident.

With the present insistent demand everywhere for more good roads, and a still higher standard of good roads coupled with the increasing power of cars and their enormous increase in number, the accident toll on highways is mounting higher and higher. The cause is the very reverse of what might have been expected. It is not defects in our manufactures, because cars themselves are stronger than ever before. It is not road conditions which presumably might ditch a car overturn or damage it.

No it is the human element that is responsible for the mounting toll of accidents. Instead of reaping the benefit of the vast improvements being made drivers are becoming more and more careless, taking ever greater chances becoming less considerate of the other fellow's rights, determined to secure "speed" at all hazards.

Think it over the next time you are tempted to "step on the gas for the sole purpose of seeing and boasting of what your car can do. It may do something you least desire and will forever regret.

NERVE TORTURES

A Condition From Which Both Men and Women Suffer

Hardly any condition of ill health causes more real suffering than a shattered nervous system. And often, unfortunately, but little sympathy is shown for the sufferer. From the mistaken notion that the nerves can be controlled. Men and women with nerves out of gear often become irritable and are blamed for ill temper, when it is not their fault. They poor health is the cause. The tired, worn-out body and mind, whose household cares have worn her thin; the breadwinner whose anxieties have worried him until he is really ill are among the nerve sufferers who become run-down. Their nerves like 'lit bodily organs, need rich, red blood, in fact, more than the organs the simplest treatment is a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which make the blood and builds up the nervous system, and brings good health and cheerfulness. Mrs. M. Cross, Richmond, Que., tells how this medicine cured her nervous troubles. She says—"I have suffered from nervousness and dizzy spells, and the hundred and one things which in such a condition make life a misery. The first thing I found to help me was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After the use of this medicine I found my nerves grew steadier, the dizzy spells grew less frequent, and I became stronger and more active. I think the pills for some time and found that they enrich the blood, build up the nerves and is for me the best tonic for both old and young."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is certainly a most remarkable fact that at this moment the fastest aircraft in the world (the seaplane which won he Schneider Cup), the fastest craft on water (Miss Enga land), the fastest motor car (the Golden Arrow), the fastest passenger liner (the Mauretania), and the fast est locomotive (A. C. W. R. Express) are British all five—British designed, equipped, and operated. We are glad that the British governor's exhibit at the Toronto National Exhibition this year will show five models to remind the world of it.

Britain Has New Industry

Factory In London, England, Makes Stoveless Four From Beans

A factory now completed in North London, marks the beginning of a new British industry which might well attain the importance acquired in recent years by sugar beet or even artificial silk. There flour will be made from soya beans, whose acknowledged nutritive value has now, it is claimed, been made consistent with digestibility.

The soya bean is merely oil protein and fat, and it is devoid of the starch to which dyspepsia is commonly attributed. In soya protein it is four times richer than the best wheat, in fat twenty times richer.

In taste it reminds one of the almond, and bread containing it keeps longer than the ordinary bread. The probability is that it will be used also, as in Austria, for biscuits and confectionery, and the making of a new kind of chocolate.

The factory is to be located at Nizhni Novgorod, on the Volga river, and will be completed within four years.

New Picture Film Invented

Can Be Made Of Cloth and Is Washable

The housewife of the near future may say to her servant:

"Bridget, put those photos of father in the wash and hang them on the line to dry. Be sure to iron them tomorrow, for he is coming on a visit and I want them to look nice and fresh."

Exactly that can be done with a new kind of picture film invented by Dr. E. W. Hochstetter, head of the Hochstetter laboratories.

He is not using the invention for household purposes, but instead is applying it to produce new types of sound picture films, and radio transmitting and receiving apparatus for talking pictures. Several new processes are involved.

The first is making photographic film out of cloth, so that it is washable, ironable and non-inflammable. He says that cotton, silk, linen or even paper can be used.

Along with the new film Dr. Hochstetter announces invention of a new method of recording sound and pictures from the face of the films. Instead of transmitting light through the film he uses a different method of amplification of sound, to get further away from distortion.

Wheat Pool Elevators

When the three provincial units of the Canadian Wheat Pool have completed their 1929 building programme they will be operating a combined total of 1,096 country elevators with a capacity of from 20,000 to 40,000 bushels each. Of this number 1,033 will be in Saskatchewan, 290 in Alberta, and 143 in Manitoba.

Machinery For Shearing

Hand Clippers Used In Australia Only On Pedigree Sheep

Australia's wool clip this season is estimated at about 900,000,000 lbs. from about 100,000,000 sheep. The great bulk of the shearing is done by machinery, although, in the case of pedigree sheep, hand-clippers are generally used to ensure a cleaner and more even cut. Wolseley, who invented the shearing machine, went to Australia from England in the middle of last century. He took up sheep farming soon after his arrival, and brought his first patent in 1874. With the machine steams now in use, an average worker can cut 100 fleeces per day, and totals up to 300 are fairly common.

Ambitious Project

Plan To Pipe Gas From Alberta As Far East As Winnipeg

W. S. Herron, oil operator, announces that a plan for piping gas from Alberta to Winnipeg, serving also Regina, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon, is under consideration. He says that the coal would probably be $50,000,000 and that eastern Canadian and N.Y. capital is interested.

After 10 Years Of Asthma Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy proved the only relief for one grateful user, and this is but one case among many. Little wonder that it has now become the one recognized remedy on the market. It has earned its fame by its never failing effectiveness. It is earning it today, as it has done for years. It is the greatest asthma specific within the reach of suffering humanity.

May Have No Thrills

Nothing is really attractive unless it has the element of risk. This makes one look to the future with melancholy. Every day things are being made safer and safer. Even aviation some day will be safe and sane. The sea is the only danger left. The risks of railroading are diminishing rapidly. What will our grandchildren do for their thrills?

Treatment Accorded To Tourists Bringing Them In Greater Numbers

Every discourtesy to a tourist, every overcharge and every attempt to "soak" him acts like a chain letter condemning Canada, for he tells his friends and they tell theirs. The steadily increasing number of tourist indicates that the "chain letter" has been of a different type, and that the visitors of other years have mostly gone home with golden reports of the treatment accorded them. In regard to the above, it is interesting to point out that American money had summer was at a considerable discount but the merchants here accepted the money at par and paid the discount themselves at the bank. This was courtesy, also good business.

For Frost Bites and Chilblains. — Chilblains come from undue exposure to slush and cold and frost-bite from the icy wind of winter. In the treatment of either an excellent preparation is Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, as it counteracts the inflammation and relieves the pain. The action of the oil is prompt and its application is extremely simple.

ANNUAL EXAMS AGAIN ON; MONDAY WAS FIRST DAY

High school students are again in the midst of their annual examinations, which determine in just how many steps the student is going to move ahead in, and means the end of school days for many of them. Exams for all high schools were started on Monday of this week and the schedule of examinations will not be completed until June 28th. The Grade VIII, or public school leaving tests do not commence until next Monday and conclude on the 28th also.

The primary grades are all writing at the present time and are taking their tests in easy stages, concluding on the 28th.

One of the local high school's most earnest students had her nerves give way in the middle of the Grade XII trigonometry exam on the first morning and had to be taken from the room. Another student, Arnold Ward was taken ill and at time of writing was still on the sick list.

NEIGHBORS WAGE WAR ONE HURT, ONE JAILED

John Zaharuk, farmer of the Elk Point district, is under arrest charged with assault occasioning bodily harm, while Karl Savak, 67-year-old farmer of the same district, is making a brave fight for his life in the Elk Point hospital as the result of injuries received when attacked by Zaharuk. Both men are alleged over the line-off of a road allowance separating their farms.

Savak was struck over the head a half dozen times with a heavy stick, resulting in terrible head wounds. His assailant kicked him and broke two ribs as he was down, his injuries being serious. The injured man was removed to Elk Point hospital where he is now being attended by Dr. Miller.

Zaharuk has been remanded for hearing pending the recovery of his victim.

Fighting Insect Pests In Canada

Estimated Cost Of Depredations Is Over $100,000,000 Annually

The Dominion Entomologist, Arthur Gibson, estimates that in the aggregate insect pests Canada well over $100 000 000 annually. The is the loss to field and fruit crops and he it must be added the loss to forest and shade trees, stored produce, etc. While these latter losses are difficult to estimate they easily average over $50,000,000 a year

Insects are costly. Their control one of the greatest problems with which any country is confronted.

The chief of the bureau of entomology in the United States recently made the statement, "It has become strikingly obvious that insects are collectively the most important enemies of humanity on the earth It has become perfectly plain that if human beings are to maintain their hold on this globe, if they are to continue to exist, they must learn to control these bugs."

That seems to be the recognized situation, and to bear the Dominion Entomologist remark what has been done by the federal department of agriculture in an effort to control insects, shows that the authorities are fully alive to the seriousness of the situation

The economy of such control work is well illustrated in the case of Bark Beetles in Yellow Pine These insects threatened the forests of yellow pine in British Columbia with complete destruction about six years ago The federal and provincial departments of agriculture cooperated to control work, and destroyed more than 80,000 beetle-infested trees The cost of these operations amounted to $100 000 and the yellow pine which it stood saved from total destruction by worth $5 000 000

A similar story might be written respecting grasshoppers the cheese mach beetle, the apple maggot, the insects, the pear psylla, apple bud moth, woody aphis, the western cedar borer sycamore, cut-worms white grubs, etc., etc. It is a case of war to the death of the insects in order that man may live

The entomological branch is protective in every sense of the word, and the Destructive Insect and Pest Act, which the branch administers is one of Canada's most important legislative measures, based as it is on the fact that the best way to control dangerous insect pests and plant diseases is to prevent their introduction

Nations Must Hunch Together

Britain Cannot Do All Debt Paying and Disarming Says Baldwin

"Foreign nations must not expect Great Britain to do all the disarming and debt paying," declared Premier Stanley Baldwin, in a campaign speech at Monmouth, when he announced the work of the League of Nations

"That is not the spirit of the League and covenant," he went on. "We have all got to march forward together and we will march with the quickest, as we have been doing We are marching a little quicker at the moment, but the other nations can put big indefinitely behind The last thing we want to see in Europe spit once more into hostile camps

Alberta Gas Production

Figures published by the department of the interior show that Alberta's natural gas output in 1928 to talled more than 14 199,958 million cubic feet. During the calendar day of the year, January 26, Calgary used 54,000,000 cubic foot, with a peak hourly demand of 60,000,000 cubic feet per day On several other days of the same week approximately 48 000,000 cubic feet were delivered and consumed in the city.

Vegetable Plants Should Be Thinned Out When They Are Small

Beginners in vegetable gardening are almost sure to make the mistake not only of sowing seed much too thickly, but also of leaving the plants too thick in the row. A very large amount of seed is wasted each year because of this and failure to have plants develop properly is another result of more consequence to the value of the seeds than the waste of seed. Thinning of all vegetables to desirable as soon as the plants are large enough to catch hold of, that is, quite small. Lettuce can be used even though the plants are little, but the most satisfactory individual plants of leaf lettuce the plants should be thinned to five or six inches apart and the plants of head lettuce should be thinned to eight inches or more apart. They will not develop satisfactory hearts if much closer than this It has been found in the Horticultural Division, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, writes W. T. Macoun, Dominion horticulturist, that the larger varieties of head lettuce give the most satisfactory results when the heads are nearly one foot apart. Carrots should be thinned to about an inch and one half apart, beets to two inches apart; parsnips to two inches apart; onions to one inch apart; spinach four to six inches apart. Radish if sown rather thinly are thinned as ready for use. Often too many kernels of corn are left in a hill. Five plants are quite sufficient to leave after the cutworms and birds have taken their toll. Beans should be from two to four inches apart, and peas about one inch apart.

Vegetables will not develop satisfactorily if the plants are thick, hence judicious thinning is very important.

The Realms Of Fancy -

People Who Make Believe Escape Drabness Of Daily Round

David Copperfield tells us how he used to escape from his lonely childhood by impersonating his favorite characters in fiction. He went about the house with a valiant Captain of the Royal Navy, in danger of being beset by savages, and resolved to sell his life dearly, if need be. The Captain never lost dignity by having his ears boxed with the Latin grammar, for he was a captain and a hero, in spite of all the grammars in the world. There are still hundreds of children who live with an unseen playmate, or impersonate someone else for weeks at a time. The secret is often kept religiously, for fear of ridicule but those in close touch with children can sometimes get a glimpse of their fantasies. It is good for us all to be reminded of it now and then, and, if the truth were known, many a grown-up still shares his hopes and fears in the visions of future greatness, with his inner self, that unseen companion, with whom he enjoys the day's quiet hours. Life, indeed, might become almost insupportable if we could never escape into the Realmes of our daily round into the realms of fancy

Something Was Flying

It had been a tiring case for everybody concerned. The plaintiff and the defendant were both examined and cross-examined, and everything had had to be explained to them at least twice.

"I understand, my man," said the magistrate at one point, "that the defendant hurled invectives at you?"

The plaintiff scratched his head wildly Then a look of understanding illuminated his ugly face as he replied, "No, sir, to tell the truth, it was only bricks he threw at me; but what I complained about was the terrible way he swore at me when they missed"

Very Descriptive

It was visiting day at the insane asylum One of the inmates imagined himself to be an artist, and he was busily engaged with dabbing at an empty canvas with a dry brush. A visitor, wishing to humor him, asked what the picture represented

"That," said he, "is a picture of the Israelites being pursued through the Red Sea."

"Where is the sea?"

"Why that's rolled back to allow the Israelites to pass."

"They've just gone by"

"Then where are their pursuers?"

"Oh they'll be along in a minute."

The Storing Of Eggs

New Methods of Handling Has Greatly Improved Quality Of Storage Eggs

This is the season of heavy egg production when stocks not required for the daily demands of consumers into cold storage to be brought out for use when production is low. The storing of eggs is greatly improved in recent years, so much so indeed, that stored eggs are no longer looked upon with suspicion and doubt. Eggs that go into storage have to be submitted to the candling process which determines definitely their quality. Only those that are in prime condition are ever put away in storage quarters. The workers cold storage for eggs is a highly sanitary place not only in its cleanliness, but also by reason of the manner in which it is maintained. The temperature is held at all times close to the frost line and of such consistency with respect to moisture as to reduce evaporation to the smallest degree. Not only are the eggs graded when put in, but the regulations governing eggs, covered by "The Live Stock and Live Stock Products Act" and administered by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, require that each package shall be so marked that they are brought from the storage chamber to go into consumers.

The grades established in Canada is what is known as dry cold storage into which eggs are placed in their natural state. In Western Canada many of the eggs are put through an additional process before being placed in the storage quarters. The fresh eggs are immersed for an instant in hot oil which not only sterilizes but seals up the shell, preventing evaporation from within and contamination from without. After treatment in this way the eggs are put through a cold blast, another which removes the excess oil and restores the bloom of a fresh egg. They are then packed in the usual way. With the marketing of only graded eggs, whether fresh from the farm or out of storage, the Old Country trade has been almost wholly instated to egg merchandising.

Egypt Has Large University

Number Of Students Is To Be Increased To Five Thousand

One of the biggest universities in the world, if it may properly be called a university, is that of Al Azhar, at Cairo, Egypt. It has no fewer than 14,000 students.

But the students pay no fees and the professors get no salaries. The teachers make their living by private tutoring while the students make their way by copying manuscripts or reciting the Koran. The university, however, is limited to the Koran, for it is an Islamic school. Church doctrines and decisions in church law affecting all members of that faith have long come from the university. The plan now is to modernize the school and raise the standards, and the first rule adopted was that the number of students should be limited to 5,000.

"Lend me five dollars, will you?"

"Sorry, but I have but four dollars and ninety-five cents."

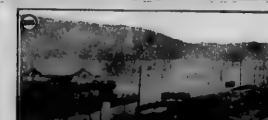
"Well, give me that. I'll trust you for the other quarter."

Wolf: "The doctor said he would make a diagnosis of my case What's the first thing he'll do?"

Lewis: "It's the Latin term for 'five hundred dollars.'"

"What is your son taking at the university?"

"All we can send him."



Vancouver Base of Large Coast Fleet

Tourist travel is showing an early upward swing on the Pacific Coast, with many travellers utilizing the splendid fleet of the British Columbia Coast Steamships Service. The above photograph taken in mid-April, shows the second largest pier on Granville Street waterfront, every inch of docking space occupied by Canadian Pacific steamers plying the triangle Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle route, and the Alaska West Coast and Gulf Island runs Beginning at the left front of the pier, the ships are: "Princess Adelaide," "Princess Victoria," "Princess Mary," "Princess Royal," "Princess Elaine," "Princess Alice," "Princess Norah." The latter ship shown in the right foreground, is the new West Coast vessel which carried the recent vice-regal party on their cruise.

The Value Of Suggestion

Rural Paintings Would Result In Children's Love Of Farm Life

Has pictures have long been the source of inspiration to wanderers who have answered the call of the open road and gone down to the sea in ships, reads an article in the May issue of "Successful Farming." It is suggested that paintings of rural scenes, especially animals, may instill the desire in a child to become a farmer.

"It would seem that parents who are desirous of having their boys and girls remain on the farm, choosing a country environment in which to spend their lives, should not overlook the value that pictures may have in influencing their children. Pictures of animals, and of landscapes that depict the peace, beauty, and charm of rural scenes, are surely the most suitable for all lovers of the country to hang in their homes. This type of picture has been painted by many great artists, and colored reproductions of them can be obtained at a very moderate price.

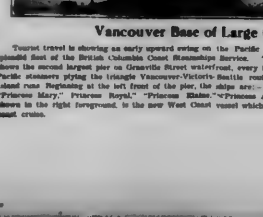
"There are so many suitable pictures that only a few can be named such as 'Horse Fair,' 'Ploughing,' 'Sheep,' 'Springtime,' 'Cow and Calf,' and 'Horses at Watering Trough.' Then there are the beautiful pictures of lovely landscapes that cannot fail to capture any lover of rural scenes: 'Hay Wain,' 'Landscape,' 'Landscape With Cattle,' 'Harvest Wagon,' 'Bankside Hills,' and 'Autumn Calm.'"

Nature a Good Provider

Natural gas from 250 wells away will soon heat the potatoes in San Francisco and other California cities through thither through pipes reported at the joints so as to form a continuous line, Old Mother Earth is also said to be providing not only a little but generous co-operation is given her.

Hydro-Electric Energy

The daily average generation of electric energy from water power in Canada was 49,475,000 kilowatt hours in March, an increase of nearly 9 per cent. over the same month of last year.



The Illustration Stations

Purpose In To Demonstrate the Value Of Soil Packing Crops

Answering a question about the operation of the Illustration stations supervised by the Experimental Farms Branch, asked by a member of Parliament in the House of Commons, the Hon. Dr. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, explained that the government does not operate the 136 illustration stations distributed over Canada, but the Dominion does give he operators some assistance. He said, "The illustration areas at Canada's farms include only that part of it fronting on a well travelled road and varies in area from about one to ten forty acres. For the privilege of saying what crops shall be grown, what rotation shall be followed, and how and when cultural operations shall be performed, the Department pays the owner or operator a small amount ($2 per acre) each year. The purpose of these stations is to demonstrate the value of the different crops, the cultural methods and the rotations that have been found to give the best results. The work is carried out on farms only where conditions are judged to be similar to those which maintain on the illustration station under consideration."

"The crops harvested off these illustration stations are of course the property of the men operating them."

A Subject For Thought

Prejudice Against Immigrants From Europe Not Always Justified

Six years ago a young Englishman, great boy, Leo Malania, landed in Canada. He was utterly ignorant of the English language. Yesterday, competing with fifteen Canadian-born boys of English ancestry, all classmates of their and born in the oratorical championship of Ontario. His subject, significantly enough, was "The Undiscovered Country."

This should give us thought. We have people among us, well-intentioned souls and others who would shut out all immigrants unless from the British Isles. They may be right; but when one thinks about the young protégé, Leo Malania, and the subject of the discourse with which he achieved his triumph, it challenges doubt.

After all, the great nations of the earth did not achieve their present status by keeping their breed pure. They are, on the contrary, a mixture of many races.

The application of a little history to some of Canada's problems might do a lot of good.—Ottawa Journal.

A Flattering Likeness

Sandy had recently had his photograph taken, and, being pleased with it, took it round to show a friend, at the same time asking his opinion. His friend looked it over very critically, and then remarked, "Man, Sandy, it's no flattering, isn't it?"

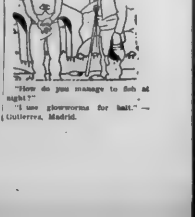
"Flattering?" said Sandy. "What makes you think that?"

"Well," replied the other, "I see you have your hand in your pocket."

Airplanes In Rail Survey

The Dominion government will lend two airplanes to assist in the joint survey of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, which is being made by the province of British Columbia and the Canadian Pacific Railways and Canadian Pacific Railway.

Canada ranks third in importance as a source of metals of the platinum group, after Russia and Colombia.



"How do you manage to fish at night?"

Sulphur Dusting For Rust

Application Of Sulphur Greatly Increases Less From Rust

While production by breeding of rust-resistant varieties of wheat is now regarded as the most highly method of relief from losses from rust, it has been proved that application of sulphur to the crop during crop will greatly reduce the rust infection. The botanical division of the experimental farm at Ottawa has carried on dusting experiments in Manitoba. In 1926 preliminary experiments were carried out by a horse drawn duster. Further work was done in 1927. Marquis wheat was sown on June 10 in four-acre plots separated by seven-foot roadways. Dusting began on July 18, and was continued for eight weeks. The plot was dusted twice a week at the rate of 15 pounds per acre. Another plot received eight weekly applications at the rate of 30 pounds per acre. In the third plot dusting was delayed until the 15th of August, but in four-acre plot at the rate of 45 pounds to the acre at each of three weekly applications. The fourth plot was left undusted. The method of doing the work and the results are contained in section III. of report of the division of botany of the experimental farms for 1927. The plots that received two applications a week of 15 pounds to the acre for eight weeks gave a much better crop than the unchecked plot. The increase in yield was 13.7 bushels the acre of wheat, that graded amber 4, as compared with food wheat from the check plot. The low grades from the sulphured plots was due to unfavourable weather conditions including frost. Even the best that received only two weekly applications at the rate of 45 pounds to the acre, yielded 11 bushels per acre more than the check plot. From the standpoint of net returns the weekly applications of 30 pounds per acre proved to be more profitable, the net increase in value per acre due to dusting being $15.28. While this experiment has proved that dusting can be depended upon as an economic practice, the experiment does not indicate that sulphur dust when heavy enough and applied sufficiently often will control rust in growing wheat.

A Big Wheat Field

Prairie Provinces Produce Over Ninety Per Cent. Of Wheat Grown In Canada

Throughout Western Canada farmers have been busy seeding one of the world's largest wheat fields, for it extends over about 22,000,000 acres. Last year the Dominion produced 533,571,700 bushels of wheat from 26,119,140 acres, over ninety per cent. of which was grown in the three prairie provinces Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. This year it is estimated about 23,000,000 acres will be sown to wheat in Canada.

Wheat is one of the most important food products in many countries, and the Dominion is one of the world's chief sources of supply Canada is the largest exporter of wheat and sells it to 47 countries.

The bulk of the crop is marketed by the Canadian Wheat Pool, a farmers' co-operative marketing organization, the largest of its kind in the world

To Canada, wheat has been a veritable economic fairy. No other crop or natural product has exercised such a vitalizing influence upon the commercial life of the country as wheat, and it still ranks first.

Canada is the best customer of the United States and the extent of the buying power of Canada in the United States depends to a large extent upon the wheat crop.

Will Collect Oil Royalties

Government Will Put Regulation Into Effect Next January

Ottawa. The regulation enabling the government to collect royalties on all produced on Dominion Crown lands leased to private companies will be put into effect on January 1, Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, told the House in committee. The regulation which was passed some years ago but has never been put into effect, provides that after a company has been producing oil for five years, a royalty not less than 2½ per cent. and not exceeding five per cent. of the output, or five per cent. of the value of the product of the locality at the discretion of the minister shall be collected

Urges Woodlot Farming

DEFINES POSITION IN RESPECT TO LABOR MINISTRY

London, Eng.- Defining his attitude towards the new Labor ministry, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, at a luncheon of the National Liberal Club said:

"We shall await with interest the forthcoming declarations of ministerial policy, but we must declare that so far as it lies in our power the mandate of the government shall when it falls to pursue a Liberal policy. The very hour the ministry decides to depart from sound economic administration, its career ends."

"The result of the election," he said, "has elevated our party to a position of responsibility for national affairs, second only to that of the government of the day. During the life-time of the present Parliament the final word in all controversial issues between the older parties will rest with us. We must not use the power given us by the electors in a party fashion or persistently. We must interpret our responsibility in a large and generous way, that is, in the truly Liberal sense.

"This government has been called into being by the verdict of the nation, nor by the decision of any Parliament, but on the advice of the leaders of the Tory party. It has been brought into being by Mr Baldwin's midwifery.

"The nation has declared by a majority of 150 that it had suffered has no use for Socialism or the Socialist party.

"The trouble in this majority is made up almost entirely of Liberal votes and both the Tories and the Socialists are dependent entirely to ignore the Liberals. Mr. MacDonald thanks the nation for the confidence placed in his party, but the press assumes the national verdict indicated a preference for a Socialist administration. The nation as a party which has the support of 5,300,000 citizens is not taken into account by the two parties in their reckoning of the present situation or in their estimates of future prospects.

"The Liberals stand today between this country and out and out Socialism. Unmoved by the knowledge that they are there has already had its influence, Does anyone imagine this is the kind of ministry you would have if the Liberals had obtained an independent majority?"

Arrange Direct Express Service From Europe

New Agreement Will Ensure Quick Despatch Of Parcels

Montreal, Que. — Arrangements have been completed between the "Compagnie Internationale Des Wagons-Lits et des Grands Express Europeens" and the Canadian Pacific Express Company for a direct express service from all European countries, according to the information received at Canadian Pacific express offices.

Parcels handled in at any of the offices of the Compagnie internationales throughout Europe will be forwarded direct by the famous crack trains of that company to points where the Canadian Pacific Express maintains receiving offices, whence they will come to this country on Canadian Pacific steamers.

Sending parcels to Canada has always been a somewhat hazardous business, at say rate from remote points in Europe where no adequate local express service is in operation. By virtue of the new agreement existing between the two companies it will now be as safe and quick as sending a parcel from one's Canadian city to another.

Found Guilty Of Murder

Woman and Male Accomplice In Murder Case Will Be Hanged

Hull, Que.—Philibert Lefebvre, and Mrs. Mary Vien Montpelier, Que. were found guilty at the Hull assizes of the murder of the woman's husband, Zephyr Vien, by poisoning, and were sentenced by Mr. Justice L. S. Belanger, to be hanged on Friday, August 23, at the Hull jail. The jury was out only 25 minutes.

Both the accused lasted over an hour. Judge Lorranger described the poisoning as one of the most diabolical crimes. There was no doubt, he said, that the murder had been planned for months.

Counsel for the accused showed that Lefebvre had provided Mrs. Vien with strychnine knowing that the poison would cause death. Zephyr Vien had been very poor and every winter went away to work in the lumber camps, his absence Lefebvre had visited the shack.

When asked if they had anything to say in the sentence of death, they should not be passed upon them, both prisoners muttered, "I am innocent and I ask for clemency."

New Grain Board

A Board Composed Of Younger Men To Be Appointed Soon

Ottawa.—The cabinet is now considering the appointment of a new board of grain commissioners. The members of the old board, it is understood, are to be retired, and a board composed of younger men is to take their place.

The only appointment seriously considered so far is that of a successor to Thomas Boyd, the chairman of the board, and, undoubtedly, this position will be offered to Mr. Justice Turgeon, of Saskatchewan. It is thought here, however, that he will decline to accept. In this event, it is believed that the post will also be offered to Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior.

Suggests Earlier Sessions

Ottawa. A suggestion that in future parliamentary sessions should open in November and conclude on or about the first day of May, was made in the House of Commons by William Irvine, U.F.A., Wetaskiwin. Mr. Irvine expressed the opinion that the present practice of meeting parliament in February and continuing the session until well on in the summer months was an injustice to the members personally and to those from the maritime provinces.

Dirigible Goes On Strike

London, Eng.—Completion of the new British dirigible R-100 on schedule appeared impossible because of the failure to settle a strike of about 30 workmen. Officials at the Howden Airship Works said the strikers insisted that the dispute be settled through direct negotiations with the Union. The R-100 will be one of the largest airships in the world. It was to undergo tests next month.

No Increase For Judges

Ottawa. Having learned that parliament would not support an increase in judges' salaries, he did not think it desirable to attempt to force such a measure through, declared Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, in the House of Commons. When the time came, and parliament was in a mood to endorse such an increase, he would make no delay, the minister said.

Fliers Have Narrow Escape

Rescued By Canoeist When Plane Was Wrecked In Lac la Ronge

Prince Albert, Sask.—A small pontoon Moth plane of the Dominion Explorers Company, was wrecked in Lac la Ronge, and Pilot Kelly and one passenger had a narrow escape, when they were rescued by a canoeist, according to reports reaching here.

The upper and lower wings of the aeroplane were wrecked and the machine damaged generally when the plane struck the water and turned over. The pilot and passenger were thrown out into the lake and were picked up by the canoeist.

King Resumes Few Duties

Is Now Able To Look After Part Of Work

London, Eng.- King George is now sufficiently well to resume many of the functions delegated by him to a council of state, but will not yet assume his full duties.

Among the duties which His Majesty will now transact will be all business connected with dominion affairs. But it was presented to His Majesty, that, for the proper preservation of his health, he should not for the time being resume all functions he had delegated.

MANITOBA MAY ACCEPT TERMS ON RESOURCES

Ottawa.—Terminating a political issue which has disturbed both provincial and federal politics for more than a decade, the transfer of the Manitoba natural resources commission was tabled in parliament recently.

In brief, the report which consists of 46 printed pages, recommends:

(1)—That payment be made by the Dominion to Manitoba of $1,584,-212.68, as the balance due for past arrears.

(2)—The payment to Manitoba of $562,500 annually, from now on, until the population of the province reaches or 800,000.

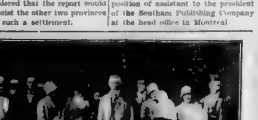
(3)—Increase in this annual payment of $750,000 when the population of Manitoba reaches 800,000.

(4)—Finally, when the population attains the figure of 1,200,000 an increase in the annual payment annually to Manitoba to $1,125,000. This amount is to remain unchanged thereafter.

(5) The wiping out hereafter of an amount of $153,492.82 which has been deducted annually from the subsidy, being the interest on the monies received by the province from the sale of school lands. These school lands were under provincial control, and the capital sum set as the value of the lands was given out of capital as an endowment to the University of Manitoba. Hereafter, this sum will not be deducted from the subsidy.

It is understood here that both the province and the Dominion have agreed to accept the recommendations of the commission, and that legislation implementing these recommendations will be introduced in parliament early in the session of 1930.

The probable effect of the report on the Manitoba situation is that it affects Saskatchewan and Alberta was being canvassed here by the members of parliament. In regard to the payment of the subsidies with statutory increases in perpetuity, it is considered that the report would greatly assist the other two provinces to obtain such a settlement.



Eighteen "Count 'ern", in One Family

The Clan MacLeod arrived in Canada recently by the Canadian Pacific liner "Metagama" at least if it wasn't the whole clan, it seemed like a large proportion. Donald, his brother Kenneth, and his son Allan were leaders of the family group; under Donald's command including grandchildren the party, which is bound on base for Cartwright just numbered twenty-four ranging in age from forty years to six months They had twenty-one pieces of baggage weighing 3,000 pounds.

Hon. W. R. Clubb, who resigned from Bracken cabinet, Manitoba, during Seven Sisters probe, has been reappointed minister of public works.

Sends Farewell Message

Stanley Baldwin and Premier King Exchange Greetings

Ottawa. — A farewell message which former Premier Stanley Baldwin sent to Premier MacKenzie-King, on the day of Mr. Baldwin's resignation, and Mr. King's reply, were made public here. It was explained that publication of the telegrams was delayed until the prime minister's office knew definitely that Mr. Baldwin's message was not intended as a purely personal communication.

Mr Baldwin, under date of June 4th, cabled

"I have today tendered my resignation to the King. On leaving office I should like to send you a message of farewell and express good wishes. It has been a great privilege to work in collaboration with you, and I wish to express my appreciation of the generous help and co-operation during the last four and a half years, in all matters of common interest."

Mr King replied:

"Your telegram, June 4th May I say how deeply appreciate kind personal message of farewell and good wishes. Throughout your tenure of office the most cordial relations have been maintained between His Majesty's governments in the United Kingdom and in Canada. It will always remain a source of deep gratification that I have been privileged to be associated with you in the many important matters of common interest that have marked those years."

Attacks Lloyd George

Former Chief Whip Of Liberal Party Criticizes Methods Of Leader

London, Eng.—A lively attack on Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, is made in a letter to The Times by Viscan Philips, former chief whip of the Liberal party. He says many Liberal candidates with whom he has talked since the election are of the opinion that Mr. Lloyd George is not an asset but a positive liability to the Liberal party

"Only courage will save the party now," he writes. "Courage to turn back on the shams and pretences of the past two years and make a new beginning under new leadership which will inspire public confidence and trust.

"If it will break loose from the degrading bondage of the party funds, if it will follow character rather than cleverness. If it will set honor and principles once again in the place which they have held in the days of its former greatness, it may yet be preserved to wield its old men of authority in the state and be an instrument of beneficient service to this nation and the world."

It cannot make a statement of any kind tonight," Mr MacDonald declared as he was leaving London with Mrs. Snowden, Isobel, for his home in Lossiemouth.

The premier explained he was going to Lossiemouth in order to get a rest and be expected to return again before the opening of parliament on June 25

It is going to be a wonderful thing in a few years when Canada reaps the harvest of goodwill which has been sown by the announcement of Premier Mackenzie King, aligning Canada in support of the interests of the minority peoples."

Turning to reparations, Mr. Roy said that the recent settlement of the war indemnities in Europe was the greatest forward step achieved by the nations since the armistice

CANADA ACCORDS FAIR TREATMENT TO COMMUNISTS

Ottawa.—If there is any instance of a Canadian having been unlawfully treated, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, would like to hear it. This was made the announcer told J. S Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg North Centre, in the House of Commons when the estimates of $3 646 725 25 for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were under review

Mr Woodsworth had declared that the Communists were a political party, but information regarding their activities was being withheld from members of other political organizations. He charged that the government resorted to methods as sending spies to become members of their party meetings and incite to disorders This was a questionable practice. The Communists were regarded by the people as a menace, but if legacy man to be carried out as autocratic elements of the community

Mr Lapointe declared that the function of Mounted Police was to enforce federal law. If in the course of their activities they encountered situations contrary to the peace of the country it was their duty to report. He knew of no evidence of a Canadian having been unfairly treated. If such a one existed he would be glad to hear it

Farmers' And Business Mens' 3-Day Tour
A three-day tour of the central part of the Province is being organized by the Agricultural Society. Although the route has not been definitely decided, it is suggested to go from here to Edmonton, thence south, possibly to Wetaskiwin, and east to Wainwright, and from there home, short stop-overs being made at certain farms where there is outstanding live stock, and other points of interest. The Society proposes writing to the district agriculturists along the route and to the Live Stock Commissioner at Edmonton, advising that this trip is being made and requesting them to arrange for sight-seeing trips and entertainment in their various localities. It is felt that a party travelling like this will be given every consideration in being shown over the various places, for more than one or two persons calling individually, also everyone on the trip will have an opportunity to see how the other fellow does it, and it will be a real get-together for the farmers and business men who may desire to take it in, in addition to the advertising value to Vermilion and district. The expense of the use and oil can be divided among the occupants of the different cars and the other expenses would be negligible.
All those who would like to make this trip are requested to communicate with the Secretary of the Agricultural Society, advising whether they will take their own cars or are desirous of riding with someone else. Six parties have already agreed to take their cars and it destroys that there should be at least twenty in order to make a real representative tour.
It is proposed to leave Vermilion at 9 o'clock sharp on Thursday, July 11th so all who wish to go should send in their names immediately so that the trip can be properly organized.

Former Vermilion Lady Returns From Far North

Mrs. A. E. Jones Well Remembered Locally

The Edmonton Bulletin recently contained a two-column interview relating some of the experiences Mrs. A. E. Jones had encountered during her 15-year sojourn in the far north, being located some 22 miles further north than Fort Vermilion and being one of two white women in that part of the country. Mrs. Jones, together with her husband, Alf. E. Jones, have left the north for good now and are at present in Edmonton. Mr and Mrs. Jones resided in Vermilion for quite a number of years, moving to Edmonton when Mr. Jones returned from overseas after the Great War. From Edmonton they went to the Fort Vermilion country where they have lived until recently. Mr. Jones being engaged in trapping. The family consisting of three boys, all accompanied their parents to the north but subsequently grew up and are now in the East

MACKENZIE — CASE

The marriage at Madeleine, daughter of Mr and Mrs Curtis Case, to Mr Robert John Mackenzie, son of Mr and Mrs. William E. Mackenzie of Vermilion, was solemnized in St. John's church, Joseph's Place, on Tuesday evening, the Rev. Canon W. Leversedge officiating.

The floral decorations were carried out in lilacs, wood roses and peonies and the soloist was Mrs. George F. Johnston. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely gown of ivory crepe, her tulle veil was held closely in her head with circlets of orange blossom arranged in coronet design and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley

Miss Hazel Case was her sister's bridesmaid and little Miss Eleanor Widmer was flower girl. Miss Case was frocked in primrose taffeta and wore a large picture hat of the same shade. Her flowers were pastel pink carnations. The little flower girl was dainty in white organdie and carried a basket of sweet peas.

Edwin Case was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Harold Walker and Mr. Hugo Dreyer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents. A tall line of floral lanterns and ribbons in green and white formed a canopy for the bridal party as they received the congratulations of their friends. Mrs. Case, mother of the bride, received in a gown of navy blue crepe with white accessories and wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

At supper, Mr. John Scott proposed the toast to the bride and Mr. Case the toast to the groom and Lieut. Lloyd and Mr. Walker responded. Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie were the recipients of many gifts, an ensemble of linen from the staff and shower bouquets.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackenzie left by motor for a honeymoon trip to the coast and will be at home after August 1st at 10,849 — 72 Ave., Edmonton.

Apply the Same Principle

During recent years there has been a decidedly better understanding between the east and the west of Canada, and between the Maritime Provinces and the rest of the Dominion, based on closer acquaintance and knowledge of the problems confronting the people in each of the major sections of the far flung country. There is today far less of nationalism, prejudice and misunderstanding than in any previous period of Canada's history and happily the spirit of goodwill and cooperation is growing more and more pronounced.

Anything and everything that will tend to promote this wider knowledge and better understanding should be done and encouraged. We believe goodwill and understanding can only be brought about and maintained by frankness and the dissemination of knowledge. That is, eastern people must be made to know and appreciate the point of view of the west and informed as to the views, opinions and ambitions of the west, and, vice versa, western people must be informed in like manner about the east. And it is particularly the duty of the newspapers of the Dominion to discharge this patriotic duty.

It is in the performance of that duty we would draw attention to a recent editorial article appearing in "The Financial Times" Montreal, dealing with the subject of the revision of the Grain Act. To much of that article no exception can be taken, but the whole difficulty is that it is based upon an entirely wrong assumption. That fact is made abundantly evident in the concluding sentence of the article, as follows: "The important consideration is to protect the buyer, which will at the same time be a safeguard to the dependable reputation of Canadian wheat in all markets."

This may be the eastern viewpoint but we submit the western viewpoint and that is that the word 'producer' should be substituted for the "buyer" in the sentence quoted.

The person entitled to receive first consideration in matters affecting the grading, mixing, transportation of wheat is the man who grows the wheat, not the man who buys it or the man who converts it into flour. The status of Canadian wheat in the markets of the world must remain unimpaired at a high standard, not so much for the benefit of and protection of the British or foreign buyer, but in the interests of and to protect the Canadian farmer who grows the wheat in order that he may obtain full value for his product and ample reward for his labor.

Submitting the western viewpoint for the benefit of eastern people, it may well be asked of "The Financial Times" and other exponents of its dictum that in matters affecting the grain trade of Canada the important consideration "is to protect the buyer," whether it and they are equally prepared to accept the principle that, in matters affecting the customs tariff, the important consideration is to protect, not the manufacturer of the nuances who has invested in manufacturing industry, but the great mass of consumers of Canada the people who "buy" the products of those factories"

If it is the "buyer" of the products of the farm who are deserving of first consideration, and who above all should be protected, then pure logic must force acceptance of the principle that it is the "buyer" of the products of the factories who must likewise be given first consideration, and their interests recognized and protected first and foremost in all matters of tariff or other legislation affecting such industries.

In other words, according to the eastern view, as they would apply it to the farmer, it is not the industry that should be protected, or those who have made investments in industry and labor in it, but the buyers of the products created by such industry. The truth is, however, that when these same interests advance tariff and other arguments in their own behalf they directly reverse the principle, and resolutely contend that it is the producing manufacturers who must receive first consideration and be accorded protection rather than the buyers, i.e. the consuming masses of the Dominion.

Good understanding and complete national co-operation between east and west cannot be built up in this way. It is impossible to apply one principle toward western agricultural industry and an opposing principle to eastern manufacturing industry. The same principle must be applied both ways—and west.

Discover Radium Mine

Find In England Has Already Yield

Business houses are not discovered every day, but some metropolis-quest, while exploring a leaf near Matlock, England, had their candle lights extinguished by bad atmospheric conditions. They are absent of these a dimly lighted cave and a sample of earth taken from the cave was sent to Mme Curie who declared it to contain radium. The mine and estate has been bought for £15,000. Further exploration it is stated has resulted in the discovery of another radio active mine, which is soon to be exploited. The estimated value of the radium already found is $2,000

Settlement Scheme Nears End

Three Thousand Family Settlement Plan Has Been a Success

In a few weeks the 3,000 family settlement scheme will end and no project of like nature will take its place. Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration stated recently. There was no desire to make the project an endless one by replacing persons who had abandoned farms, he said.

The project had been successful in every respect, and Canada had acquired an increase of about 17,000 souls brought it. Already 3,250 families had been brought to Canada under the scheme: a total of 630 families had abandoned their farms for various reasons; 94 had been deported; 72 had returned to Great Britain of their own accord, while 414 remained in Canada in other employment, either in agriculture or other work

WHAT OUR GIRLS NEED

When Languid, Anaemic and Feeling Run Down

When a girl grows languid, dull and irritable, her color fades and she becomes pale, you may be sure that the cause is anaemia, or impoverished blood. The bright, red color of the blood is caused by the presence of millions of tiny red corpuscles. It is these tiny bodies that carry nourishment from the blood to the tissues. They also cause the glow of health in cheek and lips. When a girl's blood is deficient in these vital corpuscles the body is under-nourished, her nerves starved, and there is serious danger of a decline. What is needed is an improvement in the quality of the blood and it is accomplished in this way. Take a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which will so enrich and purify the blood that all traces of anaemia and its accompanying troubles will disappear. As an evidence of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind, Mrs. John Pinnin, Howlan Station, P.E.I., quoted, is am glad to take this opportunity of recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My daughter was in a badly run down condition; very pale, nervous and much under weight. We tried several medicines, but they did not seem to do her any good, so I decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost from the start she began to improve, and after the use of a few boxes she had gained in weight, her appetite improved and she had a better color in her cheeks —in fact she had fully regained her former good health. I would advise every mother of young girls to give them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the first sign of an anaemic condition."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Declares Allies Fear Of Germany Absurd

Only Nation Without Arms Says Minister Of Defence

Dr Wilhelm Groener, minister of defence, in a speech reviewing Germany's military policy charged that the states victorious in the world war have done nothing along disarmament lines and endeavored to show that it was absurd for the allies to claim they could not disarm until they were sure of not be g attacked by Germany

Speaking of present military forces he said,

France has, on European soil, 27 divisions, Belgium six, Poland 30, and Czecho-Slovakia 16 brigades, a total of 76 divisions compared with Germany's seven. Why, I ask, needs security? I can't leave unmentioned that besides these troops, the other nations also possess aviation squadrons, heavy artillery and powerful reserves of trained men and war material of a kind we do not possess or will."

Protects Ship Against Fire

Modern Liners Have Device For Instant Detection Of Smoke

The captain on a modern liner can look into a cabinet and tell at a glance whether fire has broken out, and also in what part of the ship. Go into the hold of any properly-equipped ship and light a cigar; in less than five minutes the captain of the bridge can tell where you are smoking. In the captain's cabinet is a series of glass-topped boxes, one for each hold, through which air is constantly flowing. Ordinarily you can see nothing—all is black; but with the faintest trace of smoke from the hold there suddenly appears against this black background a thin, quivering thread of blue. Fire within the tube is a shielded bulb of brilliant light. As long as the air current is pure this thread is nothing o luminate; but the moment a wisp of smoke flows through, the light rays make it show up against the black background like a meteor.

There are other fire-detecting devices also—devices that betray a fire at the slightest change in temperature. It is after they have performed their work that the modern fire extinguishers are brought into play. These are pipes which by the simple turning of a valve, without opening the hatch or the hold in which the fire has started, can fill that hold with live steam, in which no fire can live. Or one can flood the hold through the same pipes with carbon dioxide, and again the fire is out. With negligible damage to most classes of cargo. Or the hold can be flooded with a substance that flows over the flames like a blanket us thin foam and smothers them

Revising Quota Laws

U.S. Will Admit Double Number Of British Immigrants

Nearly twice as many Britons yearly may enter the U.S. under the immigration quota after July 1. The Senate refused to prevent the national origin clause of the immigration act of 1924 from going into effect on that date.

It follows from the action of the Senate that the quotas of the various nations which send immigrants to the U.S. will be revised. The greatest changes will be in the quotas affecting Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Germany and the Scandinavian countries.

British immigrants to the number of 65,721 will be permitted to enter the country as against the old number of 34,007

Specified Treat For Jasper Park Lakes

Anglers May Expect Real Sport In Canada's Largest Mountain Playground

So successful was the experiment made by the Dominion Government last year in stocking Maligne Lake, in Jasper National Park, with trout, that a quarter of a million more fry are now growing up in the hatchery there, and will be turned loose in the great glacial lake in a few weeks time.

As eggs, the 250,000 travelled to Jasper from Cresco, Pennsylvania, last winter, and so carefully was the precious freight handled by the Canadian National Express that only 70 of the eggs failed to hatch. Arrived at Jasper, the eggs were given into the care of Warden Herbert Davis, who is carefully nursing them along. He feeds the multitude four pounds of chopped liver a day and keeps the water moving and at a proper temperature.

Early in June the fingerlings will be taken out of their trays and transported in tins to Maligne. "The fish put in there last year," says R. Langford, supervising warden, "have done marvellously well and have grown to a good size. They and the new batch are speckled trout. We expect a shipment of rainbow trout in a few weeks for Cabin Lake.

There was a unique and very profitable meeting of the Vermilion Presbytery of the United Church held in the Vermilion church on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. The meeting was called by Rev. T. Rev. C. W. Ross gave to each the allocations for the Maintenance and Missionary Fund, and some of the students were quite quick enough to take a larger amount than allocated in their fields. Lunch was also given by Rev Wilson to make use of the literature sent out by the department, especially on the fund. The satisfaction of owners is proof of its reliability

THROUGH the fine things said about it by its owners . . through their complete satisfaction . . their enthusiastic recommendation to their friends. In this way the world is coming to know the Oakland Olympic Series as a remarkably good and reliable automobile.

It's no accident . . this dependability which is winning so many friends for Oakland. Rather it is the result of Oakland design and construction . . as exemplified by numerous features new to the moderate-priced motor car field.

Reliability itself cannot be demonstrated. But the reasons for it are shown in a special demonstration which we have arranged.

Ask any Oakland owner about its reliability. Then come in . . and we will show you why this car is so dependable.

Vermilion, Alta., June 27, 1929.

The institute of Co-operation which opened its sessions in the Vermilion school of agriculture yesterday morning, is largely attended, both locally and from numerous outside points of the country. It gives every promise of being an outstanding success. Last evening's session was held in the gym hall of the institution and was attended by over two hundred people. Tonight a special musical programme is to be rendered which will be broadcasted.

The service and business men's clubs of the province have decided to [illegible] as a basis arranged by the agricultural society, should meet with general endorsement, and there is no question but that quite a number will take advantage of such an outing as is planned. That it will be thought with much benefit to all who take it in as well as being a most delightful trip, cannot be gainsaid—for there is nothing that tends more towards expanding our views of things and conditions generally than by getting away once in awhile. If only for a few days, from our environment and rubbish shoulders with the [illegible] fellows. The grouping of car [illegible] is an assurance that the individual cost will be very light, and the results of such an outing will more than compensate for any other expenditures which are stated as being [illegible].

Dr. J. A. Baudouin, Professor of Hygiene at the University of Montreal, in the course of a paper he read before the Canadian Public Health Association, made reference to the general admission that infection by the bacillus of tuberculosis occurred in early life and, moreover nearly every adult person was to some extent infected. The main issue of his address was the [illegible] protection by a conferred immunity of recently born infants from the disease through the medium of the B.C.G. vaccine, which was first used in France between 1921 and 1922 by Dr. Uhrvin and Dr. Calmette. Subsequent to this early period administration, Dr Calmette was in a position to publish the [illegible] pronouncement that the vaccine had been instrumental in saving 93 per cent of the children treated, who in the absence of this mode of immunization would assuredly have died from tuberculosis in the first year of life. The record [illegible] had Montreal in 1926, after it had been proved that the vaccine was harmless by extensive experiments from in Paris [illegible] by 1929 so many as 877 babies had been treated there with marked success

Apropos of the recent sewer explosion in Ottawa the following quotation from an editorial article in the Canadian Engineer for September 1924, reprinted in Abstracts of Current Public Health Literature, for April 1929, issued by the Department of Health and National Health of Ottawa, is recommended to the attention of civic officials and others

"Every municipal authority should exercise all his powers to prevent the discharge of waste oils into the sewers, or into any body of water that comes under its jurisdiction. Public garages and gas stations should be so fitted that oil and gasoline are kept out of the sewers. Citizens in general should be given to understand that the public sewer is not the place to get rid of waste oil from crank cases or other parts of automobiles. Dangerous explosions have resulted from the entrance of oil and gasoline into sewers and it is almost a crime that any of the sewers for such a purpose. At the same time municipal authorities should realize that waste oil must be got rid of and make provision for its collection and disposal commercial interests are not prepared to make some use of the waste in [illegible] NY. waste oil is collected as a [illegible] in garbage disposal plants and has resulted in remarkable reduction in the cost of incineration."

It is reported that the enquiry being held in Ottawa in connection with the explosion will result in very stringent regulations being recommended in connection with the discharging of waste oils into the sewers.

Those who have private systems of sewage disposal should also bear in mind that it is exceedingly dangerous to discharge waste oils into septic tanks.

New style bucket seats for first class coaches on Canadian Pacific day line trains have been introduced on regular trains of the company and are proving very popular. The seats are upholstered in a real comfortable material and are provided on their heads with coat rail, umbrella stand and ebonite holder for the convenience of passengers.

The stork recently visited Canada Pacific train No. 7 between Lethbridge and Medicine and left a daughter to Mrs. Margit Alexander on her way with her husband to settle on a farm near Edmonton. Mrs Binning, government conductress of the immigration department at Quebec, was on the train. She secured a first aid kit from the conductor and took charge of the case. Mother and daughter are doing well.

The annual trail ride to the Canadian Rockies will start from Banff August 1, and end a few days later at Davis Mountain Dude Ranch camp. Seven glacier-fed lakes are on the route which will form half of the long-desired High Line Trail from Banff to Lake Louise. The second half will also exist several years hence. About August 8 the long distance trail ride from Lake Louise to the Columbia wetland will make a start. This method covers the largest and most spectacular body of scenery in all North American continent outside of Alaska at high as 12,000 feet. The second trail ride will take nearly three weeks.

The only paid display offered on the continent of America by His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales Cup, presented to the Banff Spring Golf Club for annual competition by local fair amateurs on the course there, will be among the outstanding prizes of golfdom when members of the "Canadian Golfer" tour—during which will be crossing Canada from Toronto to Victoria and back this summer, arrive at Banff early in September.

Scotland and Glasgow are proud of Canada for the part she is playing in Trans-Atlantic shipping," said T. L. Duff, well-known shipowner and broker, when interviewed at Banff recently. "The building of a ship directly employs about a dozen craftsmen on the Clyde," he added "and the supplying of the materials and fittings required in construction indirectly benefits a dozen thousand Scotland." Mr. Duff said that Scots felt that the Canadian Pacific whose recent ship orders had done so much for Scottish industry, was no touch Scotch as Canadian, the formation having been of Scottish descent and so many of the ships of Scottish construction.

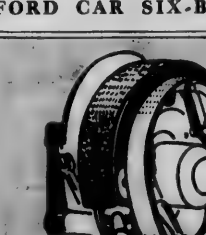
THE FORD CAR SIX-BRAKE SYSTEM



Grips with Silent Power

THE greatest safety feature on any automobile—the braking system—has been developed on the Ford car to a degree that insures absolute driving confidence. Being fully enclosed, the internal expanding brakes on all four wheels are free from any danger of impaired performance from mud, sand, road dirt, grease or other foreign matter entering the mechanism or between the bands and drum.

The four wheel system is operated by a foot pedal, while the emergency or parking system of two brakes, one on each rear wheel, is distinct and separate, operated by a hand lever. This added security is made possible through the unique design of the Ford steel spoke wheels to which drums are fitted to accommodate two sets of internal brakes on the rear wheels.

The smooth, even braking of the Ford car yields more advantages than maximum safety at all times, since it makes tires last longer and adds immeasurably to riding ease and driving comfort.

Warning Was Disregarded

Cleveland Clinic Told In April That Film Used Was Dangerous

Cleveland, Ohio.—Following an attempt to fix the blame but pointing out that the Cleveland clinic had been warned of faulty X-ray storage, which cost 123 lives by fire and poison gases, May 15, Coroner A. J. Pearce completed his inquest after a month of investigation in a report on file with official county records.

The warning was sent to the Ohio inspection bureau of fire underwriters' investigating service last April. It called attention to the fire hazard in the type of film used at the clinic, urged use of another kind and advised clinic officials that a fire, if burned, would generate great clouds of noxious fumes. The film was stored in the basement and was ignited by a means not determined in the investigation.

The report placed the official number of dead at 123. They were killed by a combination of nitrogen peroxide gas with carbon monoxide the coroner said.

Toronto.—The Toronto Globe published the following despatch from its Ottawa correspondent:

"Tariff changes which will have a revolutionary effect on Canada's external trade, are under consideration by the Dominion cabinet. In response to demands from all parts of the country for action, the government was taking preliminary steps toward what will undoubtedly be the most drastic revision of fiscal policy of the present century.

"Present prospects are that the vital changes will take the form of a material increase in the British preference, if not the inauguration of complete 'free trade' on the bulk of British or Empire goods, while the general tariff, which applies to imports in the United States will remain stationary."

DRIVE AGAINST RUM RUNNERS ALONG BORDER

Windsor, Ont.—With a warning by Attorney-General Price that crime would not be permitted within the borders of the province of Ontario and with the United States blockade tightening, rum runners are confining their activities along the border. Reports told of feverish activity at the export docks as cargoes of liquor destined for United States river and lake ports were being loaded.

Aroused by the reports of the kidnapping of a newspaper photographer and revolver battle between rum-runners and a United States custom patrol cutter, Attorney-General Price announced that it necessary he would double the provincial police along the Windsor-Niagara Falls sector to protect Canadian interests.

It is along this section of the border that the battle lines are most closely drawn due to recent strength ening of the United States preventative forces

As a result of the statement of the attorney-general, the rum-runners may find their activities on the Canadian side of the line more restricted. The attorney-general was emphatic that crime would not be permitted within the borders of the province

Meanwhile, reports from border points indicated that despite the drive against the rum-runners, activity at the border export docks continued. Rum-runners were reported active at many points.

A party of rum runners engaged in a pistol battle with a United States customs patrol cutter, the cutter being forced to return to port after being peppered with bullets, while the rum-runners retreated to the Canadian shore. The rum-runners crowded behind logs, apparently protected by the cabin of the boat, changed shots with the customs men.

At Dunkirk, N.Y., two men were arrested when a United States coast guard boat captured a motor boat loaded with beer.

Two recent developments were placed before Dominion government officials. The department of external affairs received a report on the incident at Sandusi a when it was claimed a private speed boat was engaged in the liquor traffic, was fired on by a United States patrol boat. Should further investigation warrant, the department will make a protest on this affair. The department of national revenue was notified of the kidnapping of the photographer. A border cities newspaper but the publication was expressed that it did not come within the scope of the department.

Alberta Adopts Old Old Age Pension

Government Now Accepted By All Provinces In West

Ottawa.—Answering the communication of Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor, informing them that an order-in-council had authorized his proceeding to negotiate with Alberta for the old-age pension scheme, the government of that province telegraphed acceptance of the plan.

When the Dominion cabinet meeting approved the scheme for Alberta Mr Heenan acted immediately and the reply came back to him within a short time of Alberta's notification Alberta will adopt the pension system starting August 1, 1929. British Columbia Saskatchewan and Manitoba have for some years enjoyed the old-age pensions scheme. Alberta's entry into the scheme links up the entire west in the movement.

Lindbergh Sends Message Of Congratulation To Trans-Atlantic Fliers

Paris - Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and Armeno Lotti, Jr., received by cable congratulations from Col Charles Lindbergh, for their trans-Atlantic flight from Old Orchard, Maine, to Cuntilles, Spain. in the Yellow Bird.

The colonel's message, addressed to all three of the aviators, said: "On returning to New York I have just learned of your successful crossing. Please accept my sincere congratulations and best wishes."

The French fliers immediately replied him in reply

We thank you heartily for your affectionate telegram Our greatest claim to glory has been to have followed the route you traced two years ago with incomparable mastery in your flight from New York to Paris.

Your magnificent example of courage, of tenacity, of science as a pilot and navigator guided us every moment of our route. We address to you our most cordial and respectful salutations."

WILL NOT FOLLOW LEAD OF U. S. IN SHAPING TARIFF

Grand Bend, Ont. Independence of action on tariffs in the part of the government and upward revision of tariff schedules by the United States, being a matter entirely for the United States to decide safe from any retaliation or reprisal on the part of the Dominion, Tim was the keynote of addresses by Hon Rene Lapointe, minister of justice Hon J C Elliott, K.C., minister of public works and Hon W S Fdler, minister of national revenue who spoke at a picnic here under the auspices of the South Huron Liberal Association

Mr Lapointe made extended reference to policies advocated by Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, at present on a tour of western Ontario

The remedy he suggests is that we should adopt American methods in our fiscal policy," Mr Lapointe said. "But our ideas and ideals are Canadian and British, and we won't follow American methods. We will shape our policies, fiscal and other, to use at Ottawa We must take them from Washington

We are satisfied with Canadian methods and British doctrine and if necessary we will mind other affairs for our trade We always have in mind Canadian interests even when I have not the Canadian people been satisfied with the way our fiscal policies have been shaped under Mr Robb, whose budgets we are proud to mention during the last election"

We have not been dictated to by American theories We have tried to meet the problems of Canada and conditions were at the time British preferential trade treaties form the basis of our policy

"The opposition lately has been coming to adopt that policy but the fathers of British preference were the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and the Rt Hon W S Fielding From the start it was successful and to the credit of Canada and the Empire it saved the fair trade policy of Canada. Conditions are very different now from what they were when Mr Bennett was in power. Canada is now a nation and is able to fight for herself and to defend herself against any attack. Our guarantee of success is within ourselves We continue to improve our methods of production and you may be sure our prosperity will continue."

PREDICTS WHEAT PRICES WILL BE HIGHER 1929-30

Washington.—Using condition reports received from all over the world, the United States Department of Agriculture announced that, exclusive of Russia and China, a world wheat crop five per cent. smaller than last year was to be expected for the 1929-30 season

This reduction, the department said, would probably more than offset the 1928-29 carry-over and "it therefore seems likely that world market prices for wheat through the 1929-30 season will average somewhat higher than they have through the 1928-29 season"

The department summary of prospects was made up from seeding. The area sowing and area remaining for harvest up to June 12 The crop to be harvested was expected to represent approximately the same as that of the past year, but higher crop forecasts reported to date were expected to be more than offset by lower yields in Canada Argentine and some European countries

The latest report of the department said would likely be about 150,000,000 bushels in excess of the stocks on hand July 1 last year The United States the carryover may be as low as 225 millions or as high as 250 millions bushels by July 1 depending on how much will have disappeared as feed or in other ways during the year

The new season with an estimated crop of 900,000,000 bushels and a carry-over of 170,000,000 bushels will give a total supply 1,060,000 bushels Exports to July 1, were estimated at 100,000,000 bushels as compared with 240,000,000 bushels exported last year

VISITING SUNNY ALBERTA'S CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Rows of little white cots out of doors on the sunshine, wheelchairs in the shade, boy boys and small girls on crutches and little toddlers and smaller crawlers—such was the sight that met the view of Red Cross visitors on a June afternoon in Edmonton as they stood at the crippled children who are patients in the Junior R-1 Cross unit of the University Hospital.

It was of special interest to observe the nationality of the little folk. A little form sat up in bed with all the dignity and immobility of a bronze Buddha and stared calmly at the strangers. It was little Cherry Blossom from Japan, whose mother is in the T.B. Sanatorium and whose father travels in from his work in the country to visit his little three-year-old girl daily seeming better. Miss Japan has made great strides since entering the Red Cross wards.

From the solemn slow smile of her almond eyes we turned to the dark-skinned southerner with woolly curls closely cropped leaning over his cot to point his toy gun at some tiny tot there. Smiling from ear to ear and revealing dazzling pearls of teeth, Sambo assured us he is "Fine, thank you"

On then to a little Scandinavian maiden whose only language is her gentle manner and sunny smile, for has a word of English can she speak. Norma took her bow to my "Thank you" and "Strong" and she is learning the Canadian greeting "Hello."

Lonely one bed is a group of older girls all of whom are taking lessons daily from the visiting school teacher. Grades from one to eight are according to their several ability the children progress. The tedium of life in hospital is thus greatly relieved, while at the same time a thorough education is given.

The last visit was paid to the nursery where a tiny girl baby was making eyes at a little boy of a year old. Both babes had deformed feet, and pot true to tradition were endeavoring to reach the limb tons that peeped out from the coat of plaster. The visitors were delighted with what they saw and standing by the "Tiny Tim Cot" received to do their part for "The Land of These."

Motorists' Guide Is Being Issued

Government Preparing Synopsis of Motor Vehicles Act for Motorists

For the sake of motorists who don't know, a folder is now being printed for distribution with the government's compliments, in which will be given a synopsis of the motor vehicles act, a list of the things that must not be done in or with an automobile, the rules of the road, a summary of the chief points necessary for a driver to know, and some hints on careful safety first driving. A number of illustrations showing the signals in common use throughout the country will also be given.

This little pamphlet is expected to be ready about the end of this week and will be available at the motor license office for applicants for driver's licenses and others interested. The reason for issuing it is said by E. Trowbridge, deputy provincial secretary, to be the fact that a lot of people acknowledge unfamiliarity with the provisions of the Alberta motor laws, and this will be an effort to make the information readily accessible and understandable.

Famous Band At Edmonton Exhibition

One of the most interesting features of the Edmonton Exhibition, 50th Anniversary Celebration, July 15 – 20, will be the daily concerts given by the Band of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

This regiment which distinguished itself so greatly during the Great War was, in order to perpetuate its name, made a unit of the Canadian permanent force at the close of the war. As such its band has achieved a very high standard of excellence, and has met with the greatest success when touring in the United States and Great Britain. Everywhere in the States Captain T. W. James, the musical director and the members of the Band were received with the greatest enthusiasm, and there was no limit to the praise given their playing. At the North Dakota State Fair, the crowd overflowed the stands and bleachers in order to hear the evening performances of the band, and similar receptions were met with elsewhere. In London, England, the visit of the band was prolonged by request, concerts were crowded and the band's programs were broadcasted to the pleasure of millions of listeners.

There is no doubt that this band will be a great success at the Edmonton Exhibition.

WHEAT POOL NEWS BULLETIN

The Alberta Wheat Pool has fixed July 15th as the closing date for the 1929 29 Pool. There are quite a number of Pool farmers who have still a little wheat on hand and they are advised this must be delivered by July 15th, otherwise it will go in with next year's pool

** ** **

The Supreme Court of Canada has decided in favor of the Alberta Wheat Pool contention in the W. W. Kaufman suit. The Supreme Court judgment sustained the judgment of the Supreme Court of Alberta which was that the matter in dispute was one for arbitration and not for legal action.

** ** **

According to reports from Ottawa the Federal Government is bringing into effect legislation which will greatly reduce mining of wheat in terminal elevators. The Wheat Pools have strongly urged that the government should take steps to limit the mining evil.

** ** **

The Canadian Journal of Commerce in a recent issue states: "Despite the large crop of last summer Wheat Pool members have excellent reasons to be thankful that their crop was not subject to the vagaries of the pages of the Chicago and Winnipeg Grain Exchange whose primary object is quite naturally, and under former conditions quite properly, to buy and sell at a profit to themselves."

The Alberta Wheat Pool has discontinued broadcasting for the summer months, as has been its custom in the past. The Pool will resume radio work this coming fall

Drivers Warned Of Dangers Due To Hitch Hikers

All over the country war is being declared on "hitch hikers" or "ride beggars." The feeling among motor clubs is that this is something that must be stamped out and the sooner the better.

The season is now about to open for those "thumb tourists" as motorists are urged to be their guard, no matter how sympathetic they may feel to the roadside applicant. It is from all standpoints a pernicious practice, fraught with grave dangers to the car owner who has nothing to the identity of the stranger.

Officials of the Alberta Motor Association have on numerous occasions sounded a warning as to this "picking up" practice which, no doubt, is just as common in this province as in other parts of the country. Too often, owners of cars have found themselves looking as calmly as possible into the barrel of a revolver, or finding it necessary to lose no time in turning the car over to the mercies of the stranger.

Genuine cases, in which lifts would no doubt be justified, doubtless are discovered from time to time. But the fact that grave dangers are risked in a large number of cases make it imperative that car owners be urged to utilize the space in their machines for themselves, their families or their friends.

'Arabian Nights' At Edmonton Exhibition

There are few people who have not heard or read some of the tales of the "Arabian Nights" and are aware of their delightful oriental setting, serving as a vehicle for all kinds of colorful effects and brilliant costuming.

These stories will be the theme of the grand evening pageant to be given every evening at the Edmonton Exhibition, 50th Anniversary celebration July 15 – 20, and with a thousand performers participating, the pageant is going to be a very magnificent affair.

Recall the magic happenings in the stories of Sinbad the Sailor and Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp, the vastness of the scenes, their grotesque yet beautiful character, it can be well realized that the parents is going to be something extraordinary

As the performance proceeds a brief summary of the stories will be given over the loud speakers in front of the grand stand so that the audience will be able to follow the thread of events

Music and lighting effects will add to the brilliance of the scenes

85 DEGREES IN THE SHADE — AND HAPPY

It is 85 in the shade at this juncture written, with every prospect of being warmer. Half an hour ago a young mother was giving her baby an airing in its bassy. Mister baby was in fine happy and didn't mind being everyone knew it. Mother was dressed in a cool white sleeveless dress and wearing a shady hat. Baby was nicely arrayed in a white rose silken blanket lined with a protecting little chin. He was tucked tightly in to the buggy with several layers of blankets and on the top of that a nice warm wooly shawl, and although they could not be seen, it is almost certain he was wearing woolen stockings. Comparing mother's warm day outfit with baby's, is it any wonder his protests were loud and long?

Baby feels the heat just as much as mother does and sufers more because he cannot make himself comfortable. He has to wait until some one else thinks to do it.

In the summer heat baby's clothes should be the minimum. If a mother has any doubt, let her slip her hand inside baby's clothes and if the little body feels moist then he is too warm. Clothe lightly and cover lightly so that the air may circulate freely over his skin. This keeps him cool. Give him cool boiled water between feeds. He gets thirsty too during hot days.

In these things and a happy combination baby will be the result.

More Boys Planning to Make Buchanan's Alaska Tour

Buchanan District's Daily Times

George E. Buchanan, sponsor and backer of and rooter for the movement of boys to Alaska, is planning to take 50 or more to the far north the coming summer. Buchanan, who is president of the Detroit Coal Exchange and five coal companies and a bachelor, believes that a trip to Alaska, provided a boy partly earns his way, will be a wonderful formative incident in his life. He has already taken 300 boys to Alaska, and this will be his seventh annual personally conducted tour. The boys, ages 16 to 17, must earn one-half of the cost of the trip ($125.00); the parents advance a third and Buchanan loans the boy one third, which is to be repaid later at the boy's leisure.

Buchanan, who gets letters from all over the United States and Canada addressed "Alaska, Buchanan, Detroit," tells the boy who writes to him direct from anywhere how he can earn his third by selling pencils, kitchen tongs, coal, steel and cash baskets, etc. Boys who qualify go westward through Canada via the Rockies, seeing Banff and Lake Louise, then north to Alaska on the "Princess Louise." They see the wonders of Alaska and return by the "Princess" to Vancouver and homeward through the United States, thus viewing the finest scenery in Canada, Alaska and the United States. Buchanan goes with them on every trip and gives them his personal care.

When asked what he did if they got sick, he declared that they did not get sick, or if they had a bit of indisposition, the wonderful climate perked them up and put them back on their feet immediately. "One boy gained 17 lbs. during the month's tour," said Buchanan. "

Germans Invent New Ship

Safer and Cheaper Than Existing Models is Claim

A new kind of ship is being built by a German ship building company, which it is reported, will be safer and more economical than existing models. The feature of the invention is the unusual shape of bow and stern designed to press water down rather than to each side, and to reduce friction on the sides. It is said to cause the water to flow by the shortest route from bow to stern. Three high-speed fishing trawlers recently have been built by Deutschaug on the new principle. The builders announce that not only is the coal consumption reduced 25 per cent compared with other vessels of equal size, but that steering and pitching even in heavy seas is reduced to an extent not previously attained. Twin rudders also have shown excellent steering capacities.

Designs On Totem Poles Are Polynesian

Art Of B.C. Indians Similar To That Of South Seas

What strikes one most of all in looking at the arts and crafts of the British Columbia Indians is the general "Polynesian" character in the designs.

The totem poles are obviously related to those of New Zealand, the models of canoes and painted paddles recall the South Seas generally and in some of the stone carvings there are hints of Easter Island.

On the other hand, the carvings in ivory and horn appear to link on to the arctic Eskimo.

If these impressions are just they support the suggestion which has been made of a "Pacific" school of art, antedating the earliest Chinese art we know and we might venture that whereas partly through China and Indian contact Chinese art went on developing the arts and crafts of British Columbia remained more or less on the Pacific phase.

It is said that the Indians of Brit ish Columbia differ from those of other parts of Canada and the United States by a definite Mongolian type.

Further it is known that the Russians were early visitors to British Columbia and more enough, in the carved shale objects there are distinct affinities with Scythian" art.

The possible bearing on the complex question of pottery among these Indians would be slight, as pottery appears to be entirely absent. Basketry of cedar bark being used for cooking and storing water as it does not burn and is generally geometrical but of extremely representing natural forms as of the human figure. The convention arising out of weave, throwing light upon the supposed origin of the art of basket-making, first by daubing the basket with clay and then by using clay alone, the decoration being transferred from one medium to the other
